

Does Today's Economy Make Retirement Impossible?

By TROY BENDER

Life in retirement, which once conjured images of golf and sunsets at the beach, took on a drearier edge in recent years as more people realize they are unprepared financially to stop working.

The Washington Post has called it "the new reality of old age" and quoted one 74-year-old man saying he will need to work until he dies. For those who have retired, a Fidelity study found that 55 percent are at risk of running out of money before their lives end. Think of this statistic—more than half of those surveyed aren't prepared.

Are you?

"When the stock market was falling in 2008, I had prospective clients share with me they had lost tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars, and some even shared how many years of work they had lost," says Troy Bender, president and CEO of Asset Retention Services Inc. (www.asset-retention.com). "They wanted the losses to stop, and they were desperately looking for help."

In addition to the recession, several other factors contributed to their retirement woes. Most businesses no longer offer pensions, so retirees must rely more on their savings. People also need to rely more on Social Security, but Social Security replaces usually only 40 percent of a person's pre-retirement earnings.

In addition, according to Social Security, they have shared on their website that they may end up paying 75 cents on the dollar in 2033. All of this raises the question: Is it even possible to retire in today's economy?

The answer is "yes," Bender says, but even those who planned well and saved plenty need to be careful as they near, and enter retirement. With many clients in their 80s and some in their 90s—we all have to plan to live a lot longer.

A few tips to help retirees and pre-retirees protect and grow their money include:

• Know when to take Social Security. If you don't choose the most advantageous time to start drawing

Social Security, you could leave a lot of money on the table. Several factors can come into play here depending on your personal situation, so it's best to seek professional advice. Employees at your local Social Security office generally aren't equipped to give you that kind of advice.

• Live by the "Rule of 100." This is critically important. In the investing world, the "Rule of 100" says that the percentage of a person's portfolio that should be in stocks should be equal to 100 minus their age. So, for example, someone who is 60 should have 40 percent of their portfolio in stocks and the other 60 percent should be in bonds or other lower-risk investments.

"If you aren't living by the 'Rule of 100,' you should be, especially if you are 50 or older," Bender says.

• Plan for long-term care. A person who turns 65 today has nearly a 70 percent chance of needing some type of long-term care services at some point, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The cost can be devastating, so it's important to plan financially for this likely eventuality. One option is long-term care insurance.

"Sometimes people expect a family member to take care of them in these situations, but I encourage people not to be a burden to someone else," Bender says.

"The stock market is on a high right now, but we all know from experience that this situation is not going to last forever," Bender says. "The closer you are to retirement—or are currently in retirement—the less time you have to recover from a downturn in the market. No one wants to be forced to continue working in retirement or to change their lifestyle because they experienced major erosion in their retirement portfolio due to circumstances beyond their control."

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Paying FICA Doesn't Change Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am 73 and self-employed, but each year I must pay self-employment tax—money for Social Security and Medicare—as part of my income taxes. I have been collecting Social Security since I was 62, and always hoped that my benefit might increase due to these continued FICA contributions. I guess not. Must I continue to pay this tax? Signed: Still Paying Social Security

Dear Still Paying: I can understand how logic might imply that contributions you continue to make to Social Security after you start collecting benefits could increase your benefit amount, but I need to dispel that thought. Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) payroll taxes don't go into an individual account, which determines your benefit, so continuing to pay FICA tax doesn't directly affect the amount of your Social Security payment. This is true whether you are an employee who pays the 6.2 percent Social Security tax and the 1.45 percent Medicare tax, or if you are self-employed and pay both the employee and employer portion of FICA. There is no cut-off age and you must continue to pay FICA taxes as long as you are working and earning, but your Social Security benefit amount will not change because you are paying those taxes.

Collected FICA taxes are deposited into Social Security's OASDI (old age, survivor and disability) Trust Fund and, for Medicare, the HI (Health Insurance) Trust Fund. Those trust funds are where Social Security and Medicare benefits are paid from, so portions of your FICA contributions go into the appropriate pot to help fund benefit payments for all current and future beneficiaries.

But even though the FICA taxes you pay don't directly affect your Social Security benefit, continuing to work might have an effect on your benefit amount. If your earnings amount for any current year is higher than the inflation-adjusted earnings in any of the 35 years originally used to compute your Social Security benefit amount, Social Security will automatically adjust your benefit to reflect that fact. Social Security looks at your earnings from your income tax returns annually and makes any appropriate benefit adjustment retroactively. But remember, earnings from your early earning years will be adjusted for inflation so, for example, $26,000 earned in say 1980 would be about $92,000 after it is adjusted for inflation, and that's the amount you'd have to earn more than today to replace it in the benefit formula.

AAA Offers Tips For Filling Out FAFSA Form

Many of the Commonwealth's institutions for higher education, including Boston University, UM-ASS, and Harvard University, have a priority deadline of March 1st for students or parents to submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form, required by colleges and universities to determine financial aid and scholarship eligibility.

The Massachusetts state deadline is May 1, and it is important to note that colleges' priority deadline dates for FAFSA vary.

Several organizations help in completing and filing FAFSA forms including the Attorney General's Student Loan Assistance Unit, Massachusetts Educational Financing Authority, and private firms. AAA Northeast has a free service, available to AAA members.

AAA offers these tips to help parents understand that managing the cost of college doesn't have to be a daunting task:

• The FAFSA ID is your golden ticket to financial aid. This unique identification allows an individual to electronically sign all required documents to receive federal financial aid. It's important to note that the student and at least one parent each need their own ID's.

• Financial aid can be used cover all expenses under the total cost of education including room and board, off campus housing, transportation and other expenses the school considers to be part of the cost of education.

• For a family who has a student attending college for the 2018-19 academic year they will need 2016 federal tax returns and W-2 statements along with current information on savings, checking accounts and non-retirement assets.

Chan Seeks Expanded Registry Bill

Chan said. "It's something the Asian-American community has been trying to get for 30 years."

Asia, Chan added, is not one country but a vast continent.

"Asia is not a country and it's not a culture, it's a continent," he said.

Residents would not be required to provide the information on their ethnicities, and could select more than one ethnicity. Individuals who do not indicate their ethnicity would not lose out on state services.

"It's voluntary and it doesn't affect your ability to get services," Chan said.

Philip Chong, the chief executive officer of Quincy Asian Resources, said the organization is in favor of the bill because it can provide information needed to offer better services.

"We fully support this because we see there is not much data there to understand the demographics," he said.

For example, Chong said many teenagers in the Asian American community are in need of support, despite the model-minority stereotype.

"Not all Asians are going to be able to matriculate into Harvard or MIT," he said. "A lot of teens need help, but there is a stereotype that's not necessarily a reality."

After introducing the bill, Chan said he heard from members of the Massachusetts Black and Latino Legislative Caucus who wanted to break the designations "black" and "Hispanic" into specific ethnic categories as well. A commission will take up the matter of specific ethnic groups and bring forward a new proposal sometime during the new legislative term that starts next year, Chan said.

"As a member of the Asian Caucus and a Chinese American, my first priority was to address this issue within the Asian American and Pacific Islander community," Chan said. "I am thrilled to have support of the black and Latino communities moving forward, and look forward to seeing a more inclusive data disaggregation bill next legislative session."

Chong said he supports the decision to have the commission work on a broader bill.

"I think that's a good option," he said. "They can invest some time and bring some key stakeholders together."

The Legislature's State Administration and Regulatory Oversight Committee held a hearing on the bill in January — before the commission was established — in front of a standing-room-only crowd at the Gardner Auditorium on Beacon Hill. Critics of the bill told the committee they were concerned they would be forced to provide too much information to state officials.

Chan said he would work to address concerns about the bill in the future legislation, but said he never intended to target or harm the Asian American community or any other community. Additionally, Chan said he was shocked by the personal attacks made against him and other community members.

"We have heard the concerns that have been voiced in recent months, and will work diligently to address them in the next iteration of the bill," Chan said. "As a Chinese American, I am intimately connected to the issue at hand and want to make it clear that I would never target or harm my own or any other community. I have been shocked and disappointed by many of the personal attacks used against me, Chairwoman Benson, Chairman Timilty, other members of the Legislature, human services agencies, and private individuals."

Chan noted the U.S. Census has long asked respondents who are Asian American and Pacific Islander if they are Chinese, Vietnamese, Native Hawaiian, Filipino, Korean, Samoan, Asian Indian, Japanese or Chamorro.

The U.S. Census Bureau is also proposing to ask white and black respondents to write down their ethnic origins starting in the 2020 census. White respondents will be asked to print if they are German, Irish, English, Italian, Lebanese, Egyptian, etc., while black respondents will be asked to print if they are African American, Jamaican, Haitian, Nigerian, Ethiopian, Somali, etc.

Life Line Screenings Here March 5

Residents living in and around Quincy can learn about their risk for cardiovascular disease, osteoporosis, diabetes, and other chronic, serious conditions with screenings by Life Line Screening.

The screenings will take place at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., Quincy, on Monday, March 5.

Screenings can check for:

- The level of plaque buildup in arteries, related to risk for heart disease, stroke and overall vascular health.
- HDL and LDL cholesterol levels.
- Diabetes risk
- Bone density as a risk for possible osteoporosis

- Kidney and thyroid function, and more.

Screening packages start at $149, but consultants can work with those interested in screenings to create a package based on age and risk factors.

Screenings are convenient and accessible for wheelchairs and those with trouble walking. Free parking is also available.

For more information, call 1-877-237-1287 or visit the website www.lifeline-screening.com. Pre-registration is required.

On Sunday, Feb. 11, 2018, Quincy Police Drug Control Unit Detectives were working in a plain clothes capacity while operating unmarked, non-traditional, police vehicles. The unit was focusing on the stores and parking lots in the area of Granite Street and Walter Hannon Parkway due to drug activity.

At approximately 7 p.m., Detective Coen observed a female exiting the Rite Aid Pharmacy. He watched her as she began to walk around the parking lot while speaking on her cell phone and looking around. It appeared she was looking for someone driving a motor vehicle to pick her up. She then abruptly reversed direction and began walking between parking spaces as a Ford Expedition pulled up to her and she got into the front passenger seat. The Expedition exited the parking lot and turned right onto Walter Hannon Parkway.

Detective Coen queried the license plate which came back to a Quincy address and had been queried eight times recently by various local law enforcement agencies. He decided to keep the vehicle under surveillance and notified other DCU detectives as he followed the Expedition to Walgreens Pharmacy on Quincy Avenue. The operator of the Expedition drove to the pharmacy drive-thru window, stayed there for about five minutes and then traveled around the rear of the pharmacy to the front parking lot.

At this time, Detectives Glennon and Bossart arrived in the area and assisted with surveillance. The detectives were able to determine the identity of the driver because they recognized him as having been involved in criminal activity in the city for years. The female exited the Expedition and entered the Walgreens Pharmacy and within five minutes she was back in the Expedition.

A male then got out of the right rear passenger seat and started walking around the parking lot, smoking a cigarette while talking on his cell phone. Another male exited the left side passenger door, walked into the pharmacy and within five minutes he was back in the Expedition. With all four occupants back in the Expedition, they drove off and were followed by the detectives to CVS located at 42 Beale St.

The female then entered CVS, so Detective Coen followed her inside. She walked up to the pharmacy counter. Detective Coen overheard her conversation with the pharmacist; that she was attempting to fill a prescription of Adderall tablets and pay cash. The pharmacist told her how much it would cost and she told him she would come back in a minute. She then went to the Expedition and returned to the pharmacy counter.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

While Detective Coen kept the female under surveillance, Detectives Glennon and Bossart maintained surveillance on the Expedition. At 7:57 p.m., Detective Glennon observed a Hyundai Sonata pull into the CVS parking lot and turn into the spot directly to the Expedition's left. The female operator exited her vehicle and entered the front passenger's seat of the Expedition. Within two minutes she exited the Expedition, returned to her Sonata and drove off. Members of the DCU believed a drug transaction just occurred so Detectives Glennon, O'Rourke and Bossart followed the Sonata as she travelled to the CVS located on Southern Artery.

Once in the parking spot, Detective O'Rourke approached the vehicle with his badge displayed and instructed the operator to exit her vehicle. Detective Glennon read the female her Miranda Warnings and she stated she understood. He then asked her where she was coming from and she stated, "Wollaston." When asked where specifically, she stated, "I met a friend at Enterprise." There is an Enterprise location adjacent to CVS but it was closed and she did not park near the Enterprise spots.

When asked why she was there she said, "I owed a friend money." This is an excuse DCU Detectives have heard from buyers on numerous occasions to account for suspected drug activity. Detective Glennon informed the female that he observed her get in and out of the Expedition and that she was suspected of being involved in a drug transaction. She then admitted she purchased Adderall. Detective O'Rourke asked her for the pills and she turned over seven round orange pills (six marked M A30 and one marked b 974).

Detective Glennon alerted other members of the DCU who were still at CVS Wollaston that they recovered Adderall. She added she purchased the Adderall pills from the person who was driving the Expedition and described him for the Detectives. She said she paid $70 for the pills with four twenties but did not receive her $10 change. She stated she purchased Adderall from the driver approximately five times over the past few months.

Detectives Cassidy, O'Brien, Powers and Detective Sergeant Tapper arrived at the CVS Wollaston and assisted Detective Coen in the approach to the Expedition. Detective Coen arrived at the driver's door and had the driver step out. He was placed in handcuffs without incident. Detective Coen advised the driver of his Miranda rights to which he stated he understood. He asked the driver where he was coming from and the driver lied. The driver was searched and $40 was located in his pocket. The money was seized.

The driver, a 40-year-old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for distribution of Class B (amphetamines), a subsequent offense and conspiracy to violate the drug control laws.

Detective O'Brien approached the left rear passenger and had him exit the vehicle. Detective Powers detained the right rear passenger while Detective Cassidy entered CVS and spoke with the female at the pharmacy counter. Detective Coen searched the Expedition and located an empty prescription bottle of 30mg amphetamines (Adderall). This prescription was filled on 02/10/18 for 84 tablets. The prescription was not for any of the occupants.

Detective Coen advised the left rear male passenger of his Miranda rights to which he stated he understood. Detective O'Brien entered the rear seat of the Expedition and located a prescription bottle of 30mg amphetamines (Adderall) prescribed to another name. This prescription was filled on this day (02/11/18) for a quantity of 84 tablets. The bottle contained 67 tablets (directions to 1 tablet 3x per day). The prescriber was listed as the same person on the other bottle. The male said he found the prescription.

This male, a 37-year-old Billerica resident, was placed under arrest for Possession to Distribute Class B (amphetamines) and conspiracy to violate the drug control laws. Detective O'Brien located $100 U.S. currency in his pocket. The money and his phone were seized.

Detective Cassidy advised the female in CVS Wollaston of her Miranda rights to which she stated she understood. She said she just received her prescription of 30mg amphetamines (Adderall). This prescription was filled today on 02/11/18 for 84 tablets. The prescriber was listed as the same person who filled the other prescriptions. She told Detectives Cassidy and Coen she received money from the occupants of the vehicle to pay cash for her prescription.

infrastructure, and enhance the safety and accessibility of the site, state officials said. The project will also address ADA compliance and accessibility.

The Seaport Economic Council awarded the $1 million grant at its meeting Feb. 13 at the Kennedy Center in North Quincy. The SEC awarded a total of $4.15 million in grants at that meeting.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy welcomed the grant, saying it would go towards a project that will benefit the area he represents.

"It was great news in my opinion, moving this forward and getting something that's going to be nice for the neighborhood," McCarthy said in a phone interview.

McCarthy said he met with Mayor Thomas Koch to review plans for the site the day after the SEC grant was announced. The city's team planning the new facility, McCarthy said, would be meeting internally over the next several months to finalize the design. The councillor plans to hold a community on the design in the spring or summer so residents can learn details of the proposal.

"I'd like to be able to re-address the whole center because it's been a while," McCarthy said. "There will be community meetings to go over what comes next after this."

The Seaport Economic Council in 2016 awarded Quincy a $225,000 grant to pay for preliminary design and engineering of a Houghs Neck Maritime Center.

Preliminary plans for the new facility, located at 137 Bay View Ave., unveiled at an August 2017 neighborhood meeting included a three-story building that would stand 30-feet tall at its highest point. The first floor would house community space, an office and kitchen, and public bathrooms that would be accessible even if the rest of the building were closed. The second floor would include a 100-person meeting room and the third floor would house two offices for the Quincy Police Marine Unit. The upper floors would be accessible by staircase and elevator and would have their own restrooms.

The community space inside the new building would provide a new home to the Houghs Neck Community Council. The HNCC currently shares space with Manet Community Health Center at 1193 Sea St.

Roof decks overlooking Hingham Bay would be located on both the second and third floors of the building, and an observation deck, meant to resemble a former observation post on Great Hill, would be located on the opposite side of the building, offering vistas of Houghs Neck and Boston.

Plans for the site also include the demolition of three homes inside the maritime center's parking lot, if the city is able to close on those properties. The city hopes to reconfigure the parking lot after razing those homes.

Koch's $27 million park improvement bond, approved by the City Council in the spring of 2017 and paid for with hotel tax money, includes $2.75 million to purchase the three homes and two other properties in Houghs Neck – the parking lot owned by Louis restaurant in the vicinity of the maritime center as well as the LaBrecque Field parking lot, which is currently owned by the Archdiocese of Boston. If the property owners agree to sell their land to the city, the City Council would have to approve the final purchase price.

Then Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest said there was no estimate for how much the new maritime center would cost at the time of the August 2017 meeting. There was also no timeline for the project either, because it could entail a lengthy permitting process.

The City Council in December approved a resolution introduced by Laforest asking the state to name the new Houghs Neck Maritime Center in honor of Francis X. McCauley, a former mayor, city councillor and

Baby's Death Under Investigation

By SCOTT JACKSON

State Police and the Quincy Police Department are investigating the death of an 11-month-old girl who died in a Boston hospital Saturday after being taken there from her Wollaston home two days prior.

First responders were called to the Wollaston home for medical assistance Feb. 15, and the child was taken to a Boston hospital and remained there until her death Saturday, said David Traub, spokesman for the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office.

The Office of the Chief Medical Examiner will conduct an autopsy to determine the cause and manner of the child's death, Traub said.

No further information was available as the Sun went to press Tuesday afternoon.

Board Members Briefed On Wollaston 40B Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

A city attorney met behind closed doors with members of the Quincy's Zoning Board of Appeals to discuss an affordable housing project in Wollaston the board had previously rejected.

Janet Petkun, an assistant city solicitor, addressed members of the ZBA during an executive session the board held at the end of its meeting on Feb. 13. The executive session was held in regards to Warren Place, a proposed 40-unit development at the corner of Old Colony Avenue and Warren Avenue in Wollaston.

The ZBA rejected the project in June 2017, in part because of concerns over the density of the proposal. The Boncaldo family, the developers behind the project, have since appealed that decision to the state's Housing Appeals Committee.

Petkun declined to comment on her closed-door meeting with the zoning board, citing the ongoing litigation. Martin Aikens, the board's chairman, likewise declined comment following the meeting.

A public hearing on the Warren Place proposal has been scheduled for the board's next meeting on Feb. 27 at 7:15 p.m. Petkun said it is uncertain if that hearing will go forward as scheduled.

"It all depends on how this proceeds," she said.

The Boncaldos had sought a comprehensive permit for the project under the Chapter 40B of Massachusetts state law. Chapter 40B exempts affordable-housing projects from certain local zoning requirements in communities with fewer affordable-housing units than required under state law.

The Planning Board had approved a market-rate project for the same site – 118 Old Colony Ave. and 54 and 60 Warren St. – in August 2015. The Boncaldos, however, withdrew the proposal after neighbors filed suit to block the project, and then resubmitted it last spring as an affordable housing project.

In other business Feb. 13, the Zoning Board of Appeals approved Michael Grehan's proposal to tear down the single-family home at 713 Sea St. and construct three townhouse units on site.

Thomas Cavanagh, the attorney representing Grehan, said two of the units will include two bedrooms and two-and-a-half bathrooms, while the middle unit will have three bedrooms and two-and-a-half baths. Each condominium will have a two-car garage, and three guest spaces will be located outside the building.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy spoke in support of the project during the zoning board's meeting. He said the developer had met with abutters to allay their concerns about the project.

"I think it's a nice addition that they're putting in. It's not too large," McCarthy said. "I think it's good for Sea Street and a good project."

Aikens, the board's chairman, agreed with McCarthy that it would be a good project.

"It is a nice project," he said.

The board also:

Continued until April 10 a hearing on request from Robert Galligan, owner of Louis at 1269 Sea St. to amend a ZBA decision from the 1990s requiring the restaurant and the parking lot across the street both be owned by the same individual. The city has proposed purchasing that parking lot as part of its plan to renovate the nearby Houghs Neck Maritime Center.

Continued until March 13 a hearing on the request from Allison MacLellan to rebuild the non-conforming structure at 149 Rockland St.

Granted permission to Joseph Bondi to renovate the attic and add two dormers with decks to the home at 10 Wedgewood St.

Granted permission to Jesse Snell to reconfigure the paving at 201 Billings St. by adding a new driveway with permeable pavers and eliminating the off-street parking in front of the house.

Continued until March 13 a request from Simon Lam for a variance to convert the two-family home at 172 Vassall St. to a three-family home. Lam said the new owner who purchased the property two years ago discovered the house had been illegally converted by a previous owner into a three-family home and sold as such.

"VEHICLE ALERT NOTICE . . . THIS IS YOUR FINAL NOTICE Many residents are receiving postcards in the mail urging you to contact them "within 5 business days" in order extend your factory warranty. Examine this card closely. On the card I received, it said that my vehicle is a "Chrysler, Dodge, Jeep", which is true, but there is no precise information as to year, make, model or VIN. This unnamed company most likely bought the list of people who purchased the above named vehicles, which are all part of the Chrysler company. A Google check of the telephone number provided shows that many people complain of the robocalls coming from the number listed.

I called the number listed and inquired as to what vehicle they were referring to and they knew the year, make and model that I owned. I inquired about the company and they gave me the name but couldn't provide an address, claiming that they have offices all over the country. The company, going by Egis and omega.com, are not listed anywhere on the postcard. So, buyer beware. As always, if you are inclined to purchase an extended warranty, it is better to buy from the dealer. If there is a conflict with coverage, you could walk into the dealership to discuss the matter in person. If the issue is not resolved to your liking, small claims court could be an option. Most reputable dealers will not risk the bad exposure and loss of customer(s) over a warranty issue.

10 Townhouses Proposed For Intervale Street

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal to build a total of ten new townhouse units on two separate South Quincy parcels received a lukewarm reception recently from residents who attended a community meeting on the plan.

Denny Vo and Hieu Dam are proposing to build the townhouses at 90 and 126 Intervale St. A half dozen residents attended a Feb. 15 community meeting on their plan in the auditorium of the Lincoln-Hancock School.

Presently a two-family Victorian home is located at 90 Intervale St., a 12,952-square-foot property on the corner of Taber Street. The developers would preserve the Victorian house on site and build three townhouse units in the side yard on Taber Street; a driveway would connect the townhouses to Taber Street.

The single-family home and garage at 126 Intervale St., a 15,822-square-foot lot on the corner of Centre St., would be razed to make way for the new townhouse units. A total of seven townhouse units would be located on site there – four accessible from Intervale Street and three from Centre Street.

The townhouses would all stand three stories tall with a two-car garage on the first floor and living space on the top two floors. Six of the units would have three bedrooms and two-and-a-half bathrooms; the four units at 126 Intervale St. accessible from Intervale Street would have two bedrooms and one-and-a-half bathrooms each.

William Phelan, the attorney representing the developers, said the Zoning Board of Appeals would need to approve variances for both sites, and the projects would be filed separately but at the same time. He said the developers would take into consideration feedback from the community meeting before filing plans with the city.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he had opposed a previous iteration of the plan brought forward last year and filed with the ZBA; the developers and their then attorney held a community meeting last summer, which the councillor was unable to attend because he was notified too late. Phelan, a former Quincy mayor, is now representing the developers and agreed to start the process anew.

"He had the suggestion to pull back the material – the application that was filed before the zoning board – and essentially hit the reset button," Palmucci said of Phelan. "That's what the purpose of tonight is."

Phelan told those in attendance the new townhouses would prove beneficial for the neighborhood.

"I think a new project – in my opinion, and I know it's not shared by everybody – really helps the area," he said at the top of the meet-

16 Students Qualify For The Regional Fair At Bridgewater State University March 10

Over 100 students presented to approximately 200 spectators at the annual Quincy High School Science, Technology and Engineering (STEM) Fair Feb. 7.

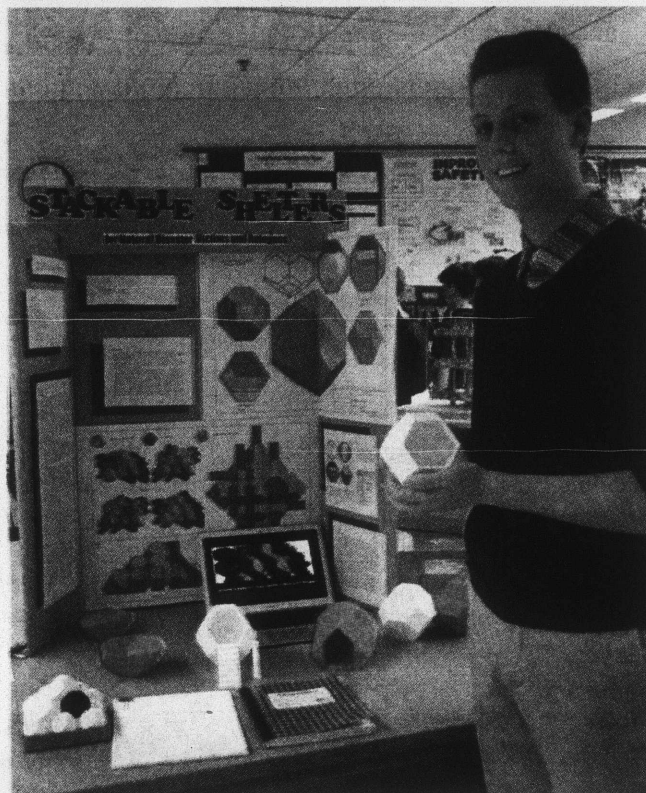

The event featured over 100 projects from grades 9-12 and spanned fields of biology, chemistry, earth science, environmental science, physics, and engineering.

Students worked individually or as a team to investigate topics such as the antibiotic properties of aquatic sediment bacteria to magnetivity to phytohormone manipulation. The extensive project work has helped build career and life skills for success in 21st century careers, such as critical and creative thinking, proper scientific methodology, communication with Each project was assessed at least three times by at least three different academic judges from varying professions. Project scores were then tallied and weighted based on scientific approach, creativity, understanding, methodology and presentation.

Each year, the Quincy High School STEM fair exhibits an immense diversity of projects and the student enthusiasm is palpable throughout the evening.

"It is always wonderful to see the student passion that goes into these projects. You can tell that they enjoyed what they were doing and were intensely interested in their results and their applications for future projects and real-world problems," said Christopher Strobel, a software developer and judge for the event.

O'Leary's Hat Trick Sparks Presidents Past Red Raiders

By TOM JOYCE

Both teams had a strong showing in their second and final meetup of the season.

Ultimately, however, it was the Quincy Presidents boys' hockey team who prevailed last Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena, coming up with a 6-3 win over the North Quincy Red Raiders in a bout that was decided in the final minute of action.

"It's a good win for the school, it's great for Quincy High School," Presidents head coach Ted Walsh Jr. said. "We're proud to represent them."

The Presidents struck first in the contest about one minute into the game. Junior captain and forward Dan O'Leary slapped one in while the Red Raiders were trying to reposition themselves to defend a shot. With 12:33 left in the period, however, the Red Raiders tied it up at one apiece as junior forward Kieran O'Driscoll gained some momentum and scored two goals within 90 seconds of one another.

the Presidents a 2-1 lead with 8:59 remaining in the period. With 7:47 remaining, they struck again; this time, it was junior forward AJ Currie who had the goal for the Presidents, putting them up by two scores.

However, before the first period ended, the Red Raiders were able to cut that lead in half. Senior defenseman Ethan Herman rifled in a goal from near the blue line with 4:59 left in the first, making it a 3-2 game.

Both teams played tough defense in the second period, but Whalen put the Presidents back up by two goals, slapping one in right in front of the net off of a quick pass with 4:41 remaining.

In the third period, the Red Raiders scored when they needed to, keeping them in contention. Freshman defenseman Ben Wines made it a 4-3 game, firing in a goal from the right side through traffic with about 10 minutes remaining in the game. The Presidents defense played tough, so they limited the Red Raiders' scoring opportunities and eventually, were able to find a couple of their own.

O'Leary netted two empty-net goals in the final minute of the game, giving the Presidents a couple of insurance goals to ensure their win.

"It was a total team effort, so it's tough to single anyone out," Walsh said, "But anytime your best players are playing their best hockey, good things are going to happen."

The Presidents certainly received a strong performance in net from Dan Murphy while O'Leary, Whalen and sophomore Jack O'Brien have shined on their top line this season.

The win was the Presidents' final game of the regular season. They have no games this week as the prep for the postseason and the Division 2 South playoff bracket.

"First and foremost, it's good rest," Walsh said. "We'll take a couple of days off and then come right back at it. We'll simulate an intersquad scrimmage game and do a lot of live drills. They'll be excited. They'll be ready to go, but I'm sure they could use a break. They've poured their hearts out this year."

Although the Red Raiders did not come out on top, it was one of their better performances of the season, hanging in tough against a playoff-bound team in front of the hometown crowd.

"This is high school hockey at its best," Red Raiders head coach Matt Gibbons said. "Whether you choose Quincy or North, this is what you get. You don't get this at other schools like B.C. High or Archbishop Williams. Win, lose or draw, it's a great experience for the kids. It's special. Obviously, you want to come out and win, but it's a special night. It's a lot fun."

Gibbons was happy with the performances of his seniors in their final home game of the season. In all, they have eight seniors on their team this season including: forwards Connor Donaghey, John Norton, Austin Devane, Sean Patrick Flynn, Dylan Malcolm and Ryan Cox and defense-

VOICE FOR HEALTH

DEGENERATING DISCS

As one might suspect, no part of the body is immune from the effects of aging. In the case of the discs positioned between each bone (vertebra) in our backs, "disc degeneration" is a common problem that is experienced by nearly 40% of the population age 40 years and older. According to a ten-year study of 197 individuals over the age of 65, participants' disc height gradually reduced an average of 5.8% over the course of the study, with about 55% of study participants experiencing degeneration in one or two discs. In addition, study researchers identified three factors that increased the likelihood of disc degeneration: being female, having knee osteoarthritis, and having low back pain (when the study began).

The first step a chiropractor will take with degenerative disc disease is to determine if you have a true disc-related problem. At your initial exam, you'll disclose your past medical history, and the chiropractor will determine areas of restricted joint motion, disc injury, muscle spasm, and ligament injury by performing a few simple tests. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Although chiropractic treatment can be called upon to treat osteoarthritic knee pain, it can also help reduce or eliminate lower back pain, which decreases the likelihood that your discs will degenerate at a faster rate when you age.

men Chris Donaghey and Ethan Herman. Gibbons also said freshman defenseman Ben Wines, freshman goaltender Asher Wines and junior forward Noah Wines had strong performances in the contest.

"I thought at times we controlled the play, especially in the second period," Gibbons said. "We just can't put the puck in the net and it came back to bite us today."

At the start of the week, the Red Raiders had the opportunity to finish out their season on a high note. They beat Everett, 2-1 on Feb.

14 prior to their battle with Quincy. On Monday this week, they went up against Nantucket, who they beat earlier in the season, 2-0.

"It's good for the program," Gibbons said. "I think it's just good for the seniors so that they can leave this program with a good taste in their mouths. A lot of teams would have crumbled four or five games ago, but our guys haven't. They're having fun, they're working hard and giving it everything that they have. That team out there isn't a team that only has three wins, they work hard every night."

Now, the Red Raiders are moving forward and are excited for what the future holds for them.

"We're really looking forward to it," Gibbons said. "With us bumping down to Division 3, this team is going to compete for a state title in the next few years. I hope people are paying attention to this team. For anyone thinking of where they want to go, this is going to be a fun place to play in a couple of years. These seniors kept these guys together, so any success we have in the next two or three years is a credit to them."

Plymouth S. Ends NQ Girls Pursuit For Tournament

By PAUL BREGOLI

Needing to win their last four games to qualify for the state tournament, North Quincy girls varsity basketball team dropped a heart-breaking game to Plymouth South 31-28 at South.

The Red Raiders jumped out to a quick 3-0 lead on junior Samantha Smith's three point shot from the wing. Again, North was immense on defense leading after one quarter, 11-7.

However, the Andrew girls found the range in the second eight minutes with Teja scoring 5 and Brandi adding 4. North still managed to stay close at half-time, trailing by two, 19-17 thanks to another Smith three ball and layup.

An unheard of defensive effort by the Red and Black saw the visitors entering the final quarter holding a 21-19 lead as they held the Panthers to zero points in the quarter. Unfortunately, North went ice cold from the floor managing only 4 points by captain Jill Hallisey while losing leading scorer Jenn Butka to injury half way through the third and the entire fourth quarter. Without Butka, North's offensive woes worsened as the hosts outscored North 21-7.

In addition to their poor shooting from the floor (20 percent), North fared poorly at the charity stripe going 30 percent at 6 for 20. Smith led the Red Raiders in her best overall game of the season with 9 points, while Mary Kate McAleavey added 5 points and 16 rebounds.

Finally playing a home game after two weeks of road games, North dropped another close game to Pembroke, 45-24. The Red Raiders were without McAleavey who sustained an injury in the South game, but did get Butka back. The hosts ran out to a 15-10 lead after a quarter as Butka scored 7 while Jessie Caldwell added 6.

Defensively, North focused on shutting down Pembroke's Jayne Howe and Katie Galligan as Hallisey, Lindsey Keenan and Smith rotated on the Titans' two top scorers. North held Howe to six in the first half and ten for the game but Galligan went wild in the first half dropping 19 points on NQ.

However, North clamped down on both players in the second half and were tied with Pembroke after three quarters at 32 apiece. The Red Raiders used a balanced attack in the third quarter with Keenan, Smith, Caldwell and Butka scoring two each while Hallisey chipped in with two consecutive pull up jump shots while holding Pembroke to 6 points.

The Red Raiders actually had a 4 point advantage with 2 and a half minutes left. However, freshman guard Maia Duescher scored her only points of the game, including a corner three to give the visitors the hard fought win.

For Pembroke, Galligan finished with 21 while Butka led North with 17 while Caldwell had 8, Hallisey 7 and Keenan 6.

North travelled to Plymouth North Monday for a 12:30 p.m. make up game and then closed out the season at home on Wednesday vs. Hull at 7 p.m. on Senior Night.

AFTER A COMPETITIVE game in which Quincy emerged with a 6-3 victory over North, both teams shake hands at center ice.

Quincy Girls Defeat Milton, W-H To Finish 13-7

Quincy High School girls basketball team closed out the regular season at 13-7 at home Saturday night with a 66-43 win over Milton. The victory avenged a tough overtime loss earlier in the season against the Wildcats.

The Presidents ended on a high note playing their best basketball of the season in the win. They shot a blistering 60 percent from the field including 50 percent from downtown. Senior Captain Liana Cunningham led the charge on both ends of the floor scoring 14 and hitting on four of her three point attempts. Sophomore point guard Jill O'Toole provided a tremendous spark on the defensive end and chipped in 12 pts of her own. Allison McMorrow and Juliana Tracey each scored 9 pts in the effort as well.

The Presidents opened up strong for the second game in a row holding Milton to just 4 points in the first quarter to take a 12-4 lead. They extended this lead to 31-14 at the half behind some red hot three point shooting. It was 45-24 after three quarters and the girls never let up.

The defensive intensity and full court pressure proved to be the difference in the game. All nine players scored for Quincy. Julianne Gazzola and Rachel Smith each chipped in baskets in the fourth quarter.

In other recent action, Quincy defeated Whitman-Hanson, 47-42 Feb. 14. The Presidents came out focused and ready outscoring the Panthers 14 to 2 in the first quarter with swarming defense and efficient ball movement on the offensive end. Olivia Martin's 6/6 from the free throw line in the second quarter helped to pull Whitman-Hanson back to within four at the half. 21 to 17.

The third quarter remained remained close with Quincy holding a narrow lead at 33 to 30. Two big 3-pointers in the fourth quarter by Junior guard Gia Calabro helped Quincy to stay ahead. Liana Cunningham's clutch two-for-two free throw shooting in the final seconds sealed the victory for the Presidents.

Sophomore forward Ally McMorrow had 17 points, six rebounds and four assists for the Presidents. Also contributing were Juliana Tracey (9 points), sophomore forward Grace Hobin (6 pts) and senior forward Ro Molina (6 offensive rebounds).

NQ Swimmers Compete At Div. 1 State Championships

By KARA MCGILLICUDDY

Juniors Juliana Chieng and Emily Steele helped North Quincy (1-6) finish 31st in the Division I State Swimming Championships last Saturday at Boston University.

Chieng placed 13th overall in the 50-yard freestyle event clocking 25.51, and Steele was 20th in the 100 backstroke (1:04.30).

Steele earned her States appearance when she improved her own NQ school record swimming 1:03.71 for 11th at the South Sectionals Championships Feb. 10 at M.I.T.

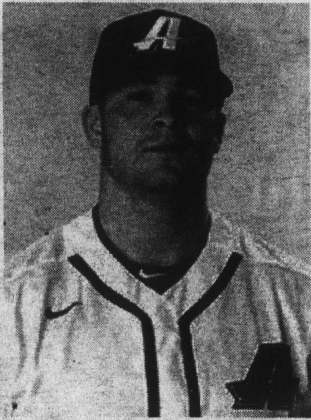

At the same meet, NQ's 50 freestyle recordholder, Juliana Chieng swam 25.46 for 10th in the event. The pair joined senior Julia Klinecicz and sophomore Amaryllis Gu for 19th (1:49.49) in the 200 freestyle relay improving their seed time by three seconds.

Steele, the Patriot League Fisher Division MVP, led off the 200 medley relay followed by Gu, and seniors Ina Hoti and Brenna Kirby who finished 30th with a time of 2:15.76. As a team, North Quincy finished 28th out of the 39 teams who scored points.

Andrew Jaehnig Pre-Season All-American

Senior catcher Andrew Jaehnig of Quincy of the Assumption baseball team has been selected to the 2018 NCBWA (National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association) Preseason All-American Second-Team.

Jaehnig, a graduate of Boston College High School, is the only position player from the NE10 to receive the honor. They only other selections from the conference were Le Moyne's junior reliever Josiah Gray (First Team), who is ranked as the 58th best prospect in all of college baseball by Baseball America; and New

ANDREW JAEHNIG

Haven's starting pitcher David Palmer (Third Team).

Last spring, Jaehnig became the 11th player in the program's history to be named All-American after his standout junior season. He hit a robust .401 on the season, leading the NE10 and the East Region in that category. He also owned the top slugging percentage in the conference and ranked third in the East Region with a mark of .637, which was .67 points higher than the runner up in the NE10.

Jaehnig also finished second in the conference with 16 doubles and 63 hits, while ranking in the top ten in home runs (five), RBI (33), triples (three) and on base percentage (.449) all while recording a .975 fielding percentage behind the plate as the catcher. On the season, Jaehnig tallied 20 multi-hit games and reached base safely in 37 out of the 42 games.

Prior to Assumption, Jaehnig played basketball and baseball at Boston College High School. The son of Mark and Christine Jaehnig, he was named a Catholic Conference All-Star as a junior and senior.

Jaehnig, a career .350 hitter in high school, was also named a Massachusetts All-State selection.

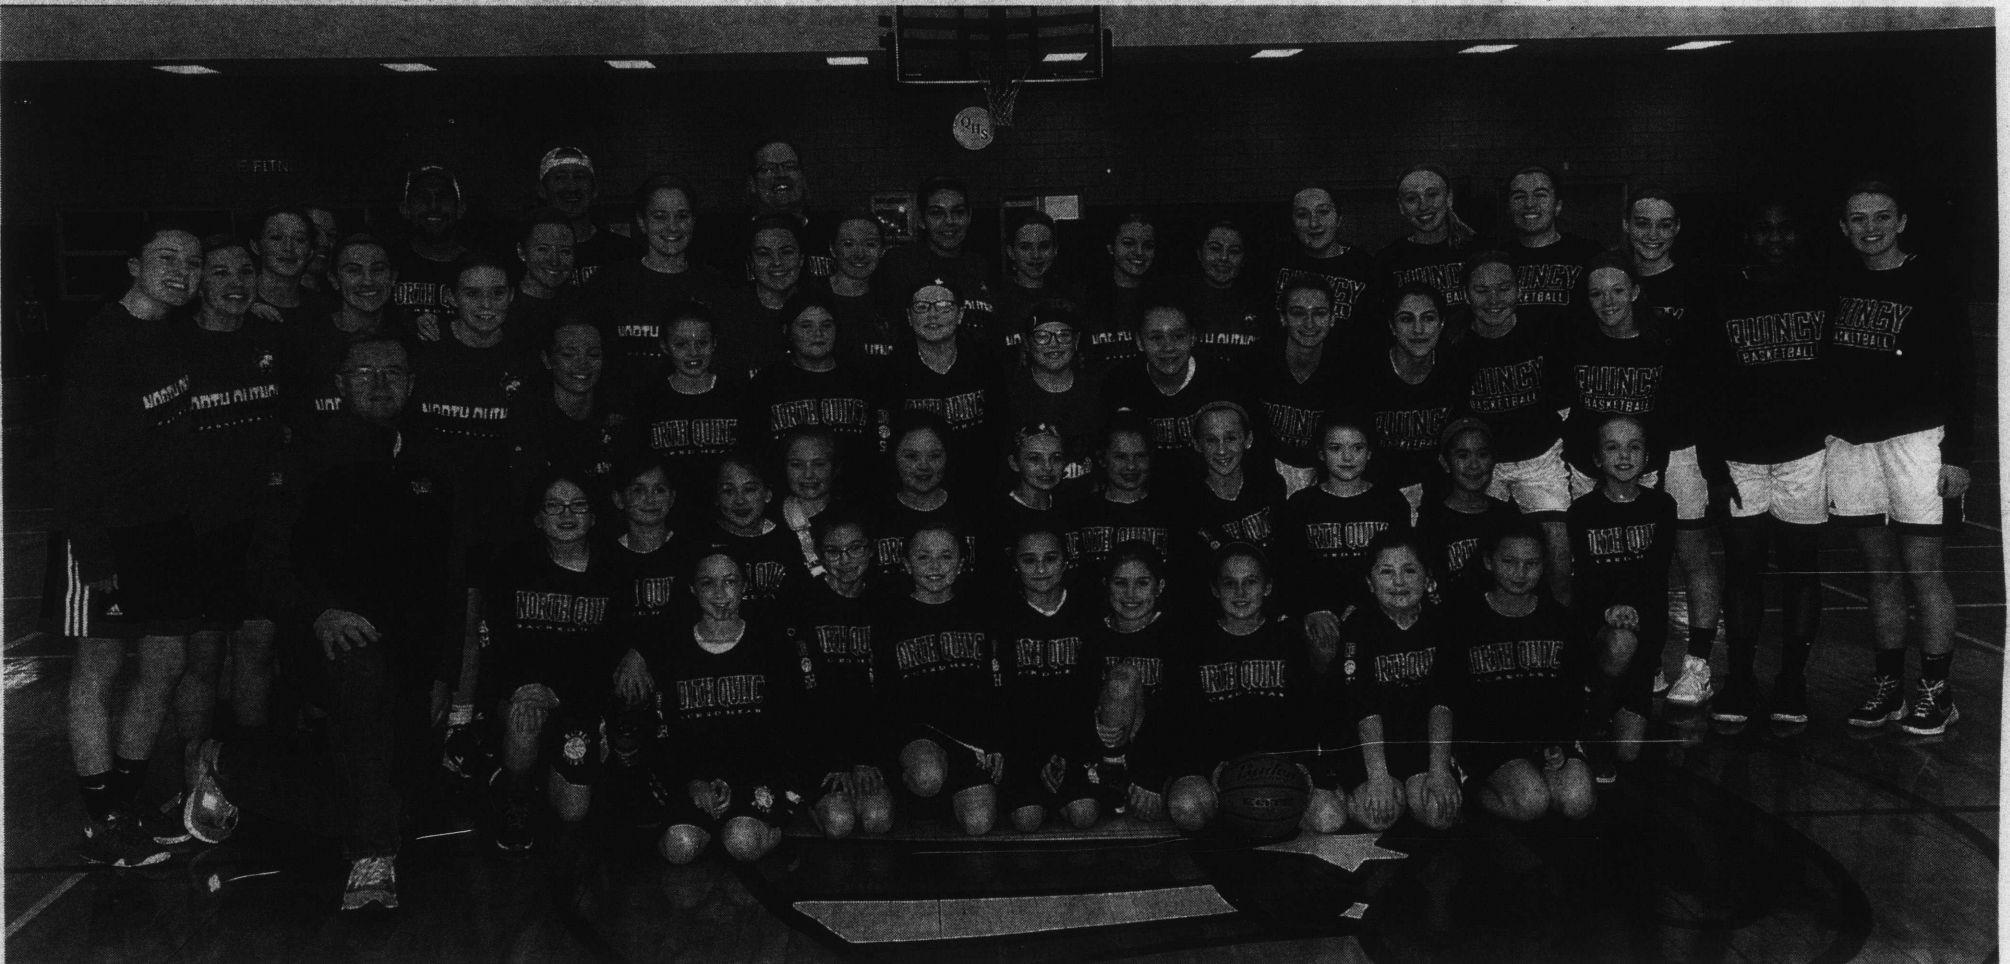

Emily Bryson Named Athlete Of The Week

Emily Bryson, a member of the Brandeis University track and field team, was named a University Athletic Association Athlete of the Week for the week ending Feb. 11th.

Competing at the Boston University David Hemery Valentine Invitational, Bryson, a Brandeis sophomore, placed 20th overall, 12th among collegiate runners from Division I, II and III, and tops among Division III runners in the mile with a time of 4:46.63.

In addition to lowering her own school record by nearly five seconds, Bryson posted the sixth-fastest time in Division III women's history in the event. She leads all Division III runners by more than five seconds.

Bryson also ran the lead leg in the Judges' distance-medley relay team that placed seventh among DIII teams at the meet and is ranked 10th overall for the season with a time of 11:57.84.

Sacred Heart Basketball Takes Court At Q-NQ Game

It was a night of fun for the Sacred Heart girls third and fourth grade travel basketball teams with both teams playing a scrimmage at half time of the Quincy vs. North Quincy High School girls varsity basketball game Feb. 9.

Both teams had the opportunity to take a combined team picture with both High School squads.

"Our girls really enjoyed the high school game and scrimmage," said 3A head coach Jose Diaz. "There is a lot for them to see at the high school level with game announcements, warmups, warm-up music and the large crowd our girls had been wide eyed the entire night."

"It was a lot of fun."

With many current high school players running through the Sacred Heart program, the game was also special for Sacred Heart Director Mark Jaehnig.

"These games are always great. It's great to see our girls play both the younger girls and at both high schools," Jaehnig said. "I've had the privilege of coaching a majority of the High School girls over the last many years and again it's just great to be in the gym taking it all in," said Jaehnig.

Both the third and fourth grade Sacred Heart girls travel teams are having strong seasons with the third grade team under Coach Diaz currently at 9-1 playing up a division (3rd graders playing 4th graders) and the 4th grade team under Coach Mike Healy currently 10-0 in their division. Both teams play in the highly competitive MetroWest Basketball league.

"We hope to have the opportunity in the future to bring other teams in and play/showcase all our kids across the city at future high school games. We want to thank both high school teams, coaches/ADs for the opportunity. The kids loved it," said Jaehnig.

QNC Track Athletes Shine At States

By GEOFF HENNESSY

The sign of a good team is when it peaks at Championship time.

Such was the case for the QNC winter track team as nearly every athlete did their season best and three came away with medals by virtue of their top 8 finish at the Reggie Lewis Center. In all 45 schools from all over the Commonwealth descended on "The Reggie," as 15 athletes from QNC toed the line or jumped to personal bests to the delight of the attending parents and the track team staff.

First out of the blocks was junior Nathan Sleiman of North Quincy. Battling the bug and still suffering from a high fever, the talented hurdler had the fifth fastest trial time to make the final of 8, but did not fair as well in the finals hitting a few hurdles and finishing 7th but grabbing his first indoor medal.

"Nathan has worked hard and has improved both in speed and technique," said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "His illness had him drained but adrenaline got him through. His time of 7.97 from two weeks ago is still the NQ best. I give a lot of credit to volunteer assistant Jeff Perriera for all the work he has done. The athletes continue to improve week by week."

While the runners encircled the 200 meter track, the infield was packed with field eventers in long jump and high jump.

Quincy senior Shorn Hawthorne saved his best ever clearance of 6'00" for States and grabbed a 7th place medal. Shorn easily cleared the opening height of 5'9" then passed the 5'10" height going straight to 6' and then cleared it on his first attempt to hold the 7th spot.

"Shorn rolled the dice by passing," said Hennessy. "Clearing bars on the first attempt is key to scoring a good place in this event. He had a great practice on Thursday and his form has improved demonstrably from a year ago."

In girls long jump sophomore Sarah Pillone jumped 15'05" and also has improved in both the long jump and the hurdles which she had just missed qualifying for last week.

On the track, dependable Abby Murphy lost no time racing to her lifetime best of 3:10.2 and earned 8th in the 1,000 meters. She has spent most of the past two years in the 600, but after a great cross country season, she and Distance Coach Carolyn Mullaney decided this year it was time to move up.

In the 55 meter dash, Alex Case ran her fastest, a 7.62 clocking but came in 9th just one spot out of the finals. The Wheaton bound senior was not done for the day though. Another senior who was close to placing was Devin Hiltunen, her time of 43.32 in the 300 was 10th but nonetheless one of her fastest clockings. The Brandeis bound senior also was just warming up for the night.

In the relays the quartet of Alex Case, Kelsey Coughlin, Catherine Brown and Hiltunen ran a 1:52.2 good enough for 14th. Handoffs were well executed and Hiltunen ran a 26.6 split bringing the crowd to its feet as she passed opponents down the homestretch.

The 4 x 800 relay featured the runners of the future with three freshmen and a sophomore each running 4 laps apiece. Lezly Acevedo put the team in good shape with a 2:39 lead-off while Rory Mahoney and Emma Lyons hung tough battling back and forth with a Westford Academy squad, Isa Hanley ran the anchor with a smart 2:40. The 11:02 time improved over the 11:12 time clocked at the Last Chance Meet on Feb. 4.

The concluding event, the 4 x 400, showcased the talent and hard work of the girls. Alex Case opened with a best ever 62 split handing off the Olivia Palazzi. Palazzi kept QNC in the hunt with a 66 leg passing to Abby Murphy. Murphy valiantly closed the gap between QNC and several other teams with a 65, handing off the Devin Hiltunen who once again brought the crowd to its feet with a rapidly closing 61 split. The 4:16 time (good for 9th) is the fastest in some years.

As QNC is a co-op team they must compete in Division 1 as the MIAA counts the population of both schools.

Kyle De Boer Fourth In State Hoop Shoot Competition

KYLE De BOER, the Quincy and Circle District champion of the Elks National Hoop Shoot free throw contest, has completed his championship run with a fourth place finish in the 12/13 division at the Massachusetts state championship. The state championship was held in Maynard and the winners advance to New England State Finals. Kyle was sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks 943. With more than one million boys and girls nationwide participating, the national championship will conclude in Chicago in April. At all levels of competition the boys and girls shoot 25 free throws for score. Ed Miller is completing his 36th year as the Quincy lodge Hoop Shoot chairman.

Kenny Sorensen NECC Volleyball Player Of Week

Senior Kenny Sorensen of Quincy, a member of the Eastern Nazarene College men's volleyball team, has been tabbed the New England Collegiate Conference (NECC) Player of the Week.

Sorensen captured his second career Player of the Week nod after leading the Lions to three wins on the week.

He started the week with 20 kills and nine digs as Eastern Nazarene swept Mount Ida 3-0. Sorensen's 20 kills are the third-highest total in a three-set match this season in all of NCAA Division III.

Sorensen posted eight kills and nine digs in the Lions' 3-0 victory over Pine Manor.

Sorensen erupted for a program-record 29 kills and chipped in with 14 digs to notch his third double-double of the season as he powered Eastern Nazarene to a thrilling 3-2 win over Regis to cap off the week. His 29 kills are the fourth-most in Division III while his 69 total attack attempts are the second-most.

This season, Sorensen ranks second nationally with 12.53 attacks per set and third with 4.39 kills per set. He also paces the conference in kills per set (4.39), total kills (158), digs per set (2.89), and ranks second in total digs (104).

Public Forum Monday On Safe Communities

The South Shore Coalition for Human Rights announces state Sen. Jamie Eldridge (D-Acton) will present an overview of the Safe Communities Act at a public forum co-sponsored by the South Shore Coalition on Human Rights and the Unitarian Universalist Mass Action Network on Monday, Feb. 26th at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The Safe Communities Act (S.1305/H.3269) would protect the civil rights of all state residents by making sure tax dollars are not used to help the Trump administration deport hardworking undocumented immigrant families or to create a Muslim registry.

"The South Shore Coalition on Human Rights has been working to protect the human and civil rights of all residents of the South Shore for over 40 years," said Deanna White-Hebert, president of the SSCHR. "This bill will be important in protecting those rights for many of our residents."

The Joint Committee on Public Safety and Homeland Security reported the bills to the Senate Committee on

OBITUARIES

Marie A. Casna, 92

A funeral Mass for Marie A. (Albertassi) Casna, age 92, a longtime resident of Braintree, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Thomas More Church, Braintree.

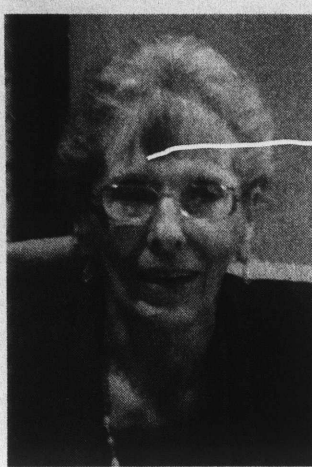

Mrs. Casna died peacefully in her home on Feb. 13, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in South Boston to the late Frank and Roberta (Connell) Albertassi on Dec. 3, 1925. She was a member of the Braintree High School Class of 1944.

She married her late husband, N.D. "Sammy" Casna in 1948 and together they were co-owners of the Quincy Glass Company for many years. Previously, she had worked as a sales associate at Sears, Roebuck and Company and as a sales manager with the former R.H. Stearns Company at the South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

Mrs. Casna was past-president of the Toastmistress Club and a member of the Emblem Club for thirty years. She was involved with the PTA and served as a Cub Scout and Girl Scout Leader. She enjoyed dancing and bowling and was an avid Boston Red Sox fan.

Mrs. Casna is survived by her loving children, Donna Rogers and her husband John of Marion, Roberta Drew and her husband Robert of Plymouth, MA and Bonita Springs FL, Ronald Casna and his wife Jean of Taunton, Nancy Casna of Saratoga Springs NY and Susan Casna Devine of Canton.

MARIE A. CASNA

She was devoted to her thirteen grandchildren and twenty-three great-grandchildren, supporting all their many activities and accomplishments.

She was the last of five siblings and was predeceased by James and John Albertassi, Roberta Tibbetts as well as her cherished sister Dorothea Casna and sister-in-law Enes Brown. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews, including her godchild Cynthia Casna.

Francis C. Murray, 93

A funeral Mass for Francis C. "Frank" Murray, age 93, of Quincy, formerly of Jamaica Plain and Dorchester, was celebrated Feb. 17 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

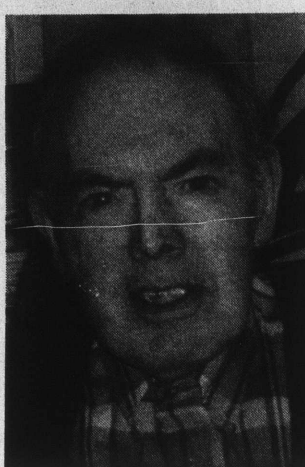

Mr. Murray died peacefully, after a period of failing health, Feb. 9, at the Hellenic Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Canton.

He was born in Jamaica Plain to the late Patrick and Mary (Carroll) Murray. Raised in Jamaica Plain, he was a graduate of Jamaica Plain High School. Following World War II, he graduated from Boston College, Class of 1950, and later received his Master's degree in social work from Boston University. After moving from Dorchester, he had lived in Quincy for fifty-five years.

Mr. Murray was employed for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as a public administrator in social services for over thirty years. Most of his career was spent in Boston, but he worked in Quincy prior to his retirement.

Mr. Murray was a World War II veteran, having served in the U.S. Army's 75th Reconnaissance Division. He participated in the Rhineland, Ardennes and Central European campaigns and received various medals and campaign ribbons.

Mr. Murray was an avid reader and thoroughly enjoyed the works of his favorite author, Rudyard Kipling. He also enjoyed writing and compiled a wonderful collection of self-penned short stories and poems. He entertained family and friends with his keen sense of sto-ing. "It helps the area's home values. It's not an area that's plagued with traffic; the traffic is basically the traffic in the neighborhood. It's not a big apartment building that's being proposed.

"They're townhouse-style properties that will have sufficient parking so people won't be parking in the street...you can see similar developments throughout the city and, quite honestly, a lot of them are very well maintained. They're like the two-family, and the three-family and the four-family houses that were built many years ago, only now construction is different and architecture is different."

Residents, however, were concerned about the number of townhouses being built in the city and their impact on traffic.

"It's changing the landscape of our neighborhood," said Donna Clark. "I've been there over 40 years. I don't like seeing condos or townhouses. You can't stop it, but it shouldn't be so many. It's like every piece of little land has been taken up."

"You can't drive around Quincy and not see every single little piece of land being overdeveloped," added Peg Mansfield. "It's becoming a Charlestown. It's becoming a Somerville. And no disrespect to those cities, but I didn't move here because I wanted a neighborhood city and this is changing. Every time you put in a townhouse as opposed to a house, you're adding cars and you're adding traffic."

In response to those concerns, Phelan pointed to studies - including ones done by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council - that have found more housing is needed in the Greater Boston area, including in Quincy, to keep up with soaring demand and keep housing costs in check.

"There are studies out there that show there is an extreme shortage of housing, not a glut of housing," Phelan said. "I'm not saying it should all be built in Quincy, but there is a study that says in fact more housing has to be built in Quincy."

Amy Galiano, a neighborhood resident, said she was concerned Lincoln-Hancock could not handle an influx of new students from residential developments ongoing in South and West Quincy, and suggested the city put a hold on development in the area until a new elementary school opens at the former St. Mary School site.

"You can't sit there and say 'it's only going to be townhouses and they're going to be family oriented,'" Galiano said. "You're not taking into consideration the kids that already live in this neighborhood and being forced into oversized classrooms."

Phelan, in response, said redistricting could help alleviate the pressure on Lincoln-Hancock.

"I think the overcrowding in the elementary schools has more to do with districting than they do with the number of students," he said.

Phelan said he planned to meet with the developers to review the proposals again to see if changes could be made to address residents' concerns. An additional community meeting on the plan could be held before the project goes before the Zoning Board of Appeals.

"[We] will regroup and hopefully come up with something that you can live with, if not support," Phelan said.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said residents should attend the ZBA meeting to speak out about concerns they may have.

"Your voices still can be heard at the zoning board," she said.

can add fruit and vegetable servings," she said.

Initially, there will be two traveling salad bars going to each school for two weeks at a time. Dufour said she hopes to have them eventually at all schools.

Ginn is planning to hold chef tasting events as a way to reduce food waste. Citing a Harvard University study, she explained that if students can vote on menu items or have a chef come in and discuss food options, plate waste was reduced by some 60 percent.

"Kids want to talk about food and what's going on in their cafeterias," she said.

The food services department will hold a logo contest. High school students can submit logo designs related to nutrition and academics with a catchphrase. Winners will receive free lunch for a year. If the winner is a senior, they would receive a gift card.

The winning logo will appear in cafeterias and on food workers' aprons.

School committee member Paul Bregoli questioned if the plastic elementary school containers are recyclable. Dufour said they are not. Bregoli asked that recycling be considered.

Committee member James DeAmicis asked that a study be conducted on food waste and composting.

"I would like to see a report on how much food we are actually throwing away and see what we can do with composting materials," he said. "It would be interesting to see, by school, what we are throwing away. Those are nutrients that can be going into composting."

Dufour said some schools have a share table where students can eat fruits and packaged vegetables that are left over as a way of reducing some waste. She said she would be willing to have a tray waste study.

TERMS OF SALE:

The mortgaged premises is to be sold subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, covenants, conditions, reservations and agreements of record, to the extent that same are in force and applicable, building and zoning laws, unpaid taxes, tax titles, water bills, municipal liens and assessments, rights of tenants and parties in possession, existing encumbrances, and all other claims in the nature of liens, now existing or hereafter arising, having priority over the Mortgage, if any there be. The mortgaged premises will also be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if any there be.

A deposit of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND AND 00/100 DOLLARS ($25,000.00) shall be required to be paid to the Mortgagee by certified check or bank cashier's check (cash will not be accepted) at the time and place of the public auction foreclosure sale of the mortgaged premises which deposit shall be increased by the highest bidder to an amount equal to five percent (5%) of the highest bid and paid to the Mortgagee within seven (7) calendar days from the date of the sale. The balance of the purchase price at the sale is to be paid to the Mortgagee by federal funds wire transfer such that it is actually received by the Mortgagee within thirty (30) calendar days from the date of the sale, with time being of the essence. The Mortgagee may, at its option, either sell the mortgaged premises to the second highest bidder at the sale of the mortgaged premises or assume the highest bid should the highest bidder fail to fulfill the highest bidder's obligations under the sales agreement to be entered into with the Mortgagee immediately after the sale. In the event that the highest bidder defaults under such sales agreement and the Mortgagee sells the mortgaged premises to the second highest bidder, the Mortgagee may, at its option, assume the second highest bid should the second highest bidder fail to fulfill its obligations under such sales agreement. No such assumption of the highest or second highest bid or sale of the mortgaged premises by the Mortgagee to such second highest bidder shall relieve the highest or second highest bidder, as applicable, from its obligations under such sales agreement nor operate as a waiver by the Mortgagee of its rights and remedies against the highest or second highest bidder. The description of the premises contained in said mortgage shall control in the event of an error in this publication.

The Mortgagee reserves the right to credit bid at the sale of the mortgaged premises and to postpone the sale by auctioneer's public proclamation. The Mortgagee further reserves the right to change terms of sale at the sale or to add additional terms and to qualify some or all bidders.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your soft-hearted self is drawn to a tempting offer. But your hard-headed half isn't so sure. Best advice: Do it only after every detail is checked out to your liking.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your inventive mind should help you find a way to get around an apparently impassable barrier and make yourself heard. Your efforts get you noticed by the right people.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're enjoying this creative period. But by mid-week, you'll need to emphasize your more pragmatic talents as you consider a risky but potentially lucrative move.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected rejection could turn into something positive if you pocket your pride and ask for advice on how you can make changes that will make the difference.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Lion's heart gives you the courage to push for answers to a job-related situation. Stay with it. You'll soon find more believers coming out the ranks of the doubters.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your curiosity pays off this week as you push past the gossip to find the facts. What you ultimately discover could lead you to make some changes in your plans.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A new sense of enthusiasm helps get you out of on-the-job doldrums and back into a productive phase. Family matters also benefit from your more positive attitude.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A bit of nostalgia is fine. But don't stay back in the past too long or you might miss seeing the signpost up ahead pointing the way to a new opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) If you feel you need to take more time to study a situation before making a decision, do so. Don't let anyone push you into acting until you're ready.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As the Great Advice Giver, the Goat really shines this week as family and friends seek your wisdom. Someone especially close to you might make a surprising request.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Spiritual concerns dominate part of the week before more worldly matters demand your attention. An old promise resurfaces with some surprises attached.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're in a highly productive period and are eager to finish all the projects you've taken on. But don't let yourself get swamped. Take a breather now and again.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for learning new things quickly and applying your knowledge to best advantage where needed.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- This is a cautionary tale. While most people in Hollywood are behind the "Me Too" and "Time's Up," movements, the pendulum may be swinging too far to one side. Many men have been accused of inappropriate sexual behavior, starting with Bill Cosby and Harvey Weinstein, with large numbers of women coming forward accusing them. What makes many people nervous is the fact that in this country, people are supposed to be innocent until proven guilty.

When U.S. Sen. Al Franken was accused, he wasn't in the same ballpark as most of the others, and despite accepting responsibility for his actions, Democrats still called for him to step down. The Democrats should have waited for a full investigation before demanding he resign. Franken, anxious to avoid being dragged through the mud any further, left (of his own accord), while other politicians with far worse offenses remained in office. We lost a good senator.

James Franco won a Golden Globe for "The Disaster Artist," but more than likely lost an Oscar nomination because of allegations made against him by five women. Even though he's denied the accusations, he's been tried and convicted in the court of public opinion. Accusations need to be thoroughly vetted and eventually heard in a court of law before heads roll. Franco has no less than 10 film projects in post-production, and not only do these charges affect him, but also the hundreds of other people who worked on these films. Can't wait to see what happens next!

Zac Efron is known as a good singer ("High School Musical," TV films and "The Greatest Showman") and a hunk (after the "Baywatch" reboot with Dwayne Johnson), but get ready for a game changer. Efron fans are going to see him become serial killer Ted Bundy in the upcoming film "Extremely Wicked, Shockingly Evil and Vile," currently shooting in Covington, Kentucky, with "Big Bang Theory's" Jim Parsons as prosecutor Larry Simpson, and Lili Collins as Bundy's girlfriend. Also in the cast are John Malkovich and "Burn Notice" star Jeffrey Donovan. Parsons' last film, "A Kid Like Jake," with Claire Danes, Octavia Spencer and Priyanka Chopra, screened at The Sundance Film Festival in January.

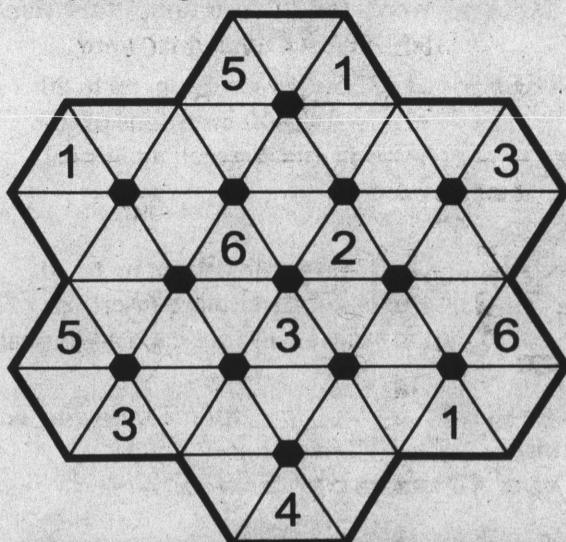

George Clooney has returned to acting. He'll star and produce a six-part limited series for Hulu that is a remake of the 1970 film "Catch 22," based on the popular 1961 novel by Joseph Heller. It starred Oscar winners Alan Arkin and Martin Balsam and was directed by Mike Nichols. Clooney became known because of the series "The Facts of Life" (1985-1987) and just had to face "The Facts" -- he loves acting!

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

'The Chair' --- Danish modern chairs were offered in stores in the U.S. in the early 1950s. The Scandinavian designs were inspired by earlier furniture: the 18th-century English chair, a Chinese Ming dynasty chair, a Japanese director's chair. Many of the modern chairs were made of hand-carved curved wooden pieces joined with dovetails to make a comfortable back, arms, seat and sides. Teak, oak, rosewood and light-colored woods were used with fabric, leather or cane seats.

Hans Wegner of Denmark created his most famous chair in 1949. It is now known as "The Chair." It was made and sold by Hansen/Knoll company for many years. "The Chairs" were chosen for John F. Kennedy and Richard Nixon in the first-ever televised presidential debate in 1960. One of "The Chairs," made in about 1969 and featuring a leather seat, the Knoll label and Hansen stamps, sold in 2016 for $610. Later versions of this iconic chair are available in shops and shows today.

Q: Should I loan a number of my antiques for a fundraising event? They want me to set up my exhibit and leave it for two weeks, but I am concerned about security and other problems. What should I worry about? None of the pieces are extremely valuable, but they are among my favorites, and some are family heirlooms.

A: There is always a risk when you exhibit your collection. The exhibit should be in a secure building with a 24-hour security guard or electronic system. Security usually is good during a show, but during setup and after show hours there are people who can get into the room. Before you pack, take pictures and list every item with your estimated value for insurance purposes. Never advertise the value of your collections. Make sure there is a barrier between the exhibit and the public, perhaps shelves behind a large table, or a locked cabinet. Don't exhibit posters or prints in a sunny window. Make sure the pieces are not re-mounted or altered. Decide before the show how the collection will be packed and returned.

A non-profit show may be run by people with no idea of the cost of old things. We loan pieces to teach the public about the past and the joys of collecting, but we had a sundrenched poster fade to unreadable, a clever advertising sign stolen and a figurine come back missing a hand.

CURRENT PRICES

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was English novelist Eric Arthur Blair -- better known by his pen name, George Orwell -- who made the following sage observation: "During times of universal deceit, telling the truth becomes a revolutionary act."

* While his wife, Abigail, was ill, President John Adams stayed with her for seven months at their home in Boston -- that's the longest any president has been away from the capital.

* Are you a cacographer? You may not be, but if you spend any time at all online you've certainly run across a few. A cacographer is someone who can't quite grasp the rules of spelling. * This might be a good time for a reminder of an obscure New Orleans law: In that city, it is illegal to curse at a firefighter while he or she is engaged in official duties.

* It was in 1943 that Thomas Watson, who was then the chairman of International Business Machines (better known now as IBM), made the following public statement: "I think there is a world market for maybe five computers."

* The English word "velvet" comes from a Latin term that means "shaggy hair."

* You might already know that actor Mel Gibson grew up in Australia, but you might not know how he ended up there. He was actually born in New York, where he lived with his parents. The Vietnam War was going on, though, and his parents were afraid Mel would be drafted. After winning on "Jeopardy," they used the money to move to Australia.

Thought for the Day: "The simplest questions are the most profound. Where were you born? Where is your home? Where are you going? What are you doing? Think about these once in a while and watch your answers change." -- Richard Bach

by Jo Ann Derson

* "Frozen peas make the best quickie ice pack ever. They stay cold without being bulky and conform to just about any shape. You also can make a holder by doubling over a kitchen towel and stitching it up on the ends, leaving one end open. Stick your ice pack inside and apply directly to the skin. We have a bag of frozen peas that we drew a big "X" on, so we know that's the 'ice pack' peas!" -- R.M. in Oregon

* You may have heard that wax paper can make your kitchen and bathroom faucets shine, but did you know it can help your shower curtain slide back and forth smoothly too? Just wipe a sheet across the bar. This also can work in the closet for your rods there. Wax paper to the rescue!

* Include reminders in your planner or calendar for mundane chores like changing the air filter or treating pets for pests. As a reward, pair it with something fun, like a family game night or girls' night out!

* "If you're changing out a door, save the old hollow-core door. If you balance it on two sawhorses, it's a perfect work surface, and the door is light enough to tote around." -- T.F. in Texas

* Rub a magnet along the shaft of your screwdriver to magnetize it and keep screws from dropping, which can be a real pain if you're working in a tight spot or up high on a ladder.

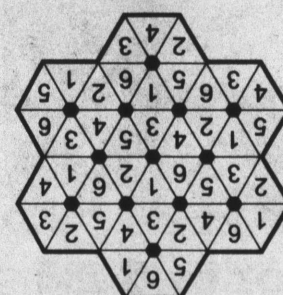

* "Here's a nifty trick for spots where you need a nail but there's no room for a hammer. If you can wedge a C-clamp in, hold it steady on the nail head and tighten to drive the nail into the board." -- L.W. in Oregon school board member. That resolution also had Koch's support.

McCarthy, who succeeded Laforest as Ward 1 Councillor in January, said he supports naming the building for McCauley.

"He is a legendary figure in the city, especially in the Neck," McCarthy said of McCauley. "He went from digging clams, to being a bank president and then mayor.

"I would definitely support something for Francis X. McCauley at the maritime center. I think that was a nice touch."

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Koch, was not available for comment Tuesday before The Sun went to press. The mayor, in a statement released by state officials, thanked the SEC for its $1 million grant.

"The Seaport Economic Council is an invaluable resource for coastal communities throughout the Commonwealth, and its work in Quincy is showing real results every day," Koch said. "I'm grateful for the commitment of the Baker-Polito Administration and look forward to welcoming the full council to our great city."

"We're thankful to the Seaport Economic Council for this important grant, which will greatly improve access for South Shore residents to Boston Harbor and help improve the resiliency of the neighborhood to the effects of climate change," Rep. Tackey Chan added. "I look forward to seeing what the next phase of this project brings and am grateful for the continued partnership with the council."

BEACH DAY - Brianna Mahoney and her Belgian Malinois, Tala, enjoy a game of fetch at Wollaston Beach Feb. 21 when the mercury reached a record 71 degrees at Boston's Logan International Airport. The spring-like day also attracted runners, walkers and other beach goers as the temperature climbed into the 70s for the second straight day - also a record for February. Prior to last week, there had only been two other days in February when the temperature hit 70 or higher. One of those days was last year on Feb. 24, 2017, when it was 73 degrees. Quincy In Diversion Pilot Program

Place Narcotics Buyers In Treatment, Not Criminal Justice System

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy and three neighboring communities will take place in a yearlong pilot program to divert low-level buyers of narcotics away from the criminal justice system and into treatment.

Braintree, Randolph, Quincy and Weymouth will take part in the pilot program - known formally as the Buyer Diversion Treatment Alternative - which is being funded by a $99,000 state grant. The funds will allow the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office to engage a licensed clinician from Bay State Community Services who will provide clinical assessments, personalized treatment plans and intensive wrap-around services for the program participants and funds for a part time program coordinator to manage the daily operations and communication flow between Bay State Community Services, the DA's office and the four communities' police departments.

Eligibility for the BDTA program will be based on individuals meeting certain criteria as determined by the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office in conjunction with local police departments.

Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito, Public Safety Secretary Daniel Bennett and Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey announced the start of the initiative Monday in the Quincy Center offices of Bay State Community Services. The mayors of Braintree and

New QC Garage Plans Unveiled

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday night got their first look at plans for a new 712-space garage that will be built starting this summer on what is now the Hancock Lot in Quincy Center.

City officials and the designers of the 257,300-square foot structure presented plans for the new garage at Monday's meeting of the City Council. The council's downtown and economic growth committee will meet next Monday, March 5, at 6:30 p.m. to further review the proposed parking facility.

Cain Seeks Study On Municipal Broadband

City Cleaning Veterans Lots At Cemeteries

Quincy Veterans Services Department will begin to clean up the veterans lots at Mount Wollaston and Pine Hill cemeteries beginning March 15.

"During this time we will be removing all Christmas decorations and holiday plants. Plus anything that becomes unsightly and anything that interferes with the cemetery operations such as mowing and cleaning up in anticipation of our memorial day ceremony," said George Bouchard, Graves Registration Officer for Quincy Veterans Services.

"Temporary pots of natural flowers may be placed throughout the year but will be removed when their presence interferes with grounds maintenance. There's no in-ground planting allowed at the foot markers in the veterans' lot. Permanent planting such as plastic plants or flowers, statues, vigil lights, wind chimes, planting urns and breakable objects are not permitted at any time," Bouchard said.

"This is the final resting place for our local veterans and we ask all of you to please cooperate with us in keeping it clean and beautiful when you pay your respect to your loved one. Thank you for your cooperation in this manner," Bouchard added.

Weymouth – Joseph Sullivan and Robert Hedlund, respectively – were present for the announcement along with the police chiefs of the three towns and Lt. Patrick Glynn of the Quincy Police Department's Drug Control Unit.

Polito and Gov. Charlie Baker announced the start of a similar partnership – involving the city of Worcester and the Worcester County District Attorney's Office – in September.

Polito on Monday said a group effort is needed to address the ongoing opioid crisis in Massachusetts, and all avenues need to be explored as part of the solution.

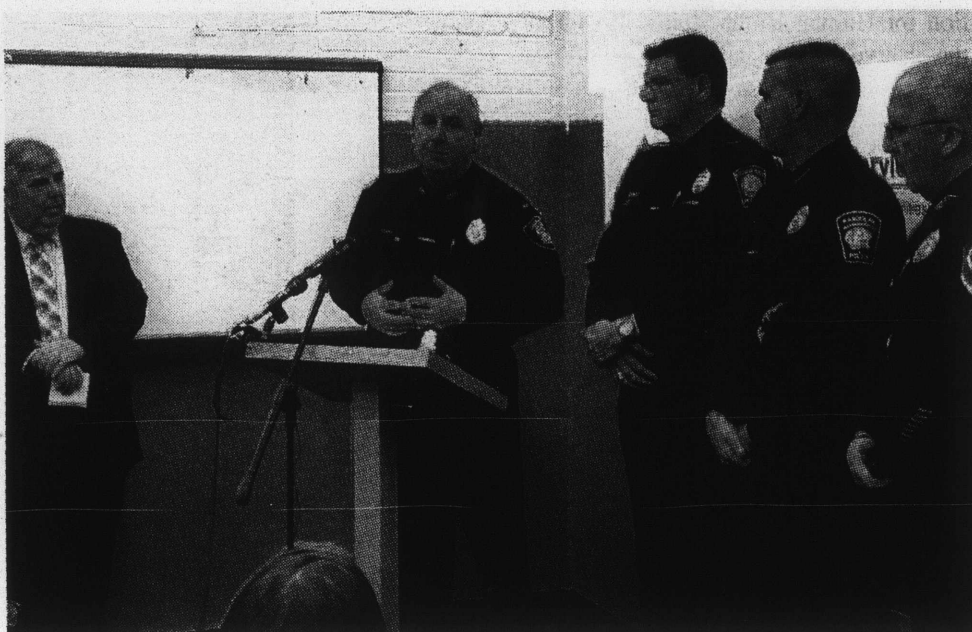

"This is a team effort and all of us know that we need to continue to work as a team and find every possible way to try and reduce the amount of exposure and intervene wherever possible and to give the amount of treatment and response necessary," the lieutenant governor said.

LT. GOV. Karyn Polito on Monday announced Braintree, Quincy, Randolph and Weymouth would take part in a pilot program to offer treatment to some low-level buyers of drugs instead of arresting those individuals. The state is providing a $99,000 grant for the pilot program.

Additionally, she said getting buyers into treatment programs would reduce the supply and demand for illegal drugs. "We can go after the dealers and disrupt their ability to sell this stuff – that's one piece of this," Polito said. "If we can also target the buyers and help them divert away from both the criminal justice system and the interest in buying drugs off the street, we will also disrupt this supply and demand dynamic that is pushing too much drugs into our communities."

Bennett, who once had a private law practice in Quincy, choked up when he recalled urging a client of his charged with possession of heroin to seek treatment. The client, however, wanted to be released on bail and was released. He did not make his next court date.

"The next date was about three weeks out and he didn't come back because he had overdosed on drugs," Bennett said. "It's important that when that individual first comes to court that what they get is treatment and not an arrest, and that's why a program like this means a

Local Groups Seek Support For Safe Communities Act

By TOM GORMAN

The South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and the Universalist Unitarian Mass Action Network are backing a proposed bill that would prevent the Trump Administration from using state tax dollars to deport undocumented immigrants or create a Muslim registry.

The proposed Safe Communities Act was outlined by one of its co-sponsors, state Sen. James Eldridge (D-Acton), during a public forum Monday night at the Thomas Crane Public Library. About 40 people attended the program co-hosted by the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights and the Universalist Unitarian Mass Action Network.

Eldridge explained that the bill would prohibit local police from acting as an arm of the federal Immigration Custom Enforcement (ICE) by identifying and detaining undocumented immigrants for deportation.

"This is an act to protect Massachusetts residents' civil rights," he said. "We are really talking about human rights."

Eldridge said the bill is in response to President Donald Trump's push to deport undocumented immigrants and create a Muslim database.

He related a story that happened last week in New Hampshire where an immigrant riding in a van that was stopped by police was taken into custody and is in jail on the orders of ICE.

"Even though he wasn't driving and guilty of speeding, every person in that van was questioned," Eldridge said. "Whether it was racial profiling or he was asked about his immigration status, he was arrested. We're doing everything we can to help him."

Eldridge said this scenario is occurring throughout the nation, here in the Bay State and in his district that has a high population of immigrants.

"Local and state police, whether intentionally so or not, are engaged in the enforcement of the federal immigration law," he said. "It's really unacceptable. It's hurting Massachusetts. It's happening in Massachusetts. These deportations are targeting undocumented immigrants, especially Latino immigrants."

Eldridge said the bill is in its third revision since he and co-sponsor, state Rep. Juana Matias (D-Lawrence) filed the legislation. The latest version is providing more rights to an undocumented person detained by ICE.

"This makes sure that the person knows they can hire an attorney," he said.

Also added was a ban on creating a Muslim registry in response to President Donald Trump's proposal of establishing a Muslim database.

"(This was added) specifically because of Donald Trump's rhetoric that he was going to create a Muslim registry," said Eldridge.

The senator said a main focus of the bill is the trust act provision that seeks to establish a bridge of trust between police and the immigrant community.

"If someone who is an immigrant in any city or town in Massachusetts thinks the local police officer or the state police they see on the highway is engaged in enforcing the immigration law is going to create a chilling effect on not only that particular immigrant, but arguably, the entire immigrant community that they would not report a crime in their community and perhaps not go to court seeking to get a protective order against domestic violence," Eldridge said. "They're going to be afraid to interact with police and provide them with information about some crime going on in the community,"

He explained the trust act provision of the Safe Communities Act would prevent local police from acting on behalf of ICE when Homeland Security issues a detainer request.

"So, it's designed to bridge that by making it clear that if someone is arrested for shoplifting or pulled over for speeding or going to court for a domes-

THE GEM OF THE SEA

Aquamarine, the birthstone for March, derives its name from the Latin word for "seawater." True to its name, this beautiful gemstone possesses a blue to blue-green color that conjures up visions of clear ocean water. While lighter stones are more common, aquamarine with deeper colors commands higher prices. Aquamarine, like emerald, is also a type of beryl. However, aside from their notable difference in color, aquamarine also diverges from its more notable sister stone in the fact that it is often completely flawless. Emerald, on the other hand, is characterized by internal inclusions (known as "jardin"), which resemble branches on a tree. When properly faceted, aquamarine has a depth that few other gemstones can match.

Aquamarine is also the accepted anniversary gemstone for the 19th year of marriage. If you are looking for a big, beautiful, durable gemstone, aquamarine is readily available in larger sizes. And it is truly dramatic when cut in the octagonal step cut, rectangular or oval shapes. We'd love to show you our selection of fine aquamarines at Rogers Jewelry. If you don't see what you're looking for, keep in mind that we don't like to say no - if you want it, we can find it or will design it! STATE SEN. James Eldridge tells a forum that his proposed Safe Communities Act bill would protect the rights of immigrants in Mass. "We are talking about human rights," he said.

tic violence order, none of those acts or mistakes by a person who is undocumented would allow for ICE to detain that person," said Eldridge. "If ICE issued a detainer request for that immigrant, the police would not be collaborating or co-operating as ICE agents."

Eldridge said the latest revised version of the bill is jointly endorsed by both the Mass. Chiefs of Police Association and the Mass. Major Cities Chiefs of Police. The revision allows that police can hold undocumented immigrants for six hours without bail if they are arrested on charges of a violent crime. It also allows police to cooperate with ICE if undocumented persons are suspected of terrorism or members of a gang.

"That is not the original bill that I filed, but the police chiefs felt very strongly about those carve outs," Eldridge said. "It's really about getting a comprehensive bill passed that is reflected in our law enforcement community."

In a joint endorsement letter, the associations stated that bill is "is a common-sense, policy prudent and safety-orientated approach to addressing the existing "gap" in the state of the current law."

Eldridge added some police chiefs support the original version where undocumented persons arrested on non-violent crimes are not subjected to ICE involvement, but go through the court process.

According to Eldridge, the bill has been referred out to the House and Senate "where they are open to changes." Eldridge is seeking support for the bill to be brought up for a vote.

He said that the Baker Administration is voicing concerns about the bill and that it is counter to a bill similar filed by Gov. Baker.

Eldridge said the bill would send a clear message to the Trump Administration about its stand on immigration. He said the Bay State needs to lead the charge against Trump's proposed actions.

"I hear a lot of rhetoric at the State House is that Massachusetts is a state that is resisting Donald Trump," said Eldridge. "Respectfully, the Massachusetts legislature is not leading the resistance. We have passed virtually no bills that are pushing back the Donald Trump Administration. I would say this is the most important and powerful way to say that Donald Trump's values are not Massachusetts values."

In a statement, South Shore Coalition on Human Rights President Deanna White-Hebert, said the bill "will be important in protecting those rights for many of our residents."

Coalition member Sandy Eaton said his group was formed 41 years ago to protect African-Americans who were targets of violence moving into Quincy's housing projects and working at the Fore River Shipyard back in the 1970s. He said the fight for civil rights for all must continue.

"We've got to keep doing this," he said.

Unitarian Universalist Mass Action Network Executive Director Laura Wagner said undocumented immigrants are an important part of the workforce, performing such jobs as cleaning buildings, working lot."

Morrissey said opioids are the largest single killer of individuals in Norfolk County. In 2017, there were 155 fatal overdoses in the county, down from 173 in 2016.

The district attorney credited the Baker-Polito administration for its commitment to helping people get the treatment they need.

"We're asking people on the street level -- police officers -- to make decisions to try to get people into programs who they recognize need help, because they're going to keep coming back," Morrissey said. "That revolving door of justice is going to continue unless we do something different, and the administration clearly recognizes that."

Paul Shastany, Braintree's police chief, said the new program is a thoughtful alternative to putting individuals into the court system.

"I view police as first responders to social ills and oftentimes we use the court system as a corrosive effect thinking we're going to get people into treatment. We know that there is a huge problem with that because a lot of people don't benefit by being put into the system," Shastany said.

"This is a very thoughtful alternative. As a police officer goes, we are social workers with guns. We influence families, communities and behaviors."

Glynn, the head of the Quincy police drug unit, said the department would continue to lock up dealers but the new program will allow officers to help out those in need.

"We're not soft on crime. We will lock up the dealers every single day, and we will give compassion to some of the buyers in order to help themselves and get through the process," Glynn said.

"I think our motto should be to have compassion for those less fortunate than ourselves, because they are out there, they need our help, and this program is going to blossom throughout the state and hopefully nationally."

Scenes From Yesterday

FURNACE BROOK PARKWAY, SHOWING RAILROAD BRIDGE, QUINCY, MASS.

THIS IS A 1934 POSTCARD showing the old granite railroad bridge over Furnace Brook Parkway in West Quincy. Locals knew it as Echo Bridge because of its resonating qualities. The bridge was torn down in the 1950s to build the Southeast Expressway along the right-of-way of what was the Granite branch of the Old Colony Railroad. The branch line ran from the Atlantic Bridge on Hancock Street in North Quincy across the Montclair marshes serving stations in Montclair, East Milton and West Quincy. It rejoined the main line just south of today's Quincy Adams station. The Granite Line was built on part of America's first railroad right-of-way, which is where it got its name. It ran for almost 70 years from 1871 to 1940. The Montclair station was near Vershire Street in the Hillside section, the East Milton station was near today's Blue Hills Bank on Adams Street and the West Quincy station was at Biondi's service station on Willard Street. Water Transportation: Good For Travel And Business

When discussing Quincy's traffic woes, elected officials and residents seem to mostly focus on performing traffic studies throughout the city and managing the MBTA station projects. While these things are certainly important, I'd like to see the focus shift more towards water transportation.

I think there's enormous potential for water transportation to relieve our congested roadways here in Quincy. The solution is not to widen intersections and add more travel lanes. How can we?

There's only so much land available. Yet, 71 percent of the Earth is covered in water.

Water transportation requires little in the way of infrastructure and ongoing maintenance. There's no traffic; no accidents. Ferries nowadays are environmentally-friendly and can haul just as many people as a bus, if not more. The MBTA's Hingham-based ferry runs year-round, in most weather conditions.

I hope the ferry service that ran last summer and fall out of Squantum Point Park in Marina Bay returns for the spring. Hats off to elected officials such as Councillor (William) Harris and Representative (Bruce) Ayers for their efforts on this initiative. It would also be nice to have permanent, expanded ferry service based out of multiple sections of Quincy's shoreline.

I also think water transportation can provide a boost to Quincy's economy. Imagine dinner cruise companies and sightseeing tours operating out of Quincy.

Let's lure people away from Boston with the thought of a delightful summer evening taking a boat ride to Quincy, having dinner in one of Quincy's restaurants, and taking the boat back to Boston.

I'll leave you with this one final thought on water transportation. It takes less than 20 minutes for a ferry to travel from Quincy to Boston. Try to beat that while driving on the Neponset Bridge during rush hour.

Garage Bond Issue Faces Tough Road

The $1 million bond issue sought by Mayor Arthur Tobin to add two floors to a downtown-parking garage faced tough sledding at a special meeting of the City Council.

The proposal required a two-thirds vote of the council or six votes to pass, and a Quincy Sun survey prior to the meeting showed two councillors against it, one not voting, one undecided and one unavailable for comment.

"I can't see bonding city money for construction of the garage," said Council President Leo J. Kelly, who said he planned to vote against the bond. "It just opens us up to other problems." Councillor Stephen McGrath also said he planned to vote "no" on the bond proposal.

Councillors Francis X. McCauley, who is president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, said that he would not vote on the issue for fear of conflict of interest since his bank is on land that figures in another phase of the project.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES NEXT TUESDAY

A high vote turnout of 35% is expected for Tuesday's presidential primary that features contests on every ballot including rival slates for the Democratic Committee in Ward 2.

City Clerk John Gillis predicted a 35% turnout and he added it could go much higher if Sen. Edward M. Kennedy were to make a good showing against President Carter in New Hampshire.

Major candidates for the Republican nomination for president included Cong. John Anderson, Sen. Howard Baker, George H.W. Bush, former Gov. John Connelly, former Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Bob Dole.

The Democratic ballot contains the names of President Jimmy Carter, Edmund Brown, Jr., and Sen. Kennedy.

Manet Community Health Center Extends Gratitude

As we calibrate one of the most concerning flu seasons in recent memory and the loss of human life continues to crest with an overdose crisis—we are pleased to report the U.S. Congress has made the proper decision to reauthorize the community health center program for two years.

This means Manet Community Health Center continues at full strength, compassion and veracity to carry out our mission to serve each person, each family that needs unfettered access to the highest quality primary care with integrated and supportive services.

Last week, Manet prevailed because health centers have bipartisan support. This said, without you, our community supporters, Manet would not be celebrating with our patients this day. Whether you wore red, called, tweeted, posted, texted or emailed, Manet heard and felt your support for your community, your caregivers, your partner—your community health center. Manet Community Health Center proudly serves in fellowship with health centers across this nation, providing care for 27 million Americans and 1 in 7 Massachusetts residents. Thanks to you, our momentum to care continues in earnest. We honor your support, as it is our guiding force.

Shamrock Splash March 11th To Benefit Area Beach Programs

Save the Harbor/Save the Bay will host its 7th annual Harpoon Shamrock Splash on Sunday, March 11, at M Street Beach in South Boston to raise money for free beach events and programs on the region's public beaches from Nahant to Nantasket.

In 2017, Save the Harbor awarded $3,800 to Quincy organizations to support free events including Wolly Beach Wednesdays on Wollaston Beach.

The event will feature Harpoon beer, treats, a beach party, a chance to win round trip flights from JetBlue, and other great prizes for best costume and biggest fundraiser.

Save the Harbor hopes to top last year's record and raise $60,000 to support free events and programs on the region's public beaches this year. Register online before the event at www.shamrocksplash.org for just $20, or register on the day of for $25.

Registration includes a beer, a burger, a Harpoon Koozie, and the chance to win round-trip flights on JetBlue for best costume and biggest fundraiser. Start a team, invite friends to join, and help Save the Harbor make a big splash on the beach in 2018.

The Harpoon Shamrock Splash began in 2011 to jump start free events and activities on the region's public beaches from Nahant to Nantasket. Last year, the Harpoon Shamrock Splash raised more than $55,000 to support nearly 100 free concerts, beach festivals, sand raking competitions, and circus performances in Lynn, Nahant, Revere, Winthrop, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester, Quincy and Hull.

At the Splash Kick-Off party at Harpoon Brewery Jan. 30th, Save the Harbor's

President Patricia Foley thanked event sponsors at Harpoon Brewery, JetBlue, Mix 104.1, B. Good, L.L. Bean and the Blue Sky Collaborative, and their Better Beaches Program Funding Partners at The Boston Foundation, The Harold Whitworth Pierce Charitable Trust, the Richard Saltonstall Foundation, National Grid and Comcast.

"We would also like to thank the Massachusetts Legislature, the Baker-Polito Administration and the Metropolitan Beaches Commission for their support for local beaches, and to their partners at the Department of Conservation and Recreation, the Boston Centers for Youth and Families and the Greater Boston YMCA for their support," Foley said.

Register at www.shamrocksplash.org to join Save the Harbor/Save the Bay on the beach on March 11th.

Former Quincy Resident Micah Dank Pens First Novel

By SCOTT JACKSON

A former Quincy resident's debut novel – the first of a planned trilogy featuring a protagonist who seeks to unravel a web of secrets – is now available in stores.

Micah Dank, who writes under the penname MD Tchaves, released his novel "Decoding the Phoenix" in 2017. He plans to release the second novel in the series this summer, with the third book due out in 2019.

Dank, 34, lived in Quincy from 2014 to 2015, and resided in Braintree before that. He grew up in New York and now lives on Long Island where he runs the logistics department for a start-up company.

Dank, in a phone interview, said he first came up with the idea of "Decoding the Phoenix" more than a decade ago.

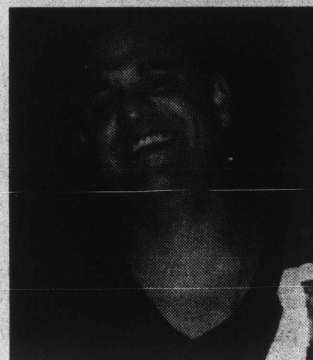

"I came up with the idea for it like 10 years ago," he recalled. "I scribbled a couple ideas down and didn't do much."

Dank began research for the novel while living in Braintree. After moving to Quincy, he said he wrote the 227-page paperback in two weeks, then spent about two years editing the novel.

"Decoding the Phoenix" tells the story of Graham Newsdon, a functioning alcoholic and student at Harvard Medical School who receives a mysterious email from his late brother, a Navy Seal. Graham sets out – with the assistance of his long-term girlfriend, his Mensan best friend and childhood best female friend – to break the code behind the complex cryptogram, which he soon discovers is charged with the potential to unhinge the very control that certain government officials are intent, at all costs, on maintaining.

The novel is written in the first person from Graham's point of view. Dank said he wrote that way so readers feel like they're part of the story, as opposed to watching it from a distance like a play.

"I did that for a reason; I was trying to bridge the gap between the protagon-nist and the story," he said. "It makes the character a lot more sympathetic."

The story takes place in the Boston area; Dank placed the story in Boston because he was inspired to write the novel while living in the region.

The novel is available on Amazon and at Barnes and Noble, among other retailers; the book has received a warm reception from readers;

"Everyone that reads it loves it. It's a fast-paced thriller. There is no dog and pony show," Dank said, as the book features a quick introduction to its key characters before delving into the main story.

When he first started writing "Decoding the Phoenix," Dank said the story was contained to a single novel, with no sequels planned. But, upon finishing the book, he liked the characters and story so much he changed the ending and made plans for a trilogy.

"It was going to be one story, but I fell in love with the characters and the storyline," Dank said. "I went back and edited the ending to be more of a cliffhanger."

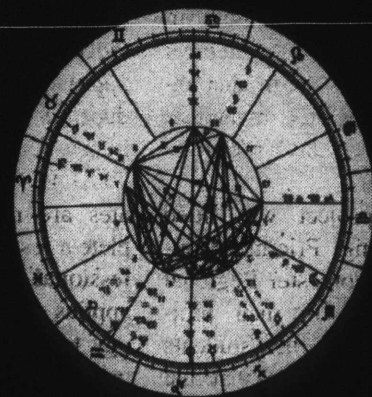

Dank said he had written the first five chapters of the second novel in the series, "Decoding the Phoenix: Hand To God," by the end of January and is able to complete a chapter or two each week. He said the second novel would feature a house on Quincy's Summer Street, where Dank lived while he resided in the city.

While the story that began in "Decoding the Phoenix" will come to its conclusion in the third novel, Dank said some of the main characters could be featured in additional novels that take place outside the trilogy.

"I would like to have these characters go on as long as I can," he said.

Alzheimer's Research Topic March 20

Join Kelsey Gosselin, Manager of Medical Research for the Alzheimer's Association, on Tuesday, March 20th at 10:30 a.m. at the Kennedy Center, to learn more about the latest in Alzheimer's disease and dementia research.

Thanks to this research, more is known now than ever before about the underlying brain changes of Alzheimer's disease and other dementias. How this knowledge is being translated into novel therapies and prevention strategies will be discussed, as well as steps one can take today that may reduce risk of cognitive decline.

Registration is required for this presentation.

To register or for more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

The presentation is another being offered as part of the Dementia Friendly Initiative in Quincy.

Assumption Student Meghan Forde Studying In Rome

Assumption College announces Meghan Forde, of Quincy, is spending the spring semester studying at the College's campus in Rome, Italy.

Forde, Class of 2020, will benefit from nearly four months in Rome where the city – and country – become the classroom.

"Students studying at Assumption's Rome Campus are afforded a unique opportunity to live and learn in a city that was the birthplace of Western Civilization," said Eloise Knowlton, Ph.D., dean of undergraduate studies at Assumption College. "The exuberant city, filled with historic museums, galleries and churches, breaks down the walls of the traditional classroom, enabling students to see and experience history that they would otherwise read about in textbooks. These first-hand experiences have led to an academic enlightenment and the personal growth of the students who have studied at our Rome Campus."

The Rome Campus, rated a "Top 10 Study Abroad Program," is led this semester by Patrick Corrigan, Ph.D., and Cary LeBlanc, Ph.D., and complemented by Art Historian Daria Borghese. The classes offered include Renaissance Art & Architecture, Drawing, Socrates and the Search for Truth, as well as the Grand Tour independent study. Students reside in the recently renovated Villino Dufault-located in a residential area full of authentic dining and shopping opportunities with nearby public transportation and classes take place throughout the city in museums, art galleries and historic landmarks. Included in tuition are weekend excursions to Italian cities Florence, Naples, and Pompeii.

While studying at the Rome Campus, students enjoy traditional Italian cooking and enjoy family-style meals prepared by authentic Italian Chef Signora Monica Romanini. During meals at Villino Dufault, students experience a full spectrum of not only food culture, but learn the nuances of the Italian people and their culture. The College's Rome Campus also provides a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to explore Christianity and the faith-based community that has shaped spirituality in the modern world. With the Vatican City and historic churches spread throughout the city, students have easy access to learn more about the Catholic faith upon which Assumption College was founded.

Jonathan Toomey Completes Research Project At WPI

Jonathan Toomey of Quincy, a member of the class of 2019 majoring in mechanical engineering at Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI), was a member of a student team that recently completed an intense, hands-on research project in Worcester.

The project was titled Developing Pricing Strategy for Worcester Regional Food Hub. In their project summary, the students wrote, "We hope that the Food Hub's potential new pricing strategy will provide a roadmap that guides these new hubs towards sustainable operations, and that our videos will inspire a similar approach to bring more produce to local communities in new food hubs."

At WPI, all undergraduates are required to complete a research-driven, professional-level project that applies science and technology to addresses an important societal need or issue.

QCARE Children Visit Quincy Health & Rehab

Participants of Quincy After School Child Care (QCARE) at the Montclair School site recently took an afternoon trip to the Quincy Health and Rehabilitation Center on McGrath Highway for a community service project.

While there, children joined residents in playing Bingo and presented them with handmade crafts and Valentine cards they prepared in advance of the trip.

"We work hard to promote positive character development in our program curriculum. I was thrilled that our Montclair program leader took on this service project," said QCARE Executive Director Sarah Morrison.

The children used Play-Doh to make pins that they gave to clients of the Center.

"It was a good experience for our children to better understand the importance of community service and value of spending time with seniors in our community," said QCARE at Montclair Site Coordinator Emma Walsh.

Quincy After School started in 1987 at the Montclair school with just 13 children, and has now grown to serve over 470 Quincy elementary students each week within 9 Quincy school buildings.

"We are thrilled to have served this community for 30 years, and look forward to working with kids in our community for 30 more," Morrison said.

QCARE will celebrate 30 years of service with a Carnival Gala May 10 at Granite Links. To learn more about their programs or the gala, visit: www.quincyafterschool.org.

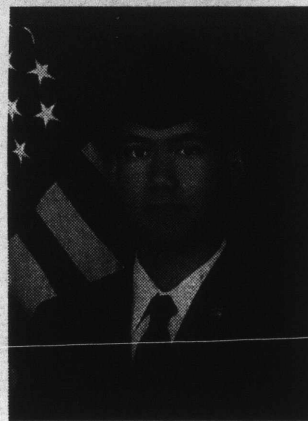

Airman Phakphum Papano Graduates Basic Training

U.S. Air Force Airman Phakphum Papano graduated from basic military training at Joint Base San Antonio-Lackland, San Antonio, Texas.

The airman completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills.

Airmen who complete basic training also earn four credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Papano is the son of In-thira Lung of Quincy.

One Skillet Dinner

By MARIE

Don't you just love a dinner that you can make all in one pan?

Today's recipe does just that. I so enjoyed making this dish and it was so easy to clean up. I used elbow pasta for this dish but any favorite pasta will do.

RECIPE

1 pound Italian sausage
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium green bell pepper, chopped
1 small can of tomatoes, I used crushed
½ cup of water

2 cups of uncooked elbow pasta
Salt and pepper to taste
2 cups of Ricotta cheese

Brown sausage in a heavy skillet, breaking meat apart with a fork. When sausage is cooked pour fat out of pan.

Stir in all of the remaining ingredients except the Ricotta. Bring to a boil and cover the pan, simmer and stirring often to prevent sticking.

Cook until pasta is tender (15 - 20 minutes). When pasta is done blend in the Ricotta cheese continue to cook and stir until everything is blended and Ricotta is cooked through.

Tom Brady's Famous Ice Cream

By SUSIE

No one can deny that fact that Tom Brady (as well as his super model wife, Gisele) are at the top of their game. Literally.

I am a firm believer that their incredibly healthy lifestyle ranks them in this way, keeping them looking and feeling far younger than their years.

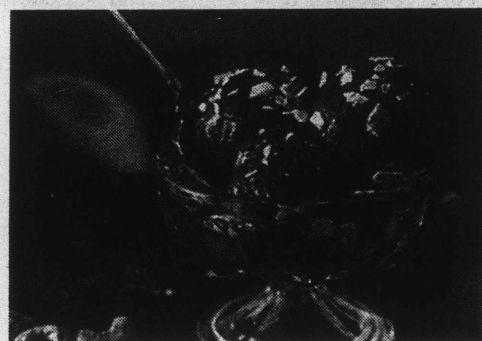

What we put into our bodies has an undeniable effect on how our bodies look and react to stressors whether it be everyday life or intense exercise. You do not have to be a professional athlete to change your lifestyle and start trying new and healthy things instead of the old and unhealthy ones.

Here is a recipe for Tom Brady's famous ice cream. It is delicious and this is something that doesn't have to be a special treat. He describes the dessert as a "modern interpretation of ice cream" that is "just as delicious but much healthier."

Requiring just six ingredients and three steps.

INGREDIENTS:

1 avocado (ripe and soft)

1/2 cup raw cashews
1/2 cup coconut meat (from young coconuts)
1 1/2 cups dates (pitted)
1 cup raw cacao powder
1 1/4 cups water

Directions:

1. Blend all ingredients in a high-powered blender until smooth.
2. Put mixture in freezer until ice cream reaches desired thickness. (For quicker ice cream, freeze half of the water into ice cubes before blending.)
3. Scoop ice cream into four dishes and serve with your choice of topping.

Grape-Nut Custard Pudding

By MARIE

I have had this Grape-Nut Custard Pudding recipe in my column before and just recently have had requests from readers to reprint it.

This is a wonderful recipe and a good one for all of you new readers out there to try!

RECIPE

1 quart of 2% or whole milk
6 eggs
¼ teaspoon of nutmeg

½ teaspoon cinnamon
2/3 cup of sugar
1 teaspoon of vanilla
¾ cup of Grape-Nut Cereal

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
Grease a 9 x 9 inch baking pan.

In a mixing bowl combine all the ingredients except the Grape-Nuts. Pour the mixture into the prepared pan.

Sprinkle Grape-Nuts over the top and bake uncovered approximately 1 hour.

Cut into squares when cooled. Serve with whipped cream.

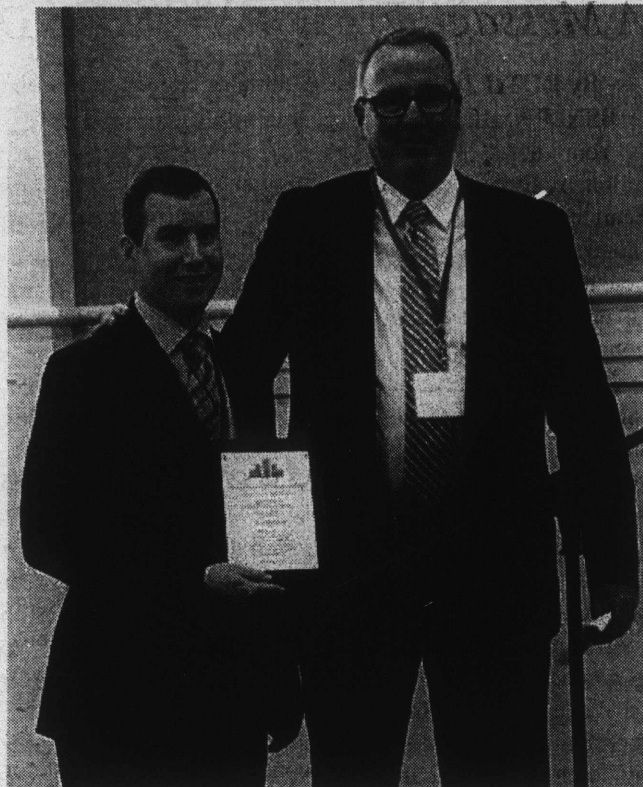

Sean Glennon Receives Paul Poulos Achievement Award

Quincy's community development director, Sean Glennon, was presented with the Paul Poulos Achievement Award at the National Community Development Association's (NCDA's) New England regional conference, recently held in Portsmouth, N.H.

The award was established by NCDA Region 1 New England in 1996, in honor of Paul Poulos, the late executive director of the Fall River Community Development Agency, and former national president of NCDA.

The award is given annually to an individual in recognition of their outstanding and dedicated contributions in the field of community development. The nominating committee, which is comprised of former Poulos Award recipients, selected Glennon as this year's honoree for having "dedicated his professional life to addressing the needs of the low/moderate income residents of Quincy," and for "securing funding to help create programs that address the needs identified through his outreach in the community."

Glennon has been a practitioner in the field of housing and community development for thirteen years, spending the past five years as the city's community development director. In that role, Glennon is responsible for the oversight of nearly $8 million in annual grants from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Glennon's predecessor, Nancy Callanan, was presented with the Poulos award in 2013. Callanan served as the city's community development director for the last six years of her decades-long career in the field of housing and community development.

"Nancy is someone that I respect and admire tremendously," said Glennon. "She was my mentor and I try to emulate her every day. To think that Nancy and the selection committee consider me worthy of this recognition is truly humbling."

The mission of NCDA is to assist local governments to achieve high-quality, locally responsive programs for making communities better places to live and work, particularly for low and moderate income people.

Life Line Screenings Here March 5

Residents living in and around Quincy can learn about their risk for cardiovascular disease, osteoporosis, diabetes, and other chronic, serious conditions with screenings by Life Line Screening.

The screenings will take place at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., Quincy, on Monday, March 5.

Screenings can check for:

- The level of plaque buildup in arteries, related to risk for heart disease, stroke and overall vascular health.
- HDL and LDL cholesterol levels.

- Diabetes risk
- Bone density as a risk for possible osteoporosis
- Kidney and thyroid function, and more.

Screening packages start at $149, but consultants can work with those interested in screenings to create a package based on age and risk factors. Screenings are convenient and accessible for wheelchairs and those with trouble walking. Free parking is also available.

For more information, call 1-877-237-1287 or visit the website www.lifelinescreening.com. Pre-registration is required.

Heart Attack & Cardiac Arrest: Not Synonymous

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Your heart muscle requires oxygen to survive. A heart attack occurs when the blood flow that brings oxygen to the heart muscle is severely reduced or cut off completely.

This occurs because coronary arteries that supply the heart muscle with blood flow can slowly become narrow from a buildup of fat, cholesterol and other substances that combined are referred to as plaque. This drawn-out process is known as atherosclerosis.

When the plaque in an artery in the heart breaks off, a blood clot forms around the plaque. This blood clot can impede the flow of blood through the heart muscle, causing a decrease in oxygenated blood to the area. When the heart muscle is starved for oxygen and nutrients, it is termed ischemia. Damage or death of part of the heart muscle can occur as a result of ischemia; this is what is referred to as a heart attack or myocardial infarction (MI).

Approximately every 40 seconds, someone in the United States has a myocardial infarction (heart attack).

Coronary occlusion, an obstruction of a coronary artery that hinders blood flow to some part of the heart muscle can also be the cause of a heart attack.

Occasionally, a coronary artery temporarily contracts or goes into spasm. When this occurs the artery narrows and blood flow to part of the heart muscle decreases or ceases altogether. The exact cause of the spasm is not known, and can occur in normal-appearing blood vessels as well as in vessels partly blocked by atherosclerosis. A severe spasm can instigate a heart attack.

Atherosclerosis can be considered a silent predator due to the fact that it exhibits no symptoms. The reasoning behind this is that occasionally when a coronary artery becomes narrowed, other adjacent blood vessels, that also bring blood to the heart, may expand to help compensate. This network of expanded vessels is called collateral circulation and assists in protecting some people from heart attacks by getting blood to the areas of the heart that need it. Collateral circulation can also develop after a heart attack to help the heart muscle

When a heart attack occurs, the heart muscle that has lost its adequate supply of blood supply begins to deteriorate. The amount of damage to the heart muscle is contingent on the size of the area that was being supplied by the blocked artery and the amount of time that has evolved between injury and treatment. When the damaged area of the heart muscle post-heart attack heals, it does so by forming scar tissue, and heart muscle begins to heal usually in approximately eight weeks.

The actual length of time is typically dependent on the extent of the injury and the persons' rate of healing. Scar tissue may form in the damaged area, and that scar tissue does not contract or pump as well as healthy muscle tissue. That means that extent of damage to the heart muscle can impact how well the heart pumps blood throughout the body. The degree of loss of function depends on the size and location of the scar tissue. Even though a part of it may have been severely injured, the heart is a very resilient organ, so the remainder of the heart keeps functioning.

However, due to the fact that your heart has been damaged, it may be weaker and unable to pump as much blood as usual. Most heart attack survivors have some degree of coronary artery disease (CAD) and will have to make important lifestyle changes and possibly take medication to prevent a future heart attack and lead a full, productive life. With proper treatment after a heart attack and lifestyle changes, further damage can be limited or prevented.

Chest pain can be a warning sign of a heart attack. One very common type of chest pain is called angina, or angina pectoris. It's a recurring discomfort that usually lasts only a few minutes. Angina occurs when your heart muscle gets a less than sufficient supply of blood and oxygen.

The distinction between angina and a heart attack is that angina attacks don't permanently damage the heart muscle. Often angina transpires during exercise or emotional stress when your heart rate and blood pressure increase and your heart muscle requires more oxygen.

Although men and women can both experience chest pain and pressure that feels like an elephant sitting across the chest, women can experience a heart attack without these characteristic symptoms. Instead they may experience shortness of breath, pressure or pain in the lower chest or upper abdomen, dizziness, lightheadedness or fainting, upper back pressure or extreme fatigue.

People often use the terms heart attack and cardiac arrest interchangeably, but they are not synonymous. A heart attack is when blood flow to the heart is blocked, and sudden cardiac arrest is when the heart malfunctions and suddenly stops beating unexpectedly.

A heart attack is a circulation issue, while sudden cardiac arrest is a problem with the heart's electrical system.

Keep in mind though that a heart attack can cause a cardiac arrest.

In a cardiac arrest, death results when the heart suddenly stops working correctly. This is typically caused by abnormal, or irregular, heart rhythms, termed arrhythmias. The most frequent arrhythmia in a cardiac arrest is ventricular fibrillation. This is when the heart's lower chambers suddenly start to spasm and begin beating chaotically causing inadequate pumping of blood. Death occurs within minutes after the heart stops.

Cardiac arrest may be reversed if CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) is implemented and a defibrillator is used to shock the heart and restore a normal heart rhythm within a few minutes.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Achieve TMS East Open House Wednesday

Achieve TMS East hosted a grand opening and open house Wednesday (Feb. 28) from 5 to 7 p.m., at its new Quincy facility located at 1266 Furnace Brook Pkwy, Suite 300, Quincy.

A ribbon cutting ceremony was set for 5:15 p.m. led by Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Dr. Oscar G. Morales, chief medical officer of Achieve TMS East and the founder and Medical Director of the McLean Hospital TMS Service.

Guests were invited to tour the facility, sit in on an informative presentation with a Q&A, and see a hands-on demonstration with the TMS machine. Complimentary champagne and refreshments will be provided throughout the night, and all providers and the general public are encouraged to attend.

Following this grand opening, Achieve TMS East plans to host public open houses once a month in their Quincy office.

Achieve TMS East, with 11 locations throughout Massachusetts, is the first in Quincy to offer Brainsway's Deep Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation (dTMS) - launching a new era in the treatment of depression. Major Depression - a condition characterized by feelings of deep sadness and loss of interest in life - is one of the most common psychiatric disorders in the United States. It affects over 15 million adults overall, and approximately 1 out of 6 people in the U.S. will suffer a major depressive episode in their lifetime.

Brainsway's Deep TMS, a safe, non-invasive treatment, is based on patents filed by the National Institute of Health and has been FDA approved since 2008. Brainsway's Deep TMS has been tested in over 60 clinical studies in leading institutions worldwide. Deep TMS treatment stimulates a brain region involved in depression and brings significant improvement to patients.

The brief 20-minute outpatient treatments allow for little to no disruption in a patient's daily activity. Immediately after treatment, patients are able to drive home and return to their daily routine, including work commitments.

"At Achieve TMS East, our goal is to improve the lives of our patients through the use of the most advanced, scientifically proven technology," said Dr. John Zebrun, Achieve TMS East's Senior Medical Officer. "We have seen outstanding results with this treatment and are so pleased to now offer this service in Quincy."

Dr. Oscar Morales, adds: "The mission of our dedicated professional team is to provide quality care, in collaboration with community providers, and give hope to patients."

Visit achievetmseast.com or call 413-265-3844 for additional information. Appointments are currently being accepted and patients may request a free informational session to determine if Brainsway's Deep TMS is right for them.

'Functional Landscaping' Topic For Houghs Neck Garden Club March 7

"Functional Landscaping" is the subject of a presentation to be given by Sam Monkherm, Grounds Manager and Director of the Babcock Arboretum at Eastern Nazarene College, on Wednesday, March 7th. Monkherm will highlight the importance of using plants that work together, are functional, and can grow in their specific environment as well as the need for bees, insects and birds.

Houghs Neck Garden Club members and guests will also learn about the Babcock Arboretum, an arboretum with redwood trees here in Quincy. This meeting will be held in the MWRA Community Room at Nut Island, second floor, 149 Sea St., starting at 7 p.m. with refreshments and a brief business meeting followed by the program at 7:30 p.m.

On Wednesday, April 11th at 6 p.m., the Houghs Neck Garden Club will join the Wollaston Garden Club and the Seaside Gardeners of Squantum for the combined annual meeting of the three Quincy garden clubs, to be hosted by the Squantum club at the Kennedy Center in Quincy. The speaker is Mary Huntton. Her program will include spring floral arrangements.

The Club is a member of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts and National Garden Clubs, Inc.

Bill Burke, Candidate For State Rep.: 'Asian Registry Not Acceptable'

As a response to the Quincy Sun article 02-22-18 "Chan Seeks Expanded Registry Bill": I, William Burke, Candidate for State Rep., say "An Asian Registry is Not Acceptable."

Massachusetts bill, the Asian Data Disaggregation Act (H.3361), is under consideration by the state legislature. If enacted, it would require "all state agencies, quasi-state agencies, entities created by state statute and sub-divisions of state agencies" to identify Asian American, and only Asian American, people based on their country of origin or ancestry.

The bill is a senseless approach to a sensitive issue. In fact, it will essentially create an Asian Registry and has many unintended consequences.

H.3361 is a form of racial profiling because it singles out Asian Americans, down to their nationality even if they are born in the United States. Disaggregation means separating something into its component parts. No matter the intent, the outcome is obvious. Not only the first generation of immigrants, born in a foreign country, need to identify themselves by their country of origin, but also their children who were born in the U.S. and their children's children by the country of origin of their ancestors. Theoretically, there's no end to the generations this could affect.

First, let's look no further than America's own history. The hyphenated American was a commonly used term from 1890 to 1920 to disparage Americans of foreign heritage. President Theodore Roosevelt was an outspoken anti-hyphenate. And he said "There is no room in this country for hyphenated Americanism. Some of the very best Americans I have ever known were naturalized Americans, Americans born abroad. But a hyphenated American is not an American at all." And he continued, "The one absolute certain way of bringing this nation to ruin, of preventing all possibility of its continuing to be a nation at all, would be to permit it to become a tangle of squabbling nationalities." Under the proposed bill, there will be many hyphenated Americans with Asian heritage, boxes for Chinese-Americans, Vietnamese-Americans, Indian-Americans, Cambodian-Americans and Korean-Americans, etc.

Second, to be perfectly clear, H.3361 is not a form of census because the U.S. Census requires all races and ethnicities to be classified and surveyed, not just Asian American. Moreover, the U.S. census is granted by Article I, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution and administered by the U.S. Census Bureau, under very strict data collection, data security and privacy rules and regulations. More important, H.3361 is not a scientific method of collecting data. Census data is gathered by one federal agency at one given time through a single standard census form. It's a snapshot of the entire population at a point in time. But under H.3361, the racial, ethnic or ancestry data would be collected by many different agencies at many times using many different data entry points, which will result in redundant effort, data overlap, double counting, as well as vast data tabulation, normalization, correlation, reconciliation, consolidation and cleansing issues. It is an unscientific as well as imprudent way of collecting sensitive personal data.

Potentially, the disparate datasets from different agencies could be unreliable, inaccurate and unusable for policymaking due to its flawed data collection method. It is a waste of taxpayers' money, and a waste of the state funding and resources.

Third, the mental and psychological impact on hundreds of thousands of Asian immigrants and their children can't be underestimated. Many Asian Americans are keenly aware of the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882, the internment of Japanese-Americans during WWII, the long suspected hidden Asian quota in many top American colleges and universities which echoes the Jewish quota of 1920s, not to mention the Nazi concentration camps as well as the Jewish Registry created by Nazi Germany from 1939 ethnic data collection and which led to the identification, prosecution and ethnic cleansing of Jews. Since H.3361 was introduced, racial tensions, angers, resentments, anxieties, and fears among Asian communities have been running high. There were half a dozen protests and demonstrations held in the last 6 months by various Asian organizations and groups.

The bill also reinforces a perpetual foreigner mindset and stereotype. It would alienate many patriotic Asian Americans by reminding them of an Asian Registry. It would solidify discrimination and racism against Asian Americans, many of whom were born in this country. It's a wrong approach. If we disaggregate Asian Americans, by the same logic, should we disaggregate European Americans into German American, Irish American, Italian American, Jewish American, or Scandinavian American, for instance? Should we disaggregate African Americans into Somalian American, Ethiopian American, Egyptian American, or Ghanaian American?

And what about people with parents from different countries, different racial or ethnic lines? How many boxes do they have to check? This is dividing, not uniting, our country.

The U.S. has racially and culturally progressed faster than some of our lawmakers' abilities to comprehend. Interracial marriages and multiracial kids are quite common nowadays even if some lawmakers are still stuck in last century.

Ironically, the bill is sponsored by State Rep. Tackey Chan, D-Quincy. He and his supporters argue that having disaggregated data on Asian Americans could improve awareness of the needs of the different Asian populations, help target local and state funding and resources for underserved Asian minority subgroups. Some also claim that data collected on specific Asian American subgroups means distinctive medical and disease conditions can be identified, leading to appropriate and better diagnoses and treatments.

But H.3361 isn't the solution. The better alternative is to provide social, financial, or language education assistance to anyone, especially the first generation of immigrants, based on an individual's economic or linguistic needs regardless of one's race or country of origin. There are socioeconomically disadvantaged families and kids across racial and ethnic lines from any country, all of whom need help. Fundamentally, such assistance should be need-based according to income level and language proficiency, not race or ethnicity.

As to the demographic data for research and diagnosis, many medical experts dismiss the notion that the differences between Asian subgroups are more statistically significant than the differences between European or African subgroups on a biological or genetic basis. The decennial U.S. Census data and estimates in between provide better datasets for research and analysis. And there will be a fresh U.S. Census dataset in 2020, including statistics on all racial and ethnic groups.

Finally, the cost of H.3361 clearly outweighs any potential benefit. Selectively collecting data on racial and ethnic minority groups is culturally insensitive, morally objectionable and legally contentious. It's unconstitutional. Why single out Asians? Can we do this to the Jews or Arabs? Where does this end? This kind of legislation continues the unfortunate path of identity politics, a losing cause for any individual or any group, and especially for this great state and our nation.

Racial profiling or any form of identity politics does a disservice to our humanity. H.3361 needs to be stopped.

Thank you
Bill Burke

Ask Rusty: Working Internationally And Social Security

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: For a number of years I lived and worked in Germany. I paid into their version of Social Security. As far as I know I will be eligible to receive German benefits either in a lump sum or monthly amount when I reach the age of 65. If that happens can you tell me how this will affect my Social Security benefits? Signed: International worker

Dear International Worker: Germany is one of the 24 countries with which the U.S. has a bilateral agreement, also known as a "totalization agreement." This means that your contributions to the German retirement system can be coordinated with your U.S. Social Security contributions to help you qualify for U.S. Social Security benefits. What happens is that you receive U.S. Social Security credit for your contributions to the German equivalent program, to help you gain enough credits to receive U.S. Social Security benefits. The US/Germany agreement has two main purposes:

- First, it eliminates dual Social Security taxation; a situation which occurs when a worker from one country works in the other country and would otherwise be required to pay Social Security taxes to both countries on the same earnings.

- Second, the agreement helps fill gaps in benefit protection for workers who have divided their careers between the U.S. and Germany (or any of the other countries with which there is an agreement).

When a worker has some U.S. coverage but not enough to qualify for benefits, the Social Security Administration will count periods of coverage that the worker has earned under the German Social Security program. Germany will also take into account a worker's coverage under the U.S. program if it is needed to qualify for that country's Social Security benefits. If the combined credits in the two countries enable the worker to meet the eligibility requirements, a partial benefit can then be paid.

The agreement allows the Social Security Administration to "totalize" U.S. and German coverage credits only if the worker has at least 6 quarters of U.S. coverage. Similarly, a person may need a minimum amount of coverage under Germany's system in order to have U.S. coverage counted toward meeting the German benefit eligibility requirements. Garage Plans Unveiled; Hancock Lot Parking Plan March 5

Also on March 5, city officials will present plans to accommodate the current users of the Hancock Lot while construction of the new garage and two neighboring mixed-use developments is underway. Developer Peter O'Connell will build his 124-unit Chestnut Place building on the Dennis Ryan Parkway side of the lot, while LBC Partners will construct the 171-unit Nova Residences building at 1500 Hancock St.

The new garage will have 130 parking spaces in its basement, 78 spaces on the ground level, 125 spaces on the second floor, 131 spaces each on the third and fourth floors, and 117 spaces on the roof. Sixteen of the spaces will be handicap accessible, and some of the spaces will have charging stations for electric vehicles.

One hundred seventy-four of the parking spaces — about one-fourth of the total in the new garage — will be leased to O'Connell and LBC for tenants of their new buildings, according to city officials. Future developments on what is now the Hancock Lot would have to include parking on site and not in the garage, William Geary, the special counsel to Mayor Thomas Koch for downtown redevelopment, told city councillors.

Construction of the new garage is set to begin this summer, Geary said, and will take 14 to 16 months to complete, meaning it would open in the fall of 2019.

The closure of the lot's remaining spaces will be done in phases this spring as other work in the parking area commences, said Rob Stevens, the city's deputy planning director. The city must first raze the buildings at 23-29 Cottage Ave. and 31-39 Cottage Ave. — which will take place in a month or two — and then relocate the sewer line under the Hancock Lot before starting construction of the garage in the summer.

DESIGN OF A 712-car garage on what is now the Hancock Lot and adjacent civic space was unveiled at Monday's City Council meeting. Construction of the new garage will start this summer and finish in the fall of 2019. This view of the garage is from the Cottage Avenue side of the Hancock Lot.

"We're trying to hold as many spaces open as possible and trying not to get into a scenario where a whole area is knocked out but no work is occurring there immediately," Stevens said. "We're trying to partition the sections that are going under construction and then at a certain point once the sewer is out...it's going to be fast-forwarded and get this thing built as fast as we can."

The city will spend $46.6 million to construct the new garage and create new civic space in the areas between the parking structure and the buildings around it. Funding for the work was included in an $80 million district improvement financing (DIF) bond the council approved in June 2017.

The garage's exterior will include pre-cast concrete wall panels, brick inlay and terra cotta screening over openings. The plans for the open space include pergolas in the area behind Nova Residences, and a tree-lined plaza in the space between The Fours and the garage.

"This garage is going to be an asset to the downtown," Geary said. "It's going to be something that is going to immediately improve the aesthetics."

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said he was pleased with the look of the garage.

"The garage looks so nice I thought I should move into it," McCarthy said. "It's very, very bright and clean. It looks great."

Wes Wilson of Desman

Design Management, the garage's structural engineer, said the parking facility could last a century with proper maintenance.

"If this is poorly maintained, I think at the very least 50 to 60 years," Wilson responded after being asked about the garage's lifespan. "If it's well maintained, we could see something upwards of 100 years."

Two councillors asked city officials about the plan

March Events, Activities For Children At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES

Thomas Crane
Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following events and activities for children during March.

Dr. Seuss Birthday Party

It is Dr. Seuss' birthday and we are having a Cat in the Hat birthday bonanza on Saturday, March 3rd. Stop by the Main Library children's room from 10 a.m. to noon to meet the Cat in the Hat. Make Dr. Seuss themed crafts (while supplies last). Watch a Dr. Seuss movie, play pin the hat on the Cat or Dr. Seuss Tic Tac Toe and more.

Please note this special celebration is happening in place of our regularly scheduled Music and Movement with Rubi program which will take place on Saturday, March 17th.

Children's Movie

Matinees @ North Quincy

Monday afternoons at 3 p.m. join us at North Quincy for a movie matinee. Our movies for March are:

March 5th: Wonder Rated PG 113 min

March 19th: The LEGO Ninjago Movie PG 101

March 26th: Matilda Rated PG 98 min.

Preschool Discovery

@ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, March 8th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month we'll be exploring the Ocean as we sort shells, get a close look at sand, eat like whales, and maybe even make our own waves! This program does not require registration.

Science Saturday - Geometry and Shapes

Come join us on Saturday, March 10th at 10 a.m. for a variety of shape and geometry puzzles and activities. We'll have giant Tangrams to play with, pattern blocks, tessellation activities and more!

This program is recommended for children ages 4 and older accompanied by an adult.

Registration

Spring Storytimes

Weekday storytimes for children ages 4 months through 5 years old begin on Friday, March 23rd.

The library offers several programs by age. Stop by the library or check our website thomascranelibrary.org for details. Due to overcrowding advance registration is required for Mother Goose on the Loose and Just for Twos storytimes.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday, March 13th. Register online, by phone at 617-376-2411 or in person in the Main Library Children's Room. Registration is limited to Quincy residents.

Registration for

Jr. Explorers @ Wollaston
Beginning Tuesday, March 13th register for the Junior Explorers online, by phone at 617-376-1330 or in person at the Wollaston Branch. Registration is required and limited to Quincy residents

Junior Explorers for ages 3 - 5

Pirates: Let's weigh anchor and set sail with some pirate stories and crafts. We'll read about pirate dogs, pirate mothers, when pirates come to visit and when we're done we'll go hunting for some hidden treasure!

Registration for the Chickadees Book Group for Grades 1 and 2

Beginning Tuesday, March 13th register for the Chickadees Book Group online, by phone at 617-376-2411 or in person in the Main Library Children's Room. Registration is required and limited to Quincy residents

The Chickadees run in a five week series beginning Monday, March 26th and will be tackling longer books, ones that will take 2 or more sessions to read and discuss. Join us for this fun group that will have your first and second graders learning new vocabulary and comprehension skills while having a lot of fun reading some great books.

Middle School STEAM

Students in Grades 5-8 are invited to join us on Tuesday, March 13th at 2 p.m. for Middle School STEAM.

This month we will explore Pi, the mathematical constant with a non repeating decimal. Learn how to impress your math teacher on Pi Day (3/14) by creating a device to help you remember Pi's decimal digits, some of them anyway since there are more than a trillion. We'll also use the digits of Pi to create art and more.

Each month we will be exploring a different STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art and math) topic.

Childrens Movie Matinee @ Adams Shore - Wonder

Join us at the Adams Shore Branch on Tuesday, March 13th at 3 p.m. for a showing Wonder based on the bestselling book by R. J. Palacio

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the 2nd Thursday of each month.

This month we'll be meeting on March 8th at 7 p.m. to discuss Lunch Money by Andrew Clements.

Always looking to make a buck, savvy businessman Greg Kenton comes up with a scheme to sell his very own comic books at lunch time in order to earn the miscellaneous change his classmates' are eager to spend, but although things start off well, the powers that be aren't very supportive and begin to put the kibosh on his entrepreneurial experiment.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, March 13th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be discussing Worldwide Historical Fiction - Cast your net wide and see where (and when) you end up! This month we're reading historical fiction from around the globe and throughout history. Visit the 1960s in the United States and read about the Civil Rights movement, head to China during the Tang Dynasty and travel the Silk Road, or visit Pompeii - just before the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D. Whatever and whenever you read about, come tell us about it in March!

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out about when we'll be meeting next.

Music and Movement with Rubi

On Saturday, March 17th at 10 and 10:30 a.m. singing and dance with Rubi Lichauro! Rubi brings her popular preschool program to Quincy so put on your favorite dancing shoes and join us for this lively mix of music and movement for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

Please note that this is program is taking place on the third Saturday this month so that we can celebrate Dr. Seuss' Birthday on March 3rd.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 to 15 are invited to join us on Tuesday, day, March 20th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play. If this is your first time joining the group please arrive early, about 6:45 p.m., to create your character so we'll be ready to play when everyone else arrives.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Saturday Storytime

@ North Quincy

Join children's librarian Cathy deVeer and Quinn Z. Bear at the North Quincy Branch, on Saturday, March 24th at 10 a.m. for Chocolate stories, songs and more.

This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult. No registration required.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

COCKTAIL CONTROVERSY

It has recently been noted that a popular cocktail can erode tooth enamel and give rise to cavities. The Aperol Spritz is an Italian-inspired cocktail that combines Prosecco (a less-expensive alternative to Champagne) and Aperol (an Italian aperitif composed of bitter orange, rhubarb, and other ingredients). As it turns out, drinking too much of this popular cocktail exposes teeth to the residual sugars and acids that sufficiently eat away at enamel to cause what has come to be known as the "prosecco smile." Of course, there is nothing new in all this, in that dentists and health professionals have long advised against drinking carbonated beverages, which get their fizz from the release of carbon dioxide, which dissolves into carbonic acid.

If you have questions about protecting your teeth's enamel, be sure to discuss your concerns with us. We bring you our bi-weekly dental column in order to keep you up-to-date on the latest research, innovations, and procedures available in dentistry today and to inform our friends and neighbors here in Quincy of the many benefits of regular dental care. New patients are always welcome at our state-of-the-art office at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 for an appointment. And be sure to visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. With respect to consuming acidic and sugary foods and drinks, moderation is key. It also helps to rinse with water after consuming foods that pose a danger to tooth enamel.

Mixed Response To Proposed Used-Car Lot Ordinance

By SCOTT JACKSON
Used-car dealers who spoke at a public hearing about a proposed ordinance affecting Quincy's motor II licensees raised concerns about the legislation, but city licensing officials spoke in favor of the new rules.

The City Council's oversight committee held the public hearing on the proposed ordinance Feb. 21 after hearing from city officials about the regulations for used-car lots. The committee did not take a vote on the ordinance that night.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, the committee's chairman, has proposed the ordinance. If approved, city officials would have to assign a set number of vehicles each of Quincy's motor II licensees — which includes used-car dealers and auto-repair shops — could have on their property, based on the amount of space available on their lot.

Those found with too many vehicles on their lot could be subject to a $100 fine for a first offense, a $200 fine for a second offense, and the Board of License Commissioners could revoke the license for failure to comply with the ordinance or other applicable regulations.

Palmucci said he introduced the ordinance because used-car lots have come to resemble junkyards, which Quincy does not allow.

"We're not going to be a city that allows junkyards, plain and simple," he said. "No neighbor wants to live near a business that operates as a junkyard. No resident of the city, no business owner in the city, no visitor of the city wants to drive by auto-repair places or used-car places that look like a junkyard."

"The city is better than that."

Palmucci said he has also heard from other councillors who have concerns about used-car lots parking excess vehicles on sidewalks.

There are 65 motor II licensees in Quincy today, City Clerk Nicole Crispo told councillors. The Board of Licensing Commissioners has in recent years assigned a number of cars to a lot when issuing new licenses, es, but holders of decades-old licenses have no such restriction.

"Lately for new owners coming in we have asked them to draft a plan on their parking to be reviewed by the license board, but it's very few and far between that have a number associated with their lot," Crispo said.

The city clerk and two other members of the licensing board — Fire Chief Joseph Barron and Inspection Service Director Jay Duca — all agreed the time has come to place limits on the number of vehicles motor II licensees are allowed.

"I do think it's time that we set a minimum standard and we try to all abide by it," Crispo said. "The city is growing. There is more people — certainly more traffic — and the overflow is going out into the neighborhoods."

"It certainly does present some improvement over not having had these guidelines, particularly for public safety," Barron said of Palmucci's ordinance. While fires at car dealerships are rare, he said vehicles being too close together can be problematic for firefighters.

Duca, whose department is responsible for inspecting used-car lots, said it would be helpful if all motor II licensees were held to the same standards.

"Enforcement is all about being fair and consistent," he said. "When you're providing enforcement, you want to make sure it is fair and equitable — that everybody follows the same rules. That really is necessary to be able to enforce."

Among those speaking during the public hearing portion of the meeting was Christopher Harrington, a Wollaston resident and attorney whose clients include motor II license holders. Harrington said he appreciated Palmucci's reason for introducing the ordinance and said having consistent rules on the number of spaces would go a long way.

Harrington, however, raised concern about the dimensional requirement for parking spaces included in the ordinance. The ordinance would require each car space to be 10 feet by 20 feet, which he called excessive. The city's zoning code requires parking spaces to be 9 feet by 18 feet, which Harrington said is appropriate in shopping centers where customers are loading and parking their vehicles themselves. On used-car lots, he said employees do all the parking.

"The space for that used car, my point is, doesn't need to be as big as a space which you have at Stop & Shop or BJ's or Crown Colony," Harrington said.

A midsize car — like a Toyota Camry — could fit in a 7.5-foot by 16-foot space, while a full-size car — such as a Chevrolet Tahoe — could fit in an 8-foot by 17-foot space, Harrington said, with enough room to open the door to enter.

Katie Smith of Smith Auto Sales on Water Street said requiring each space be 10 feet by 20 feet would go too far.

"We've been in business for 23 years. I think we run a pretty decent, respectful business," she said. "Putting us into a 10-by-20 parking space would basically put us down to two or three vehicles and put us out of business."

Palmucci then asked Smith if she had a recommendation for the size of the spaces; Smith said the dimensions recommended by Harrington would work.

Michael Campanale, owner of C & L Auto Sales on Copeland Street, was concerned about a requirement in the ordinance that all spaces be clearly lined "and designated in traffic paint as storage/display or employee/customer parking." He said marking those spaces would be an added expense and could prevent cars on sale from being moved to spaces where they would be better displayed.

"Those things, they can change from time to time," Campanale said. "You might get better traffic in the morning from one side and want to display some of your vehicles from that side."

G. Angelo Sodano, owner of Angelo's Auto Sales on Washington Street, said he was concerned the ordinance would make it difficult for him to sell his business if he were to retire. Sodano said the city would be better off penalizing the problematic dealerships.

"I don't think we should be penalized for the few people that abuse the system," Sodano said. "Don't penalize me or the other people here who don't have anything to do with that."

Two residents spoke in favor of the new regulations, citing used-car dealers in their neighborhoods that are problematic. Among them was Nancy Sordillo Stansbury, a Quincy Center resident, who said a dealership on her street is basically a junkyard.

"It's turned out to be nothing but a junkyard," she said. "I don't think there is a car there that's worth selling. It's awful. Something needs to be done about it."

Russell Kelcourse, a Houghs Neck resident, spoke against the ordinance saying it would hurt small businesses.

"I think we have too much government oversight now in the city — in the country," he said.

Following the public hearing, Palmucci said he would consider changes to his proposal based on feedback received that night. He encouraged others motor II licensees to supply written comments on the proposed legislation as well.

"This is an ongoing process. [I'm] happy to make some amendments to this based on what people said tonight," Palmucci said. "This is the way legislation development should work. The public should be involved. The people most affected should be involved."

Bakery To Open New Dessert Bar

By SCOTT JACKSON

The owner of a popular Quincy bakery plans to open a new dessert bar inspired by the ones he grew up with in Italy.

The Board of License Commissioners on Feb. 20 awarded an alcohol license to Sala By Fratelli's, which is set to open this spring at 470 Southern Artery inside the space formerly home to a tanning salon.

John Milone, who has run the Fratelli's bakery at nearby 25 Broad St. for the past 12 years, told the board he had long wanted to open a dessert bar.

"I've had a vision for a long time of opening up a dessert bar. When I grew up in Italy, we had one of these dessert bars on every corner — they were that popular," Milone said. "You met your friends, your family, your dates or whatever and you went there for coffee, espresso, a cordial or a glass of wine, especially with desserts."

Now is the perfect opportunity to open a dessert bar in Quincy, he said.

"In Boston, they've started opening up a few of these and from what I hear they've had great success. As fast as Quincy is growing — bringing in new restaurants, new businesses — I thought this was the perfect opportunity to give it a go," Milone said.

"My concept is for people to stop after dinner, after a show, a movie, shopping, even maybe a first date. They will be able to enjoy the atmosphere with one of many unique and over-the-top desserts, accompanied by their choice of beverage."

Milone's daughter, Emily Martin, said the new dessert bar should be ready to open May 1. Sala By Fratelli's will have seating for 60 people.

The new eatery was granted a cabaret license in addition to the all alcohol license. Martin said the restaurant could have a singer or acoustic guitar player perform, but there are no plans for bigger bands.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy spoke in favor of the request for the all alcohol license, crediting Fratelli's with running a first-class operation.

"They've been there for over a decade. It's a first-class operation and I assume the dessert bar and anything else that John does will be a first-class operation in Ward 1, so they have my full support," McCarthy said.

Board members also spoke favorably about the proposed new dessert bar.

"I know John's done a great job at Fratelli's," said Health Commissioner Drew Scheele, the board's chairman. "You do a real good job down there. You're an asset to the city. I'm glad that you're here and I'm glad you're bringing in another business."

"I love the concept," added City Clerk Nicole Crispo.

The new dessert bar will be permitted to open from 8 a.m. to 1 a.m. six days a week, and from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. on Sundays.

In other business Feb. 20, the board granted a request to name Devin Adams the new manager for the Belfry Hall, an eatery set to open at 35 Washington St. — formerly home to the Home Ice Sports Bar — this spring.

to accommodate those who use the Hancock Lot as more and more parking spaces come offline because of construction.

Councillor Noel DiBona said the top question he gets about the project is where will everyone — those who use the lot now as well as construction workers — park while the garage and mixed-use projects are being built, and how will the city communicate those plans.

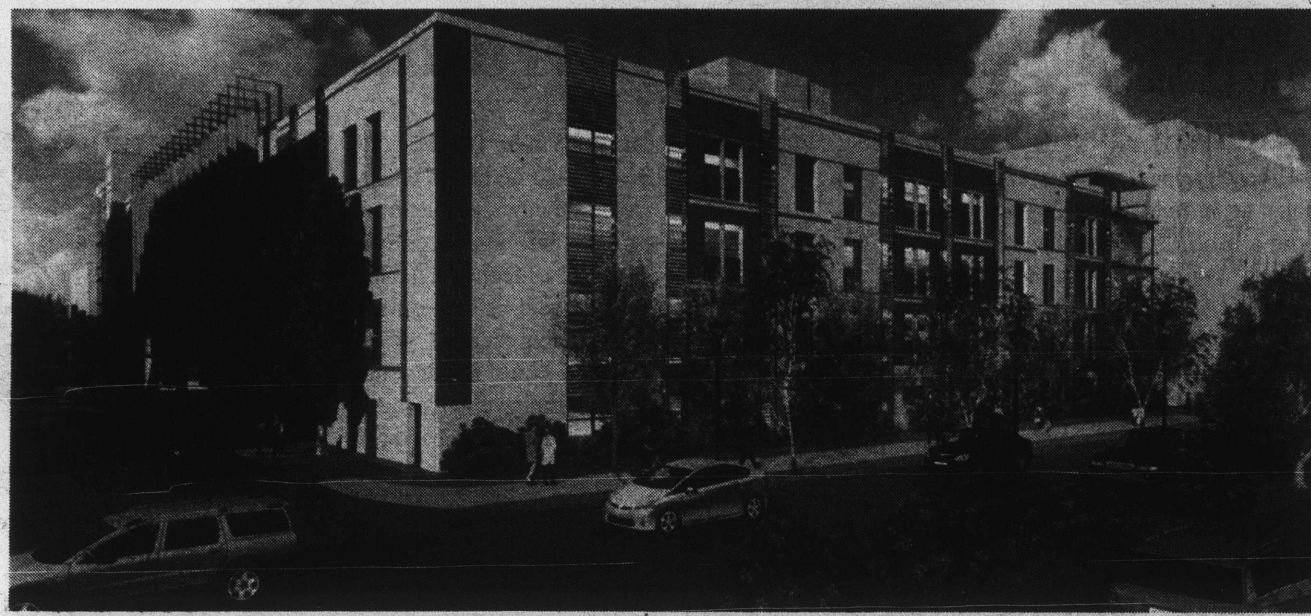

"Where are construction workers going to be able to park? Where is the public going to be able to park? How do you designate signage? How do you designate this on the website? How do you tell the public, without reading the paper, this is going on and this is where you're going to park?" Di-

Bona said. "What's the game plan?"

Councillor Anne Mahoney said parking is important to the Quincy Center businesses whose employees use the Hancock Lot, and restaurants in the area whose customers park there. She said the plan to accommodate users of the lot should have been unveiled before the garage design.

"I just think we're doing the presentation backwards," Mahoney said. "I'm wondering why we didn't do parking first, garage second."

Geary said a plan is in place to accommodate users of the lot and would be presented to councillors March 5; the administration and Council President Brad Croall agreed to hold that presentation until next week's meeting.

Croall said he spoke with administration officials and came to an agreement to have them present the parking plan during the lot's closure at next week's meeting because the council also heard presentations on the $80 million DIF bond Monday in addition to the unveiling of the garage design.

"In my mind, speaking on behalf of the body, to come in and have a presentation on the financing — the $80 million package — a garage proof of concept, essentially, and alternative parking plan in one night didn't give us, I feel, sort of the runway to do our due diligence," Croall said.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for Koch, declined to elaborate on details of the parking plan following Monday's meeting.

Once the new garage opens, Geary told councillors parking prices would be raised to better reflect the market rate. Parking in the lot now costs $8 a day and a monthly parking pass is $50; the new rates have yet to be determined.

"We don't expect our parking rate to be comparable to that of Boston, but it's going to have to be more realistic than it has been for many, many years, in part because various administrations have been fearful of charging for parking because they didn't want the disinvestment, if you will, in the downtown area to continue," Geary said.

DiBona said parking has to be affordable or customers will opt to go to places in nearby communities with free parking, such as Braintree's South Shore Plaza, Dedham's Legacy Place or Hingham's Derby Street Shoppes.

"It has to be somewhat affordable — not off the radar, obviously, to Boston, but somewhat what we have right now," he said.

McCarthy Wants School Security Review

By SCOTT JACKSON

A city councillor is calling for a presentation on Quincy Public Schools' safety and security measures following a Valentine's Day shooting at Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Fla., that left 17 dead.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy introduced the resolution Monday night, which asks that city and school officials provide the council with an update on school security and safety procedures. McCarthy wants to hear from Public Buildings Commissioner Paul Hines; Michael Draicchio, the school system's security director; and representatives from Quincy Police and Fire Departments and Brewster Ambulance.

McCarthy, a former School Committee member, said school officials take safety and security seriously and the system has made great improvements to its safety measures in the past decade, but said it would be timely to have the discussion at the council in light of the shooting in Florida.

"They take it very seriously and security and safety over the course of the last decade has improved immensely," McCarthy, who is the director of security for General Dynamics, said of Quincy Public Schools.

"But with everything going on across the country in regards to the recent shooting down in Florida and other incidents, I figure it was a good time to have the commissioner of public buildings as well as the director of Quincy Public Schools security along with Quincy PD, Quincy Fire, Brewster and any other first responders involved in any incidents in any of our schools to appear before us to do a presentation on our school security."

in restaurants, health care and construction. She said the bill would give the Bay State teeth to provide rights to all.

"States have power to address the conditions faced by immigrants who live in cities and towns," she said.

Wagner said immigrants come here with their families seeking a better life.

"Reporting an undocumented person typically means tearing a family apart," she said. "Many of those undocumented would gladly follow a pathway to become a legal resident and citizens, but for the vast majority, there is no pathway to follow."

Following his presentation, a few in attendance asked Eldridge questions, mostly seeking clarification about the bill. Most seemed in favor of the legislation.

One man, however, questioned how much state money is going to undocumented persons in the form of welfare.

Eldridge said undocumented immigrants are not eligible for such state benefits as welfare or food stamps.

"Come on, come on" the man retorted.

The man also said that undocumented persons are not paying their fair share of taxes, based on numbers he read from the federal Association on Immigration. Eldridge said the figure is "a scare tactic" and the figure they are reporting is false.

Eldridge said undocumented immigrants get a tax identification number and once become legal citizens would be paying taxes.

A woman said that the United States is a nation made up of immigrants.

"At one time or another, we all came from somewhere," she said.

Cain: Study Municipal Broadband ready to present its findings before the council begins its review of the fiscal year 2019 municipal budget in May.

The resolution was referred to the council's finance committee, which Cain chairs, as well as the municipal technology committee.

Cain's resolution says Quincy's sole provider of broadband internet, Comcast, charges prohibitive prices and offers mediocre service. It also cites the Federal Communication Commission's repeal of net neutrality, the principle all internet traffic and data must be treated the same.

On Monday, Cain said a municipal broadband network would provide residents with an alternative to Comcast.

"We have one broadband internet provider in the city — that's Comcast Xfinity — and it doesn't look like we have anyone else rushing to come to Quincy to serve our market. We pay a lot of money," Cain said.

"I think this could be one area where we could create a public utility that saves on the cost of internet, especially when now the world lives and dies by the internet through business, through communication, through everything.

"As we're improving our city and its physical composition by real estate, this is something we should be thinking about providing as a service in order to attract newer and unique and innovative businesses and provide greater access to broadband internet."

Chris Walker, a spokesman for the mayor, said the administration would look into the idea.

"I think it's definitely an interesting concept — something we'd be happy to take a look at," Walker said following Monday's meeting.

Hancock/Adams Green & Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of: Feb 25th, 2018

• Now that the utilities are completed in Ross Way, the City will have a contractor come into the Ross lot and create 54 parking spaces within the landscape area adjacent to Ross Way. The work will begin this Monday, February 26th. The contractor will give back the existing spots daily once they are past the section they need to work in. This work should take approximately two weeks to complete.

• Walls for the deep footings for the atrium at the Nova Residence site at 1500 Hancock Street will be formed and poured this week as well as work on the roof section of the culvert connection piece.

• Work continues in the Hancock/Adams Green Park with the installation of pumps and filters within the control room for the fountains. The contractor will be pouring the base slab on top of the tidal fountain. Once the concrete has cured, the granite tiles will be placed down as the final layer within the water element section of the tidal fountain. Work continues with the spigot fountains and landscape curbing with benches.

• The concrete base within the park will begin to be installed this week for the walking pavers.

Concert March 11
At Quincy
Catholic Academy
Auditorium

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of world-renowned composer, conductor, educator, and Massachusetts-native Leonard Bernstein, Quincy Choral Society will perform music composed by Bernstein from Candide and West Side Story as well as a variety of music representing America.

The program includes the spiritual "Ain't a That Good News!", Stephen Foster's "Nelly Bly," and Randall Thompson's "The Road Not Taken" from Frostiana.

The concert will be held on Sunday, March 11, at Quincy Catholic Academy Auditorium. The afternoon includes a silent auction, bake sale, and some surprises to benefit the chorus. A highlight of the auction is the opportunity to conduct the chorus performing "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah.

Doors open and auction bidding begins at 1:15 p.m. with the concert following at 2:00 p.m. Quincy Catholic Academy is located at 370 Hancock Street, North Quincy. Tickets are $5.00 and will be available at the door. This popular event will be sold out, so come early to buy your ticket and bid.

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. Members sing with music in their hearts, performing diverse, professional quality programs designed to entertain, enlighten, and enrich the human spirit. In December 2015, the Quincy City Council recognized Quincy Choral Society for bringing music and joy to the City of Quincy for 35 years. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, and at Carnegie Hall in 2015 as part of the Masterworks Series. This summer the chorus will be performing in Montreal and Quebec. Quincy Choral Society is 501(c)(3) organization, and donations are tax exempt to the extent allowed by law.

Joshua Rohde was appointed music director of Quincy Choral Society in September 2016. Dr. Rohde is Director of Choral Activities at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. He conducts the four university choral ensembles - Men's Glee Club, Women's Alden Voices, Festival Chorus, and the Chamber Choir. In 2017 Dr. Rohde completed a Doctor of Musical Arts degree from Boston University in Choral Conducting, where he taught undergraduate courses in conducting and ear training, and wrote his dissertation on living Scottish composer Sir James MacMillan. He is also manages the Harvard Choruses' New Music Initiative and frequently performs as cellist for the Marsh Chapel Collegium Orchestra and Worcester Chorus.

Virginia "Gingy" Grimes has served as the accompanist for Quincy Choral Society since 1993. Ms. Grimes received her piano accompaniment degree from Duke University. She is Minister of Music at First Parish, Norwell, Music Director for the Pierce Players of Milton Public Schools and for Derby Summer Arts, and teaches and accompanies for Freelance Players, Quincy High School, and North Quincy High School.

Salvation Army Civic Dinner May 17

The Salvation Army, Quincy Corps will host its fifth annual Civic Dinner Thursday, May 17 at 6 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

The evening program will highlight the human service programs that are offered by The Salvation Army of Quincy. This special event will be dedicated to two recipients, who have made a special commitment to the The Salvation Army's services in Quincy.

The "Others Award" is traditionally given to an individual or organization that exemplifies an extraordinary spirit of service to others; efforts that in turn benefit the Salvation Army and/or the community. Each year the recipient is recommended by the Quincy Corps officers/administrators and local Advisory Board and presented to headquarters for endorsement.

This year the award will be presented to Quincy College President Peter H. Tsaffaras in recognition of Quincy College's continual commitment to lend a helping hand to individuals in need throughout the Quincy community.

The Bruce E. Wood Community Partner's Award is an award given in memory of Bruce Wood and his civic spirit and service to the city of Quincy. This award is given to an individual who has long served and who has identifiable valuable service to the City of Quincy and to The Salvation Army. This year's recipient is Recreation Director Barry J. Welch.

Sponsors of this year's Civic Dinner include Quirk Auto Dealers, Keohane Funeral Homes, Quincy College, NorthEast Community Bank and the Quincy Rotary Club.

Those interested in sponsoring or attending the event should call The Salvation Army Quincy Corps office at 617-472-2345 for reservations or go online at www.salvationarmyma.org/ Quincy.

License Board News

The licensing board had originally granted an all alcohol license to the new restaurant, which was then known as The Quill, in October 2015. Adams - who is also the owner of the nearby Townshend inside Presidents Place at 1250 Hancock St. - was a partner in the new restaurant at that time but will now manage Belfry Hall as well after another partner backed out.

Renovations are now going on inside the new restaurant space and Adams said he expects to be ready to open in two months. All that remains to do, he said, is install new tile and paint, and then add furniture and fixtures.

Belfry Hall, Adams explained, will offer high-quality pub food with craft beer.

"It's basically a craft-beer hall, so the traditional pub with more market-driven, quality, chef-driven food along with craft beer," he said when asked to explain the concept.

Scheele said Adams has done well with The Townshend and he expects the same at Belfry Hall.

"You do an excellent job across the street at Townshend," he said. "We expect big things from Belfry."

NeighborWorks Offering Homebuyers Workshop

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers in Quincy.

The first part of the course will be taken online; following completion of the online component, participants will attend an in-person class on April 7 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Winter Gardens-Basement Community Room, 45 Winter St., Quincy.

The in-person workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, attorneys and loan originators. Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about NeighborWorks' down payment assistance programs and speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshop is $20 per person. To register and pay online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call (617) 770-2227 x65 for more information.

Registry Of Deeds Land Records Available Online

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds consumers they can view land records online via the Registry's internet-based document research system at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

"A recent review of online traffic interacting with our website, done through Google Analytics, indicates our most popular feature is providing an online research capability for users to access all our online land documents," O'Donnell said. "Consumers can see up to 6,000,000 scanned land document images dating back to the founding of Norfolk County in 1793. We are bringing the Registry records into people's homes and businesses."

"Providing secure, accurate and accessible land record information, coupled with our on-site customer service center, is a core objective of the Norfolk County Registry of Deed," O'Donnell added.

Conway Honors Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito

The 31st annual Conway Convention recognized the top selling and listing agents in each of Conway's 30 sales offices from Swampscott to Cape Cod and announced the selection of Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito as the 2017 Conway Citizen of the year.

The event also included workshops and classes, an all-day trade show, raffle prizes, and a cocktail hour.

"We are an independent real estate firm deeply rooted in and committed to our community," said Jack Conway CEO/President Carol Bulman at the Boston Marriott Quincy. "And we plan to stay that way now and in the future. In fact, three of my children are now working in this company that their grandfather started 62 years ago."

Taking the podium at the hotel's grand ballroom on the morning of the conference, Bulman thanked her associates for contributing to a third consecutive $1 billion year for Conway. "The money you earn is important, but even more important is the 'good' you do for the homeowners you serve," she said. "You don't just facilitate transactions, you participate in life events."

"You guide and advise people at times that may be very emotional for them - when a widowed senior must sell a family home - when a young couple makes the exciting but stressful decision to make the biggest purchase of their lives. Thank you for your empathy and your integrity - values upon which our firm was founded and which have enabled us to stand the test of time as a 100 percent family-owned company. Working together, we will continue to honor the past, focus on the present and embrace the future. Jack Conway, Realtor is a company but it is also a community."

Elaborating on the Registry's research capabilities, O'Donnell said:

"Users are able to research land record information by multiple options, including the name of the property owner and property address. Members of the public can access our internet-based document research system for many endeavors such as, to determine property ownership, to research land titles, to review land plans (only plans which are recorded at the Registry) and finally to confirm that documents affecting a person's property-such as mortgage discharges - have been recorded."

The Registry's website also provides information on how to obtain copies of land documents. The Registry copy charges are $1 per page, plus an additional $1 per document for postage.

In conclusion, O'Donnell said:

"Providing first-class customer service is a crucial focus we bring to our work at the Registry of Deeds each and every day. Norfolk County residents and businesses deserve a Registry of Deeds that provides them with access to land record information in an easily accessible and consumer friendly manner. The Registry website www.norfolkdeeds.org does that by bringing the Registry records into your homes and businesses."

THINKING OF SELLING?

Inventory is low! This creates a lot of movement around the available homes in the market. Here's how that helps you as a seller:

- Higher Demand means that homes are getting multiple offers
- More offers mean higher bids!
- Buyers are more willing to contribute to the sale and ask less of the seller

Apaches Induct Legends Doherty, Burke Into Hall Of Fame

By SEAN HALPIN

The North Quincy Apaches Football and Cheerleading program rolled out the Red Carpet for their 67th Annual Awards Banquet.

The recent event celebrated an outstanding year where the football program won two of the league's three championships titles in what would be the final season of the Quincy Youth Football League play. The event combined all levels of tackle football and cheerleading.

A capacity crowd of over 300 attended the gala event at the Quincy Sons of Italy Hall.

For the third year, as part of the banquet festivities, the Apaches inducted two individuals into their Hall of Fame. Apache Hall of Fame Commissioner Paul "Doc" Doherty presided over the ceremony that celebrates the 67-year history of the Apache program.

This season, the Apaches honored two legends of their program's history: Brian Doherty (player) and Christine (Tierney) Burke (coach).

Hall of Famer Brian Doherty was a player for the North Quincy Apaches for three seasons from 1970-1972. He was a star running back on the 1971 championship team. He went on to be a two-time All-Scholastic at North Quincy High School, where he led the Red Raiders to the 1975 Division 1 Super Bowl. He went on to rewrite the record books at NCAA Division 1 Holy Cross. A 4-year starter at running back for the Crusaders he helped lead Holy Cross to back-to-back victories over Boston College in 1977 and 1978. After college, he went on to play one season with the NFL's New York Jets in 1980.

Hall of Famer Christine (Tierney) Burke was a coach for the Apaches cheerleading program for 23 seasons from 1989-2011. During that time she doubled as head coach of North Quincy High School cheering for 11 seasons. Christine was a true pioneer in her craft. She introduced the City of Quincy to the sport of competitive cheerleading. In her tenure with the Apaches she won 7 QYFL cheer titles, 13 New England Regional titles, 15-time UCA-Camp champions, 10 Florida Citrus Bowl appearances and 3 national titles.

OPPOSING FORCES

When engaging in strength training, it is very important to keep opposing muscles in balance. The fact is that each muscle group has an opposing muscle group that works with it. The muscle (or muscle group) that contracts and gets shorter is known as the "agonist," while the opposing muscle (or group) lengthens and is called the "antagonist." For instance, when biceps curls are performed, the biceps are the agonist, while the triceps are the antagonist. When a triceps press is performed, roles reverse, as the triceps become the agonist and the biceps become the antagonist. If one muscle group becomes significantly stronger than the other, the imbalance can disrupt the joint's range of motion, leading to injury.

Muscle imbalances are not a problem that only strikes the active and athletic; anyone can experience muscle imbalances that can lead to larger problems. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic treatment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We see infants, children, pregnant women, adults and seniors. We also accept most major insurance plans. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. It should be pointed out that imbalances within muscle groups can also cause problems. Chiropractors are trained to pinpoint and treat muscle imbalances.

Quincy Hockey, Hoop Teams In Tourney Openers This Week

Postseason action for three local high school teams started Tuesday when the Quincy High School boys hockey team travelled to Gallo Arena in Bourne to face off against Plymouth South at 8 p.m. in the opening round of the Div. 2 South Sectional tournament.

The Presidents (11-8-2) are seeded #14 in the bracket. Plymouth South (15-3-2) is the #3 seed. With a win, Quincy would take on the winner of the #6 Medway-#11 Scituate game on Saturday, March 3. Time and place to be announced.

The number one team in the Div. 2 South hockey tournament bracket is Southeastern (17-4-0).

The two other local teams seeing tournament action are the Quincy High School boys basketball and the Quincy High School girls basketball teams. Both squads are also on the road in opening round games this week in the Div. 1 South Sectional tournaments.

The Quincy boys (14-6 regular season record) are seeded #11 and travelled to 6-seed Marshfield to take on the Rams Wednesday, Feb. 28 at 6:30 p.m. at Marshfield High School. With a win the Presidents would advance to take on either Brockton (#3 seed) or Attleboro (#14 seed) on Friday, March 2.

Mansfield, with a regular season record of 20-2, is the top seed in Div. 1 South.

The Quincy girls (13-7 regular season record) are seeded #9 and took on #8-seed Bishop Feehan (14-6) Wednesday, Feb. 28 at 6:30 p.m. at Bishop Feehan in Attleboro. With a win Quincy could play top-seed Newton South (19-1 record) in the quarterfinals. Newton South plays the winner of the Brockton (#16 seed) vs. Durfee (#17) "play-in" game March 1 before the quarter-final match-up is determined.

For more information on the tournament, visit the MIAA website: www.miaa.net

QHS Boys Hockey Qualifies For 5th Straight Tourney

The Quincy High School hockey program qualified for its fifth straight state tournaments as well as its fifth straight MIAA gold academic achievement award with a perfect blend of seasoned veterans along with its sophomore and freshman class.

Together they have obtained success through strong leadership which has become common place at QHS.

Quincy's captains lead by example. Daniel O'Leary, Brendan Bailey and Griffin Lynch are all high honors and distinction students, getting it done in the classroom as well as on the ice. Leadership is not something they take lightly and know the pressures of having high standards passed down from previous captains.

The program is at a level where winning and succeeding in the classroom are directly linked as well as expected, producing league all-stars as well as league academic all-stars annually. The coaching staff, knowing that two thirds of its roster coming into the season had little to no varsity experience, has pushed this team harder than any team from its previous four years. Due to the teams strong leadership, Quincy's captains have everyone moving in the same direction.

Quincy's goal - like every other team qualifying for the state tournament - is to become state champs. Quincy coaching staff know they're ready due to its tough league as well as strong non league opponents, making all its games highly competitive. Quincy's goals moving forward are lofty, knowing that most its players are returning as well as projecting a significant amount of incoming freshmen to fill in and play immediately where needed.

Quincy will look to continue to rise by using some of its exclusive resources offered at QHS.

"Quincy players will work in the off season with a free certified personal trainer as well as having a built in network of off-season skating such as summer hockey leagues and a pre-season conditioning camp," said head coach Ted Walsh "Quincy High hockey is a program where a winning and successful culture has been developed through the type of young person that continues to walk through the door as a freshman and graduates as a highly successful young man, making any parent proud to say, my son played hockey at Quincy High School."

The Presidents played Plymouth South Tuesday night at Gallo Arena in Bourne in the first round of the Div. 2 South Sectional Tournament.

NQ Girls Basketball

Ends Season On Winning Note

The North Quincy girls basketball team ended their 2017-18 season on a winning note defeating the Hull Pirates on Senior Night, 46-38.

Starting a first five entirely comprised of seniors, the Red Raiders jumped out to a 13-8 after the first quarter. Captains led the way in the first eight minutes as Patriot League All-Star Jenn Butka had 4 points as did Jessie Caldwell. Jill Hallisey added 3 with Olivia Hussey chipping in with a pair.

North added to their lead in the second quarter with Caldwell netting 4 more points while Butka and Celia Hussey added two points each. Sophomore Amanda Hellmuth came off the bench and hit a three point shot from the wing to put the hosts up 24-16 at the half. The senior group played the entire third quarter with Caldwell adding 6 more to her game and season high 14 points while Butka hit for 5.

Senior Maeve Keane also got into the action putting up 5 shots and playing tough defense. Olivia Hussey scored 4 in the fourth quarter to finish with 8 for the night. Junior center Maria Zraizaa added a pair with a nice move underneath.

Butka finished her night with 10 points giving her 292 points on the season, most in the Patriot League this season. Butka finished her career as he ninth leading scorer all-time. Caldwell finished the night with 16 rebounds to add to her team leading rebound total. The Red Raiders graduate six seniors.

Earlier in the week North traveled to Plymouth North for a make up game with the Eagles. North got off to a quick 3-0 lead on a jumper by freshman guard Lindsey Keenan and a Hallisey free throw. Amanda Egan then hit a three to ignite a 7-0 Eagle run.

However, the visitors stormed back as Caldwell hit two free throws, Samantha Smith hit a jump shot and Keenan a corner three to give North a 10-9 lead after one quarter. An Egan free throw tied the game at 10 but Caldwell and Keenan hit a free throw apiece to give North a 12-10 lead at the 4 minute mark. This is when the Red Raiders went ice cold and Egan heated up hitting three straight three pointers to boost the hosts to a 24-12 halftime lead.

The Red and Black continued their offensive struggles in the third quarter with a Smith three ball and a Celia Hussey hoop accounting for the Red Raider points. North woke up in the last quarter outscoring PN 16-12 to make the final score 48-34. Hellmuth found the range from beyond the arc draining two three pointers while Keenan remained a bright spot with a pull up jumper from the foul line and another hoop while Celia Hussey and Alexa Radzik contributed a basket each.

Keenan led the Red Raiders in scoring with 11 points while Hellmuth and Smith finished with 6 and 5 points respectively.

Q-NQ Girls Hockey Wins 5 Of Last 6 Games

The Quincy North Quincy girls hockey team finished the season strong winning three games in the final week of the season and five out of its last six games.

Junior Cassandra Davis continued her record setting pace netting a hat trick in each of the final three games. On the season Davis recorded five hat tricks to go along with one four-goal performance against Hingham. Against Brookline/Newton North Davis led the scoring with three goals and one assist in a 4-3 victory.

Senior captain and linemate Julie Whalen added the other goal to go along with an assist in the victory.

The trio of senior captain Carly McMorro, junior Meghan Greene, and senior Chynna Staco were big in this game as they were all season shutting down the other teams offense. Due to a lack of numbers the team settled into a three person rotation of McMorro, Greene, and Staco the second half of the season and the three were more than up for the task. The results showed on the ice where the teams goals against dropped as the season drew on. Meghan Mulhern continued to improve in her first year playing goalie with a solid effort letting in three goals.

Quincy then took on Weymouth and played one of its best games of the year getting a 9-2 victory. Whalen led the offensive charge with four goals on the night while adding an assist. Davis was at it again getting another hat trick while adding three assists. The other goals were scored by Greene and sophomore Brigid Flynn.

Senior center Nora McLaughlin continued her excellent play anchoring the second line and playing great two way hockey. Sophomore Tara McLeary, who was among a group of girls that started playing hockey for the first time when the season began, played a regular shift on right wing and did a great job clearing pucks and breaking up opposing players.

In the finale Quincy took on Dedham, who they lost to 8-3 in the second game of the season, and came away with a 4-2 victory. Davis didn't disappoint in this one recording another hat trick to go along with an assist, while linemate Whalen chipped in with a goal and an assist. Mulhern had her best game of the year in net shutting down a late Dedham surge.

Davis and Whalen finished the season number one and two in the Patriot League scoring race. Davis was at the top with 31 goals 20 assists for 51 points while Whalen was second with 25-19-44 totals. The duo also finish the season as number one and two on the QNQ all time scoring leader list.

Davis now sits as the program's all time leader in career points with 138 while Whalen finishes her amazing career for QNQ in second place with 130 career points.

On Monday, Feb. 19, at approximately 4:37 a.m., Officer Dwayne Goldman was dispatched to the area of Sea and Palmer Streets on a report of a one-car accident into a utility pole. Officers Mike Reilly and Eugene Smith were dispatched to assist.

While en route, Communications stated they received a call from the owner of the vehicle who claimed that his vehicle was just stolen.

Upon arrival, Officer Goldman observed a vehicle with heavy damage into a utility pole on Sea Street in front of the public library. The vehicle was still running, unoccupied and the airbag was still intact. While Officer Goldman checked the area for the driver, Officers Reilly and Smith were dispatched to Sea Street at Kilby Street to meet the owner of the vehicle. Kilby Street is less than a half mile north of the accident scene.

Meanwhile, Officer Goldman made note of shoeprints in the snow that were just outside of the driver's side door and were leading away from the vehicle. There were only a few shoeprints due to melting snow so there was no trail to follow. The officer believed the shoeprint came from a work boot. There was no key fob in the vehicle, so the officer searched the area and located it in the middle of Sea Street.

Officers Reilly and Smith located the owner, who did not have any visible injuries and claimed that he wasn't operating the vehicle, but that it had been stolen out of the driveway of his girlfriend's house on Rhoda Street. According to the owner, he was warming the car up and left the key fob in the cup holder when he went back into the house. He heard the vehicle drive away so he ran after it from Rhoda Street to Sea Street and Kilby Street. That distance is about 3/4 of a mile.

Officer Smith gave the owner a ride to the accident scene to be interviewed further. Officer Goldman detected the odor of an alcohol emitting from the owner's breath. When confronted about the possibility of fleeing the scene of the accident, the owner denied that he was the driver, was scared or that he was intoxicated. The officer looked down at the owner's footwear and observed that he was wearing a pair of work boots. He was asked to lift his boot to show the sole print, which he did. The size and pattern on the bottom of the owner's boot matched the pattern that had been left in the snow. When told this, the owner became silent, then became irritated and said, "This is bull@#$%. I feel like I'm being interrogated."

During the interview, Communications informed the officers the owner had an active warrant for his arrest. He was placed in handcuffs and transported to the station for booking.

Based on the available evidence, Officer Goldman charged the 20-year-old Bridgewater resident with marked lanes violation, leaving the scene of a property damage accident and operating negligently to endanger.

Nice Work!

JURY DUTY SCAM: There have been isolated cases across the country where individuals get a call from an alleged Sheriff's office or Police Department claiming that

You failed to appear in court (rarely is the court named) and then there are different twists the scammer will use;

He/she may say that they need your personal information so the court can cancel your arrest warrant.

He/she may say that in order to reschedule you for another jury duty date, they will need your personal information.

He/she may say that you are to pay a fine to avoid arrest and to go to Wal-mart or similar type store to get a money order or green dot card and send it to a specific address or read the numbers back to them on the green dot card.

If this was legitimate, these agencies would already have your personal information, so just hang up. You won't even be able to confirm with a court since the scammer didn't say. It could be a court on the state or federal level. Be sure to ask yourself if you even received a letter in the mail informing you that you had jury duty coming up.

Most citizens would remember getting the letter since it is formal and even though you are given a date to appear, you are given the opportunity to change the date to accommodate your schedule.

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

I have a code reader to try to take care of my aging fleet of four vehicles. The code reader is okay, but I was thinking I should get something a bit more sophisticated that can actually read data as the car is running and anti-lock brake codes. I don't really want to spend more than $300. Do you have any suggestions?

Professional scan tools can run as little as $1,000 to nearly $10,000. You can spend quite a bit less for a DIY'r tool, but data will be limited. I have had pretty good luck with some mobile phone units which can be purchased for less than $100 but they don't all read fault codes for anti-lock brake and airbag systems. One unit that I have been testing is from Harbor Freight; the model is Zurich ZR-13. In addition to basic scan tool functions, this unit reads monitor readiness for inspection, ABS and SRS codes and even has repair tips built into the scanner. The cost is less than $200 and so far, has done everything I have asked it to do.

I recently heard that Jeep put a 700-horsepower engine in a Grand Cherokee. I have two questions: why would anyone want this kind of power in an SUV and have you driven one? I have to imagine that this vehicle would be like a thoroughbred horse – fast but difficult to control.

The Jeep is the Grand Cherokee Trackhawk and it uses the same 707 horsepower engine as Dodge Hellcat. People like performance vehicles and it takes a special buyer to want a $88,000 SUV that hits 60 miles per hour in 3.5 seconds and gets 11 miles per gallon in the city and 17 MPG on the highway. Surprisingly the Trackhawk is very easy to drive, except for a substantial exhaust rumble and a whine from the supercharger it feels like any other V-8 Jeep. Of course, that all changes when you step on the accelerator and then it feels like a high-performance sports car. Look for a video of my road-test of the Trackhawk on aaa.com.

It seems to me that I'm seeing more and more cars with only one headlight on, including my car. What is going on? Headlights have lasted for years in my previous cars?

Today a standard headlight normally lasts five years or so, but that is not the case with some replacement bulbs. Considering the average age of cars on the road is approaching 12 years, most have had at least one headlight replacement. The issue to me is some aftermarket premium bulbs (that are brighter) don't last more than a couple of years. With my own cars I typically turn all of the lights on once per month just to test all the bulbs. It has been my experience that one out of four cars have a bulb out.

When I turn my heat on in my car the smell is terrible. This is not a mold smell but much worse. What should I do?

The first place to start is to look is your vehicle has a cabin air filter, if it does take it out and change it if it is dirty. I will let you know that a neighbor of mine had a car with a foul odor and when I checked the cabin air filter there was a dead mouse on top of it. A new filter and plenty of Lysol solved the problem.

I have a Chevrolet pickup truck and it has an engine problem. My Chevy truck has the 5.3 liter small block V-8 and it is burning oil. I have had a few things checked including the PCV system and an oil consumption test and now the truck is using one quart of oil in 1,000 miles. The repair is covered under warranty but my real question is GM has been building small block V-8 engines since before I was alive. Why can't they get it right?

I have to agree with you that after so many years you would think General Motors could build this engine so it doesn't burn oil. The repair will most likely be replacing the piston and rings to solve the problem.

I enjoy your weekly automotive column and I now have a question. This winter I still see Dry-Gas for sale at gas stations and stores. With the alcohol content of gasoline these days, is the use of "dry gas" really necessary?

The alcohol in gasoline is ethanol. The alcohol found in gas-line antifreeze is usually methanol or isopropyl alcohol. Isopropyl alcohol binds with the water that can end up in tank and then mixes with the fuel so it can be burned during normal combustion. Ethanol by nature will do the same thing but the problem is over time it will separate from the gasoline causing problems. This is far less of a problem with sealed fuel systems used in today's cars but may be a problem with an open gas can used for yard work. My suggestion is to always keep at least one-half a tank of fuel in cold weather and only use gas line anti-freeze if you think somehow moisture got in the fuel tank.

I recently looked at a car for sale with a salvage title it was described as "storm-damage." What is your opinion about buying a car with a salvage title from looking at the picture there doesn't look like anything more than hailstone dents?

Be very careful buying a car with a salvage title. Let's face it the insurance company wouldn't have totaled the car if there were a few dents. My guess is this car could have come from one of the states that got flooded during the hurricanes. Unless this car is a very good deal and you are extremely handy I would look for another vehicle.

I remember seeing this question a few years back but wonder if as we approach the era of self-driving cars, do you think there is still a future in the auto repair business? My grandson and his cousin love tinkering with my old cars and are considering going into this field after high school.

I certainly believe there is a bright future for the automotive repair business. Today, people are keeping their cars longer than ever and cars are getting more complicated. The old days of fixing just mechanical items are gone. Today almost every aspect of a car has computer controls. With self-driving cars, technicians will need to be as much a mechanic as computer and network repair. I was at Quinsigamond Community College recently and it was agreed by industry professionals that today's students are future technicians of tomorrow and these technicians are absolutely necessary.

I'm looking for a small car that is easy to drive, gets good mileage and the hardest part is roomy for all of my craft and antique projects. I have looked at the Kia Soul, a little too big and the Chevy Spark, a little too small. Any ideas?

One car that you should be looking at is the Honda FIT. The FIT is small, easy to drive and park and during my road test was returning over 40 MPG. Cargo area rivals a mid-sized SUV with over 50 cubic feet of storage with the rear seats folded.

For the first time ever we have stretched our budget and purchased a new Ford F-150 pick-up truck. Now that we have the truck my husband isn't happy with the fuel economy. What he is does is shift into neutral whenever there is an opportunity to coast, claiming it saves on gas. This is his standard driving technique and he will shift into neutral when there are no major intersections or steep hills. Does this make any sense and are we really saving any gas? I believe I have seen you mention this is not a good idea in past columns.

In trucker talk this is referred to as a "Georgia Overdrive" – shifting into neutral going downhill which with a tractor trailer may allow for better mileage since the engine is not slowing the truck. Although you are driving a truck, it is not a tractor trailer. In my opinion any slight savings in fuel economy would be lost in wear and tear to the transmission. Oddly, some states have laws that prohibit this practice. The laws that I have seen state: an operator moving on a down-grade may not coast with the gears or transmission of the vehicle in neutral.

My 12-year-old Jeep sometimes will stay in third gear and engine light will come on. When this happens I can't shift up or down. If I stop and restart the car everything will be fine. Any idea why this happens? When the light is off everything is fine and the truck runs great.

The transmission is going into "limp-in" mode. The common problem with this transmission is solenoid failure. A transmission shop should be able to help diagnose the problem and provide you with an estimate for the repair.

I have a new Hyundai Elantra and the problem is the windshield wipers. They just don't do a good job clearing the windshield. We replaced the original wiper blades on Dec. 13 and during a recent heavy rainstorm there was a huge streak on the driver's side just where I look through the windshield. The passenger side was better and the wipers seem to work fine in the snow. We will have our Hyundai dealer look at the car again but do you know if there are any recall or notices about this issue?

I have not heard of any problems with this model but it is certainly possible that the wiper arms or the angle of the blade is part of the problem. I recently rented a 2017 car with fairly low miles and the wipers were terrible. It appeared that the wiper arm was damaged, perhaps in a car wash or when cleaning the windshield. I would have the dealer concentrate on the blades and arms and also fully clean the windshield of any road grime cause or wax buildup. If that doesn't solve the problem all that is left is the windshield.

I lost the remote for my car and I cannot find it anywhere. This is a pushbutton start car so I have been told it will be very expensive for a new keyfob/remote. I am using my spare key to operate the car for the time being, and wondering if this information is correct. The quote I got was about the same for the last vacation I went on. What information can you give me?

Keys on today's cars are getting more and more expensive all the time. In fact in some cases I have seen keys/fobs costing $1,000 or more. In some cases when the master key is lost the car's computer will need to be replaced when new keys are programmed. I was recently driving a BMW 740e and in addition to the very expensive keyfob there was a digital keyfob with a touch screen display. On the display there were various screens that would give the driver information about the car, including preconditioning the car before driving, if the car was locked, fuel level. The fob recharges using a mini USB plug or in some cases inductively. I can't imagine how much this fob could cost to replace. To me this fob is a bit of technology run amuck and is the answer to a question no one has asked.

JOHN PAUL

I went down to my Florida home where we keep a Saturn in the carport with a cover over the car. This year we had three problems. The battery was completely dead, fuel started leaking under the car when we tried to jump start it and there was mold on the steering wheel. We are getting the car fixed and cleaned, but why did all this happen?

Here in the Northeast batteries last on average 55 months. In Florida heat, the average life of a battery is two to three years. More than likely the battery was at the end of its useful life. The fuel leak and the mold have similar sources, moisture and depending on the car cover it may be partially to blame. If the car cover is going all the way to the ground it may be trapping moisture under the car causing rust on the fuel lines and dampness throughout the car. When you tried to jumpstart the car, the fuel pump turned on and fuel leaked through the rust gas line. The heat, dampness and lack of sunlight caused the mold on the inside of the car. Once you get the car back, open all the windows and let the sun dry up the mold. Don't use bleach-based products instead use vinegar to wipe all the surfaces down. When cleaning the interior, it is also advisable to wear a respirator mask. You might also consider a solar power ventilation fan that mounts in one of the windows that keep air moving.

I have a 2016 Subaru with 40,000 miles on it and I have been told it is using one quart of oil every 3,000 miles. The dealership where I purchased the car told me this is normal and also suggested I change the oil every 3,000 miles rather than 6,000 as recommended in the vehicle owner's manual. To me this is unacceptable. What do you think?

An engine, even a new engine with low miles, can use some oil. In fact, using a quart of oil in 3,000 miles is certainly within industry standards of any vehicle. I would follow the standard oil change recommendation using the factory recommended oil and add as necessary. I would also keep a very specific log of when the oil is changed and when you need to add oil. If for some reason the oil consumption gets worse, you can go back to Subaru with documentation of a problem and ask for a solution.

I have a 2008 Buick Lucerne in need of a fuel pump. The garage mechanic is having difficulty finding the correct part. I accessed eBay and there seems to be several available. He has told me that one problem is that Buick only made the Lucerne for a few years and aftermarket parts are difficult to locate. I had a similar problem in the past where he had difficulty finding parts for the car. It is a nice car and has only about 60,000 miles. What is your understanding about aftermarket parts for discontinued models?

It is great when you can use factory parts, but that isn't always practical or cost-effective depending on the car. Using aftermarket parts is perfectly acceptable solution. In fact, in many cases, the aftermarket replacement part is the same company that made the original part.

I have a 2009 Toyota Camry and the right side strut is leaking severely. My question is: can I replace it with new coil spring and strut leaving the left one on for another month or so?

This is not the ideal situation but having one new strut and spring and one older strut and spring is better and safer than one old strut and one completely worn out strut. When you have the money and time to replace the second strut have the wheels aligned to prevent additional tire wear.

4. All Special Permits for a use or structure in the Flood Plain Overlay District

8.5.8 Special Permit and Site Plan Approval Criteria.

The Planning Board shall not approve a special permit or site plan unless it finds that all of the following additional criteria are met:

1. The Planning Board has adopted the Quincy Center District Design Guidelines, dated November 2005 and the Quincy Center District Urban Revitalization and Redevelopment Plan, dated May 7, 2007, both as may be amended, which guidelines shall be used in implementing this subsection, until such time - if ever - the board devises specifically tailored guidelines for this district. Those guidelines shall be provided to every permit applicant seeking a permit or site plan approval within the Wollaston Center District, who shall be required to show compliance with these guidelines as part of any application. The Planning Board shall include as a part of any permit decision a statement addressing compliance issues with these guidelines.
2. For mixed-use projects in the Wollaston Center District, the applicant must establish that the proposed uses are to be located with structure(s) in a manner that promotes ease of use and access, and consistency with the surrounding uses/architecture; e.g., retail uses should front onto a street, new housing shall be consistent with any adjacent existing residential use in terms of density, style of architecture, etc.
3. Any development within the Wollaston Center District should be pedestrian friendly, as the development of the Wollaston Center District will be enhanced to the extent such development involves limited vehicular access; and, should be consonant with the development goals for the district. Indicators of compliance with this criterion include - a. Ground floors, particularly where they have public streets, public parks, and publicly accessible pathways, consist of spaces that are actively inhabited by people, such as retail stores, consumer service businesses and restaurants, general office, educational or residential uses. Where a mix of activities are accommodated in a building, the more active uses are encouraged facing public streets, parks and pathways.
 - b. Covered parking on the lower floors of a building and on-grade open parking, shall be discouraged where the parking faces a public street, public park, or publicly accessible pathways.
 - c. Ground floors should be generally 25-50% transparent. The greatest amounts of glass would be expected for retail uses with lesser amounts for office, institutional or residential use.
 - d. Entries to buildings shall be located so as to ensure safe pedestrian movement across streets, encourage walking as a preferred mode of travel within the city and to encourage the use of public transit for employment and other trips. Relating building entries as directly as possible to crosswalks and to pathways that lead to bus stops and transit stations is encouraged; builds shall be located and developed to encourage pedestrian pathways over the lot and through the District.
4. Where appropriate, housing shall be a component of any large, commercial development
5. The common areas both internal and external shall, where appropriate, be accessible to the pedestrian public. Restrictions on this access can be established by the applicant or its successor in interest.
6. The location, dimensional and aesthetic features of the proposed development shall not be detrimental to the architectural character of the downtown and, if in the Wollaston Center District, with the character of Wollaston Center; to the improvement of traffic access and circulation; and to the creation of active pedestrian and street life within the District.
7. There will be no nuisance or serious hazard to vehicles or pedestrians.
8. Adequate and appropriate facilities (including, but not limited to parking and loading) will be provided for the proper operation of the proposed use. Said facilities shall be located and designed so as to be compatible with neighboring developments.
9. Historical buildings and places within the Quincy Historical District are to be respected and protected. Special consideration shall be given to the preservation of historical buildings and places within the Wollaston Center District, where applicable.

Richard A. Manupelli, Sr., 78

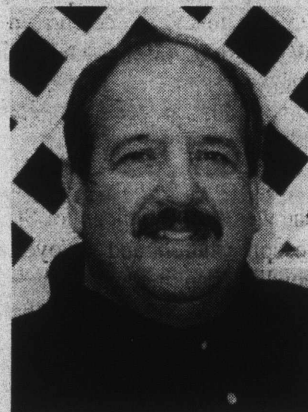

A funeral Mass for Richard A. Manupelli, Sr., age 78, of Quincy, formerly of Boston's West End, was celebrated Feb. 24 in St. Francis of Assisi Church, Braintree.

Mr. Manupelli died peacefully Feb. 20 at the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center in Boston.

He was born in Boston's West End to the late Anthony Manupelli and Rose (Giordano) Baranoff. He was raised and educated in the West End and had lived in Quincy for sixty years.

Mr. Manupelli was employed as a meat cutter for the Stop & Shop Supermarket Company. He had over thirty years of service and worked at various locations throughout his career.

Mr. Manupelli loved singing and karaoke. He was well known for entertaining for senior citizens groups and at many local nursing homes. He was also known for his quick wit and sense of humor.

RICHARD A. MANUPELLI, Sr.

He looked forward to spending his summers at his cottage in Shapleigh, Maine, and his winter vacations in Cancun, Mexico.

His greatest passion was his family. Mr. Manupelli was dedicated to his wife, children, and especially to his cherished grandchildren, actively supporting all their many activities and accomplishments and providing special nicknames for the kids. He was also an excellent cook and enjoyed entertaining family and friends.

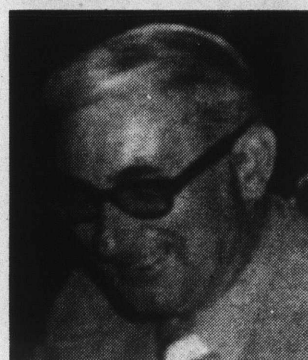

Beloved husband for fifty-five years of Marie M. (Messina) Manupelli. Devoted father of Cynthia Moore and her husband Scott of Braintree, Richard A. Manupelli, Jr. and his wife April of Hanover, Robert W. Manupelli and his wife Lisa of Billerica. Loving grandfather of Scott and Joseph Moore, Gabrielle, Anthony, Nicholas, Noah, and Logan Manupelli. Brother of Anthony Manupelli and his wife Rachel of Boston, the late George Manupelli and his wife Irene Bosworth of Weymouth. He is also survived by several nieces and nephews.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 300 5th Avenue, Waltham, MA 02451.

Robert E. Naser

that is now ubiquitous in the aluminum (vinyl) siding industry. In the late 1960s, Mr. Naser's home improvement business evolved and, under quite fortuitous circumstances, his career turned towards commercial real estate development, a career in which he remained active until his death. During this time, Mr. Naser built dozens of properties for many national companies such as John Hancock, Firestone, Goodyear as well as developing several residential condominium projects in Florida. Mr. Naser was also a founding director of the Lincoln Trust Company of Hingham in 1965 until the company's sale in 1987.

Later in his life, Mr. Naser was an active philanthropist, supporting many organizations dedicated to the relief of human suffering around the world. In the process, Mr. Naser was privileged to have been befriended by such great humanitarians as President Jimmy Carter and the Rev. Desmond Tutu. Mr. Naser's passion for giving also focused on remembering the great sacrifices of our military personnel, most notably through his position as vice chair of the U.S. Navy Memorial Foundation and his involvement with the Disabled American Veterans.

Mr. Naser was an active member in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts (Est. AD1638), the Quincy Elks Lodge 943, Milton American Legion Post 114 among other social and charitable organizations.

While Mr. Naser's professional and philanthropic activities are quite notable, by his own account his greatest legacy is the vast and loving network of family and friends he leaves behind, all of whom he dearly loved and who dearly loved him. Mr. Naser is predeceased by his wife of over 50 years Theresa "Terry" (Gillis), sisters Shirley Clayton and Sally George. He is survived by his Brother Edwin "Ted" Naser, children Elizabeth A. Naser of Bedford, NH, Carole-Terese Naser of Gordonsville, VA, Anne C. Naser (husband Edward Lainsbury) of Mobile, AL, Robert D. Naser (wife Camille) of Dedham and William G. Naser (wife Barbara) of Natick, grandchildren Colburn Daniels, Alexander Daniels, Timothy Naser, Matthew Naser, Molly Naser, Oliver Naser, Evan Naser, Sally Naser and great-granddaughter Lucy Daniels and many nieces and nephews. He also leaves his companion Ann Rosenberg of Goffstown, N.H.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

A remembrance and celebration of Mr. Naser's life will be held at a time and place yet to be determined.

Memorial donations may be made to the Sally Naser Charitable Foundation, Inc., PO Box 1270, Dedham, MA 02027, in support of pediatric cancer research.

At the request of the family, funeral services and interment with Military Honors at Mount Wollaston Cemetery were private.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 27-year-old Norwood man has been indicted on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of a 32-year-old Quincy man in October.

A Norfolk County grand jury on Feb. 21 indicted Joseph Cotto-Berio, age 27, of Washington Street in Norwood, on charges of involuntary manslaughter, intimidation of a witness, attempt to suborn perjury, and contempt, according to David Traub, a spokesman for Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey.

Cotto-Berio pleaded not guilty to those charges Feb. 21 in Norfolk Superior Court and was held on $20,000 cash bail set by Judge Paul Wilson.

Cotto-Berio had previously pleaded not guilty in district court to charges of assault and battery causing serious bodily injury.

Cotto-Berio is due back in Superior Court April 11 for a pre-trial hearing.

Brian Bubanas, age 32, was temporarily residing with acquaintances in an apartment on Utica Street in Quincy in late October of last year. The indictment alleges that Cotto-Berio assaulted Bubanas in the apartment and medical assistance was summonsed some hours later when Bubanas did not regain consciousness. He was transported to a Quincy Medical Center but did not survive his injuries.

The incident began an investigation by State and Quincy Police detectives, including an autopsy by the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner to determine the cause and manner of Bubanas' death.

Subsequent to the original assault charge, and during the grand jury investigation into the matter, Cotto-Berio was additionally charged with intimidation of a witness on Jan. 11. He had entered a plea of not guilty on that matter as well and was subject to $10,000 cash bail on the district court matters.

Cotto-Berio was taken into custody without incident at an apartment where he was staying on Washington Street in Norwood by State Police detectives from the Norfolk District Attorney's Detective Unit with the assistance of Norwood Police.

Peak Physical Therapy Sponsor Quincy School Community Partnership

Peak Physical Therapy & Sports Performance, a South Shore practice specializing in programs that provide comprehensive treatment in orthopedic, spine and sports medicine specialties, announces its sponsorship of the Quincy School Community Partnership.

The partnership is a collaboration between Quincy Public Schools and the city's business community. Its mission is to provide multiple avenues for local businesses to become involved in the Quincy Public School system via financial contributions, training and internships.

"We're delighted to participate in this outstanding partnership; it is an investment in the academic and social success of Quincy students and one we are proud to make," said Eric Edelman, PT, owner of Peak Physical Therapy & Sports Performance.

March Is American Red Cross Month

During Red Cross Month in March, the American Red Cross encourages eligible donors to join in its life-saving mission by giving blood.

The Red Cross depends on blood donor heroes across the nation to collect enough blood to meet the needs of patients at approximately 2,600 hospitals nationwide. Donors of all blood types, especially type O, are needed to help those rely on blood products.

TERMS OF SALE:

The mortgaged premises is to be sold subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, covenants, conditions, reservations and agreements of record, to the extent that same are in force and applicable, building and zoning laws, unpaid taxes, tax titles, water bills, municipal liens and assessments, rights of tenants and parties in possession, existing encumbrances, and all other claims in the nature of liens, now existing or hereafter arising, having priority over the Mortgage, if any there be. The mortgaged premises will also be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if any there be.

A deposit of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND AND 00/100 DOLLARS ($25,000.00) shall be required to be paid to the Mortgagee by certified check or bank cashier's check (cash will not be accepted) at the time and place of the public auction foreclosure sale of the mortgaged premises which deposit shall be increased by the highest bidder to an amount equal to five percent (5%) of the highest bid and paid to the Mortgagee within seven (7) calendar days from the date of the sale. The balance of the purchase price at the sale is to be paid to the Mortgagee by federal funds wire transfer such that it is actually received by the Mortgagee within thirty (30) calendar days from the date of the sale, with time being of the essence. The Mortgagee may, at its option, either sell the mortgaged premises to the second highest bidder at the sale of the mortgaged premises or assume the highest bid should the highest bidder fail to fulfill the highest bidder's obligations under the sales agreement to be entered into with the Mortgagee immediately after the sale. In the event that the highest bidder defaults under such sales agreement and the Mortgagee sells the mortgaged premises to the second highest bidder, the Mortgagee may, at its option, assume the second highest bid should the second highest bidder fail to fulfill its obligations under such sales agreement. No such assumption of the highest or second highest bid or sale of the mortgaged premises by the Mortgagee to such second highest bidder shall relieve the highest or second highest bidder, as applicable, from its obligations under such sales agreement nor operate as a waiver by the Mortgagee of its rights and remedies against the highest or second highest bidder. The description of the premises contained in said mortgage shall control in the event of an error in this publication.

The Mortgagee reserves the right to credit bid at the sale of the mortgaged premises and to postpone the sale by auctioneer's public proclamation. The Mortgagee further reserves the right to change terms of sale at the sale or to add additional terms and to qualify some or all bidders.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You could have some problems with doubters who don't share your enthusiasm for that new project you're supporting. But use the facts to win them over to your side.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Someone is impressed by how you managed to get your case to the right people, despite attempts to keep you on the outside looking in. Expect to hear more about this.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Good for you — your gift for seeing both sides of a dispute helps cool down a potentially explosive workplace situation. Some family-related tensions also begin to ease.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your determination to prove yourself is put to the test by midweek. Counting all the positive factors you have going for you will help you get over your self-doubt. Good luck.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Several co-workers are still determined to resist coming over to your side. But don't let that stop you from presenting your proposal to the people who count. Stay the course.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might prefer to be taken on faith and not have to prove yourself. But the truth is, you need to offer more facts if you hope to persuade people to accept what you say.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family situation takes an unwelcome turn. While others might be looking around for answers, you'll soon sort it all out logically, and the matter will be resolved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone might try to create doubt about your reliability for his or her own agenda. But your reputation and your colleagues' long-standing faith in you saves the day.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected change of plans forces you to come up with an alternative by the end of the week. Look for colleagues to offer valuable suggestions.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Nothing upsets the Goat as much as broken promises. But before you vent your anger, consider that this could ultimately prove to be a blessing in disguise.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An old workplace problem you thought you had solved for good resurfaces. But this time, co-workers will take a more active role in helping you deal with it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful not to be misled by a negative reaction to one of your more important projects. If you believe in it, then it has worth and is, therefore, worth staying with.

BORN THIS WEEK: Everyone appreciates your gift for finding beauty, even where it seems least likely to exist.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- "Doctor Dolittle" was originally a 1967 film with Rex Harrison. Harrison was fresh off his Oscar win for "My Fair Lady" (1965), and "Dr. Dolittle," which also starred Samantha Egger and Anthony Newley, was a dismal flop. It cost $17 million and made only $9 million. 20th Century Fox tried again in 1998 with Eddie Murphy, and the sequel grossed $294 million. Another sequel in 2001, also with Murphy, grossed $176 million. Now, Universal Studios has acquired the rights and are making "Voyage of Dr. Doolittle" with Robert Downey Jr. in the title role.

Downey's been Tony Stark, aka "Iron Man," since 2008 and has completed "The Avengers: Infinity War," due in May, and the two-part untitled "Avengers" sequel, being released in 2019 and 2020. Joining Downey in live-action roles are Tom Holland (his "Spider-Man" co-star) and Antonio Banderas (as a pirate), while Emma Thompson, Selena Gomez and Ralph Fiennes will lend their voices to talking animals. It's set for an April 2019 release.

Jim Carrey says he's deleting his Facebook account, as well as dumping his Facebook stock, because it profited from the "Russian interference in our election," and he's urging others to do the same. He added, "For a long time America enjoyed a geographical advantage in the world, with oceans on both sides of us, and now social media has created a cyber-bridge over which those who do not have our best interest in mind can cross, and we are allowing it. No wall is going to protect us from that, and this easy access has to be more responsibly handled."

The producers of the hit HBO series "Game of Thrones," now in its final season, have signed to create "Star Wars" films for Disney that will be separate from the current franchise, as well as a "Star Wars" TV series, which we knew had to happen sooner or later.

Armie Hammer, so good in "Call Me by Your Name," can console himself for not getting an Oscar nomination with the two films he's just completed. The first is "Hotel Mumbai," with two-time Oscar nominee Dev Patel (for "Slumdog Millionaire" in 2008 and "Lion" in 2016). The second is "On the Basis of Sex," a drama about Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, with Felicity Jones (Oscar nominee for "The Theory of Everything" in 2014) as Ruth, and Armie as her husband, Martin, with help from Justin Theroux, Kathy Bates and Sam Waterston. Call Hammer by any name, so long as it's not "The Lone Ranger," his 2013 flop with Johnny Depp!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Indian Toy Cradle

Many American Indian tribes almost lost their culture by the 1960s because of 19th- and early 20th-century U.S. government rules. American Indians could be removed from their land, resettled on reservations and even have their children sent to special boarding schools to be taught a new way of life. The children were punished if they continued to practice their ceremonies or speak their native language. Children from the Potawatomi tribe went to either a boys' or girls' boarding school, where they learned English and a trade. The American Indian Religious Freedom Act passed in the 1970s led to the end of the boarding schools and the beginning of efforts to bring back the Indian culture.

A recent auction sold a toy Indian cradle decorated with beads and silver buttons, but holding a European porcelain-headed doll. It was made by Millie R. Hall, who lived at a Potawatomi boarding school in 1900, an important historic source for a handmade doll. It sold for $11,070.

Q: I'd like to know the value of a violin that is about 100 years old. The inscription inside reads "Copy of Antonius Stradivarius, made in Czechoslovakia." What is it worth?

A: Antonio Stradivari (1644-1737) made violins, violas, cellos and other stringed instruments at his workshop in Cremona, Italy. Fewer than 600 of the original Stradivarius violins still are in existence, and they sell for several million dollars each.

Thousands of copies have been made and don't sell for high prices. Your violin was made after 1918, when Czechoslovakia was created. Recently, a violin like yours that included the case sold for $57.

Q: I have a brass tea set that has sat unused for many years. Should I polish it or leave the natural patina?

A: You should polish your brass tea set with a commercial brass polish. If it's heavily tarnished or corroded, take it to a professional. Some brass has been lacquered to prevent tarnish and should not be polished. Polishing damages the lacquer. If the lacquer is peeling, you should go to a professional restorer.

CURRENT PRICES

Button, animal rescue league, Boston, Mass., dog photo, tin lithograph, blue and gold, pinback, 1930s, 1-inch diameter, $25. Musical instrument, temple drum, ritual, wood with yak skin, double leather, symbols, forged nails, Tibet, c. 1905, 7 x 23 inches, $450. Button, plique-a-jour enamel glass, green and white, silver dome frame, mistletoe design, openwork, 1800s, 1 1/2-inch diameter, $2,525.

TIP: Nineteenth-century Indian blankets generally are not restored by museums. They are stabilized, mounted on a backing fabric to prevent further damage, and hung or framed. It is thought that even the dirt may be wanted in original state in the future.

* You might be surprised to learn that the White House had a telephone installed before indoor plumbing was.

* I have some bad news for lovers of the snooze button: Experts say that you're better off not using it. Researchers have found that the last few minutes of sleep are more beneficial if they're uninterrupted, so it's better to go ahead and set your alarm for 10 minutes later to begin with.

* A study of prison inmates' medical files revealed this interesting tidbit: The higher the levels of testosterone in a male inmate, the younger that inmate was when he was first arrested.

by Jo Ann Derson

* "The dishwasher in my new apartment smells bad. What should I do?" -- P.K. Check the bottom of the dishwasher for stuck food pieces and remove them if present, then add two cups of white vinegar to unit and run. When that cycle's done, quick-scrub any gunky spots on the inside with baking soda, and then add a cup to the bottom; re-run dishwasher once more.

* Is your place a mess? Here's a no-fail cure to get it gussied up: Invite friends over, and ask them to bring their significant other or people you mostly know. You'll be motivated to clean up rather than have them see your place a mess.

* If you hate bending over to scrub the tub, use a broom as a scrub brush. (Just make sure it's clean, or you'll end up with MORE dirt!) And while we're on the subject of brooms, clean yours regularly with soap and water, and trim off stray or fraying bristles to ensure a clean sweep.

* Too-tight flats? Put on a thick pair of socks and grab your hair dryer. Run the hot air over the tight spots while wearing the socks and shoes. Keep them on until they're cool and remove the socks. Problem solved!

* "An open bowl of rolled oats can absorb strong odors from other foods in your fridge. My roommate always puts a small bowl in there when she brings home funky leftovers. It works for us." -- R.E. in Massachusetts

Weather Rollercoaster: Beach Sun To Snow Showers

LAST WEEK'S WEATHER ran the gamut from record-breaking spring-like warmth to back-to-winter snow showers - all in 24 hours. On Wednesday, Feb. 21, a record 71 degrees was recorded at Boston's Logan International Airport. The warm sunshine was a perfect day to catch some rays, walk a dog or even wade into the water at Wollaston Beach.

ENJOYING A BREAK from their studies are nursing students Emily Winkler (left) of Squantum and Jacy Bessolo (right) of Boston who preferred to study outside at Wollaston Beach Feb. 21. The mercury climbed to 71 degrees setting a new high temperature record on that date. The previous mark was 63 degrees in 1906. A high-temperature record was also set on Tuesday, Feb. 20 when it reached 70 degrees. But the spring-time mini heat wave ended on Thursday, Feb. 22 as temperatures returned to more winter-like in the 30s with snow showers. At right: commuters dressed in winter coats and some toting umbrellas shield themselves from the snow in Quincy Center on Hancock Street near United First Parish Church.

Health Matters from Carney Hospital

What Are Our Gadgets Doing to Our Bodies?

From throbbing thumbs to aching necks, Americans are dealing with a variety of ailments that may result from our love affair with electronic gadgets. According to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, frequent computer use may be related to nerve, muscle, tendon and ligament damage in the hands and wrists, as well as the back, neck and shoulders. The proliferation of laptops, tablets, smartphones, portable electronic games and other mobile devices has only added to the potential strain.

Some Common Conditions

Overuse, poor posture and less-than-ideal work stations may contribute to some of these conditions.

- Wrist and hand pain. The repetitive motions involved with typing and moving a mouse may result in tendonitis (inflamed tendons) or bursitis (inflammation of the sacs of cushioning fluid). There is some controversy over whether carpal tunnel syndrome is related to repetitive stress, but it may be possible. Carpal tunnel syndrome occurs when thickened, irritated tendons at the base of the hand press on a nerve. Symptoms may include tingling, numbness and sharp pains through the wrist and up the arm.
- De Quervain's tendinitis. Possibly caused by overuse (think constant text-messaging or game-playing), De Quervain's tendonitis occurs when tendons on the thumb side of the wrist become swollen or irritated. Pain at the base of the thumb can make it difficult to grasp objects.
- Back, shoulder and neck pain. Hours of hunching over a computer – especially if stressed or under a deadline – may result in sore and strained muscles.

"I see patients, regularly, who complain of wrist and hand pain caused by their daily use of their computer and smart phones," explains Carney Hospital Orthopedic Hand Surgeon Raghuveer Muppavarapu, MD. "Luckily, we offer a variety of treatment options depending on each patient's individual needs."

An Ounce of Prevention to Help Avoid Treatment

Here are a few tips to avoid letting your gadgets get the best of you.

- If you use a desktop computer, be sure your workstation is properly set up with the monitor and keyboard adjusted for your height and optimal viewing distance. Using a gel-filled or padded wrist support may help reduce strain on the wrists in some cases.
- If you plan to use a laptop for an extended period, you may want to consider plugging in an external keyboard so you can adjust the monitor to a more comfortable viewing position. The same applies to extended use of tablets.
- Practice good posture. Don't hunch your shoulders or cradle a phone in your neck while working.
- Take regular breaks. Get up and stretch or walk – if only for a minute or two – at least once every hour, and preferably every half hour.
- Avoid constant texting. If you have a long message to deliver, consider using your phone to call rather than text.

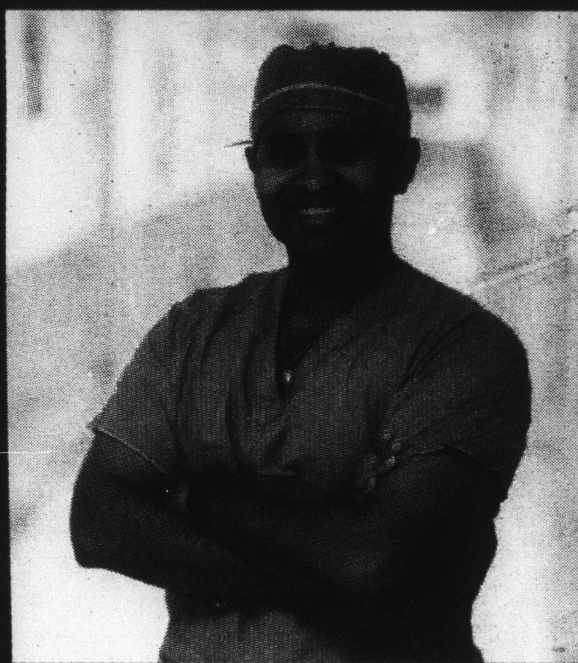

A Pound of Cure

If you do find that pain in your hand, wrist, arm or back and shoulders is affecting your quality of life or ability to work, talk to your doctor.

SUFFERING WITH WRIST OR HAND PAIN?

Raghuveer Muppavarapu, M.D. provides exceptional orthopedic care including a variety of hand and reconstructive surgeries to treat a wide range of conditions such as carpal and cubital tunnel; trigger finger; all fractures and injuries of the hand and wrist, including tendon and nerve injuries; De Quervain's tenosynovitis; and Dupuytren's contracture.

Storm Damages $8M In Infrastructure

- Thousands More In Personal Property Loss • Nor'Easter Batters Seawalls, Roads
- 500 Evacuated From Flooded Homes • Extra Trash Pick-Up In Hard-Hit Areas

LAST WEEK'S two-day nor'easter battered Quincy and its coastline including this section of Merrymount as waves from extreme high tides crashed over a boat and onto Chickatabot Road resulting in flooded streets and basements. The powerful storm packing hurricane-strength wind gusts and four-foot storm surges caused an estimated $8 million in damage to public infrastructure including $3.3 million to a two and a half mile section of seawall from Merrymount to Houghs Neck.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The powerful hurricane-like nor'easter that pummeled Quincy's coast and other sections of the city left behind an estimated $8 million in damage to public infrastructure namely seawalls and roads and thousands of dollars more in personal property, according to Mayor Thomas Koch.

Three to four-foot storm surges, hurricane-strength wind gusts and heavy rains March 2 and March 3 flooded much of the city's coastline and adjacent neighborhoods. Three astronomically high tides during the slow-moving storm flooded main roads into Squantum and Houghs Neck rendering the peninsula communities into virtual islands.

Some 500 residents – most of them from hard-hit Houghs Neck – were evacuated by first responders and five National Guard units using oversized military trucks that could navigate the storm water that in some cases reached six feet

Council Meeting On Storm Costs March 12

By SCOTT JACKSON

The City Council will hold a special meeting next week to discuss emergency appropriations to cover some of the damage to infrastructure incurred during the recent nor'easter that inundated portions of Houghs Neck and other coastal areas.

The special council meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 12. In addition, a community meeting for those affected by the storm will be held at 1 p.m.

Saturday in the Atherton Hough School.

Mayor Thomas Koch appeared before the council Monday night to provide an update on the city's response to the nor'easter of March 2 and 3, which caused at least $8 million in infrastructure damage. Koch also said he would be proposing the creation of a new director of emergency management in the budget for fiscal year 2019, which starts July 1.

The lion's share of the $8 million in damage is for sea wall repair. Koch said it would take $5.5 million to restore the sea walls to their previous condition. Necessary roadwork – for Sea Street, Rhoda Street, Post Island Road and Squantum's Dorchester Street – totals $1.4 million. Repairs to sidewalks, shoulders and guardrails are projected to cost another $800,000 and pump station and tide gate fixes will cost $300,000.

Boston Celtics CEO Wyc Grousbeck Keynote Speaker

Wyc Grousbeck, CEO and managing partner of the Boston Celtics, will be the keynote speaker at the Quincy Chamber's 2018 Annual Meeting and Business Showcase on Tuesday, March 27th.

The event will be held at Granite Links, located at 100 Quarry Hill Dr. in Quincy from 4 to 8 p.m.

Grousbeck named his ownership group Banner 17 LLC, planning from the outset to recapture the franchise's past glory. In 2008, they delivered banner #17 by defeating the LA Lakers. After a second rebuild, the Celtics are now in search of banner #18.

At the annual meeting, Grousbeck will explain what it takes to remake, rebuild and rebrand an icon in the 21st century. He will also talk about why philanthropy and giving back is so important in his life.

The cost to attend is $50 for Chamber members and $70 for non-members.

Showcase booths are available for members for $250. There are also table, cocktail and showcase sponsorship opportunities available.

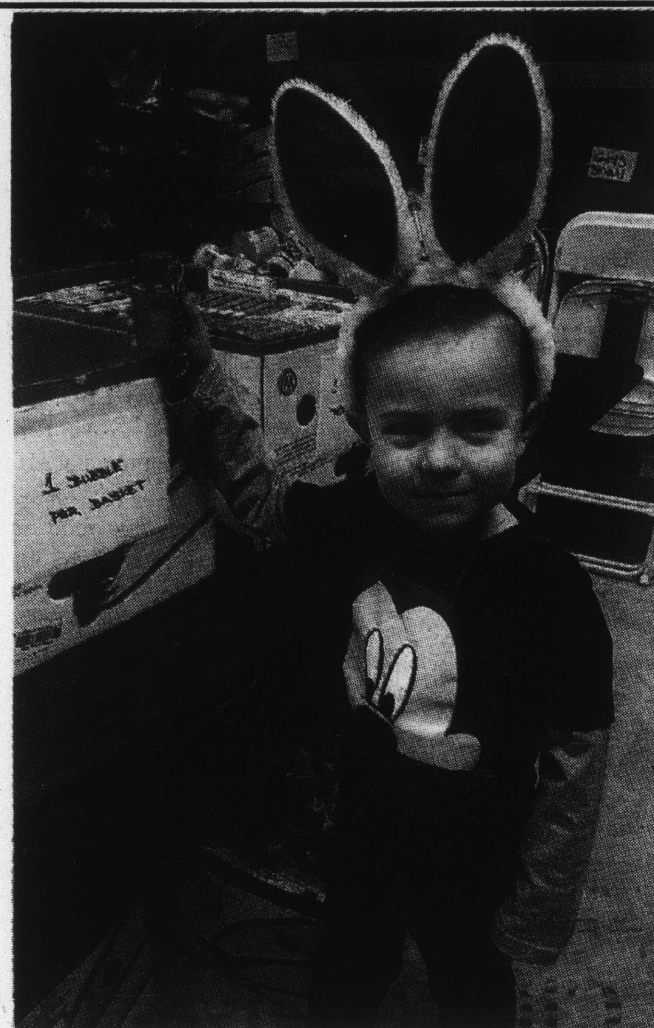

TD Bank is the presenting sponsor and other sponsors to date include: Granite Links, City of Boston Credit Union, Baker Braverman & Barbadoro PC, Marina Bay Management Services, The Shiner Group, The Heritage Companies, Boston Property Ventures, and Fast Signs.

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce continues to thank their corporate sponsors for continued support: State Street, Bank of Canton, Harvard Pilgrim, Patriot Ledger, Dependable Cleaners, Equitable Bank, National Fire Protection Association, Quincy Credit Union, Galvin Construction, Santander Bank, Webster Bank, Citizens Bank and Eastern Bank.

This year's annual meeting will also feature other speakers including Quincy Mayor Tom Koch. The Chamber will announce the winner of the first Bruce Wood Grant, honoring one of the Quincy Chamber's founders.

If your business or someone's business you know would like to be a part of the annual meeting, visit the Quincy Chamber's website www.TheQuincyChamber.com or call their office (617) 471-1700 to find out more information and register. The deadline is March 13th.

Events Celebrate

Women's History Month

The Park Department and the Thomas Crane Library are celebrating Women's History month with two fun events featuring Ruth Gordon, a famous film star, Broadway and TV actor, screen and playwright and lover of Quincy.

On Monday, March 12 at 7 p.m., the Thomas Crane Library will screen The Actress, a 1953 comedy drama written by Ruth Gordon about her life in Quincy in 1913 when she decides to be an actress.

On Saturday, March 31, Patti Williams, and Sally Owen will lead a tour around Wollaston of Gordon's favorite Quincy haunts with quotes from her autobiography. The tour will begin at 10 a.m. in the parking lot of the Wollaston School, 205 Beale St.

For more information and rain date rescheduling of walk, call 617-472-0799.

Officials Unveil Quincy Center Parking Plan

Portion Of Hancock Lot Closing April 2;
Remainder Of Parking Area Closing July 2

By SCOTT JACKSON

The $1.2 million plan to provide parking in Quincy Center once the Hancock Lot closes in the coming months – which includes public and private lots, as well as shuttle and valet service for some parkers – was revealed at Monday's City Council meeting.

Construction of the new garage will commence this summer and it is expected to open in the fall of 2019. Work on one of two mixed-use projects planned for the Hancock Lot – LBC Partners' 171-unit Nova Residences development at 1500 Hancock St. – has already gotten underway, requiring the closure of half the lot's parking spaces. The second mixed-use project is Peter O'Connell's 124-unit Chestnut Place building, which will be located along Dennis Ryan Parkway.

The remaining portions of the Hancock Lot will close in two phases.

Half of the 250 spaces currently available in the lot will close on April 2. The 125 spaces remaining in the lot after that point will be reserved for those without monthly passes – also known as transient parkers – and pass holders will move to other lots in Quincy Center.

The remainder of the Hancock Lot is set to close on July 2.

The city will be using a combination of municipally and privately-owned parking areas to accommodate

City Receives Over $1 Million To Repair NQHS Roof

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Massachusetts School Building Authority has awarded Quincy more than $1 million to replace portions of the roof at North Quincy High School.

The MSBA on Feb. 14 announced it would reimburse the city up to $1.05 million for the roof work at North Quincy High School. The total cost of the roof work is $1.77 million.

Mayor Thomas Koch introduced a bond request for $1.77 million to fund the roof work at the City Council's Feb. 26 meeting. The request was referred to the council's finance committee for consideration at a later date.

Under MSBA rules, the city is required to fund the full cost of the project and is eligible for reimbursement once the work is complete.

The city submitted a statement of interest for the partial roof replacement – the first step in the MSBA process – in February. Paul Hines, the city's commissioner of public buildings, said at the time the plan was to replace the roof above the Hunt Street entrance and cafeteria, as well as the roof of the annex on the Oliver Street side. Those portions of the roof date to the 1970s and had significant water damage, he stated.

In other business Feb. 26:

Councillors unanimously confirmed Koch's appointment of Brian Clifford, a Wilgus Road resident, to the Quincy Housing Authority's Board of Commissioners. Clifford's term began immediately and will run through the first Monday of February 2022. Clifford is the organized labor representative on the board, according to mayoral spokesman Chris Walker; Clifford was recommended by the Norfolk County Labor Council.

The council unanimously approved a resolution, introduced by Ward 6 Councillor William Harris, to endorse a bill filed in the Legislature by Rep. Bruce Ayers calling for a study on the feasibility of providing ferry service to Long Island. Ayers and Harris had previously testified in support of the bill on Beacon Hill, saying ferry service to Long Island would be more cost-effective than rebuilding the bridge to the island, which Boston Mayor

Martin Walsh Plans to do.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes re-introduced a bill to create an overlay zoning district in Wollaston Center meant to spur development in the area; the proposal was referred to committee. The new overlay district would encourage mixed-use development – buildings with

THE FIRST DIAMOND ENGAGEMENT RING

While diamonds had been used to adorn rings for centuries, it was not until the 15th century that the first recorded account of a diamond betrothal ring came to light. In 1477, at a time when new diamond cutting techniques were being developed, Archduke Maximilian of Austria gave a gold ring set with diamonds to Mary of Burgundy. While the diamonds were relatively small, they were set in an "M" pattern to represent Mary's name. This romantic custom of giving diamond rings as a sign of everlasting love and commitment became quite common by the end of the 19th century. Today, the tradition is enhanced with diamond solitaires of varying shapes and colors, reflecting the personality of the bride.

Once you have made the decision to become engaged, it's time to choose the very special engagement and wedding rings you've always imagined. It's also time to visit Rogers Jewelry, where we can take you through our beautiful collections, answer any questions you may have, and help you decide on the piece of jewelry you will cherish for a lifetime. We also have a wonderful selection of attendants' gifts to suit all tastes and budgets. Having a hand in creating a magical wedding day is one of our favorite reasons for being in the jewelry business at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. Serving Quincy since 1944, now let us serve you. State Likely To Allow Wollaston 40B Project

By SCOTT JACKSON

A city attorney expects state officials will likely overturn the Zoning Board of Appeals' rejection of an affordable-housing development proposed for Wollaston.

The ZBA in June 2017 unanimously rejected the plan for Warren Place, a 40-unit development at the corner of Old Colony Avenue and Warren Avenue in Wollaston. The Boncaldo family, the developers behind the project, have since appealed that decision to the state's Housing Appeals Committee.

Janet Petkun, an assistant city solicitor, provided an update on the appeal process at the Feb. 27 ZBA meeting. The Housing Appeals Committee will hold a hearing on the appeal sometime in May, and Petkun said the city would likely lose the appeal.

"The role of the housing committee is to determine if the board's decision is reasonable and consistent with local needs, which means balancing the need for affordable housing against local concerns. It's a very high standard and it's one that we could not meet given our approval of the prior version of this project," Petkun said.

"In fact, there is what's called a rebuttable presumption that the need for housing outweighs the local concerns underlining the denial of the permit, and issues such as traffic and inconvenience are not sufficient."

The Housing Appeals Committee could send the project back to the zoning board with instructions to approve it, or the committee could grant the permit itself, Petkun said. Abutters could appeal the HAC decision in Land Court or Superior Court.

Before holding the May hearing on the appeal, representatives from the Housing Appeals Committee will make a site visit on March 12 at 10:15 a.m. The site visit is open to the public.

The Boncaldos had sought a comprehensive permit for the project under the Chapter 40B of Massachusetts state law. Chapter 40B exempts affordable-housing projects from certain local zoning requirements in communities with fewer affordable-housing units than required under state law.

The Planning Board had approved a market-rate project for the same site — 118 Old Colony Ave. and 54 and 60 Warren St. — in August 2015. The Boncaldos, however, withdrew the proposal after neighbors filed suit to block the project, and then resubmitted it last spring as an affordable housing project.

The Warren Place proposal included a four-story building with underground parking, Petkun said. The plan called for 36 one-bedroom units and four units with three bedrooms each.

Ten of the units inside the building — including at least one three-bedroom unit — would have been set aside as affordable for moderate-income earners. A middle school special education teacher with two children earning $68,890 annually would qualify for a three-bedroom unit, Petkun said, a single person earning $53,470 annually as painter would qualify for a one-bedroom unit, and a couple employed as a home health aide and a restaurant cook earning a combined $59,870 would qualify for a one-bedroom unit as well.

"We've heard comments that it's going to bring crime and other things, but the reality is I expect the demographics of these apartments will match those currently in the neighborhood," Petkun said.

Stuart Schrier, a Quincy resident and the attorney for the abutters who challenged the Planning Board's 2015 decision, asked Petkun why the board did not attempt to block the comprehensive permit by asserting Quincy had more affordable housing than required under state law to do so.

There are three thresholds a community can meet to comply with Chapter 40B. One threshold requires 10 percent of all housing units in a community be designated as affordable. The second threshold requires affordable housing be located on 1.5 percent of developable land within a community; Quincy officials have previously said the city meets that second threshold and is in compliance with 40B.

Petkun said the zoning board had 15 days from its first hearing on the Warren Place comprehensive permit to assert Quincy met one of the thresholds. She said the numbers were not available at the time because the state was changing its formula used to calculate the percentage of developable land on which affordable housing was built.

"There were not accurate numbers that could be relied on," Petkun said.

first-floor storefronts and multi-family housing or office space above. Hughes said the proposal introduced Feb. 26 is the same as the one she introduced in October 2017; the latter did not advance out of committee before the council's term expired at the end of December.

Councillor Nina Liang introduced an amendment to Quincy's municipal code that would allow gas stations to sell dairy and food products. Gas stations looking to do so would first need to obtain permission from the Board of License Commissioners. Liang's proposal was referred to committee.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall and Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy introduced a resolution asking the council's environmental and public health committee to make a visit to the site of a 7,700-horsepower natural gas compressor station Spectra Energy-Enbridge is proposing to build in North Weymouth. The committee would meet with stakeholders during the site visit. Residents and officials in Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree have expressed opposition to the project, which is now under review by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection.

The council accepted a total of $2,575 in donations towards the DARE program. Quincy Credit Union donated $1,000; Bank of Canton, Kam Man Food, Assembly, Hairplace One, and South Shore Bank donated $250 each; Regal Beagle Liquors donated $125; and Copeland Package Store and Sweeney Brothers donated $100.

Quincy Point Site For $5.7M Renewal Project

Quincy Point has been selected for a planned potential $5.7 million Neighborhood Improvement Code Enforcement Program, the city's second residential rehabilitation project.

The 116-block area was recommended by Geoffrey A. Davidson, director of City Planning, after an extensive survey, Mayor James R. McIntyre announced.

"There has been a tremendous favorable response to our first project in North Quincy," the mayor noted. "This will be a continuation of the revitalization of our residential areas."

POLLUTION THREAT COULD CLOSE WOLLASTON BEACH

Mayor McIntyre has requested a meeting with the state health officials to avert a possible closing of Wollaston and Quincy Bat beaches this summer because of a pollution threat.

The mayor said several clam beds in the area have already been closed.

In a letter to State Public Health Commissioner Alfred L. Frechette, Mayor McIntyre said, "I know that you are aware of our problems along Wollaston Beach, which came close to being closed last year because of the pollution which affected other areas in the Boston Harbor."

McIntyre said that pollution factors could possibly endanger the health of people who would be using Quincy beaches during the 1970 season.

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides you with tips and resources to help you spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. Our watchdog alerts will keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

- An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

- A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

- A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

- Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:
As tax filing season rolls on, be on the lookout for the IRS imposter scam. You may get a call from someone claiming to be from the IRS and, saying you owe a specific amount in taxes. They may even threaten to arrest you if you don't pay immediately. It's a scam.

Know the IRS will never call and demand immediate payment without first sending a notice through the mail. Nor will the IRS ever ask for credit or debit cards over the phone, or threaten you with arrest. If you get a call like this, hang up. If you are concerned that you may owe taxes, call the IRS directly at 800-829-1040.

SCAM ALERT #2:
As the price of prescription drugs continues to rise, you might find yourself searching online for more affordable medications. Beware of bogus companies that take your money and never send you the product, or worse, send you a product that could cause you harm. Also, be sure to read the fine print on prescription drug coupons you find online. You might discover your purchase won't count toward your deductible, or that the coupon expires after a certain number of refills.

SCAM ALERT #3:
The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is experiencing a big uptick in complaints that scammers pretending to be the FTC are calling, emailing, texting and faxing. The scammers are claiming that either the targets have won a big prize or that they are in trouble and have to pay delinquent accounts.

In fact, the Department of Justice recently announced that two scammers impersonating the FTC were found guilty of bilking victims out of more than $10 million. Know that the FTC does not contact consumers to ask for payment, and it does not run sweepstakes or lotteries.

If you experience this scam, report it at www.ftc-complaintassistant.gov.

SCAM ALERT #4:

Scammers are now going to the federal Social Security website and setting up a "my Social Security" account of citizens that are of retirement age. They hijack their accounts by setting up the accounts before the Social Security number owner does, and then they apply for funds.

The scammers request a lump sum payout be transferred to their own accounts, then they withdraw the money and immediately buy gift cards. Beat scammers to the punch by setting up your own "my Social Security" account today at www.ssa.gov/myaccount.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork for more information on fraud prevention.

Friends Of Wollaston Beach Recognize Supporters At Annual Meeting

By MAUREEN MAZIRMAS Friends of Wollaston Beach

The Friends of Wollaston Beach (FWB) recently held its annual meeting at the Kennedy Center, East Squantum Street, Quincy.

The morning's events began with coffee and conversation at 10 a.m., followed by the Pledge of Allegiance led by the North Quincy High School Jr. ROTC and keynote speaker, Bruce Berman of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay (SH/SB).

Berman gave an overview of the Harbor over the last several decades.

"Everyone knew the harbor was filthy due to years of neglect. They also knew how much it was going to cost — in the billions (in the 1970's). While legislators and judges were well aware of what a clean harbor would mean to the safety, health and economy of Massachusetts and its citizens, they were unwilling to go out on a limb to absorb the cost." He talked of outdated infrastructure, deferred maintenance and other contributing factors.

That all changed in 1982 when the City of Quincy filed an unprecedented suit against the then-MDC for failing in its fiduciary duty to care for Boston Harbor. After years of litigation, groundbreaking legislation created the Mass. Water Resources Authority (MWRA) and a much cleaner harbor for future generations.

Berman cautioned that "just because the harbor is cleaner doesn't mean that our job is done. By working together, we can achieve a common goal. There are groups from Nahant to Nantasket who are doing what you are doing. We need to support these groups by our participation.

"Cleanups are just one way to ensure that the next generation does not have to fight as hard for clean water. And, it is really important that we engage that next generation — and soon."

Another way you can help is by participating in SH/SB's annual Shamrock Splash on Sunday, March 11 at the BCYF Curley Community Center, South Boston. Check-in is at 10 a.m.; the Splash, 11 a.m.

Sponsored by Harpoon Beer, participants obtain pledges for a specific beach.

Come plunge, pledge, enjoy great company, a pint of Harpoon Beer, and a burger to support our beaches. All participants will have a chance to win great prizes, including round trip flights on JetBlue!

For the faint of heart, there is a 'chicken' category. A 'chicken' doesn't have to 'plunge,' s/he just needs to pay the entry fee of $20 and hopefully raise additional funds.

If you want to plunge on behalf of Wollaston

Friends of Wollaston Beach President Doug Gutro introduced Mayor Thomas Koch who gave some brief remarks. The mayor thanked FWB for its care of the beach. Mayor Koch was joined by Sen. John Keenan and state Representatives Bruce Ayers and Tackey Chan.

After the mayor's remarks, the nominating committee presented its slate of officers for the coming year: Maureen Mazrimas, president and treasurer; George Kober, vice president and Bob Verney, secretary. No additional nominations were received and the new officers were elected.

Outgoing president, Doug Gutro, Mayor Koch, Sen. Keenan and Reps. Ayers and Chan made presentations to local businesses, civic groups and the North Quincy High School Jr. ROTC.

Beginning with the ROTC, Gutro noted these are the people Bruce Berman mentioned in his remarks. "They are already doing things to help out and they are still in high school. They are our future."

Gutro underscored the importance of local businesses in the process.

"Those who helped us are really invested in this community. They are: Arbella, Granite Telecommunications, Stop & Shop and Tony's Clam Shop." The Robert I. Nickerson Post and Wollaston Yacht Club were recognized for their help in providing meeting space to FWB. Thanks also to the Kennedy Center.

The more formal presentations of "Spirit Award," "Friend" and "Member of the Year," followed.

The "Spirit Award" was presented to Margaret Laforest and Discover Quincy.

Gutro thanked Laforest and Discover Quincy for bringing hundreds and hundreds of people to the beach with many free events such as Wolly Wednesdays (part of the "Fifty Days of [Free] dom"). Each week, a different band would perform a free concert on the beach (funded by Discover Quincy).

Laforest also partnered with FWB and others to apply for grants from Save the Harbor/Save the Bay, enabling local groups to subsidize family-friendly events on the beach.

"Margaret more than fulfills the mission of FWB to promote public use of Wollaston Beach, the wise use and preservation of the Beach, encouraging volunteerism, and advocating on behalf of Beach users," Maureen Mazrimas said.

The FWB "Friend" was Save the Harbor/Save the Bay. SH/SB has been advocating for the Harbor for over 30 years. In addition to its care of the Harbor, SH/SB was one of the moving forces behind having the Harbor Islands designated a National Park. SH/SB has

SS Chamber Employment Law Update Session March 22

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual Employment Law Update session on Thursday, March 22nd.

The program will run from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Boston Quincy Marriott, 1000 Marriott Dr., Quincy. Registration will begin at 7:15 a.m.

Co-sponsored by the Chamber's Human Resources Group and Murphy, Hesse, Toomey and Lehane LLP, the annual update is a 'must event' for key leaders responsible for human resources in their organizations.

Topics on tap for discussion at the March 22nd session include sexual harassment and marijuana in the workplace.

The update will also provide an overview of major legislation, case law developments and significant court decisions. In addition, the presentation will address the Massachusetts Equal Pay Act, Pregnancy Act and updates from the Department of Labor.

"This annual event has taken on new importance for the Chamber as it helps shape some of our work around government advocacy on employment law issues," said Peter Forman, President & CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Admission to the highly-anticipated session, which will include a deluxe continental breakfast, is $95 for South Shore Chamber members, as well as all Braintree, Weymouth, Rockland and Marshfield Chamber and South Shore Young Professional members and $125 for general admission.

Since space is limited, advanced registration is required at <http://www.southshorechamber.org/events/register/13014>

with

Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Lamb-Stuff Red Peppers

By MARIE

Like me, you have probably made stuffed peppers many different ways.

Today's recipe is for a lamb-stuffed pepper that was given to me by my daughter, Rita. Somehow the flavor of the lamb combined with the red pepper gave this dish a very different and delicious taste.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees – lightly grease an 8 x 8 pan or casserole dish

2 large red peppers, halved and seeded

1 pound of ground lamb

2 cups of cooked rice

½ teaspoon salt

½ pint mushrooms, finely chopped

1/3 cup chopped onions or shallots

2 ounces of goat cheese (optional)

6 Kalamata olives, cut in half (also optional)

Fresh oregano to taste

Salt and pepper

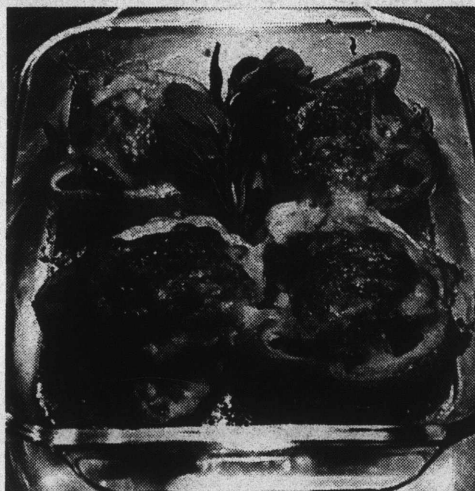

1 large garlic, minced

1 cup grated mozzarella or favorite cheese of your choice

White wine for sprinkling (a splash)

Sauté onion until soft and starting to brown. Add rice, mushrooms, salt and pepper and mix well.

Then add garlic and stir for one minute, add oregano and splash of wine and cook for another minute or so over medium heat. Remove from pan and set aside to cool.

Combine the ground lamb with ½ teaspoon salt and the rice mixture in a medium bowl. Place pepper halves in an 8 x 8 baking dish and fill the peppers with the lamb mixture.

If using goat cheese and olives fill the peppers half way and then add the olives and goat cheese as a layer and then continue to fill peppers.

Add a splash of wine, cover and cook for 30 minutes.

Remove from oven, uncover, and add mozzarella cheese place back in the oven and increase heat to 400 degrees.

Cook until cheese is browned and peppers are tender.

P.S. If you would like, take the cooking liquid and reduce in a small sauce pan. To increase the flavor of this dish, add the cooking liquid to the cooked peppers prior to serving.

Gluten-Free Gnocchi

By SUSIE

My dad used to make Gnocchis and I grew up watching him methodically make the dough and roll. I always ate far too many but it was worth it. I wished he had a never ending magical pot like in the children's story "Strega Nonna." Oh well, better that he didn't I guess!

Here is a recipe I adapted from one I found a while back, adding in healthier ingredients. Hope you enjoy them as much as I do.

GLUTEN-FREE GNOCCHI

1 large russet potato, peeled and diced and cooked until fork tender.

1 head cauliflower, cut into florets (4 cups) cooked until tender.

3 and half cups gluten free all-purpose flour

2/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1 teaspoon sea salt, half tsp pepper

2 eggs, whisked

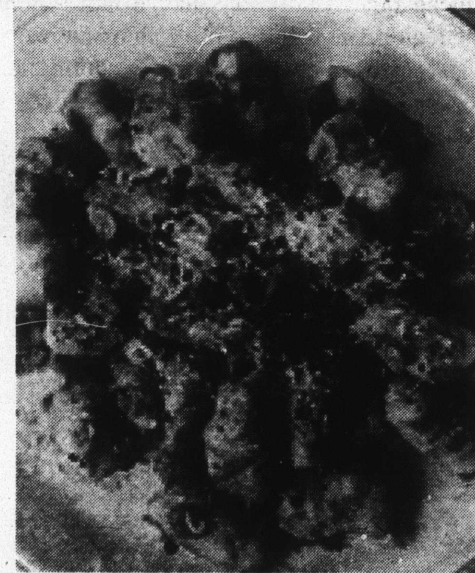

Fresh chopped basil

Marinara sauce (Homemade or jarred, I love RAOS brand best in a pinch)

Potato starch

Mash together potato and cauliflower while HOT until smooth. Mix in flour, cheese, salt and pepper.

Make a well in the center of the mixture and add the eggs and mix well. Divide into three even pieces.

Dust a clean work surface lightly with potato starch and roll out a third of the dough into a long rope that's about ½-inch thick. Cut the rope into ¾-inch pieces.

Roll each piece across the tines of a fork to create a ridged. Set aside on a potato starch dusted baking sheet.

Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil. Add the gnocchi to the pot and cook until it floats to the surface, 3 to 4 minutes. Drain well.

Toss the drained gnocchi in your favorite sauce until well combined. Garnish with fresh basil!

The Fours First Again At Blue Hills Winter Fest

THE FOURS received the top prize in the Battle of the Blue Hills Chili Cook Off at the Blue Hills Winter Fest Feb. 27. This was the fourth year in a row that the restaurant received the most votes in the contest. Although the spring-like weather made skiing a little sloppy, many of the nearly 200 attendees spilled out onto the patio to listen to live Irish music by Songs for Ceilidh and joined a night hike up Great Blue. Friends of the Blue Hills and Blue Hills Ski sponsor this popular winter event. Councillors Want Kincaide Park Plan Update

By SCOTT JACKSON

A pair of city councillors wants an update on the city's plans to renovate Kincaide Park.

The $27 million park improvement bond requested by Mayor Thomas Koch and approved by the City Council in May 2017 included $1 million for Kincaide Park, a 5.2-acre facility at 332 Water St. that features ball fields, a tennis court, a street hockey court and playground equipment.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci and Councillor

Anne Mahoney, a Ward 4 resident, introduced a resolution asking Koch's administration for an update on plans for the site on Feb. 26.

"[We] are just looking for an update from the administration on the design plan for Kincaide Park," Palmucci said. "Perhaps we could do something where we have the public come out to one of our meetings, we maybe we go out to the neighborhood or something."

Palmucci and Mahoney's resolution notes nearby recreational amenities – a publicly accessible track and basketball court – have been lost as a result of the ongoing construction of a replacement for Sterling Middle School. The resolution suggests including those amenities as part of the plan for Kincaide.

The resolution also asks that the community be allowed to weigh in on plans for the park.

The resolution was referred to council's park and recreation committee during the Feb. 26 meeting.

Slaughterhouse Ban Proposed

By SCOTT JACKSON

A zoning ordinance now pending before the City Council would prohibit slaughterhouses from opening anywhere in Quincy.

Mayor Thomas Koch introduced the zoning ordinance on Feb. 26, and it was referred to the council's ordinance committee for consideration at a future date.

The ordinance would add the use "abattoir" – an alternative term for a slaughterhouse – to the table of use regulations found in Quincy's zoning code and prohibit it as a primary use in any zoning district.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for the mayor, said there is no proposal currently to open a slaughterhouse in the city, but Koch would like the prohibition in place in case a proposal does come forward.

"We have heard there is a potential for this being a growth area in the region, so we wanted to have these regulations in place," Walker told The Sun prior to the Feb. 26 meeting.

Hashimoto's Disease: Causes, Diagnoses, Treatment

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Hashimoto's disease is a condition in which your immune system attacks your thyroid, a small gland at the base of your neck below your Adam's apple. The thyroid gland is part of your endocrine system, which produces hormones that synchronize many of your body's functions.

Inflammation that results from Hashimoto's disease, also known as chronic lymphocytic thyroiditis, often leads to an underactive thyroid gland (hypothyroidism). Hashimoto's disease is the most common cause of hypothyroidism in the United States and primarily affects middle-aged women but also appear in men and women of any age and in children. Doctors test your thyroid function to help detect Hashimoto's disease.

The causes of your immune system attacking your thyroid gland are unknown. Some scientists think a virus or bacterium might trigger the response, while others believe a genetic flaw may be implicated. A combination of factors, including heredity, sex and age may establish your likelihood of developing the disorder.

Hashimoto's disease typically progresses slowly over years and causes chronic thyroid damage, leading to a drop in thyroid hormone levels in your blood. You might not detect signs or symptoms of Hashimoto's disease in the early stages, or you may notice a swelling at the front of your throat (goiter). The signs and symptoms are mainly those of an underactive thyroid gland (hypothyroidism). Signs and symptoms of hypothyroidism include: Fatigue and sluggishness, increased sensitivity to cold, constipation, pale, dry skin, puffy face, brittle nails, hair loss, enlargement of the tongue, unexplained weight gain, muscle aches, tenderness and stiffness, joint pain and stiffness, muscle weakness, excessive or prolonged menstrual bleeding, depression and memory lapses.

Certain factors may play a role in the development of Hashimoto's disease:

- Sex – Women are much more likely to get Hashimoto's disease.

- Age – Hashimoto's disease can occur at any age but more commonly occurs during middle age.

- Heredity – You're at higher risk for Hashimoto's disease if others in your family have thyroid or other autoimmune diseases.

- Other autoimmune diseases – Having another autoimmune disease such as rheumatoid arthritis, type 1 diabetes or lupus, increases your risk of developing Hashimoto's disease.

- Radiation exposure – People exposed to excessive levels of environmental radiation are more prone to Hashimoto's disease.

If left untreated, hypothyroidism caused by Hashimoto's disease can lead to a number of health problems:

Goiter-persistent stimulation of your thyroid to release more hormones may cause the gland to become enlarged, a condition known as goiter. Hypothyroidism is one of the most common causes of goiters. Although typically not painful, a large goiter can affect your appearance and may interfere with swallowing or breathing.

Heart problems –

total knee replacement while providing a customized, patient-specific surgery. OMNIBotics also allows for a less invasive surgical technique, compared to traditional knee replacement surgery, which may promote a quicker recovery. Carney Hospital is alone in the region to offer the OMNIBotics robotic-assisted total knee replacement procedure to its patients.

"I was drawn to Carney Hospital because of their patient-first approach with everything they do", said Dr. Dabuzhsky. "From the moment they step onto campus, the team here is committed to ensuring that not only does every patient receive high-quality care, but that that care is delivered with compassion and Hashimoto's disease also may be associated with an increased risk of heart disease, primarily because high levels of low-density lipoprotein (LDL) cholesterol can occur in people with an underactive thyroid gland. If left untreated, hypothyroidism can lead to an enlarged heart and, perhaps, heart failure.

Mental health issues – Depression may occur early in Hashimoto's disease and may become more severe as the disease progresses. Hashimoto's disease can also cause sexual desire (libido) to decrease in both men and women and can lead to decelerated mental performance.

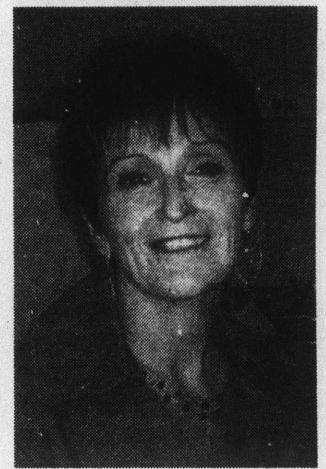

Myxedema – This rare, life-threatening condition can develop due to long-term hypothyroidism as a result of untreated Hashimoto's disease. Its signs and symptoms include drowsiness followed by profound lethargy and unconsciousness. A myxedema coma may be triggered by exposure to cold, sedatives, infection or other stress on your body. Myxedema requires urgent emergency medical treatment.

Diagnosis of Hashimoto's disease is centered on your signs and symptoms and the results of blood tests that measure levels of thyroid hormone and thyroid-stimulating hormone (TSH) produced in the pituitary gland. These may include:

A hormone test- Blood tests can determine the amount of hormones produced by your thyroid and pituitary glands. If your thyroid is underactive, the level of thyroid hormone is decreased. At the same time, the level of TSH is elevated because your pituitary gland tries to stimulate your thyroid gland to produce more thyroid hormone.

An antibody test-Due to the fact that Hashimoto's disease is an autoimmune disorder, the cause involves production of abnormal antibodies. A blood test may confirm the presence of antibodies against thyroid peroxidase (TPO antibodies), an enzyme normally found in the thyroid gland that plays a vital role in the production of thyroid hormones.

Formerly, healthcare providers did not have the capability to detect an underactive thyroid (hypothyroidism), the main indicator of Hashimoto's disease, until symptoms were fairly advanced. But by utilizing the sensitive TSH test, doctors can diagnose thyroid disorders much sooner, often before you experience symptoms. Since the TSH test is the most reliable screening test, your healthcare provider will likely check TSH first and follow with a thyroid hormone test if needed. TSH tests also have an important function in managing hypothyroidism, by assisting your doctor in determining the right dosage of medication, both initially as time progresses.

Treatment for Hashimoto's disease may include observation and use of medications. If your thyroid is functioning normally, and there is no evidence of hormone deficiency, your doctor may suggest a wait-and-see approach. If medication is necessary, chances are you'll need it for the remainder of your life.

If Hashimoto's disease causes thyroid hormone deficiency, you may need replacement therapy with a thyroid hormone. This customarily involves daily use of the synthetic thyroid hormone levothyroxine. Synthetic levothyroxine is identical to thyroxine, the natural form of this hormone that is produced by your thyroid gland. This oral medication restores sufficient hormone levels and reverses all the symptoms of hypothyroidism. Treatment with levothyroxine is usually lifelong, but since the dosage you need may fluctuate, your doctor is likely to check your TSH level about every 12 months.

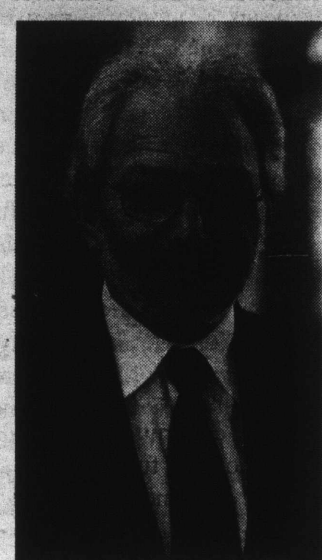

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Dr. Leonid Dabuzhsky Joins Carney Hospital

Hospital administration announce Leonid Dabuzhsky, MD will join the emerging Center for Orthopedics & Joint Replacement at Carney Hospital.

"I am thrilled to have Dr. Dabuzhsky join us here at Carney," said Walter Ramos, Carney Hospital President. "To have a physician of such quality as a part of our team cements Carney's orthopedics program as one of the best in the region. Our patients have access to top orthopedic surgeons, conveniently located right in their community."

With the addition of Dr. Dabuzhsky, Carney's patients now have exclusive access to OMNIBotics, an advanced robotic-assisted treatment option for total knee replacement. The OMNIBotics procedure utilizes advanced software and instrumentation to tailor each procedure to the patient's unique anatomy in order to optimize implant fit and alignment. The surgeon maintains control and decision-making regarding the respect. I could not be more proud then to align myself with Carney Hospital in their mission to serve the community."

Dr. Dabuzhsky received his medical degree from Russian State Medical University and has been in practice for more than 30 years, including previously practicing at Carney Hospital among other institutions in the region.

School Committee Honors Project 351 Ambassadors

By TOM GORMAN

Several middle school students are representing Quincy in the state youth service organization, Project 351.

An eighth-grade student from each of the district's five middle schools was chosen by their teachers as ambassadors to participate in the yearlong program that fosters community service and leadership skills. Eighth grade students from each Massachusetts community participate in the program.

Quincy students are: Amy Lien of Atlantic Middle School; Jacob Lustig of Broad Meadows Middle School; Pablo Flores-Munoz of Central Middle School; Brandon Pham of Point Webster Middle School; and Doan Tran of Sterling Middle School.

All five completed the Project 351 Launch Day's day of service on Jan. 28 that kicked off the program that will continue through the end of the year. They joined students from across the state at the program at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library in Boston. Launch Day celebrates the life and legacy of civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and welcomes the new class of ambassadors.

Following the Launch Day services, the ambassadors headed out on various community service projects. These included painting walls in a school, serving meals to the homeless at the Pine Street Inn, and preparing care packages for the elderly and Puerto Rican students relocating to Massachusetts from their hurricane-ravaged island.

Pham and Lustig were recognized by the school committee at its recent meeting. The other students were unable to attend.

Barrett and Point Webster teacher Jacqui Principi joined the committee in honoring the students.

"Everyone in Project 351 feels incredibly special," said Gilbert. "It really is an opportunity you guys have seized. The work they do on Launch Day is just the tip of the iceberg. I am really proud of both of you for the work you did on that day and the work you are going to do. It's an amazing thing to be nominated as an ambassador."

In a video presentation, the Quincy student ambassadors related how the program inspires them for helping to make the community better.

Gilbert noted that two Quincy students who were ambassadors in past years now sit on the Project 351 leadership council.

Project 351 was initially to be a one-day event in 2011 as part of Gov. Deval Patrick's second inauguration, according to the Project 351 website. More than 400 eighth grade students representing each Bay State city and town as ambassadors joined together to discuss critical youth and community-related issues, develop leadership skills and serve their community. The program has been held annually since.

"Through unique service opportunities, ambassadors gain valuable skills, create positive change in communities, build a statewide network of values-aligned peers, and unite the Commonwealth in common purpose...for a transformative year of leadership development. Enrichment and impact," states the website. "Project 351 celebrates the ethic of service, youth leadership, and the diversity of our state."

During the year, the students will participate in several events, including the Spring Service where a children's clothing drive is organized to benefit Cradles to Crayons and the Leadership Reunion where the current ambassadors join past ambassadors at Gillette Stadium in workshops and a Unity Walk to support the Martin W. Richard Foundation, named after the young boy killed in the Boston Marathon bombing.

"If you're lucky this year as I was two years ago, (New England Patriots owner) Bob Kraft will stop by and shake hands," Gilbert told the students.

In September, the ambassadors will join in a 9/11 Tribute Service where those lost during the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks are remembered and care packages for local troops and homeless veterans are prepared. The Fall Service involves food drives to benefit the ambassadors' hometown food pantries.

The Project 351 website explains that students are selected by their teachers, who serve as their mentors, to represent their respective districts as ambassadors. The students participate in various community service projects, results-driven leadership training and are exposed to challenging issues and opportunities.

The ambassadors develop a "greater awareness of challenges facing our communities and nation" and the program offers the students "inspiring opportunities to participate in service that creates positive change (and develops) a statewide community of friends and mentors and exposure to inspirational role models and leaders."

"By serving with 8th graders from every corner of the state, ambassadors appreciate and learn from the diversity of our Commonwealth, forge friendships with similarly-minded peers, and lead service that transforms lives and their hometown," the website states. "Ambassadors share a common passion for making a positive difference in their community and our world. As a member of Project 351, ambassadors represent their family, school, and community with honor, humility, and pride. Over a year's term, (ambassadors) engage with a community of peers in team-based service projects and leadership development opportunities."

More than two dozen Bay State organizations, individuals and businesses support the non-profit Project 351 program.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Should My Wife Wait Until Age 66 To Claim Benefits?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I will be at my full retirement age of 66 in June. I now work part time and plan to continue for the foreseeable future. My wife will be 63 in June. She now works full time but plans to shift to part time in the near future. I prefer to delay applying for Social Security as long as possible. Should my wife wait until she is 66 to claim her benefits? Signed: Planning Ahead

Dear Planning: Whether or not your wife should wait until age 66 depends on a lot of factors, including: how healthy she is, what her family longevity history is and if she needs the money sooner. If she takes her Social Security at age 63, she'll get 20.9% less than she would get at her full retirement age, or "FRA", which for her is 66 years plus 2 months. And if she claims her benefits early and continues to work, she'll also be subject to Social Security's "earnings limit" ($17,040 for 2018) which, if she exceeds it, will cause Social Security to withhold future benefits equal to $1 for every $2 over the limit that she earns (that limit goes away when she reaches her FRA). The earnings limit is something that you do not need to worry about because you are nearing your FRA; the limit goes away (to $45,360 for 2018) in the year you reach your full retirement age and goes away completely once you've attained it.

If you plan to delay applying for your own benefits, you may already know that after June you will start accumulating "delayed retirement credits" at a rate of 2/3rds of 1% per month you delay (8% per year). Age 70 is when you'll reach the maximum benefit available to you, but you can actually apply at any time after your FRA and get all the delayed retirement credits you've earned up to that point.

Because you were born in 1952 you have yet another option available which was eliminated in 2015 for all those born after Jan. 1, 1954. If your wife decides to start her own Social Security benefits early, and after you have reached your full retirement age, you can file something known as a "restricted application for spousal benefits only." By doing so you could collect ½ of your wife's FRA benefit amount as a spousal benefit, while letting your own retirement benefit earn delayed retirement credits up to age 70 when your benefit would be 32% higher than it would be at age 66. This would obviously mean that your wife would be taking her benefit earlier than her FRA (and thus it would be reduced), but it would also mean that you would collect that spousal benefit for about 4 years before converting to your own. This is something you would need to look at carefully, specifically whether the financial advantage from using this option would offset the permanent benefit reduction your wife would incur by claiming her benefits earlier than her FRA.

who currently use the Hancock Lot. Chris Cassani, the head of the city's traffic and parking department, said there would be enough parking available for those coming to the downtown after the Hancock Lot is closed.

"For those who work in or frequent Quincy Center, the message that I would like to communicate tonight is that Quincy Center is open for business and you'll be able to park to work, shop or dine," Cassani said.

The city is now in the process of expanding the Ross Lot to increase the number of parking spaces available. The northern section of the lot, which now holds 202 spaces, will have 246 spots open once the expansion is complete. Those 246 spaces will be assigned to monthly pass holders during regular business hours on weekdays; new passes will be issued to those pass holders to help the smooth the transition. Gates will be installed to restrict access to the northern section of the lot.

The southern portion of the Ross Lot will be used to house transient parkers. Starting April 2, the city will hire a valet service, Quincy-based Priority Parking, to staff the southern portion of the lot during business hours on weekdays to maximize the number of cars that can park there. Cassani said about 100 spaces will be available for transient parkers using the valet service, which will cost $12,500 each month. The daily rate for parking in the Ross Lot will be increased from $8 to $20, in part to dissuade commuters riding the MBTA from using the lot.

The Hannon Lot, also known as the Messina Lot, on Ross Way will be dedicated to monthly pass holders during weekday business hours. The 105 pass holders assigned spaces there will also be issued new cards. The existing swing gate will be used to control access to the Hannon Lot.

Both the Ross and Hannon Lots will be available for free transient parking after 5 p.m. on weekdays.

The city-owned lot on Hancock Court, as well as the lots at Central Baptist Church and Christ Church, will be reserved for monthly pass holders. There are 49 total spaces between the three lots. The Hancock Court Lot will be reserved for monthly pass holders during business hours on weekdays and weekends and available for free transient parking during evening hours. The other two lots are restricted to daytime parking on weekdays.

Employees of each company with monthly passes will all be assigned spaces in the same lot starting April 2. The 50 Stop & Shop workers with monthly passes will be assigned to the Ross Lot, for example, and XS Brokers' 65 employees will be assigned to the Hannon Lot.

The city will also use the 120-space lot at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy on Glendale Road for Stop & Shop employees without monthly passes. Priority Parking will operate a shuttle service for those employees, at a monthly cost of $46,000.

Construction workers will park at St. John the Baptist Church and Covenant Church; there are 73 spaces available between the two lots. No shuttle service will be provided for construction workers.

In addition to the Ross, Hannon and Hancock Court Lots, free evening, weekend and holiday parking will continue to be offered at the Quincy District Courthouse during the duration of the closure of the Hancock Lot. Starting in July, a three-month pilot valet program, operated by Priority Parking at an $8,500 monthly cost, will service the lots using the Quincy Mutual lot to facilitate the program. Cassani said the evening valet service is being offered to get customers familiar with parking elsewhere than the Hancock Lot and would likely be discontinued after the three months are up.

Free evening parking is also available at the Coddingtown Building.

The $1.2 million cost of the parking plan will be paid for with the $80 million district-improvement-financing (DIF) bond approved by the City Council last spring to finance the construction of the new garage and other improvements in Quincy Center.

Councillors spent nearly 90 minutes discussing the parking plan Monday night.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes, who is the chairman of the council's downtown committee, asked if the city would be able to provide additional spaces for companies bringing in new employees or moving to the area.

"This one company that reached out to me had about three or four new hires," she said. "Do you have provisions for things like that?"

Cassani said it could be possible to assign additional pass holders to the lots because not everyone with an assigned space will park at those lots each day. There is also additional capacity, he said, at St. John the Baptist Church and Covenant Church if needed.

Councillor Nina Liang said it was important for the city to enforce parking restrictions in the area — such as two-hour or 15-minute limits — because some businesses have been hurting from a lack of parking spaces available during the day.

"A lot of the daytime businesses are having trouble trying to encourage customers to come down because of a lack of parking," Liang said. "I applaud and appreciate the focus on creating parking availability for nighttime, but I do also want to make sure that we're being mindful that the daytime businesses are also struggling."

Cassani said his department is looking at ways to make the process for issuing a parking ticket less cumbersome to encourage turnover in those spots.

"Our system, the way it's currently set up, is cumbersome to issue a ticket. It relies on a check in and a check up," Cassani said. "We're looking at different options of how to increase turnover because frankly increasing turnover is a benefit to the merchant community."

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said he believed people would be able to adjust to the new parking plan, comparing it to the closure of the MBTA parking garage in Quincy Center and the closure of the Wollaston Red Line station for renovations.

"People adjust; they might take a little time to change," McCarthy said. "This MBTA garage behind us, for instance, has been closed for a number of years. Those cars went elsewhere and people's lives went on. The Wollaston T station, which is now under construction, we had some great meetings, but... people adjusted and they got to work and so far so good with that."

"In regards to the Hancock Lot, right now half of the lot is pretty much gone. The cars went elsewhere and people adjusted."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci asked rhetorically how the city got to the point where valet service for transient parkers would be needed in Quincy Center. He suggested the city should have held off on razing the Ross Garage, which held more than 840 spaces, until after the new Hancock Lot garage opens.

"How the heck did we get to a place where the most logical thing we're doing is valeting cars around Quincy Center? It just seems nuts to me," Palmucci said.

"Then I start to think about all these spaces we had at the Ross Garage and how we could really use another 600 spaces. That would probably solve most of the problems and not require a valet to drive the cars around."

In a related item, councillors voted 6-3 in favor of approving the design of the new garage and adjacent civic space; Palmucci, Brad Croall and Anne Mahoney voted in opposition.

Mahoney said the council should have waited until after a community meeting on the garage, which will be held sometime this month, took place before voting.

"I don't believe that it's prudent for a council — and this council member in particular — to approve something that you didn't have a final public hearing on," she said. "I think the public hearing should come before the vote."

Construction of the garage will commence in July once the Hancock Lot closes entirely. Other work, including the demolition of two buildings on the corner of Cottage Avenue and Dennis Ryan Parkway and relocation of a sewer line, must take place before garage construction begins.

The garage is set to open in the fall of 2019. The city will spend $46.6 million to build the garage and adjoining civic space.

O'Connell and LBC will both be leasing spaces in the new garage for their respective projects once it is complete. O'Connell will lease 124 of the spaces and LBC at least 50. Future private developments on what is now the Hancock Lot would be required to have their own parking on site.

Proposed work activities for the week of: Mar 4th, 2018

- Work continues within the new parking spaces to be added into the Ross Lot. The contractor will be moving the curbing in towards Ross Way and prepping for pavement. As soon as spaces that are being taken up by cones are freed up, the cones will be removed so that parking in those areas can go back.
- Walls on the south side for the atrium which will be adjacent to the Nova Residence site at 1500 Hancock Street will be poured later this week. Backfilling around the south and west foundation walls will continue.
- Work for the staircase and foundation for the statues to be located at the south end of the park will be taking place this week. Mechanical equipment will be installed within the vault for the fountains and granite curbing around the tidal fountain will be installed this week as well.

Scenes From The March 2nd - March 3rd Storm

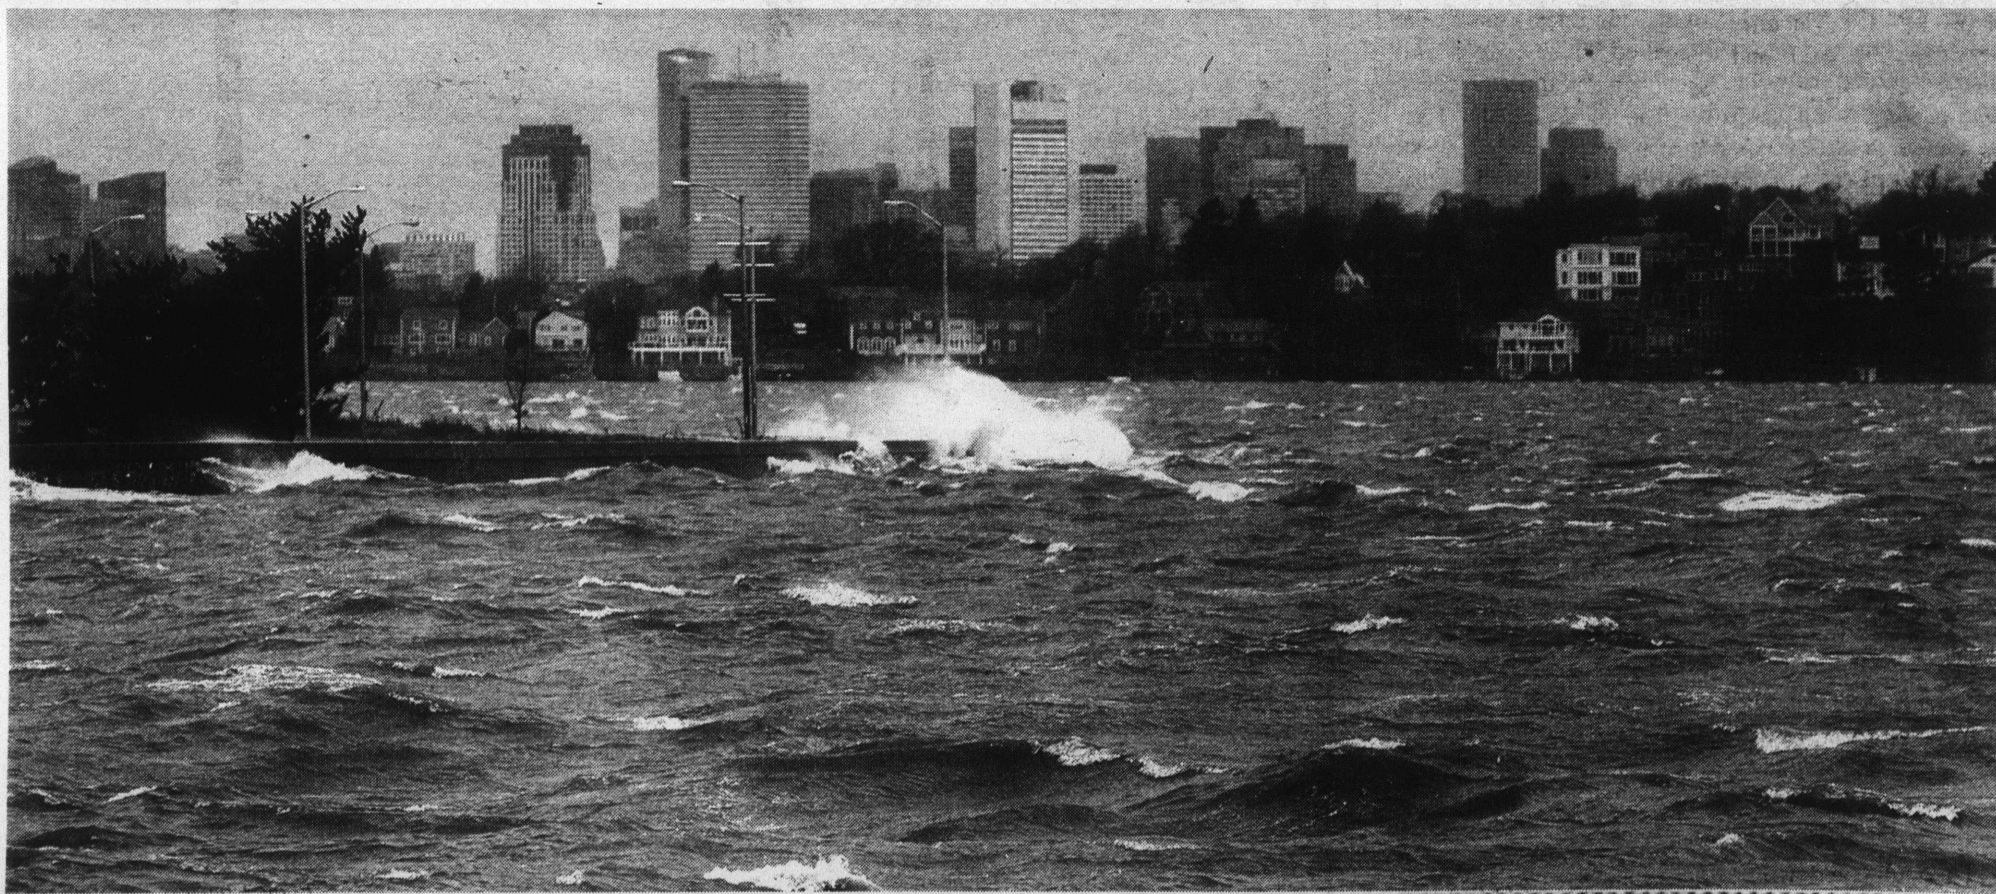

STRONG HIGH TIDE floods a playground near Quincy Shore Drive during the nor'easter March 2.

LAST WEEK'S NOR'EASTER caused significant coastal flooding in several sections of Quincy including this neighborhood near Narraganset Road and Shore Avenue. Some of the neighbors had five feet of water in their basement.

WITH THE BOSTON SKYLINE in the background, waves pound the seawall on Wollaston Beach as the tides were at historic highs.

on portions of Sea Street – the main route into Adams Shore, Merrymount and Houghs Neck.

At the height of the storm about 8,000 National Grid customers lost power in Quincy. As of Monday, some 900 homes were still without power as inspectors fanned out through flood-ravaged streets checking homes one-by-one to ensure power could be restored without risk of fire or other home hazard.

The city also responded to calls from residents needing help with flooded basements. Some homes had water rise to their first-floor living areas. Pumps were supplied to about 125 homes as of Monday, the mayor said.

"We've been pumping out homeowners all day Sunday, Sunday night and into Monday," Koch said. "We pumped out about 125 homes so far. Those who need assistance can call the city at 617-376-1910. That's the number for the pumping operation."

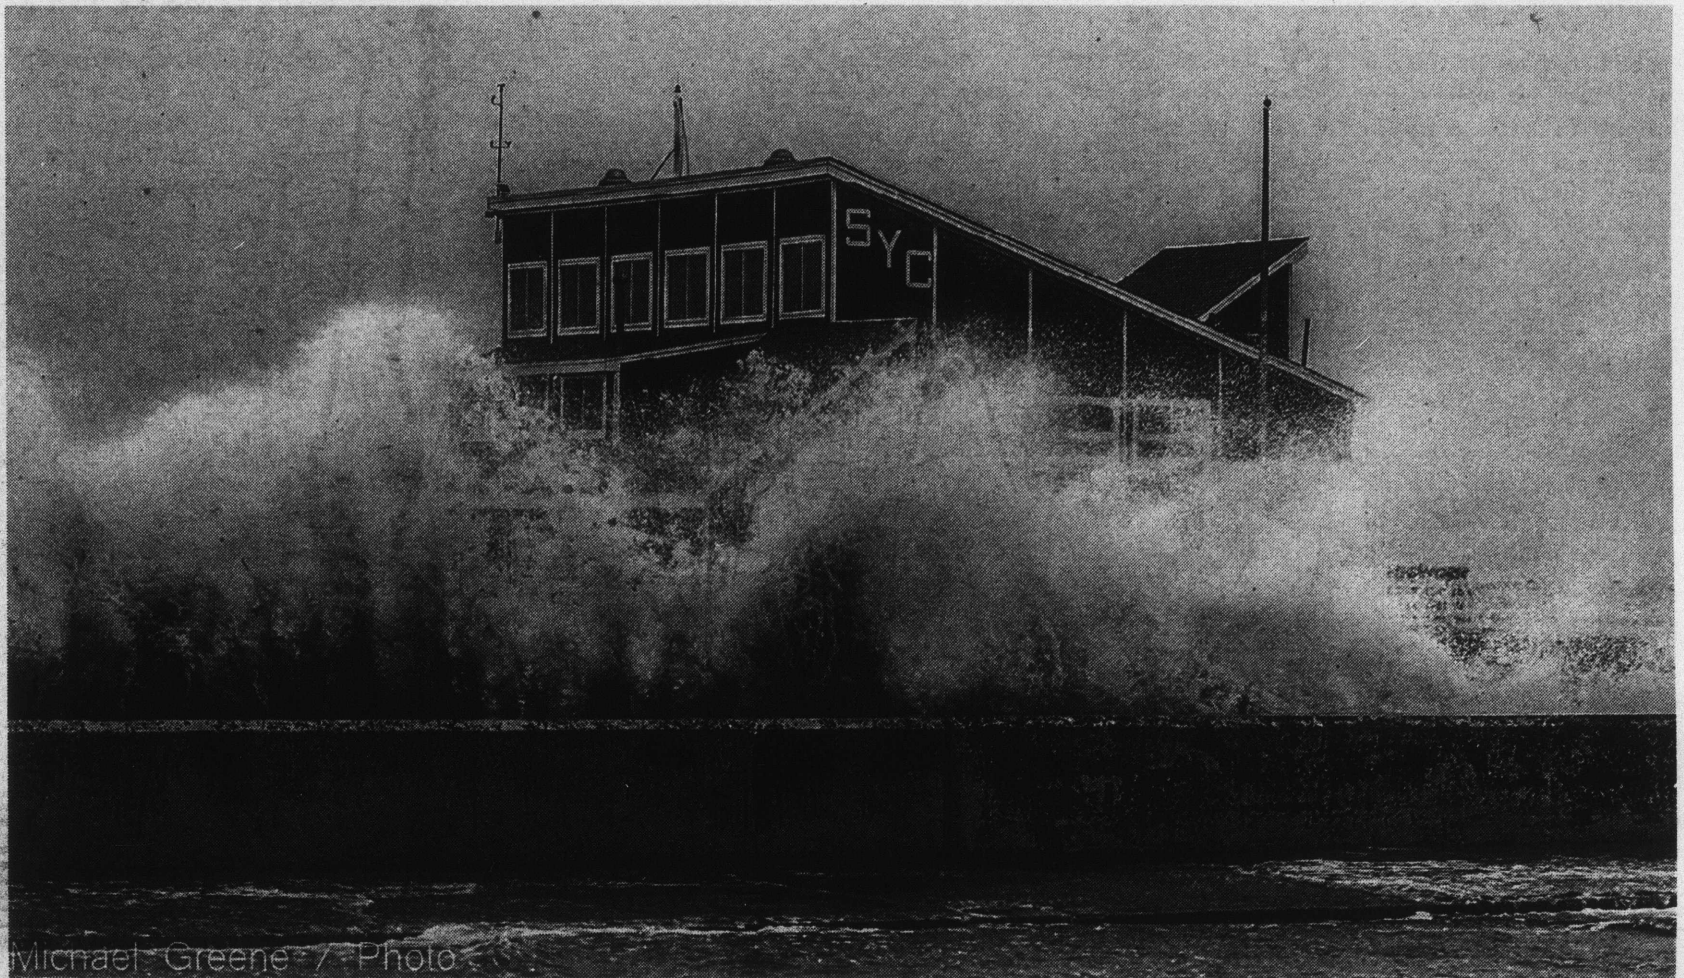

The mayor noted city building and wire inspectors were going into homes to make sure homes were habitable.

"There may be a couple of homes that will be condemned because they shifted off the foundation and there was so much structural damage it's probably beyond repair," Koch said.

Comparing last week's nor'easter, the mayor said unlike two other benchmark storms – the Blizzard of '78 and the "No-Name Storm" of 1991 – "this one did a lot of damage to our seawalls, tide gates, roads, sidewalks – stuff we're going to have to spend a lot of money on to fix and repair and replace."

Starting on Sunday, teams of engineers spread out across the city reviewing damage to infrastructure, notably seawalls, roads and sidewalks.

"We want to be prepared if we get the (disaster) declaration and FEMA is going to do some of the reimbursement," Koch said. "The estimate we got to fix about two and a half miles of seawall on the bay side of Adams Shore, Merrymount and Houghs Neck – which was most devastated because that's where the storm surge and high winds were – just to get that wall repaired was $3.3 million. Other parts of the Neck got flooded but not that kind of damage."

Roads and sidewalks inundated and covered with seawater for hours buckled.

"There are a number of streets at minimum need repair and at maximum will need to be completely rebuilt because the water undermines the integrity of the road," the mayor explained.

Parts of Sea Street and Quincy Shore Drive were underwater for more than two days.

"There is a portion of Sea Street, a portion of the cove, streets in Post Island, streets in Adams Shore that absolutely will have to be addressed," Koch continued. "There's infrastructure implications. We're cleaning out storm drains because debris gets in. Storm drain systems, tide gates – some were repaired Sunday. We're still analyzing all those pieces."

The mayor said the infrastructure loss could total $8 million or more.

Personal property damage to homes and cars – some automobiles were swept off streets and driveways and bobbed in the river-like roads – "will be pretty high," the mayor said.

Besides flooded homes and breached seawalls, there was other damage including homes that lost roofing shingles and siding as well as downed trees and limbs.

To help storm-weary homeowners, the mayor said the city is waiving any fees associated with building permits required for repairing dwellings. Extra rubbish removal is also planned the rest of the week for areas hard hit such as Houghs Neck.

"With Inspectional Services we are telling people we're going to waive permit fees for storm-related issues with the building department. We also providing extra rubbish service for those areas hit hard by the storm. We've seen people dragging out flood-damaged personal property like rugs and furniture outside their homes.

"We're going to take everything they bring to the curb with the exception of gasoline cans and paint. We'll have a special hazardous waste collection day for those things. And we can't take big construction debris so when they hire a contractor that's going to be the responsibility of the contractor to take care of."

"We will have rubbish collection for those residents on hard-hit streets every day this week."

The mayor said the city is trying to help people "every way we can."

"We had 60 pieces of equipment out Sunday cleaning roads of debris.

The tide brought a lot of rocks and sand in and other debris. We helped the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) clean Quincy Shore Drive because we had pieces in place so we shifted over and helped that effort.

Gov. Charlie Baker toured some of the heavier hit neighborhoods on Sunday with Koch and some other public officials. He got an up-close look at the damage left in the storm's wake.

"When he actually saw all the debris that got dragged out of the houses he realized 'wow' because he had some of the infrastructure damage up in Gloucester but here he saw the personal property loss," Koch said.

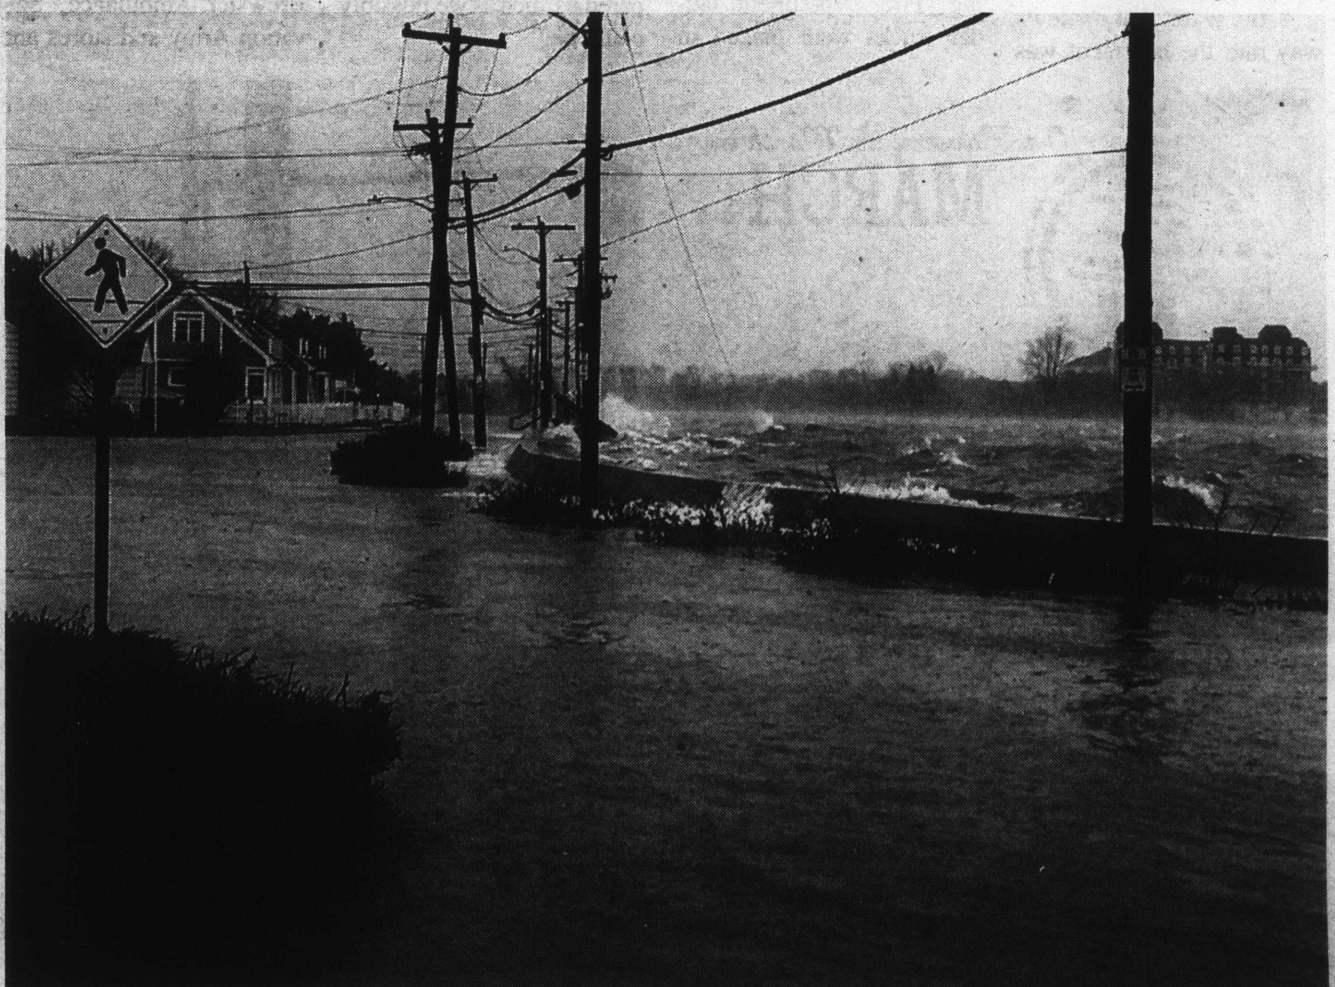

Asked what the governor's message to Quincy was, the mayor replied:

"We're here to help. He said 'we will work with you guys. We're all in this together.' This governor and lieutenant governor both worked in local government. They get it. They are both in constant contact with us. I can't say enough about the interest and concern they have shown to our city and our residents."

Koch called some of the destruction and damage "devastating."

"When you're in a home and you have water up to the first floor, that's devastating. We're still calculating the public infrastructure as far as costs go but we're going to have to deal with this in the weeks and months to come. We will be asking the City Council at some point for an appropriation to deal with this.

"In talking with the governor Sunday he indicated the state was going to be very helpful both in the permitting process and the whole issue of procurement because you can't put out a bid to hire trucks. You have to do it. You can't fool around. You have to get this done.

"The same for the seawalls," the mayor continued. "Some took heavy hits and blocks were knocked off their foundations. The quicker we get the repairs done the better. There's another nor'easter forecast for later this week (Wednesday and Thursday) which could create more damage because there are breaches in the walls. Now we're going to have water come in where you normally wouldn't. We will be trying to shore up the breaches."

Koch said the city is also trying to repair city buildings impacted by the storm. One is the Broad Meadows Middle School. Some water entered the auditorium but it has been cleaned and disinfected. There are gaps around the foundation caused by rising water that need to be filled.

Another building was the Kennedy Center located on the causeway that flooded before Marina Bay in North Quincy. The building itself did not flood, the mayor said. Boilers in the building were raised after flooding caused by the Jan. 4th storm.

"Any water that made its way into the basement was pumped out," the mayor said. "There was some erosion about the building that will be repaired."

Evacuees were transported to shelters at Quincy High School and the Atherton Hough School. A third shelter was set up at the Squantum Elementary School but was not utilized by any displaced residents.

Koch said the city was well-prepared for the storm.

In advance of the start of the storm Friday morning, Fire Department ladder trucks were placed in Houghs Neck and Squantum in anticipation of any flooding that cut off access to those peninsula neighborhoods. Extra ambulances and DPW vehicles were also stationed in those coastal locations.

"We wanted to make sure they were well protected in the event of a fire or medical emergency," the mayor said. "We thought through all those potential situations that could happen and I thought we were well-prepared as such as we possibly could be."

The MBTA also sent buses to the command stations so evacuees would warm up after being transported to dry ground. "Did they need a ride to a shelter, were they meeting family? It was well-coordinated and everyone just did their thing."

"Overall, I don't think we could have been better prepared as a city. I couldn't be more proud of our city personnel and contractors and those people who helped us. The Red Cross, Brewster Ambulance, Salvation Army and stores and restaurants helped out with food and other assistance.

"We had two National Guard units and then we got three more. We had them for 36 hours. They assisted us with the evacuations with big trucks that sit up way high that can go through four feet of water."

One impact in the aftermath of the storm could be raised seawalls in Quincy, the mayor said.

"We are definitely looking at that. We got a grant from the governor this past year just under a half million dollars to look at the seawall along Merrymount and Adams Shore towards Houghs Neck and that is one of the issues we are talking about," the mayor said.

"We're going to rebuild the seawall - how high should it go for purposes of dealing with storms? But then you have to balance it with 'Ok, you're along private property. They're going to start losing their views and access to the beach. That's something we will try to work through with com-

Relief Fund, Benefit To Aid Storm Victims

Mayor Thomas Koch and Ward 1 City Councillor David McCarthy announce the creation of a relief fund to benefit victims of this week's devastating storm and a community fundraiser for the effort at 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 13 hosted at Alba Restaurant by owner Leo Keka.

Checks can be made payable to the "Quincy Storm Relief Fund" and mailed c/o Eastern Bank, 34 Chapman St., Quincy, MA 02170. Monetary donations will also be accepted at the door of the event.

A local non-profit organization will be designated to administer the fund, and all proceeds will benefit residents severely impacted by flood damage caused by the weekend storm.

"The assistance a lot of our neighbors are going to need most in the coming days and weeks will be financial to help pay for everyday necessities, and that's the goal of this effort," Koch and McCarthy said in a statement.

Storm Costs Meeting

Koch cautioned that the cost to fix city infrastructure could increase. Sewer and drain lines still need to be inspected, he said, which requires the use of cameras.

"As we continue to assess and go out there, that number may go up," the mayor said. "Sewer lines, drain lines, those take longer to look at and assess because you need to TV line them."

The Quincy Fire and Police Departments and the National Guard had to evacuate more than 500 people during the storm because of coastal flooding, Koch said, including 100 emergency evacuations. There were no storm-related deaths or major injuries in Quincy — the nor'easter caused at least eight deaths along the East Coast.

"We thank God we had no loss of life or major injuries due to the event; however, there is a lot of distress in a lot of homes particularly in Ward 1 as we speak," Koch said.

Koch said he would seek to restore the position of director of emergency management in the new fiscal year's budget in response to this month's storm and a Jan. 4 nor'easter that also caused coastal flooding and left the city under up to 18 inches of snow. Presently, the city's fire chief is also tasked with overseeing emergency management.

"It's become an expertise these days, emergency management, and I think we need that at this point," Koch said of having a separate emergency manager. "It's been a rough winter with these two storms and I don't think it's going to be any easier going forward."

In addition, Koch said city officials would have to make difficult decisions regarding the rebuilding of coastal defenses. The city has been in the process of designing new sea walls along Quincy Bay from Adams Shore to Houghs Neck for a year.

"The ocean is getting angrier and the sea level is rising and we have to deal with that and we have to make some tough decisions as a community," Koch said.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy, who represents the areas hardest-hit by last week's nor'easter, visited the Post Island Road neighborhood over the weekend and again on Monday.

"There were some devastating scenery down there to say the least," McCarthy said. "We haven't had one of these in a while that did the type of damage that the mayor talked about this evening."

The Houghs Neck community, McCarthy added, takes care of each other and no one impacted by the storm would be forgotten.

"Houghs Neck — I grew up down there — they're a resilient, spirited bunch," he said. "They want to get things done and they take care of each other. We'll definitely move forward and we're not going to forget anybody."

Ward 6 Councillor William Harris, who represents Squantum and parts of North Quincy, said there were some flooding issues in his district in the vicinity of Quincy Shore Drive.

"We did have some flooding; some houses did get some flooding," he said in a phone interview earlier Monday. "There were a lot of folks — particularly on Quincy Shore Drive and the streets off of Quincy Shore Drive — that were affected."

Harris said the neighborhoods he represents fared better during last week's storm than during the one on Jan. 4.

"For the most part Ward 6 held up, considering we're usually the hardest hit. People watched social media, watched the news, and did a good job paying attention to things," Harris said.

"I don't think it was as bad as the one in January," he added. "That one may have caught us off guard and we weren't ready for it."

Register O'Donnell Highlights Customer Service Center

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds consumers the answers to their land document questions are just a phone call away by dialing the Customer Service Center at (781) 461-6101.

The department is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"The Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center is a single point of contact for Norfolk County homeowners and institutional users who have land related document questions," O'Donnell said. "These questions can include confirming the current ownership of a particular property, or verifying if a discharge of a property's mortgage has been filed after the loan has been paid off.

The Registry's customer service representatives are glad to help with any inquiry, whether you come through our doors or call us by phone."

Register O'Donnell said "The department can also inform customers about the various state imposed fees for filing land documents. Also, upon a customer's request, whether it's by visiting us here at the Registry or by a direct mail request, we can provide copies of land documents for a fee of $1 per page. An additional $1 per document for postage will be charged if the request for copies is by mail. The Registry only accepts cash or check payments."

In addition, the Customer Service Center staff has been trained to answer questions about the Homestead Act, a law which provides limited protection against the forced sale of a homeowner's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000. You can download a copy of the Homestead Act by going to the Registry's website.

"For many people, trying to ascertain information about land documents can be a very frustrating and intimidating experience," O'Donnell said. "Please know our customer service staff is well-versed in all areas of land document research. By utilizing our state-of-the-art land document research system, which is also available via www.norfolkdeeds.org, people can get answers to their property questions."

Notary services are also offered by the Customer Service Center.

"Multiple staff members are available to notarize land documents. We are more than happy to do so provided the person requesting the service appears before us and presents satisfactory proof of identification by showing either their driver's license or passport," O'Donnell said.

"Providing first-class customer service is a core objective of the Registry mission. We strive to ensure our customers have a positive experience when interacting with us. The bottom line is: We are here to be of service to you," O'Donnell added.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High Street in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org. Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or email registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

BARBARA GRACEFFA

Ask Barbara Graceffa: 'Secretary Of The Interior' 'Man Caves' And Other Happy Places

As a huge fan of HGTV, I have to ask: What's this obsession with "man caves?" My husband has lived without one for almost 40 years. Besides, I'd like to turn a spare bedroom into a room of my own. Betty Never mind the man caves, instead, learn from them. In this instance: Hoorah for woman's lib!

Long before the term "lady cave" (or "she shed" for a backyard casita) entered the vernacular, Chris Casson Madden wrote a 1997 decorating book, A Room of Her Own. She encouraged and celebrated a woman's quiet place pronouncing it as "personal, for nurturing her body, mind, and spirit."

Whether you find a quiet corner to place an easy chair and floor lamp for a reading nook, or remodel a four-season porch into a pottery studio or sewing room, or create a tranquil meditation space in a spare bedroom, go for it; you deserve it.

Depending on the function of the room, furnish and decorate accordingly. Surround yourself with what makes you either peaceful or energetic, creative or reflective, or even a place to take a nap.

My "happy place" is my sewing room – a place I have carved out of a very long bedroom. There you will often find a client's quilted wall hanging or window treatment project in progress as well as pretty baskets of quilt patterns, clippings from decorating magazines, and my trusty sewing machine, ironing board, and cutting table standing ready for my next adventure.

From time to time, you mention offering classes. Please tell us more.

Beginning March 21, I will offer three classes for Braintree Community Education at Braintree High School. This spring's line-up includes Interior Decorating Basics (8 weeks), Downsizing and Decluttering (4 weeks) and Home Staging (1 week). Learn more on the My Classes page of my website.

New Residential Parking Plan Sought

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new residential parking program may soon become a reality in Quincy, said one city councillor.

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain on Feb. 26 introduced a resolution seeking the establishment of what he called a "real residential parking program." The resolution asks Mayor Thomas Koch to present councillors with a new parking program before the start of council hearings to review the city's fiscal year 2019 budget in May. The resolution was referred to the council's ordinance committee.

Speaking at the Feb. 26 meeting, Cain said the city's current parking program is enforced only on an ad hoc basis.

"I call it a real residential parking program because currently I think we have a fake one. I think it's one that's not enforced," Cain said. "You have overnight parking rules that are not enforced. We have ad hoc parking situations that you have to call the police and our traffic department in order to enforce."

Cain said he has been working with officials within Koch's administration on the new program, including Chris Walker, the mayor's representative to the council. Cain said he has also been working with Chris Cassani, who in January was appointed the new director of the city's Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Light Department.

"We're now on the way to making this a reality," Cain said. "I just wanted to outline this expression from the council that we would work steadfastly to acquire and develop a residential parking program that will encompass the city and its various neighborhoods that need this."

Following the meeting, Walker said the administration has been talking with Cain on the matter and would be happy to work with the councillor on a full plan.

"We've been working with the councillor for some time now developing some initial concepts and we're happy to take that to the next level with the full plan," Walker said. "That was part of our discussions with the councillor going back several months relative to the whole pedestrian, transportation, parking master plan, so we're happy to do that."

NeighborWorks Offering Homebuyers Workshop Online, April 7

NeighborWorks Southern Mass. will offer a two-part workshop for first-time homebuyers in Quincy.

The first part of the course will be taken online; following completion of the online component, participants will attend an in-person class on April 7 from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Winter Gardens-Basement Community Room, 45 Winter St., Quincy.

The in-person workshop will give participants an opportunity to meet and hear from real estate brokers, attorneys and loan originators. Attendees also will have an opportunity to learn about NeighborWorks' down payment assistance programs and speak to a lender about different mortgage options.

The registration fee for the workshop is $20 per person. To register and pay online, visit www.nwsoma.org or call (617) 770-2227 x65 for more information.

Volunteers Assemble Hundreds Of Easter Baskets

For ISS Food Pantry Clients

Surrounded by a sea of chocolate bunnies, colorful plastic eggs, pastel paper grass and small toys, a group of volunteers recently gathered at Interfaith Social Services to assemble more than 400 Easter baskets.

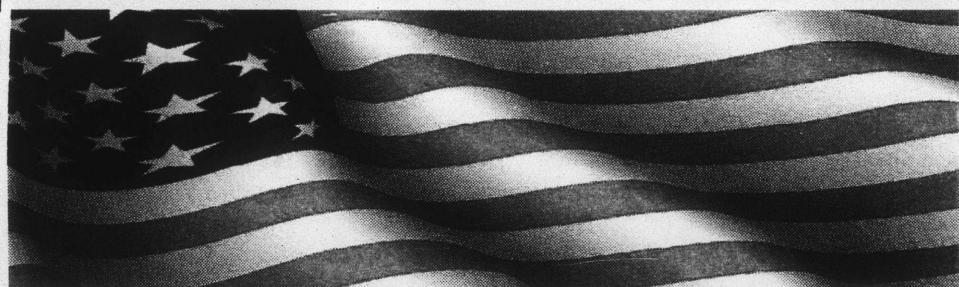

At the annual family volunteer event, two dozen volunteers, ages 3-74, assembled brightly colored Easter baskets for the children of Interfaith's food pantry clients. The baskets brighten the lives of children who may be living in difficult circumstances and are enthusiastically received each year by families of all religions.

Interfaith operates one of the largest emergency food programs in Greater Boston. Their seasonal initiatives, such as the Easter Basket Program, Halloween Costume Drive and Help for the Holidays gift program, bring happiness to hundreds of children on the South Shore living in tough situations.

Interfaith's Easter Basket Program is supported by donations from local individuals and businesses, including the Rotary Club of Braintree, Baker, Braverman & Barbadoro, P.C., Bank of Canton, Signet Electronic Systems and many more.

Bricks for Veterans Program

Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

Presidents Hockey Achieves Goal, Future Bright

The Quincy High Hockey team met a major objective when qualifying for this year's MIAA hockey tournament. Although the Presidents were eliminated in the first round by third seeded Plymouth South 3-1, the program is extremely optimistic about the future and excited about the progress the young team made this season.

Objectives lead to goals, and the end goal of QHS hockey program stretches far beyond only making the post season.

The team came up just shy of advancing in this year's tournament, losing to league rival and third seeded Plymouth South 3-1 at the Gallo Arena in Bourne. The Panthers scored with just over two minutes to play in the final period and eventually sealed a 3-1 victory with an empty net goal.

Junior goalie Dan Murphy was again instrumental in keeping Quincy in the game with several solid saves. After Plymouth took the lead on an early second period goal, Quincy tied the game at 1-1 just before the end of the period. The goal, scored by junior and tri-captain Danny O'Leary, came on the power play. O'Leary, who was buzzing with the puck all night, streaked down the left side and fired a wrister over the Plymouth goaltender's shoulder into the top corner of the net.

The teams went back and forth trading scoring chances in the third period, but the Presidents could not find the back of the net. The loss, although disappointing for the Presidents, capped of a successful 11-9-2 season. With only one senior graduating, the QHS hockey future is very bright.

The season started hot for the Presidents, coming out of the gate with a 5-1-1 record. Included in those first seven games was an eye opening win against an always strong league oppo-

Quincy High Basketball Teams Bow In Tournament

Boys Reach Quarterfinals After Defeating Marshfield; Girls Fall To Bishop Feehan

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High boys basketball team was in control for nearly all of their playoff bout with the Marshfield Rams last Wednesday.

The No. 11 Presidents (15-6) shot well, were stout defensively and stayed composed as they topped the No. 6 Marshfield Rams (14-5), 64-58, in the first round of the MIAA Division 1 South playoffs on the road.

With the win, the Presidents advanced to the Div. 1 South quarterfinal against the No. 3 Brockton Boxers on Saturday, Mar. 3. The Presidents lost the contest against Brockton on the road, 72-64.

"We were determined," Presidents head coach Dave Parry said following the Marshfield victory. "We came out with a lot of energy offensively and defensively. We got a little scratchy at the end, but Marshfield's a great team, well coached, and we were lucky to make a few plays at the end there."

"The kids really worked hard against a great Marshfield team," he added. "I thought the kids really scrapped and played hard."

The Presidents were in the lead for the entire first half, although Marshfield was able to take the lead briefly in the second half. They hit a 3-pointer on the first shot of the half to go up, 32-31. From there, there were a few lead changes in the quarter, but the Presidents were able to pull away as the quarter progressed.

In the final 2:30 of the third quarter, the Presidents went on a 10-0 run, giving them a healthy 49-40 lead; this surge was propelled by baskets from two point range and free throws from Damyan Markov (12 points) and Brenden Fitzpatrick (14 points).

Marshfield came back with some fight in the fourth quarter and was able to make it a competitive until the finish. They made it a 4-point game two minutes into the fourth quarter with a 3-pointer, cutting the Presidents to 54-50.

Midway through the quarter, the Presidents managed to force back-to-back turnovers, resulting in baskets from Markov and Will Zarges (19 points, 15 rebounds) which gave the team a 60-52 lead. The Presidents were able to protect that lead by playing tough on defense. That also pressured Marshfield into trying to take shots from deep late in the game; they missed all five of their 3-point attempts in the final two minutes of the game, so they were unable to make the comeback.

"We grew together in difficult times," Zarges said. "We've had a lot of close games against good competition and I think that helped us close this one out."

At the start of the game, the Presidents were undoubtedly the dominant team. The team went up 15-4 a few minutes into the game following a pair of 3-pointers from Zarges. The Presidents showed off their athleticism and were able to force turnovers.

After that, Marshfield fought back hard by finishing the first quarter and opening the second quarter with baskets to make it a 16-12 game. From that point forward, the second quarter was essentially a stalemate, however, Marshfield got the advantage because they closed it out with a layup as time expired to cut their deficit to 31-29.

With the win, the Presidents advanced to the Div. 1 South quarterfinal against the No. 3 Brockton Boxers on Saturday, Mar. 3. The Presidents lost the contest against Brockton on the road, 72-64.

Now, the Presidents are set to lose seven players from their senior class to graduation, leaving a few openings in their starting lineup. Seniors on this year's Presidents team included: Melvin Gonzalez, Robert Andre, Brenden Fitzpatrick, Damyan Markov, Remy Chebbo, Danny Keegan, and Christian Falco.

On the girls side, the Quincy High School girls were bounced from the Div. 1 South sectional tournament last Wednesday night bowing to Bishop Feehan 42-32 on the road. Offensively, Quincy, the 9th seed, JUNIOR FORWARD Will Zarges led the Presidents with 19 points including five three-pointers in Quincy's 64-58 win over Marshfield March 1. Quincy - the 11th seed - topped the Rams - the 4th seed - and advanced to the quarterfinals against 3-seed Brockton. The Boxers ended the Presidents march in the playoffs with a 72-64 win over Quincy last Saturday.

was led by Ally McMorrow and Juliana Tracey who each scored 10 points.

Quincy (13-7) struggled to find the basket early falling behind 12-2 in the first quarter. Their shooting woes continued throughout the second as Feehan pushed out to a 22-9 lead at the half.

Quincy refused to lie down and fought hard throughout the second half cutting the lead to as few as seven points early in the fourth period. Unfortunately, they could get no closer and had to foul intentionally at the end. Feehan was able to hold on for the 10-point victory.

The defensive effort of senior captain Liana Cunningham and sophomore guard Jillian O'Toole led the comeback. Tracey's 10 points in the second half keyed the run.

BABC To Honor High School Coaching Legend Bob Fisher Sunday

Boston Amateur Basketball Club (BABC) will be honoring Massachusetts high school coaching legend, and current Marshfield High Boys Basketball Coach Bob Fisher with the "BABC Lifetime Achievement/Friend of Game Award."

The 5th Annual Award will be presented to Fisher at a gathering on Sunday, March 11, at 4:30 p.m. at ALBA Restaurant, 1486 Hancock St., Quincy.

Fisher has won over 620 games as a high school head coach.

Previous recipients of the award include: Dee Rowe (Worcester Academy/UConn), George "Trigger" Burke (Quincy HS/UMass Amherst), Joe Amorosino (Quincy HS), and Bo Ruggerio (Medfield, Taunton, Foxboro, Cohasset HS).

Fisher, a 1960 graduate of Quincy High School, and 1961 graduate of Newman Prep, went on to play at Bentley University, where he was a member of the Class of 1965, and the first team captain for Coach Al Shields in the 1964-65 season. He remained at Bentley as an assistant coach for two seasons, before going to Rockland High School as an assistant in 1968, eventually being appointed the head coach at Rockland in 1969.

Fisher served three tours as head coach at Rockland (1969-1979, 1989-1994, 1996-2004.) He won a total of two state titles at Rockland, the first ever MIAA D2 State Title in 1972, and the MIAA D3 State Title in 2004. Fisher was also promoted to the athletic director at Rockland High in 1979.

Since his last State Title in 2004, he has served as head coach at Quincy High School from 2004-2008, and in his current position at Marshfield High School since 2008.

Tickets are a $25 donation, and available by contacting babc@me.com

They include the meal at ALBA and game admission for the BABC vs. South Select Games to be held on Thursday, March 15th at Quincy High School. Quincy High alum and current Quincy College Head Coach Doug Scott will coach the South Select teams.

SEARING FACIAL PAIN

When there is the experience of brief, sharp pain across the face that seems as if it were an electrical shock, the problem is most likely "trigeminal neuralgia." The pain, which may occur intermittently over the course of a few days, is caused by compression of the trigeminal nerve that is located on each side of the face. In the majority of cases, the compression is caused by a nearby blood vessel that presses against the nerve root. Less commonly, the nerve may be compressed by tumors, cysts, or blood vessel malformation. It is also possible that trigeminal neuralgia may result from a misalignment of the upper cervical spine, in which case chiropractic treatment can help.

Your health goes far beyond

PUBLIC NOTICE
2018 - 060

Presently pending in the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council to be passed at a later date:

BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Quincy that of the Quincy Municipal Code be further amended as follows:

By adding Chapter 5.38. — Regulation of Hotel/Motels:

I. Definitions: As used in this section a hotel or motel is a building or group of buildings used to provide sleeping accommodations to transient persons, whether or not food is available.

II. License Required: No person or entity shall operate a hotel or motel without a license granted by the License Board in accordance with the provisions of Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 140 Section 32B and the provisions of this ordinance. Application for license shall be in a form approved by the License Board and shall be accompanied by an application fee of $75.00. A fee of $250.00 shall be due and payable upon issuance of a license.

III. Minimum Requirements for Licensing: The License Board may issue or reissue a license to operate a hotel or motel only if it finds: that a register of renters is kept in accordance with the provisions of Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 140 Section 27 and this ordinance;

A. that accommodations meet the minimum standards for human habitability, as contained in Chapter 2 of the state Sanitary Code;

B. that the rules and regulations for rental are reasonably designed to protect the health, safety, welfare and peaceful quiet enjoyment of renters and the surrounding area;

C. that the premises are equipped with an operational video surveillance and recording system deployed to the satisfaction of the Police Department so as to make visible all interior common areas, including but not limited to lobbies, stairwells, hallways, and elevators and all exterior grounds, walkways, parking areas and public sidewalks surrounding the premises. For re-issuance of a license, that the hotel or motel has, during the preceding 12 months, substantially complied with the Minimum Standards of Operations contained in this ordinance

D. all hotels and motels will be required to have a satisfactory annual review of security practices and procedures by the Quincy Police Department to ensure minimum standards of public safety.

II. Minimum Standards of Operation: The owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall comply with the following minimum standards of operation

A. No person shall be allowed to rent accommodations without providing suitable identification at the time of registration, a copy of which shall be retained with the record of registration. As used herein, suitable identification shall mean a government issued photo identification, including but not limited to a state issued motor vehicle operator's license, passport, or military identification.

B. No person shall be allowed to rent accommodations with cash.

C. The true name of all persons occupying rented accommodations shall be listed on the register at the time of registration. Any person who remains in a room after midnight (12 A.M.) shall be presumed to be an occupant.

D. The owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall immediately, upon notice that a registration was incomplete or inaccurate, terminate the rental agreement and evict from the premises all persons occupying the room for which such incomplete or inaccurate registration was provided;

E. No owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall knowingly permit the premises to be used for any illegal purpose, including but not limited to those purposes outlined in Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 140 Section 26;

F. No owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall allow occupancy by any person if he knows or has reason to know that the person has engaged in illegal activity during a past period of occupancy on the premises. For purpose of this section, notification from the police department that an arrest for illegal activity has been made during a period of occupancy shall create a presumption that illegal activity has occurred; provided that said presumption may be refuted by evidence that charges were subsequently dismissed;

G. The owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall take all steps reasonable and necessary to insure that video surveillance and recording equipment is in good working order at all times;

H. Video surveillance records shall be retained a minimum of 30 days from the day of creation;

I. The owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall, upon request, provide immediate access to registration information and video surveillance recordings to any person empowered to enforce this ordinance;

J. No owner or operator of a hotel or motel shall allow or permit renters or occupants to create a public nuisance, as defined in Chapter 9.08 Offenses Against Public Peace and Decency, on the premises.

III. Enforcement: Provisions of this ordinance may be enforced by members of the police department, the Inspectional Services Department, and the Board of Health and its agents and employees.

The provisions of this ordinance shall not limit the authority of police officers to make arrests for any criminal offense arising out of conduct regulated herein, nor shall they limit the City of Quincy's or the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' ability to initiate and prosecute any criminal offense arising out of the same circumstances necessitating the application of any provision of this Ordinance.

The Police Chief may, when he/she deems it necessary for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this ordinance, post a police detail or details on the premises of a licensed hotel or motel, the cost of which shall be charged to the license holder. Penalties for Violation: Violations of the provisions of this ordinance may be punished in the manner provided in Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 40 Section 21D by imposition of a fine of $300.00 per offense. Each 24 hour period during which a violation exists shall be a separate violation, punishable by an additional fine.

The License Board may, at any time on its own motion, and shall, at the request of the police department, hold a public hearing relative to suspension or revocation of a license granted under this ordinance. A minimum of three days written notice of said hearing shall be provided to the license holder, delivered to the licensed premises, and shall specify the reasons for the hearing.

The License Board shall suspend or revoke any license where it finds that the license holder has failed to substantially comply with the provisions of this ordinance. Three uncontested citations or adjudicated violations in any 12 month period shall be prima facie evidence of failure to substantially comply with this ordinance.

For purposes of implementation of this ordinance, all licensed hotels/motels shall install video surveillance equipment within 90 days of passage of this ordinance.

A copy of this order may be examined at the Office of the City Clerk, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA Monday through Friday during regular working hours 8:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M.

nent Pembroke. The middle stretch of the season saw the team lose to always tough Duxbury and Scituate teams, but also add to its win column, helping the post season picture come more into focus. A tourney birth was clinched on February 10th in a thrilling 2-1 home victory over Whitman-Hanson that came right down to the wire.

Quincy's goalie Dan Murphy, a Patriot League All-Star, had a strong Junior season for the team (11 wins, 2.5 GAA), making countless key saves keeping the team in games that eventually led to wins. Junior Griffin Lynch (8-16-24), Patriot League MVP, was the team's best two-way player, bolstering the defense and playing a key transitional role on the team's offensive end.

The offense was led by junior Danny O'Leary, scoring 17 goals and totaling 28 points on the way to being named a Patriot League All-Star. Jason Whalen also had a strong junior season scoring 11 goals and always bringing a physical game for the Presidents. The "white line" of junior AJ Currie (13 points) and sophomores Ryan Quirk (10 points) and Tommy MacPherson brought needed energy shifts and penalty kills throughout the year.

Sophomore Jack O'Brien was the team's most improved player as the season unfolded. O'Brien, returning after injury his freshman year, worked his way up through the line-up, centering the third line to start the season and ending up in the middle on the number one unit. He also played on the power-play and was the team's "go to" face-off center.

On the defensive end complementing Lynch, Brendan Bailey considered an experienced Sophomore, logged heavy minutes protecting the President's end. Bailey, a tri-captain always set the tone with his effort, attitude and leadership by example. In the other defensive pairing, senior Ryan Larsen and junior Bobby Dunn defended the Quincy end with a combination of physical play and effective decision making. Freshmen Donovan Murray and Ryen Lawton got some needed varsity time and will be counted on the backline next year. Juniors Eamonn Mayo and Colin MacDonald played team roles this year and will also be counted on to add depth to the Presidents defense next year.

Forwards who also had strong seasons and gained valuable varsity experience were: junior Nick Murray, sophomores: Ryan Burgin, Jake DeFranco, Riley O'Connor, Joe Murphy and Nick Buonopane. Jake McGahey and Matt Sheridan are poised to make a run at more varsity shifts next season. Matt Connolly was a solid back up for Murphy in goal and could make a run at the starting job next year. Nolan Walker was injured this year, but could also be a contender for next year's goaltender spot.

The program would like to thank senior Ryan Larsen for his dedication to hockey. For his four years Ryan consistently worked hard and did whatever the coaches asked of him. His quiet, lead by example style, couple with his physical play will make him difficult to replace. Ryan went out playing possibly his best career game in his final game for the Presidents. His coaches and teammates will miss him. Presidents Hockey wishes Ryan the best of luck in the future.

Palmucci Seeks New Hotel Regulations

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci has proposed new regulations for hotels and motels operating in Quincy, which would ban cash-only rentals and require patrons renting rooms to show government-issued identification.

Palmucci introduced the ordinance with the new rules for hotel and motel operators at Monday's City Council meeting. The item was referred to the ordinance committee for future consideration.

The regulations would prohibit guests from renting rooms with cash and would require the guest to show government-issued ID — such as a passport, driver's license or military ID — when renting a room. Innkeepers would be required to keep a log of all guests — defined as those staying past midnight.

The regulations would also require hotel and motel operators take reasonable steps to ensure surveillance cameras are working, retain video footage for at least 30 days, and provide immediate access to the footage when requested by police. If the measures were approved, all hotels and motels would have 90 days to install video surveillance equipment.

Innkeepers would also be required to meet annually with police to discuss security policy and procedures.

Palmucci, while introducing his proposal, said he wants to create a minimum standard for all hotels and motels to meet.

"Very briefly, this is an ordinance that would set a minimum set of standards for hotels/motels that operate in the city," he said.

"Basically, it's a long-winded way of saying four things: We won't allow cash-only transactions, guests must show an ID, and video cameras must be functional, and the fourth is that every hotel and motel operator must meet with Quincy police once a year to go over their safety protocols.

"I see it as a very minimum standard currently we don't have."

Beth Shalom-Blue Hills Collecting Formal Wear

As part of its Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will be collecting prom and bridesmaids dresses and formal wear for women, and tuxedos and business wear for men, at the synagogue on Thursday, March 15th from 1-5 p.m. and from 6-7:30 p.m.

The formal wear collection is being conducted in partnership with Tammi's Closet in Amesbury, an organization that provides prom dresses, tuxedos and business wear for young ladies and gentlemen who may not be able to purchase them. Gently used formal and business wear can be brought to Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton, and all donations from the community are greatly appreciated.

The synagogue's Mitzvah Program, operating under the Jewish tenet that "performing good deeds is an obligation," hopes to provide service to the community by both congregants and wider community members, and will include and involve others, including schools, houses of worship and organizations.

For more information about the synagogue's "Third Thursday Community Service Mitzvah Program," please call 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

On Feb. 25, 2018, at approximately 7:30 p.m., Officers John McGowan and David Levine were dispatched to the area of 116 Taylor St. for a report of a motor vehicle that left the roadway and crashed into a tree stump. The caller stated the doors of the vehicle were wide open but no one was inside.

Upon arrival, Officer McGowan observed a Dodge Caravan on the sidewalk with its hazard lights on. There was a strong odor of gasoline. The vehicle rested atop a tree stump and the rear driver's side tire was bent in at an angle. The officer observed that just the driver's door was open and there were no keys in the ignition. On the floor was a prescription bottle for Suboxone. The name matched that of the owner of the vehicle.

While Officer McGowan awaited a tow for the vehicle, a call came in to communications about 15 minutes later that there was a man on the ground at the Wollaston train station parking lot. The caller stated the male fell face down and then got up and continued to walk.

Sergeant J.P. Kelly and Officers Levine and Mark Milane responded to the area along with Brewster Ambulance. Moments later, Sergeant Kelly radioed that he located a male staggering across the parking lot. When approached, the male told the sergeant that he was just in a car accident. The male had a Dodge key in his possession. The male was the owner of the Dodge Caravan. The officers involved in this incident were all familiar with the male from past criminal incidents.

Officer Levine waited for the tow truck while Officer McGowan responded to the Wollaston train station to further interview the male. The Officer noted the male had bloodshot eyes and his speech was erratic, however there was no odor of alcohol coming from his breath. It appeared the male was under the influence of a drug.

The male denied that he was driving, claiming that it was his brother who was in the accident. When asked why he walked away from the accident scene, he claimed he was looking for help. At the time he was in the parking lot, there were two marked and occupied Transit Police patrol cars there.

Officer McGowan then asked the male if he would perform field sobriety tests. Once he consented, the male was asked to walk on a painted straight line in the parking lot heel to toe, then turn around and walk back. The male stumbled several times to the right and did not walk heel to toe.

The male then tried the one leg balance test, failed by stumbling several times and could not keep his arms by his side. The male was asked to say the alphabet and he was able to say every letter at a very slow pace. After a check with the Registry of Motor Vehicles, it was determined that the male's license was suspended.

Based on the officers' observations, the male, a 34-year-old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of drugs, operating a motor vehicle after license suspension and leaving the scene after an accident, causing property damage.

Nice Work!

TOP FRAUD IN 2017

In 2017, the top fraud was imposter scams, with nearly 1 in 5 people reporting that they lost money. A total of $328 million was lost to someone pretending to be a loved one in trouble, a government official, tech support or someone else who's not who they say they are, but just want to take your money. There were fewer debt collection scam reports but it is still the top category. Credit card fraud tops the list and continues to grow. Reports of tax fraud are down, but thousands were victimized.

Residents Share Their Love For St. Yves School Students

By MARIE-DENISE
FABIEN

The Christmas celebration of Saint Yves School Haiti took place on Dec. 21. It was a magnificent event thanks to the generosity of the Quincy residents.

Last December we traveled to Haiti, especially to participate in the festivities at St. Yves. At the beginning of 2018 we flew to the USA. We were greeted by wonderful neighbors, friends.

We were also saluted by a very frigid and snowy winter, along with shocking insults, all over the news about Haiti, made during the immigration debate. A time of painful memories for us Haitians, the 8th year anniversary of the terrible earthquake which killed 316,000 of our countrymen on Jan. 12, 2010, turned into a time of disrespect and profound humiliation.

As a Haitian and a Quincy resident, we come from a very beautiful Caribbean country, ravaged by natural catastrophe and poverty. We come to America without a letter of recommendation. "The only letter of recommendation we need is you yourselves." (2 Cor. 2:3).

In general, 99 percent of Haitians who come to the USA are achievers and faithful. Our people work hard, often two, three jobs, to send our children to the best schools and universities.

We pay taxes, we invest and contribute the economic growth and expansion of America. We share our joyful smiles with all in order to spread shalom, the peace of our city of migration. Our letter of recommendation is the "love of God and of your neighbors" written in the hearts, the good Samaritans of Quincy who welcomed us.

They are Quincy residents like Mr. Tom Diango, realtors like Mr. Jim Spiliaklos, Mr. Jim McGuire, Mr. Arthur Foley; clergy like the late Fr. Heary, Deacon Selanious; contractors Mr. Bill Kennedy, plumber Mr. Frank Moody, the Mullen family, Cindy, Michelle, Jerry; Sacred Heart parishioners Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pisterino, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Raux, Mr. and Mrs. Edie Charlie Donovan, Mrs. Rose Myzeck, our neighbors, Mr. Marc Kerry, Mr. and Mrs. McGee, Mrs. Mrs. Huang, the late Leo Hinkley and so many more.

Our letter of recommendation is written in the hearts of the Quincy residents who are helping us rebuild St. Yves School Haiti since the earthquake in 2010. The school was founded by my father, the late Attorney Joseph Fabien and his friend Osias Semovil, also an attorney. It collapsed in the 2010 earthquake, killing children and adults, including the janitor and his children.

When we did not receive any money from any organization who collected money for Haitian victims, the people of Quincy answered to help.

A Quincy resident named Mrs. Gail McDonald along with some parents at Cornerstone Campus in Wollaston namely Cathy Shamus, Page Riley Cathy, Ruth McConville, Connor and wife etc., where my daughter was attending kindergarten came forward to help us bury the dead.

The Saint Yves School Foundation, a nonprofit organization, was thus created. Through a series of events we raised money to level the building and bury the dead. That painful process took us nine months. Since then Mrs. Gail McDonald traveled to Haiti with us and also helps realize the yearly event at Christmas at the school. She coordinates the annual fundraising in May at the Knight of Columbus in North Quincy.

Today, the school is reopened and runs in one floor and 12 rooms. It welcomes 250 students, three days a week; we feed these children. There are 60 students who attend the school free of charge, thanks to Quincy residents and businesses who help pay their teachers. Thanks to Mrs. Tita Fabien and to the principal, Jacques Robert Jean Louis. Our goal is to welcome 500 students at building completion and help our graduate attend college.

In the summer of 2017, we began to collect backpacks and toys for St. Yves. Thanks to donations from Mrs. Marianne Collins and the North Quincy High School Interact students of many Quincy residents Attorney George Burke, Attorney Robert Dolbec, Mrs. Julie Berberan, Father Finn, Father Macos, Sunrise Assisting living in Braintree, Mrs. Denise Reneghan, Mrs. Susan Bill, QATV Mrs. Christine Leblanc, Susan Lynn and Bernazanni School, Walgreens manager Diane, Walmart manager Jeff, CVS Manager, Stop and Shop Kerry, Haitian Consulate Comeback Physical Therapy Manager Amy, Mrs. Jill Reamer, Pastor Daniel Leen, Mrs. Elsie Laguerre, Mrs. Marie Dyer, Mrs. Marie Brady, Mr. Mrs. Fran Sullivan, etc. we acquired 300 backpacks. We shipped them to Haiti with the help of Eagle Shipping line.

On Dec. 21, the event began with Father Lucien of our home parish Sacred Heart of Port-au-Prince, who came to bless the children. A huge amount of tasty food was distributed to all. The children sang Christmas tunes under a warm sunny firmament.

At about 10:30, Santa Claus came full of gifts and backpacks thanks to Quincy. He made a lavish distribution of 300 backpacks to all the 250 students and gifts. The national T.V., TNH, came and we shared with the people of Haiti the loving kindness of the people of Quincy, Mass. The teachers and also the staff each received gifts with a money envelope everyone had a gift.

It was joyful event. Everyone received money, enough to have a meal with their family at Christmas. Sadly, the same day we were affected by the loss of our parish priest, Father Simonise of Sacred Heart in Port-au-Prince. We ask for your prayers for his soul to rest in peace.

Our thanks to all who welcome us in Quincy, and to all who remember St

Yves school in their will. Our thanks to all who participated in this great labor of love which is an awesome example of love to follow globally. You are banking in heaven, you are also sowing seeds that will last for many generations.

May God bless the people of Quincy and the people of Haiti abundantly. Haiti and St Yves School will rise from tail to head.

Saint Yves School is a 501 3c non profit. Donations, tax deductible, can be made at Citizen Bank or St Yves School Foundation P.O. Box 60 Wollaston Ma 02170. With God's help and with your help we are rebuilding.

Anne Keating, 84

Funeral services for Anne Keating, 84, were privately held for family members at Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Ms. Keating died peacefully Feb. 18 at her home in Quincy.

She is survived by her loving sister, Jane Keating Latus, of Weymouth.; brother-in-law, Michael Latus; niece, Kathleen Latus, of San Diego, and Kathleen's sons, Kerrick Ryan and Keagan Latus. She is also survived by many cousins and dear friends.

Ms. Keating, the eldest daughter of Amelia Mello and Joseph Keating, was born in Lowell. Like her father, she was a talented artist. She grew up in Boston and graduated from Cathedral High School. After she received a bachelor's degree from D'Youville College in Buffalo, N.Y., she began her career as a teacher. Ms. Keating taught in high schools throughout New England and for the United States Air Force in Europe. She received her master's in education from the University of Massachusetts Boston and a master's degree in library and information science from Simmons College. For many years, Ms. Keating was the Adams Shore Library Branch director. She loved adventure, which included car racing and boating. She was a member of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary and served as their secretary. In her later years, Ms. Keating returned to teaching and librarianship. She retired at Quincy College in 2014.

Ms. Keating had a calling for helping others and performing charitable work. In 1977, while serving on the Quincy Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, Ms. Keating and Joyce Baker created an organization to help battered women and children. In 1978, Ms. Keating named it DOVE, an acronym for Domestic Violence Ends. This year, the organization will be celebrating its 40th year in operation. She was a Mary Kay Beauty consultant for more than 40 years and taught women how to care for their skin, but she also blended her business affiliation with her lifelong altruism. She raised a charitable contribution of $40,000 to DOVE from the Mary Kay Foundation.

Ms. Keating will be the Mass Intention at Saint Jerome Church, Weymouth, at 5 p.m. on March 11. A celebration of life will be held for her in the spring. Details will be posted on her legacy.com tribute page.

Memorial donations may be made to DOVE at dove-ma.org.

Maura J. Cahill, 92

A funeral Mass for Maura J. (Scanlan) Cahill, age 92, of Quincy, formerly of Cork City, Ireland, and Milton, was celebrated March 3 in St. Gregory's Church, Dorchester.

Mrs. Cahill died Feb. 27 surrounded by her loving family.

Born in Athlone, West Meath County, Ireland, she was raised in Cork and came to the United States in 1954. She originally lived in Cambridge, before living in Dorchester and Milton for many years. She was a devoted wife and mother to her 9 children.

A devoted Catholic, Mrs. Cahill was an active Member of St. Gregory Parish in Dorchester and a member of the St. Peter's Mother's Club and Ladies Sodality in Dorchester. She previously worked for the Paulist Center in Boston for many years.

Beloved wife of the late John Cahill. Devoted mother of James J. Cahill and his wife Mary of Hingham, Shaun P. Cahill and his wife Lisa of Sandwich, Mary B. Judge and her husband James of Boston, Donal G. Cahill and his wife Claire of Cohasset, Gerard M. Cahill and his wife Laurie of Sand-

Ilda DiMascio

Funeral services and interment for Ilda DiMascio were privately held.

Ms. DiMascio died Feb. 25, a week shy of her 97th birthday.

She was born in Filetto, Italy, came to the U.S. in 1927, and lived in Quincy for nearly 90 years. She was the daughter of the late Nicola and Concetta DiMascio.

She is survived by her sister Jeanette Mullen of East Bridgewater, and her late brothers, Alberto and twin Camillo (Joe). She also leaves 11 nieces and nephews, 17 great-nieces and nephews, and a great-great niece.

Ms. DiMascio was a caring and dedicated elementary teacher for 40 years, starting at Sacred Heart in Kingston before teaching for 38 years in the Quincy school system. Her legacies are the many students who were fortunate to have been in her classroom. Ms. DiMascio was warmly remembered by her students who described her as amazing, wonderful, and their all-time favorite teacher. One former student summed it up by saying, "She made every student in her class feel special. She had the ability to boost everyone's self-confidence."

Ms. DiMascio spent 15 years as the chairman of the QEA Scholarship Committee and was also a speech therapist. She was very active in her retirement by volunteering in the Quincy Medical Center Gift Shop and playing pinocle or cribbage with her family and friends at the Southern Artery. Ms. DiMascio will be remembered for her hand made floral arrangements she donated to various causes. She will be dearly missed by all.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Marjorie Robinson, 82

A private memorial for Marjorie "Marge" Robinson, 82, of Ogunquit, ME will be held at a later date.

Mrs. Robinson died Jan. 26 at the Frisbie Memorial Hospital in Rochester, NH.

Mrs. Robinson was born on Feb. 6, 1935, in Quincy to parents Edith and Ainar Bredesen. She graduated from North Quincy High School in 1954. She worked for New England Telephone before becoming a full-time wife and mother.

She married Phillip A. Robinson in 1954 and resided in North Quincy for many years. The Robinsons then moved to Ogunquit, ME where they spent many years enjoying the beach, Perkins Cove, the Marginal Way and Barnacle Billy's.

Mrs. Robinson was passionate about all animals and loved her French poodles, Frosty, Buff and Captain Midnight. She excelled at training her dogs at both the South Shore Dog Training Club in Quincy and the Weston Dog Training Club in Weston. Mrs. Robinson won many events all over the Northeast with all three dogs. The highlight of her training career came with a victory in the first-ever obedience National Championship in Oklahoma City. When her training days ended, Mrs. Robinson became an American Kennel Club certified obedience judge, and gained a reputation as one of the top judges in the area.

Over 55,000 New Properties On State's Unclaimed List

Massachusetts State Treasurer Deb Goldberg announces the latest grouping of names that have been added to the state's list of unclaimed property owners. Over 55,000 new properties worth millions of dollars are owed to individuals and businesses throughout the Commonwealth.

"Give us a call," Goldberg said. "We currently hold over $2 billion in unclaimed property at Treasury and it could be yours. One in ten Massachusetts residents are owed money."

Unclaimed property includes forgotten savings and checking accounts, uncashed checks, insurance policy proceeds, stocks, dividends, and the contents of unattended safe deposit boxes. Most accounts are considered abandoned and are turned over to the state after three years of inactivity. Last year, the Treasury returned over $108 million in property to its rightful owners.

This newly released list includes only individuals and businesses with unclaimed property over $100. Treasurer Goldberg urged all citizens to check the comprehensive list for all amounts at www.findmassmoney.com or to call our live call center at 888-344-MASS (6277).

The Treasury releases an updated list of unclaimed property assets every six months as the new accounts are turned over to the Commonwealth. There is no time limit for a person to claim this property and, in many cases, claimants will receive interest.

TERMS OF SALE:

The mortgaged premises is to be sold subject to and with the benefit of all easements, restrictions, covenants, conditions, reservations and agreements of record, to the extent that same are in force and applicable, building and zoning laws, unpaid taxes, tax titles, water bills, municipal liens and assessments, rights of tenants and parties in possession, existing encumbrances, and all other claims in the nature of liens, now existing or hereafter arising, having priority over the Mortgage, if any there be. The mortgaged premises will also be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if any there be.

A deposit of TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND AND 00/100 DOLLARS ($25,000.00) shall be required to be paid to the Mortgagee by certified check or bank cashier's check (cash will not be accepted) at the time and place of the public auction foreclosure sale of the mortgaged premises which deposit shall be increased by the highest bidder to an amount equal to five percent (5%) of the highest bid and paid to the Mortgagee within seven (7) calendar days from the date of the sale. The balance of the purchase price at the sale is to be paid to the Mortgagee by federal funds wire transfer such that it is actually received by the Mortgagee within thirty (30) calendar days from the date of the sale, with time being of the essence. The Mortgagee may, at its option, either sell the mortgaged premises to the second highest bidder at the sale of the mortgaged premises or assume the highest bid should the highest bidder fail to fulfill the highest bidder's obligations under the sales agreement to be entered into with the Mortgagee immediately after the sale. In the event that the highest bidder defaults under such sales agreement and the Mortgagee sells the mortgaged premises to the second highest bidder, the Mortgagee may, at its option, assume the second highest bid should the second highest bidder fail to fulfill its obligations under such sales agreement. No such assumption of the highest or second highest bid or sale of the mortgaged premises by the Mortgagee to such second highest bidder shall relieve the highest or second highest bidder, as applicable, from its obligations under such sales agreement nor operate as a waiver by the Mortgagee of its rights and remedies against the highest or second highest bidder. The description of the premises contained in said mortgage shall control in the event of an error in this publication.

The Mortgagee reserves the right to credit bid at the sale of the mortgaged premises and to postpone the sale by auctioneer's public proclamation. The Mortgagee further reserves the right to change terms of sale at the sale or to add additional terms and to qualify some or all bidders.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the sale.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) With your practical side dominant this week, it's a good time to reassess your finances to see what expenses you can cut. Aspects also favor mending fraying relationships.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine-inspired determination to follow matters through from beginning to end pays off in a big way. Enjoy a well-earned weekend of fun with a special someone.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Aspects favor re-establishing business relationships you might have neglected. A family member's request needs to be given more thought before you make a decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) While you might appreciate the avalanche of advice coming from others, keep in mind that the intuitive Moon Child is best served by listening to her or his own inner voice.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's social life whirls at centrifugal speed this week as you go from function to function. Things slow by week's end, giving you a chance to catch up on your chores.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't let your stand on an issue cause a rift with a colleague. Insist on both of you taking time to reassess your positions while there's still room for compromise.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An opportunity you'd been hoping for finally opens up. But read the fine print before you make a commitment, especially where a time factor might be involved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your need to know what's going on behind the scenes leads you to make some bold moves. Be prepared with a full explanation of your actions if necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A lot of details need tending to during the early part of the week. The pressure eases midweek, allowing you to get back to your major undertaking.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A friend asks you to act on their behalf in a dispute. Be careful. You might not have all the facts you need in order to make a fair assessment of the situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new development might require you to cancel some of your plans. But you adapt easily, and by week's end, you could receive welcome "cheering-up" news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your recent workplace accomplishments boost your self-confidence just as you're about to consider a potentially rewarding, although possibly risky, career move.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your love of the arts is equaled only by your strong sense of justice. People can depend on you to always try to do what's right.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Harrison Ford and Dr. Phil McGraw say they've come up with a pill they claim is better than Viagra for putting lead in a man's pencil. When Ford recently appeared on Dr. Phil's talk show, he told men how they can be as virile as Indiana Jones. Their pill is Vrdhhigra, and they claim it's better than anything out there for erectile dysfunction. Harrison says it's a blend of horny goat, Korean ginseng, potency wood (that sounds like they're kidding!) and other Chinese herbs, but it's their patented TRTT technology that makes these ingredients 185 times greater, and even GQ magazine recommends it.

"Paddington 2" director Paul King is set to reimagine "Charlie & the Chocolate Factory." The original, "Willy Wonka" (1971), with Gene Wilder, cost $3 million but grossed only $4 million. It was remade as "Charlie & the Chocolate Factory" (2005), with Johnny Depp, which did better, costing $150 million and grossing $475 million. Also being "reimagined," by current "Shape of Water" director and Oscar-nominee Guillermo del Toro, is "The Cat in the Hat" (2003) which started Mike Myers.

Bette Midler has completed her record-breaking Broadway run in "Hello Dolly" and now is shooting "The Tale of the Allergists Wife." Bette plays an upper-middle-class Westsider in the midst of a midlife crisis, when her glamorous jet-setting friend, Sharon Stone, arrives to change her life forever.

Sorry to report the loss of my longtime friend and legendary Hollywood publicist Ron Scott. Among the people he discovered and helped make famous were David Hasselhoff, Richard Dean Anderson, John Stamos, Mario Lopez and Jason Bateman. He also launched the popular soap "The Bold and the Beautiful," handling all 30 castmembers. Scott discovered the E Channel's "Hollywood Medium," Tyler Henry, and gave up all other clients to concentrate on him. As a result, Tyler is in his third season on E, has a bestselling book from Simon & Schuster and has been a sellout at numerous Indian casinos.

Ron once arranged for a helicopter to lower a flying saucer atop the Capital Records building and have Ringo Starr step out for his "Goodnight Vienna" album. He's the last of the old-time publicity-stunt Hollywood publicists.

And speaking of David Hasselhoff, he'll star in the full-length sequel to the short "Kung Fury" (which he appeared in), with two-time Oscar-nominee Michael Fassbender. "Kung Fury" is the head of the ultimate police force and must travel through space and time to save his friends and defeat evil. These days with a sports car in orbit around the Sun, anything's possible!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Pioneer Hand Mirror -- Recycling and reusing is nothing new. Our ancestors had glass, metal and ceramic pieces that were imported, expensive and scarce. So when something broke, it was repaired or saved to be reused. A primitive hand mirror with recycled glass was sold at a Skinner auction in 2016. It was one of many wooden items in a large collection, and prices were high for the one-of-a-kind "make-dos." The mirror, one of nine early mirrors in the auction, had a narrow 12-inch piece of wood for a frame and handle. An irregular piece of a broken mirror less than 3 inches wide was set into the wood. It probably was used by the owner to see his or her face at a time when mirrors were not found in most houses. The end of the handle has a notch, which probably was used to wedge the mirror on a chair back or counter in an upright position. The 18th-century mirror, made in Massachusetts, sold for $1,700.

Q: My mother used to have a crown-shaped bottle of Prince Matchabelli perfume on her dresser. I have an empty bottle. Is it worth anything?

A: Prince Georges Matchabelli immigrated to the United States from Russia in 1921 with his wife Norina. She was an actress who used the stage name Maria Carmi. They opened an antiques store in New York City and he also made perfume for friends. He started the Prince Matchabelli Perfume Co. in 1926. Norina designed the crown-shape bottle. The first bottles were porcelain, later glass, made in Germany. Georges died in 1935 and the company was sold several times. It became part of Parfums de Coeur in 1993. They kept the crown as the bottle stopper. The bottle price depends on size, condition including label, and if there is perfume in it. It could be worth $50 to $550.

CURRENT PRICES

Bottle, poison, arsenic. Columbia pharmacy H.G. Duerfeldt, amber glass, stopper, 1920s, 18 x 9 inches, $75.

Purse, nurses bag, textured leather, solid metallic frame, brass, side slide latches, top handle and clasp, 1920s, 7 x 7 inches, $140.

Birdbath, sculpted clamshell, beige concrete bowl, scalloped rim and scrolled edge, shell ribbed center, 1800s, 4 x 14 inches, $525.

TIP: To clean a very dirty old iron pan, spray it with oven cleaner, put it in a plastic bag for a day or two, then scrub it with a brass brush and rinse. Wear rubber gloves.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was English theologian Edwin Abbott Abbott who made the following sage observation: "Men are divided in opinion as to the facts. And even granting the facts, they explain them in different ways."

* You may be surprised to learn that hot and cold running water has been around for thousands of years. Members of the upper class in ancient Egypt used copper tubing to pipe it into their homes.

* If you take a close look at New Hampshire's Constitution Bill of Rights, you'll find "the right of revolution" enshrined therein.

* GPS is a powerful tool that has changed the way we navigate the world. Of course, it's not without its problems. Take, for instance, the case of the 23-year-old Canadian woman driving through the Ontario town of Tobermory. She was a stranger there, so -- as most of us would -- she was using her GPS. Evidently, she was so intent on following the directions provided to her that she wasn't paying attention to where those directions were taking her -- that is, until she ended up in Georgian Bay. She made it to shore safely, but her car didn't.

* It seems that artist Leonardo da Vinci pioneered the paint-by-numbers style of art. He would sketch a piece, then number certain sections for his assistants to paint.

* Before the middle of the 18th century, it was not unusual for members of a play's audience to be seated onstage, just a few feet from the performance. If viewers thought an actor's performance was particularly bad, they might even try to bump the performer off the stage.

Thought for the Day: "It's splendid to be a great writer, to put men into the frying pan of your imagination and make them pop like chestnuts." -- Gustave Flaubert

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "Where do I keep my makeup wipes? On my nightstand, or better yet on my bed so that I don't come home and not take off my makeup." -- Y.E. in Florida

* "If you're having trouble opening a jar, try slipping on a pair of latex dishwashing gloves for extra traction. Also try banging a little around the edge of the metal lid to disturb the vacuum seal. This has worked for me many times. Just be careful not to bang it so hard that you break the glass jar!" -- A.L. in Texas

* "Place a section of newspaper in the bottom of your fridge to catch spills and to absorb odors. Line your vegetable crisper drawer with a paper towel, especially if you keep your potatoes in the refrigerator. Finally, do not store your milk on the door, because items there are subject to increased temperature fluctuation, every time you open the door to decide what to snack on!" -- M.R. in North Carolina

* "If you want to ripen avocados fast, put them in a brown bag and add a slice of lemon." -- Pat in New York

* No need to purchase pricey seed-starting kits, use a toilet paper roll instead! Just cut the roll in half, set upright in a tray, fill with dirt and seeds, water, and away you go. When you start a tray inside, you should be ready for planting after the danger of frost is over.

donated tens of thousands of dollars to Friends groups across the Commonwealth. It's estimated that FWB has received between $12,000-$15,000 over the years.

Mr. Berman said that SH/SB has invested about $40,000 in various groups across the City of Quincy. That's one generous "Friend!"

Member of the Year was Maureen Mazrimas. Gutro noted that "Ms. Mazrimas is a founding member, treasurer since its inception, and (with Bob Verney) newsletter co-chair. She is chair of Quincy's Stormwater Committee, is on Quincy's Community Preservation Committee and previously served on the Zoning Board of Appeals. She has been involved in the City for over three decades."

Ms. Mazrimas said she was humbled by the honor, but that it should contain two names - Maureen and Michael Mazrimas.

"Without Michael, I wouldn't be able to do half of what I do. He's so involved himself, yet still finds time to help me out." She thanked Michael, her sister Cathy, her daughter Christine and her granddaughter

Lauren for attending.

Ms. Mazrimas recognized the contributions of outgoing president, Doug Gutro and the other members of FWB's "fabulous Board of Directors. They organize cleanups, stencil storm drains, do makeup for Kids' Fest/Books and Boogie and other Tot Lot events, do the Ice Bucket challenge, participate in SH/SB's plunge, run popcorn machines and so many other things. Not only do they give of their time, they frequently donate snacks, water, juice, etc. for the events.

"You may not recognize these people, but their effect on the beach is epic. They have set a strong example of what it means to be a steward of this wonderful resource. It really does take a 'village' and we have one of the best!"

The meeting concluded with a final heartfelt thank you to the public for its involvement, and particularly for attending the meeting. Raffle prizes were drawn and the meeting concluded with a reminder to take a copy of "Dwayne the Storm Drain" - a coloring book designed by MWRA to educate children (and adults) on this misunderstood piece of municipal infrastructure.

Storm Damages $8M In Infrastructure

munity meetings and the engineers.

"Everything doing with infrastructure we're looking at that."

Koch said flooding did not impact one long-time prone area: the Alrick Road - Miller Road neighborhood in West Quincy. He said improvements in flood control and new flood-gate protocols worked during last week's storm staving off potentially flooded homes in that area of the city.

The mayor commended city workers from a myriad of departments including public safety, public works, forestry and school for their hard work responding to the storm. One school custodian remained on duty to help cook food for the evacuees at the Atherton Hough School.

"Everyone pitched in and worked their tails off,"

Koch said.

Besides Houghs Neck, Adams Shore and Merry-mount that sustained considerable damage, the mayor said some neighborhoods in Wollaston and North Quincy were also hit hard as ocean water jumped the seawall at Wollaston Beach and flooded Quincy Shore Drive.

One potential health hazard was avoided. A pumping station behind the Strand on Quincy Shore Drive went down because electricity was lost and a generator failed. A back-up generator was brought it to get the station operational again.

"If it had been off-line for a long time we may have had sewage backing up into people's homes and that would have been a real problem," Koch said.

Asked for his main message to residents, the mayor replied:

"We come together as a community. We are here to help. Call Inspectional Services if there is any damage to your home. They can help guide you. If you hire contractors make sure they are licensed and you can check with Inspectional Services because they deal with these companies all the time and they would know if they are good companies or not."

The Inspectional Services hotline is 617-908-2144.

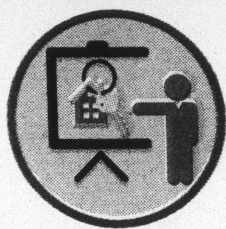

"The whole issue of rubbish collection will go on for weeks. We know that. We're going to help. That's another service some other communities do not provide. I'm glad to do it because we are a community and we try to help each other out."

Generals Bridge Plans Unveiled

By SCOTT JACKSON

The state will pay the cost of building a new bridge in Quincy Center, the construction of which could start this year.

The new bridge, which Mayor Thomas Koch has proposed naming "Generals Bridge," will connect Burgin Parkway and Cliveden Street. Frank Tramontozzi, a city engineer, provided city councillors with an update on the project March 5.

The new bridge will cost $7 million to construct and the Massachusetts Department of Transportation will pick up the tab for the project, Tramontozzi said; construction could start by the end of this calendar year. The state has also paid for the design of the bridge and will be responsible for maintaining it going forward.

The new span will be located about halfway between the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Granite Street to the north and the Paul Harold Bridge to the south. Generals Bridge will carry one lane of traffic in each direction over the MBTA train tracks. Each side of the bridge will also have a sidewalk and marked bicycle lane.

Officials Detail School Security, Safety Measures

Quincy officials say that security measures are in place that keep the city's schools and students safe.

"The students really won't benefit from the all the great experiences that we offer in the Quincy Public Schools unless they feel safe," Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro told the school committee March 7 as he presented a detailed overview of the district's safety and security plan. "The staff and administrators will never be at their best unless they feel that we have plans and practices and make sure emergency procedures are in place."

DeCristofaro was joined by the district's director of security and transportation Michael Draicchio, director of student support services Maura Papile and Police Chief Paul Keenan during the presentation. Officials wanted to make students, Quincy middle and high school students who chose to participate planned to join a national walkout honoring the 17 victims of the Parkland, Florida school shooting Wednesday (March 14).

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro informed the school committee at its March 7 meeting that the students will be joining their counterparts from around the country participating in the National School Walkout day as a civic response to the Valentine's Day shooting at the Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School where 17 were killed and nearly 20 wounded. Students throughout the nation will be walking out of class, holding assemblies or moments of silence for 17 minutes in honor of each victim.

Burgin Parkway - Cliveden Street Bridge Plans Unveiled

Vehicular traffic headed northbound on Burgin Parkway will be able to take a right-hand turn onto the new bridge, and traffic headed westbound over the bridge will be able to take a right onto Burgin Parkway. Tramontozzi said the entrance to the bridge on Burgin Parkway would not be signalized, and left-hand turns on or off the bridge there won't be allowed.

As part of the plan to redevelop Quincy Center, the city intends to extend Cliveden Street all the way from the new bridge to a planned 712-car parking garage located in what is now the Hancock Lot.

"Cliveden Street will actually lead you straight into the area of the new parking garage," Tramontozzi said.

While MassDOT is paying for the design and construction of the bridge, Quincy is responsible for paying for any land takings and easements needed for the project. Tramontozzi said city officials would be before the council at its next meeting, which is scheduled for March 19, for the first set of right of ways needed for the project along the Parkingway. He said that cost was currently being negotiated with the landowner.

Funding for the right of ways is provided in the $80 million district-improvement-financing bond approved by the council in June 2017. The 37R and 95 Parkway right of ways were estimated to cost $975,000 at that time, and the cost to purchase 1534 and 1546 Hancock Street - which would be needed to extend Cliveden Street to the new garage - was estimated at $2.5 million. Another $2.6 million was included for the extension of Cliveden Street and streetscape improvements.

In his January State of the City address, Koch said he would ask the state to name the new span The Generals Bridge in honor of four generals with Quincy roots: Ronald Rand, a retired Air Force brigadier general who is now the president and CEO of the Congressional Medal of Honor Foundation; Gordon Sullivan, a retired Army general who served as the chief of staff of the Army; Army Gen. James McConville, currently the Army's vice chief of staff; and Marine Corps Gen. Joseph Dunford Jr., currently the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Tramontozzi said city officials are in the process of seeing if there are other generals with Quincy ties who could likewise be honored.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said the planned bridge would be a positive for the city.

"The project looks great and I know we needed the Cliveden extension. The Generals Bridge is really going to dress it up in regards to honoring the veterans and honoring these four gentlemen, and I'm glad, Frank, you mentioned to make sure we do our due diligence so we don't forget anybody," McCarthy said.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ACCUMULATED WISDOM

"Wisdom" teeth, the third and final set of molars that usually erupt between ages 17 and 21, are located at the farthest corners of the upper and lower dental arches. They derive their popular name from the notion that they erupt when we are more mature. Because there is often no space left for them to occupy, they can become misaligned or impacted. If they do not come in straight, it can be very difficult to floss between the wisdom teeth and the molars next to them. Even worse, misaligned wisdom teeth can damage neighboring teeth, and impacted teeth can lead to the formation of a cyst. For these reasons, misaligned and impacted wisdom teeth should be surgically removed.

Whether it involves wisdom teeth, implants, cosmetic work, simple fillings, or complex restorations, any program we suggest for your dental health will be thoroughly discussed with you before we begin. When you are looking for state-of-the-art, personalized dentistry from people who really care, welcome to our office, located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Our dental team works smoothly and efficiently together, devoted to making your dental experience comfortable as well as enhancing. Call us at 617-479-6220 for an appointment.
P.S. Wisdom teeth that remain in the mouth should be regularly monitored for changes and potential problems.

Keenan Seeking Senate Presidency

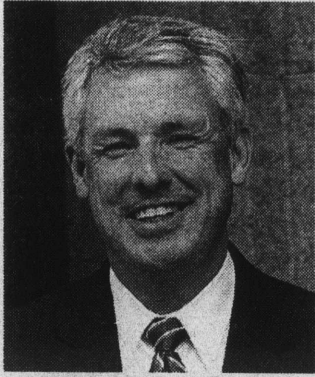

By SCOTT JACKSON

Sen. John Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, has joined the field of candidates vying to become the next president of state Senate.

Keenan, age 54, was first elected to the Senate in 2010 and will be seeking his fifth two-year term in this fall's general election. Keenan's district includes all of Quincy, Holbrook, Abington and Rockland as well as parts of Braintree.

In a phone interview, he said he decided to seek the Senate presidency after being approached by fellow senators.

"I was approached by a couple of my colleagues

about the Senate presidency, I gave it some thought and decided to throw my hat in the ring," Keenan said.

While seeking the Senate presidency, Keenan said is reaching out to all members of the legislative chamber,

Storm-Relief Benefit Postponed To March 20

By SCOTT JACKSON

A planned fundraiser to benefit those impacted by the March 2 nor'easter was postponed one week due a major snowstorm forecast for Tuesday.

The fundraiser - originally scheduled for March 13th - has been rescheduled for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March 20, at Alba Restaurant in Quincy Center. The event will feature food and entertainment, as well as raffle and door prizes.

The city has also established a relief fund to benefit those impacted by the March 2 storm, which inundated Quincy's coastal areas. Donations may be made payable to the Quincy Storm Relief Fund and mailed to Eastern Bank - B366, 34 Chapman St., Quincy, MA 02170 or dropped at any Eastern Bank location. Monetary donations will also be accepted at the door of the fundraiser.

Quincy Community Action Programs will administer the fund. Flooding victims should call 617-657-5320 or e-mail quincystormrelief@qcap.org to begin a brief and confidential application process. The fund will be able to provide some immediate assistance. Benefit caps will be established. One hundred percent of the fund proceeds will be used directly to help households.

The fund is being designed for victims hardest hit by the storm - those who suffered severe property damage; who may be displaced from their homes for a long period time; who lost personal and family belongings; and those in need of assistance for basic necessities.

Fund administrators ask that those who may have only suffered multiple days of power loss to consider if they need the assistance. By the same token, people should feel comfortable asking for assistance, and that is why the benefits process will be confidential.

Quincy High College Planning Night March 22

Quincy High School will host a college planning night for juniors and their families on Thursday, March 22 from

6:30 to 8 p.m. at the school's Lloyd Hill Auditorium, 100 Coddington St., Quincy. Admissions representatives will be present to address the college admissions process. Juniors and their families are strongly encouraged to attend, but all families are welcome.

The evening is presented by the Quincy High School Guidance Department.

INVESTMENT IN TIME

Watches are timeless in terms of their function and appeal. As such, they are always appropriate as gifts, some of which can rise to the quality of fine jewelry, regardless of movement. Since their introduction nearly five decades ago, quartz movements have made their mark when it comes to accuracy, economy, and size. However, if the goal is to purchase a watch that is equal parts tradition, technology, and art, a mechanical movement represents the epitome of fine watchmaking. Of course, mechanical watch movements vary in their quality and complication, with the very best certainly being worthy investments. For anyone looking to wear a precision wristwatch that is wonderfully crafted and beautifully rendered, there is an array of choices.

Step into Rogers Jewelry and browse through our wonderful selection of unique watches and other fine jewelry, and experience the type of service only we can offer. We take the time to ensure that our customers get the kind of service and quality they have come to expect from the finest retailers. We work within our customers' budgets to find the piece of jewelry or gift that is exactly right for the occasion. Stop by and see us soon at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. Keenan Seeking Senate Presidency

By SCOTT JACKSON

Sen. John Keenan, a Quincy Democrat, has joined the field of candidates vying to become the next president of state Senate.

Keenan, age 54, was first elected to the Senate in 2010 and will be seeking his fifth two-year term in this fall's general election. Keenan's district includes all of Quincy, Holbrook, Abington and Rockland as well as parts of Braintree.

In a phone interview, he said he decided to seek the Senate presidency after being approached by fellow senators.

"I was approached by a couple of my colleagues

about the Senate presidency, I gave it some thought and decided to throw my hat in the ring," Keenan said.

While seeking the Senate presidency, Keenan said is reaching out to all members of the legislative chamber,

Storm-Relief Benefit Postponed To March 20

By SCOTT JACKSON

A planned fundraiser to benefit those impacted by the March 2 nor'easter was postponed one week due to a major snowstorm forecast for Tuesday.

The fundraiser - originally scheduled for March 13th - has been rescheduled for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March 20, at Alba Restaurant in Quincy Center. The event will feature food and entertainment, as well as raffle and door prizes.

The city has also established a relief fund to benefit those impacted by the March 2 storm, which inundated Quincy's coastal areas. Donations may be made payable to the Quincy Storm Relief Fund and mailed to Eastern Bank - B366, 34 Chapman St., Quincy, MA 02170 or dropped at any Eastern Bank location. Monetary donations will also be accepted at the door of the fundraiser.

Quincy Community Action Programs will administer the fund. Flooding victims should call 617-657-5320 or e-mail quincystormrelief@qcap.org to begin a brief and confidential application process. The fund will be able to provide some immediate assistance. Benefit caps will be established. One hundred percent of the fund proceeds will be used directly to help households.

The fund is being designed for victims hardest hit by the storm - those who suffered severe property damage; who may be displaced from their homes for a long period time; who lost personal and family belongings; and those in need of assistance for basic necessities.

Fund administrators ask that those who may have only suffered multiple days of power loss to consider if they need the assistance. By the same token, people should feel comfortable asking for assistance, and that is why the benefits process will be confidential.

Quincy High College Planning Night March 22

Quincy High School will host a college planning night for juniors and their families on Thursday, March 22 from

6:30 to 8 p.m. at the school's Lloyd Hill Auditorium, 100 Coddington St., Quincy. Admissions representatives will be present to address the college admissions process. Juniors and their families are strongly encouraged to attend, but all families are welcome.

The evening is presented by the Quincy High School Guidance Department.

INVESTMENT IN TIME

Watches are timeless in terms of their function and appeal. As such, they are always appropriate as gifts, some of which can rise to the quality of fine jewelry, regardless of movement. Since their introduction nearly five decades ago, quartz movements have made their mark when it comes to accuracy, economy, and size. However, if the goal is to purchase a watch that is equal parts tradition, technology, and art, a mechanical movement represents the epitome of fine watchmaking. Of course, mechanical watch movements vary in their quality and complication, with the very best certainly being worthy investments. For anyone looking to wear a precision wristwatch that is wonderfully crafted and beautifully rendered, there is an array of choices. Step into Rogers Jewelry and browse through our wonderful selection of unique watches and other fine jewelry, and experience the type of service only we can offer. We take the time to ensure that our customers get the kind of service and quality they have come to expect from the finest retailers. We work within our customers' budgets to find the piece of jewelry or gift that is exactly right for the occasion. Stop by and see us soon at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. • On March 30, 1775, King George III formally endorses the New England Restraining Act, requiring New England colonies to trade exclusively with Great Britain. Another rule banned colonists from fishing in the North Atlantic.

• On March 28, 1814, the funeral of Guillotin, the inventor and namesake of the infamous execution device, takes place in France. The machine was intended to show the intellectual and social progress of the Revolution: By killing aristocrats and journeymen the same way, equality in death was ensured.

• On March 31, 1836, the first monthly installment of "The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club," by 24-year-old writer Charles Dickens, is published under the pseudonym Boz. Only 400 copies were printed, but by the 15th episode, 40,000 copies were printed.

• On March 27, 1912, two Yoshina cherry trees are planted on the bank of the Potomac River, as part of a gift of 3,020 cherry trees from Japan to the United States. After World War II, cuttings were sent back to Japan to restore the Tokyo collection that was decimated by American bombing attacks during the war.

'Let's Paint Rocks' March 20

"Let's Paint Rocks" is the Program on Tuesday, March 20th at 7 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

Rock painting has become very popular recently. Some people paint them to add to their flower gardens, fairy gardens, to share inspirational messages, and to leave them at parks and beaches for others to find.

Come join the fun and paint some rocks. All rocks and supplies are provided. If you have a "special" rock to paint bring it along.

There will be lots of painting suggestions regardless of your artistic ability. The program, sponsored by the Seaside Social Club, is open to the public and there is no charge.

Refreshments will be served by Joanne Laroche and Carol Hallett.

A raffle will be drawn to benefit the M. Alicia Corea Student Fund.

both Democrats and Republicans. The initial feedback, he said, has been positive "but it is a process and we will see how it plays out."

Keenan said it is important for the leader of the Senate to work well with the House of Representatives and the governor.

"It's important for the next Senate president to work well with the House of Representatives and the governor, and I believe I have the relationships with the House and the administrations to do that," he said.

If elected president of the Senate, Keenan said he would make sure all of his colleagues have a say.

"All the members would have say in the Senate proceedings," he said, adding committee chairs would continue to play the key role in the process of passing legislation.

Keenan is currently the chairman of the Senate Committee on Bonding, Capital Expenditures and State Assets and the Special Senate Committee on Addiction Prevention, Treatment and Recovery Options. He is the vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Mental Health, Substance Use and Recovery and the Senate Committee on Steering and Policy.

During his time on Beacon Hill, Keenan has worked on several bills, meant to address the Bay State's opioid crisis, which have been signed into law. Provisions of those bills include a non-opioid directive for patients, the ability of patients to partially fill their prescriptions for opioid painkillers, and drug stewardship program making pharmaceutical companies responsible for disposing of unused drugs.

"That's the area where we have been most active," Keenan said. "We have passed some landmark legislation and many of the items that we put into bills have become national models."

Keenan said he has also worked to secure local aid for communities, funding for Red Line improvements, and, as chairman of the bonding committee, helped pass a recently approved bond bill that includes money for state buildings, colleges, and courthouses, including a new justice center in Quincy, the location of which has yet to be determined.

A Hobomack Road resident, Keenan served as an at-large member of the Quincy City Council from 2003 to 2012. He was the director of the Norfolk County retirement system from 2001 to 2011, and executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets from 1997 to 2001.

A 1982 graduate of North Quincy High School, he earned a Bachelor's degree from Harvard University and a juris doctor from Suffolk University Law School.

The Senate president is responsible for appointing committee chairs and other leadership posts, setting the agenda for the Senate, and running the day-to-day operations of the chamber. The Senate president also meets weekly with the governor and speaker of the House to discuss various statewide issues.

Other senators vying for the presidency include Sal DiDomenico of Everett, Eileen Donaghue of Lowell, Eric P. Lesser of Longmeadow and Karen Spilka of Ashland.

Sen. Harriette Chandler of Worcester, currently the Senate president, has said she will give up that title in January when the new legislative term begins.

Chandler was elected president of the Senate in December after the previous president, Sen. Stanley Rosenberg of Amherst, stepped down from the post amid allegations of sexual harassment and meddling in legislative affairs against his husband. The Senate has launched an ethics investigation to determine if Rosenberg broke the chamber's rules.

Support Safe Communities Act who criticize Trump's policies.

The law would empower local and state police to refuse to detain people at the request of ICE unless they have been accused of committing a serious crime. Driving offenses, for example, the most common way undocumented people run afoul of American law, would not result in local detention and possible deportation.

As Eldridge pointed out at a recent talk at the Crane Library, a "detainer" notice from ICE is not a judicial order. It's a request. The Safe Communities Act gives local police the option to hold people for ICE for up to six hours if the individual has a record for the conviction of a serious offense, or if a detainee is under arrest for a terrorism offense.

But it prevents ICE from enlisting local and state police as agents for Trump's racist anti-immigrant policies. If immigrants, including undocumented people, have no reason to fear being questioned about their residency status and turned over to ICE, they will cooperate with police, schools, hospitals and other local authorities on routine matters. If they know local and state police are not working hand in glove with ICE, they will be more willing to report crimes such as domestic; more likely to take a sick child or an adult family member to a hospital or a doctor; and more likely to show up for a parents' conference at school or take part in a local community-building activity.

We can support the Safe Communities Act, as Sen. Eldridge urged us to do, by contacting House Speaker Robert DeLeo, Robert.DeLeo@mahouse.gov, and Senate President Harriette Chandler, Harriette.Chandler@masenate.gov, to demand action on the bill.

We can also contact our own representatives in the Legislature (Reps. Bruce Ayers and Tacky Chan; Sen. John Keenan) and urge them to add their names to the bill's lengthy list of sponsors and vote for it when it comes to the floor.

Gun Violence: Demand Action, Hold Elected Officials Accountable

We have a serious gun violence issue in America and we can't continue to turn a blind eye to this problem. We must demand action and hold our elected officials accountable. Unfortunately, public discourse on important issues sometimes becomes untethered from fact and reason. So what action should we demand?

First, Congress needs to pass legislation banning assault weapons. This would not infringe upon our Second Amendment rights. In the 2006 Supreme Court case of District of Columbia V. Heller, Justice Scalia wrote the majority opinion and clearly stated that the right to bear arms exists for self-defense purposes and restrictions can be placed on the right by legislatures, including on assault weapons.

We had an assault weapons ban in the U.S. from 1994-2004, and University of Massachusetts' professor Louis Klarevas found that both mass shootings and deaths dropped dramatically during the ban compared to 2004-2014.

Second, we need to strengthen our background check laws. I recognize that people can obtain guns illegally, but we have to attempt to keep guns away from people who should not have them, particularly people with serious mental health problems. We should demand a strong federal universal background check law.

Third, we need to make mental health treatment more accessible and provide more effective mental health screening. Author Grant Duwe and Bates College professor Michael Rocque found that at least 59% of the 185 mass shootings in the United States from 1900 to 2017 were carried out by people who had either been diagnosed with a mental disorder or demonstrated signs of serious mental illness prior to the attack.

There is a dawning sensation in America that we can effect change. It is incumbent upon us to cast aside today's poisonous discourse, engage in constructive dialog and take action.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920 real photo postcard showing the old slate quarry that was off Apthorp Street in Norfolk Downs. Actually two separate quarry holes, the site was surrounded by Billings Road, Apthorp, Warwick and Marshall Streets. The house shown here is number 15 Warwick St. First opened in 1687, this ancient Quincy quarry was the source of thousands of slate gravestones, roof shingles and stepping stones found throughout the region. The murky-water quarry was filled in the late 1940s to eliminate the danger to children. It had been a favorite spot for ice skating in the winter and carp fishing in the summer, but not for swimming; Wollaston Beach was only a block down the street. The site is now zoned open space. Morgan Memorial Goodwill Seeks Donations

Yes, it is still winter, but at Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries, we would like you to think spring - spring cleaning, that is!

That's because this time of year is our lowest for donations and we are asking for your help. In 2017, Quincy residents donated more than 1.5 million pounds of goods to Goodwill and we are very thankful. Now, we are hoping you will get a jump start on spring cleaning and look in your closet to find items to help Goodwill today.

Donating makes you feel good. It also makes a difference in people's lives. When you donate to Goodwill, you create jobs. Program participants get on-the-job training in our retail enterprise, graduates from our training programs get access to interview attire free of charge, and local residents get jobs in The Goodwill Stores. Your donations help us advance our mission of helping people with barriers to self-sufficiency to achieve independence and dignity through work.

In Quincy, you can donate clothing and household goods at The Goodwill Store at 625 Southern Artery or at another donation center near you. For information about Goodwill as well as the locations and hours of The Goodwill Stores and donation centers, please visit www.goodwillmass.org.

QHS: Consider Mike Flavin As Next Football Coach

I would like Quincy High School to consider Coach Michael Flavin for the new football head coach position that's available.

I am a photographer who took pictures of Manet games for three years, 2015, 2016 and 2017. I've had an opportunity to observe Head Coach Flavin as a coach both during games and during practices. I've been able to compare his coaching "style" to other coaches in QYFL as my son played on a different QYFL team in 2015 and standing on the opposing team's sideline taking pictures. I was able to see and hear how other coaches worked on the field. The difference is, literally, like night and day.

Mike Flavin's teams are perennial winners. And I've noticed that he doesn't deride his players, or make them feel bad about mistakes. He actually encourages them to have fun. I've seen him conduct tough practices, teaching young men the fundamentals of football, not only to make them better players but also to protect them from injury.

I've seen some coaches yell and swear at their players when things go wrong. Mike uses those moments to teach.

Mike Flavin's teams are tough, well-coached and successful almost every season. His players can both enjoy the game and the experience of winning. But more importantly, he realizes who he's coaching - other people's children.

He doesn't act like these are NFL players. In fact, in my view, some of his most impressive coaching moments have come during big losses (which honestly, are few and far between). When everyone else is down, he's smiling and brings the team "up," by showing them he's still having fun, and so should they. It's then that kids enjoy playing football and it's not the end-all-be-all, as they say.

With so many parents keeping their kids away from football these days, the parents of Manet players know their child is in good hands.

Mike Flavin has proven that he can be successful with any football program: high school, college and now youth the last five years - three championship games in five years, won Coach of the Year, just terrific at molding kids into excellent players and excellent people. The city should look into him for the QHS football program.

Budget Almost Finished; Layoffs Could Reach 117

The city will likely lose 117 workers from the school, fire and police departments during the fiscal year 1991, which begins July 1, Mayor James A. Sheets said.

The layoffs represent nearly six percent of the city's 2,000-employee workforce.

The school department is planning to lay off 52 people including 40 teachers.

Acting Police Chief Paul Nestor said the 201-member force would be reduced to 194 through retirements. Five civilian jobs will also be cut.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said his department would likely lose 21 men, including 15 to 18 firefighters.

The completed budget is expected to be $121 million.

Most city officials are blaming Gov. Michael Dukakis, who, they say, has mismanaged the state.

PROPERTY VALUATION FIGURE CERTIFIED

Real estate and personal property valuations for the city's fiscal year 1990 tax bills have been certified by the Commonwealth's Department of Revenue "as full and fair," this according to the Commissioners' certification standards.

Since the city was last certified by the DOR, as of January 1986, the city's assessments as of July 1, 1989 now satisfy FY90 requirements under state law.

Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, said the process would enable the city to set FY90 tax rates following a classification public hearing scheduled for March 19 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber.

How Much Can One Dog Change A Life?

The Mission Of The Greyhound Project

By SARAH NORTON

How much can one dog change a life?

Did you ever make a promise you came to regret? I had that feeling 20 years ago when I agreed to care for my sister's golden retriever, whose care included mandatory walks twice a day. As feared, I was soon coming in from walks soaked and crusty.

The surprise? It turns out walking in the rain and snow is peaceful and meditative. Whatever the mood at the walk's beginning, it always ends up better by the end. It only took a couple of these dogsitting episodes to realize I needed my own motivational dog.

I had seen a greyhound somewhere, and they looked super sleek in a weird, cartoony way. A local pet store hosted a greyhound "meet and greet," and one visit with these dogs sealed the deal. That beautiful, distinctive breed with the exaggerated chest and pointy nose was the one for me.

Where else can you get a dog that's bred purely for performance, with no consideration for looks? Add in the tremendous need for retirement homes, and you can also feel good about adopting. If that's not enough, these dogs are easy to look at, need minimal grooming, and are full of gentle personality. Out of the ten I've had over the years, you can remove the "gentle" descriptor from two, but they made up for it with hilarity.

Back to 20 years ago. In 1998, my search led to a sweet brindle girl named Timber. That adoption would result in a career change, a car change, and some new social circles.

Within the first week of bringing her home, I met a neighbor with a new greyhound and realized that was the "somewhere" I had seen one. We quickly bonded over our charming dogs, and it wasn't long before we both added to our packs. And then added again. Within a year of meeting my friend Sandra, we each had three greyhounds. I was hooked.

It was around that time that she suggested volunteering at the Quincy Animal Shelter. We were enthusiastic volunteers, and it wasn't long before the Shelter and its circle of volunteers became a part of daily life.

Since I had experience giving subcutaneous fluids to a cat, I became part of the then budding Shelter's medical team. In those days, a vet from VCA South Shore Animal Hospital visited weekly. That experience led me to a part-time position as a veterinary assistant at VCA South Shore in Quincy.

It was also around that time that I met a growing circle of greyhound enthusiasts: people on both sides of the racing issue, people involved with placing the dogs, and people who simply fell hard for them as I had. Among those people was the president of The Greyhound Project, now my friend Joan. She invited me to join the board in 2001, and I'm still there.

The mission of The Greyhound Project is to promote the welfare and adoption of greyhounds by providing support and information to adoption organizations, adopters, and the public.

Our website includes a directory of hundreds of adoption groups from around the world, and it also includes a wealth of information for new and experienced adopters. We print more than 10,000 wall and desk calendars annually for adoption groups to resell as a fundraiser. We are all volunteers, and we ask that you consider selecting us as your nonprofit organization on Amazon Smile, where you pay the same price to Amazon but 0.5% of your purchase price supports our work.

That part-time job with VCA in Quincy was 17 years ago, and I've now been managing the VCA hospital in Wakefield for 16 years. All because of a dog named Timber.

So, yes, a dog can change

Laura Owen Boston Marathon Run To Benefit Samaritans Marathon Team

Quincy resident Laura Owen will run the 122nd Boston Marathon in April for a very personal reason. Owen will run as part of Samaritans Marathon Team to raise funds for the nonprofit's lifesaving services and to raise awareness for the important topic of suicide prevention.

Owen learned of Samaritans' lifesaving mission when her brother served as the charity's development manager. Her interest in suicide prevention grew and her passion for giving back to Samaritans magnified. It has always been her dream to run the Boston Marathon for Samaritans. This will be her first marathon and she is honored to challenge herself in order to raise funds and awareness for a cause that is so close to her heart.

All proceeds generated from this year's team will benefit Samaritans' suicide prevention services. This includes their 24/7 Crisis Services phone and text Helpline, suicide prevention workshops for schools, businesses, and community groups, and SafePlace support groups for those who have lost someone to suicide.

"Each of our team members have been touched by suicide and are passionate about raising awareness and educating the public about this important issue," said Executive Director of Samaritans Steve Mongeau.

"The stigma and misinformation that surrounds the discussion of suicide and suicide prevention is an unfortunate reality. Our Marathon runners are performing a tremendous service to our organization and the community at large, and are helping to save lives."

This is the 11th consecutive year that Samaritans, a suicide prevention organization serving the Greater Boston and Metro West communities, has received bib numbers for their Marathon Team. Samaritans will once again be participating as a non-profit partner in the John Hancock Non-Profit Marathon Program. Each year, John Hancock donates guaranteed entries to select nonprofits which use these entries to recruit individual runners to raise money for their cause.

For over 40 years, Samaritans, Inc. volunteers have answered more than 2.5 million phone calls. The agency has trained more than 4,500 volunteers and instructed more than 100,000 individuals through its Community Education and Outreach Program, and has supported over 10,000 individuals who have lost a loved one to suicide.

For more information about Samaritans, visit www.samaritanshope.org or contact Samaritans' business office at 617-536-2460 or info@samaritanshope.org.

Mini Cheese Cakes

By MARIE

If you like cheese cake, as many of us do, how about making mini individual cheese cakes in muffin tins. Sound good? Well, not only are these easy to make and delicious they are very easy to serve.

RECIPE:

- 1 12 ounce package of vanilla wafers
- 1 8 ounce package of cream cheese
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoons of vanilla extract
- 1 can of cherry pie fillings (You can use any preferred filling)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and line the muffin tins with paper muffin tin lining paper.

Crush the vanilla wafers and press ½ teaspoon or so of crushed vanilla wafers into each paper cup. With an electric mixer, cream together the cream cheese, sugar, eggs and vanilla.

When well blended fill each liner with mixture almost to the top.

Bake for 15 minutes and let cool.

Top each one with cherry pie filling or with your favorite filling.

Roasted Spaghetti Squash

By SUSIE

Here is a delicious and simple recipe that my whole family devoured. (So much, that there was not any left for me.) But I did get to taste it before it was served.

Spaghetti squash is simply a wonderful addition to your diet. The only tough part is cutting it in half in order to roast. Just have a good knife on hand.

Some people pierce and put in the microwave for a few minutes to soften before roasting. Spaghetti squash - once cooked and shred with a fork - looks just like spaghetti, with a sweet and nutty bite. Here is a recipe that took little effort, and looked beautiful as well.

Roasted Spaghetti Squash Boats with Meat Sauce and Cheese

Preheat oven to 400 and cover a baking sheet with parchment paper. (Very important, it prevents a big mess!) Split the squash in half and scoop out the seeds, then season with salt and pepper and place cut-side down on baking sheet drizzled with olive oil. Pierce a few times as well.

Roast the squash 45 to 60 minutes until very tender. Turn the roasted squash over and shred each half with a fork turning the flesh into what looks like a yellow boat filled with spaghetti, drizzle the hot squash with a little extra-virgin olive oil and adjust the seasoning. These look like boats. Set aside.

You can use any meat sauce you like, but on this night, I was so busy, I used a jar of tomato sauce (I love Rao's in a pinch). But first, in a sauce pan, I simply sautéed some onion, garlic, salt, and pepper with a pound of organic grass fed ground beef until browned.

Next, I simply poured the sauce in the pan and heated until simmering. Spoon the sauce on top of the boats and sprinkle with some cheese of choice. I used mozzarella and Pecorino Romano. Bake for an additional 20-30 minutes or so until browned and bubbly. Serve. Eat right from the boat! (You can cut each boat in half if desired) ENJOY!!!!

Nancy's Lobster Stew

By MARIE

Forget chocolate and flowers for Valentine's Day, next year how about making a delicious lobster stew instead.

And so it was when my daughter, Nancy, was going to surprise her husband, Jed with lobster stew for Valentine's Day.

Lobster stew has actually started to be a Valentine's Day tradition in their household. The stew is very easy and uses very few ingredients.

The taste is unbelievable for something that is so quick and easy - and it is absolutely delicious.

RECIPE

1 pound of clams (for the stock) (once cooked keep the clams for an appetizer)

4 lobsters

1 pint of milk (You can always use cream if preferred)

Boil the clams in enough water to cover them completely. When all cooked set aside to cool. When cooled remove the clams and keep the clam juice. Strain the clam juice to remove sand.

In a separate pot, boil the lobsters and when cooled crack the lobsters and cut into pieces. Add the cut up lobster into the strained clam juice, heat and slowly add the milk, or if you prefer, cream.

Heat and stir until cooked and well-blended, but do not boil.

You can serve this dish with oysterettes P.S. The kids enjoyed eating the steamers.

'The Race To The South Pole' At Historical Society March 21

Guest speaker Robert Begin will present a program entitled "Scott, Amundsen and Shackleton: The Race to the Pole" at the Quincy Historical Society on Wednesday, March 21 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

Begin will speak on the race of the dawn of the 20th century to be first to reach the South Pole.

In the early 1900s, Antarctica, as the major uninhabited, unexplored region of the world, attracted international interest and rivalry. England, as the great imperial power, felt it her duty to explore the continent and reach the Pole. Other countries also sought the prestige of discovery.

At the heart of the story of Antarctic exploration are three heroic figures with contrasting personalities and contrasting fates. An obscure young Royal Navy officer, Robert Falcon Scott, was chosen to lead England's National Antarctic Expedition. Scott's death would result in a heroic status as "a true and gallant Englishman." Roald Amundsen, a Norwegian, would be the first to reach the Pole but he would never receive the fame and glory he felt he deserved. Ernest Shackleton, another English explorer, would fail in his expedition, but his courage and leadership skills would allow him to overcome unprecedented hardships and safely bring all of his men home.

Begin has previously presented several programs at the Historical Society on the USS Quincy, HMS Bounty, John Paul Jones, and the Barbary Pirates. Everyone is welcome. There is no charge for admission.

Benefit Sunday, April 8th for Rich 'Ratt' & Wendy Kennedy

Rich "Ratt" and Wendy Kennedy have been leading the fight against ALS for more than 20 years. Ratt himself has been battling ALS for the past two years.

Please join us as we come together on Sunday, April 8th to support Ratt and Wendy through their continued fight against this horrific disease.

RICH 'RATT' KENNEDY

A benefit for the Kennedy family will be held Sunday, April 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Harpoon Brewery, 306 Northern Ave., Boston.

Donation is $100 per person.

Not a lot of hoopla; just family and friends coming together over pizza and beer to express their love and ongoing support. Harpoon has generously donated their space and time, and we hope you can join us.

Can't attend? Additional donations can be accepted at:

Guests are welcome to park in the Harpoon lots after 5 p.m. Sunday, April 8. There is also a parking garage across the street. If arriving by public transportation, Harpoon is on the MBTA Silver line.

Are Germs Falling From The Sky?

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES
BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Are you concerned about the germs on surfaces around you?

Well, now there is more to worry yourself about; new research suggests that viruses and bacteria are literally plummeting down on your head. Even scientists were astonished to discover that millions of viruses are circulating in the atmosphere, and that those viruses don't stay there, they fall on Earth.

For the first time, a scientific study has successfully analyzed the quantity of viruses being swept up from the Earth's surface and back, and the numbers are massive. Scientists report that vast quantities of all manner of germs circulate in, and fall from, the Earth's atmosphere.

Additionally, the virus that lands on you may have traveled from another continent, the researchers added. These germs apparently are swept up in soil dust and sea spray into an area called the free troposphere. This area is located above weather systems but below the stratosphere where jet planes fly. It seems that at that altitude, viruses and bacteria can be carried thousands of miles before they fall back to Earth's surface.

Every day, more than 800 million viruses are deposited per square meter above the planetary boundary layer, "that's 25 viruses for each person in Canada," said study co-senior author Curtis Suttle, a virologist at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

Researchers found that the deposit rates for viruses were nine to 461 times greater than for bacteria. Scientists began finding genetically similar viruses occurring in very different environments around the globe approximately 20 years ago. This prevalence of long-residence viruses traveling the atmosphere likely explains why it's reasonably conceivable to have a virus scooped up into the atmosphere on one continent and deposited on another.

The authors of the study, wanted to know how much of that material is carried up above the atmospheric boundary layer above 2.5-3 km. Scientists had to observe the abundance of viruses at a great height, about 3,000 meters up high on the Veleta Peak in Spain's Sierra Nevada mountain range. They collected samples from this location, which is almost the planetary boundary layer in the atmosphere, located above the weather systems but below the stratosphere. At an altitude this high, particles are likely to travel long distances, in contrast to particles in the lower atmosphere.

Particles of soil and vapor from sea spray allow the distant travel of viruses and bacteria, sweeping them up high in the troposphere before settling back on Earth. Using these platform sites high in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the team found that billions of viruses and tens of millions of bacteria are being deposited, per 2 square miles, per day.

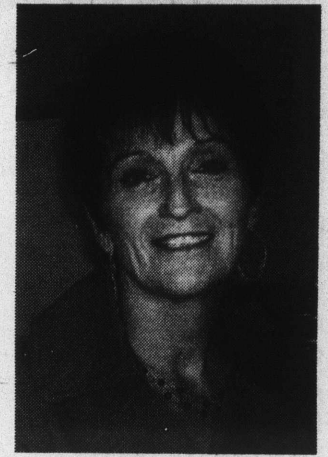

Bacteria and viruses are typically deposited back to Earth via rain events and Saharan dust intrusions; however, the rain was less efficient in removing viruses from the atmosphere. The researchers also found the majority of the viruses carried signatures indicating they had been swept up into the air from sea spray. The viruses are inclined to hitch rides on smaller, lighter, organic particles suspended in air and gas, implying they can stay airborne in the atmosphere longer.

A previous scientific research study denoted that migration of bacteria is a natural phenomenon due to atmospheric events and ocean currents. Dust particles from deserts or arid regions can also convey microbes such as viruses and bacteria over long distances, on air currents. Those airborne microbes scattered swirling in the sky, return to the Earth's surface through rain. So, when it rains, it could be literally raining viruses and bacteria.

It is astonishing to know that there are millions of viruses in the air. Viruses are actually the most plentiful microbes on the planet and if amassed all together, all viruses on Earth would cover an estimated area spanning 100 million light-years. According to the American Society for Microbiology, there is an estimate of 320,000 types of viruses that can infect mammals.

Surprisingly enough, this raining down of viruses and bacteria phenomenon is not related to the widespread flu epidemic across the United States. The immense amount of viruses in the sky, mostly infect only bacteria and do not mutate. Conversely, the flu virus, a type of airborne virus, can be transmitted just by breathing tiny droplets of air that are left suspended in the atmosphere. The flu virus can also mutate into different strains. The study "Deposition fates of viruses and bacteria above the atmospheric boundary layer" is published in the journal International Society for Microbial Ecology Journal.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

BCNC Receives $10,000 Grant From Doug Flutie, Jr. Foundation For Autism

The Boston Chinatown Neighborhood Center (BCNC) announces it has received a $10,000 grant from the Doug Flutie, Jr. Foundation for Autism.

The funds will support BCNC Family Services. BCNC Family Services supports Chinese immigrant families in Boston and Quincy with an emphasis on families of children with autism through parent education workshops, family support groups, music therapy, and case management services which help families access social services, counseling, and other needed referrals.

With bilingual and bicultural staff who understand the culture of program participants, BCNC is uniquely positioned to serve Chinese immigrant families affected by autism, many of whom do not otherwise access mainstream services.

The Doug Flutie, Jr. Foundation for Autism awards grants annually through a competitive application and review process. The grants that the Flutie Foundation distributes each year help to support family-focused programs in three key areas: promoting active lifestyles, improving access to services, and enhancing the independence of adults with autism.

School Security Measures Detailed

parents and staff aware of the multilayered security plan in the wake of the Feb. 14 Parkland, Florida high school shooting that left 17 dead and nearly 20 wounded.

The superintendent explained that four components make up the plan: Prevent, prepare, respond and recover.

"Prevention is about avoiding occurrences, preparation is planning, practices and evaluation, respond (is response to incidents) and recover is informing and responding to physical and psychological needs," DeCristofaro said.

The district has a safety and security team comprised of school administrators and community partners in law enforcement and social service agencies. The team meets monthly to discuss issues and updates.

"It is the largest team in Norfolk County," said Draicchio.

Draicchio explained that shortly after the Newtown, Connecticut elementary school shooting in 2012 where 20 students and six teachers were killed, he went to Mayor Thomas Koch who provided funding to set up a security plan that included prevention initiatives and protocols.

"We worked very hard making sure we had everything in place right after that," he said.

Several preventive measures were implemented in all the city's schools including installing access control devices, video intercoms at entrances, strict visitor protocols, picture identification badges for staff that include access control, classroom door locks, increased video surveillance and transportation safety.

Draicchio said video security has been greatly enhanced over the past several years since he was appointed security director.

"When I took over 8 years ago, most schools had one camera at the front door," he said. "Now, we have multiple cameras at all of our schools."

Draicchio explained that the surveillance system monitors the schools 24 hours a day and has recording software. He is looking to add more cameras to all exterior doors, hallways and stairwells moving forward.

All the schools' video feed are monitored by Draicchio.

"I can see all the schools on the multiple big screens in my office," he said.

Security officers at North Quincy and Quincy high schools also monitor their respective schools' surveillance cameras.

Draicchio noted Quincy police can access the surveillance feed from any school if needed.

"If there is an incident they can remote in to our schools at any time," he said.

Draicchio said all classroom doors have been outfitted with new double-sided locks that can be locked from the inside. All teachers and administrators have keys.

"We replaced every single classroom door lock in the school system a few years ago," he said. "It was a huge feat."

All exterior doors are locked during school hours. Intercoms at front entrances include a camera where security or office personnel can screen visitors. Draicchio said a staff member can control the embedded cameras to zoom in on a face or pan as needed.

Visitors are asked to state their name and purpose for coming to the school. If a visitor is wearing sunglasses or a hat, they are asked to remove them so the officials can have a clear view of the person's face. Visitors are buzzed in only after they are screened.

Once inside, visitors must report to the office where they are required to show a picture identification. After signing in, they are then given a visitors' badge with a specific colored lanyard to wear while inside. Anyone refusing to follow the visitors' procedures will not be allowed to leave the office area and administrators, police or Draicchio would be called to question the person.

School official conduct emergency drills in the schools including lockdown and evacuation. In the event of a threat inside a school, a lockdown is implemented where all students and staff clear hallways and go into the nearest classroom and lock the door.

Draicchio said that in 2015, Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey office's awarded a grant to the district to purchase two-way portable radios for each school where the staff can directly communicate with the Quincy police dispatch center.

The district's security plan requires any type of threats to be documented and reported.

As part of the security and safety plan, the Quincy Fire Department performs quarterly inspections in all the schools and conducts fire safety programs for grade three students.

There are three Quincy police officers assigned as school resource officers — one for each high school and one for the middle schools.

Additionally, both high schools have security officers that monitor a bank of surveillance camera feeds and patrol the hallways.

"They are constantly patrolling hallways and they really know their students," said Draicchio. "That's a great tool for us to have a security staff in our high schools."

Keenan said his department offers several programs to the schools including the DARE drug education program. He noted that Quincy is one of a few communities that still offers the DARE program.

"It provides an opportunity for young children to deal with a police officer in a positive way," he said.

The chief said the DARE program is being updated to include education on the legalization of marijuana.

Keenan said his officers constantly participate in active-shooter, de-escalation and threat assessment training.

The chief explained that cyber threats through the internet are increasing and are taken seriously.

"We make an assessment and engage in home visits and check the home to make sure they don't have access to carry out those threats," he said.

The student is then evaluated by mental health experts.

Keenan said his department participates in school response, active-shooter and de-escalation training.

"We are going to beef that up in light of what happened in the country recently and the rhetoric is going on," he said.

Papile said the district has a crisis team that includes counselors, deans and psychologists that provides support in the wake of traumatic events that would impact students.

"How they cope with an experience really defines how they are going to deal with loss, grief and crisis in the future," she said.

Papile said there are communication protocols in place to provide information to students, staff and parents in the event of an incident. Each school has a crisis team to provide support in such events.

"I feel very good with what we have in place," she said.

Committee members Paul Bregoli and James DeAmicis requested that the issue of installing metal detectors at the schools be discussed.

Colleague Douglas Gutro asked that communication to parents be improved regarding incidents. He requested that more details and follow-ups to incidents be provided.

Social Security Matters Ask Rusty — Doing A Breakeven Analysis

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I'm in a bit of quandary trying to decide whether I should take my Social Security now at 62, or wait until some later time, like maybe when I'm 66. I know that I'll get less money by taking it now, but I also know that my check will be bigger if I wait longer. I'm in pretty good health and don't really need the money right now, but I'm just unclear about whether it's best to wait, or just take the money and run. Signed: Wondering

Dear Wondering: You're asking, of course, one of the most common questions we receive — should I collect now, or wait until later? Social Security is designed so that, at least theoretically, you get the same amount of money either way. If you claim early your checks are smaller but you get more of them; if you claim later, your checks are bigger but you don't get as many. Again, that is theoretically. In reality, whether or not it is to your financial advantage to wait to apply for benefits depends nearly entirely on your health and expected longevity. Of course, no one knows how long they will live, but if you examine your health, your living habits and your family history, you can make an educated guess at whether you'll meet the current average longevity, which for men and women today is their early to mid-eighties.

To help with your decision, you may benefit from doing a breakeven analysis, which shows what your total received Social Security income would be in a couple of different scenarios. You can easily look to see how long you would have to live to collect the same amount of money if you claimed at, say, age 66 compared to what you would collect if you didn't wait and instead started benefits at age 62.

It goes like this: Get a Statement of Benefits from Social Security (you can do this online), which shows your estimated benefit at age 62, at your full retirement age (e.g., 66) and also at age 70. Using those numbers, first add up the total amount you would collect between ages 62 and your full retirement age by multiplying your monthly age 62 benefit times the number of months until your full retirement age (48 months in this example). Now subtract your age 62 monthly benefit amount from your full retirement age monthly benefit; use the product of that subtraction and divide it into the number from the previous calculation (the total you would collect between 62 and 66). The result will be the number of months from your full retirement age you would have to collect in order to get the same total amount of money as if you claimed at age 62.

In the simple example I just used, you would need to collect about 12 years beyond your full retirement age, or to age 78, before you have collected the same amount of money as if you claimed at age 62. You can do the same exercise using age 66 vs. age 70 and you'll find that you breakeven at about age 81. If you live beyond your breakeven age, you'll collect more in total benefits by waiting.

These numbers may vary slightly depending upon what your true full retirement age is and what your actual estimated benefits are, but this will give you a pretty close idea of when you would break even financially. Yes, it's a roll of the dice because no one knows how long they will actually live, and your current financial needs and health must always be part of the equation, but doing a breakeven analysis can be an important exercise to help you decide.

planning to leave class while middle school students will hold an in-school moment of silence followed by other activities.

"The high school students will be allowed to come out for 17 minutes," he said.

In a joint letter to parents from North Quincy High Principal Robert Shaw and Quincy High Principal Lawrence Taglieri, they stated the students' action is to "bring attention to school safety in light of the recent events in Parkland, Florida. We intend to support any student action that is organized, meaningful, safe and school appropriate."

The principals also stated that the student action would be limited to 17 minutes and that participation is voluntary.

"It is important that all students understand that any response is voluntary," the letter stated. "There should be no coercion, either to participate or not participate, of any kind from adults or student peers. There will be no school or co-curricular consequences for choosing to participate or choosing to not participate."

The principals' letter also stated that they would be meeting with student leaders and staff prior to Wednesday to discuss the "appropriate response to options that will allow for a safe environment in which our students can engage in thoughtful discussion and expression."

DeCristofaro said the administration will be working with Quincy police to secure the two school buildings while the students are outside.

The superintendent said the middle school principals would be sending letters to parents detailing the students' plan to have a moment of silence and other related activities. Guidance counselors will be meeting with students in small groups "to discuss why this is so important to honor (the victims) in this way."

School Committee member Douglas Gutro thanked the administration for being proactive and "handling this completely appropriately."

"I think it's terrific we are giving students a voice in terms of how they express their feelings around these issues," Gutro said. "The feedback that I'm hearing is it is constructive and it's helpful. It is important for them to not only acknowledge it and participate in it, but, not ignore it."

Gutro added that there will be subsequent discussions for the parents "to put everybody's minds at ease that we doing the right things."

Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo said that she and DeCristofaro met with the newly formed student advisory council to the school committee on the issue.

"The advisory council will be working with the student councils and administrations at both high schools to make sure (the event) is carried out with dignity and respect."

Since the mass shooting, Parkland, Florida students have been vocal on gun control and school safety and calling on their peers from around the country to demand action from the nation's leaders. The March 14 national walkout was planned by Women's March organizers.

On March 24, the "March for Our Lives" is planned by student activists where students will be marching on Washington, D.C. demanding an end to gun violence in the nation's schools.

James Greene Promoted To Quincy Police Sergeant

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Quincy Police Department's newest sergeant was sworn in Monday afternoon during a City Hall ceremony with dozens of fellow officers and family members in attendance.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo administered the oath of office to Sgt. James Greene in the Great Hall of the McIntyre Government Center. Greene's wife, Jill, pinned him with his sergeant's badge; the couple's children — eight-year-old daughter Riley and six-year-old son Ryan — were in attendance as well.

Greene, 46, is a Quincy resident who has spent 20 years with the Quincy Police Department, including the last dozen in the Special Operations Unit.

"It's a good day," he said shortly after he was sworn in as a sergeant.

Mayor Thomas Koch spoke at Monday's ceremony and began his remarks by thanking the Quincy Police Department — plus the fire department and DPW — for their response to the March 2 nor'easter that caused coastal flooding in sections of Quincy.

"I see a lot of faces that I saw down the Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown area from that storm just a week and a half ago. I just wanted to express my deep gratitude to each of you for the great work that was done," Koch said. "We had not fatalities, no major injuries, and that's not by accident."

Greene, the mayor said, is a well-liked and well-respected officer in the department.

"I know you join with me and the chief in congratulating Jamie. I know he's well-liked, obviously, by the turnout today. I know he's well-respected and does a great job for the city," Koch said. "I also love that he's a Quincy resident. He's also involved in our schools and involved in the community on a daily basis."

"Jamie, we congratulate you and your wife and your beautiful children on this day. We wish you continued success and all the best joining the ranks of the upper echelon. Thank you and congratulations."

Police Chief Paul Keenan called Greene an outstanding officer who was praised by fellow members of the department.

"I've known Jamie for quite a long time; we were over in detectives together. He was an outstanding detective and we hated to see him go from there," Keenan said. "He became a motorcycle officer for a number of years...and he's done an excellent job with the motorcycle patrols and doing a lot of the escorts for family members that pass away."

"He's just been an outstanding police officer. I know he's extremely well-respected by his peers — all the people that he works with and that are going to be soon working for him have said nothing but good things and give him high praise."

"I know Jamie has a lot of support from the men and women of the Quincy Police Department," the chief added. "I know he's going to do an outstanding job. We look forward to having him on the leadership team and we wish the best of luck to you and your family. Congratulations."

Keenan said Greene's first assignment as a sergeant would be by the midnight patrol shift.

Greene's promotion gives the department its full complement of 30 sergeants, Keenan said. Greene was promoted because another sergeant recently left for a yearlong military deployment. A sergeant's position would have opened up later this year with Capt. Anthony DiBona set to retire in September, the chief said.

Quincy Recognized For Low Dropout/High Grad Rates

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy was one of several urban school districts recognized by the state Department of Education (DOE) for having the lowest rate of dropouts and the highest graduation rate.

Since the 2011-12 school year, Quincy had the highest dropout decrease — 69 percent — compared to Taunton, Lowell, Haverhill and New Bedford. Also, Quincy's annual 0.6 percent rate is the lowest below the statewide dropout rate of 1.8 percent.

"We have had a 69 percent decrease in our dropout rate, 35 fewer students leaving since 2011," Superintendent of Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro told the school committee March 7.

The state dropout rate fell to 1.8 percent in the 2016-17 school year, the lowest in more than three decades, according to the DOE.

Quincy topped the list with the highest four-year graduation rate of 92.7 percent above the statewide rate. The city was followed by Cambridge with 89.7 percent and Leominster and Taunton both having 88.7 percent.

DeCristofaro said the city's high graduation rate is a testament to the district's educators.

"Our four year graduation rate as noted by DOE (Department of Education) certainly is a credit to our principals, assistant principals, teachers and our academic program staff as well as the academic support staff," he said.

DeCristofaro also gave a nod to Mayor Thomas Koch and the school committee for supporting programs that help retain students.

"Our desire, our goal and our mission is for every student to finish school," he said. "I think we provide so many great opportunities in general and as well as special education while we continue to implement some wonder alternative program pathways to graduation for so many of our students."

The superintendent noted one of the district's initiatives, Dropout Zero, targets at-risk students.

"We work hard with guidance (counselors) and so many others who make sure we keep track of our students who may be at risk of dropping out," he said.

Statewide, four-year graduation rates increased for the 11th consecutive year with 88.3 percent of students entering ninth grade in the 2013-14 school year graduating within four years, according to the DOE.

In addition to the overall graduation rate improvement, the rate for all major ethnic and racial groups in urban districts continues to grow.

The only major subgroup that had a decrease is graduation was English Language Learners.

The DOE noted there were 11,436 students who dropped out in 2006-07 school year compared to 5,172 last year — a decrease of 6,260 students.

"I hope teachers and students are proud of the personal accomplishments that are behind each of the numbers," Acting Elementary and Secondary Education Commissioner Jeff Wulfson stated in the DOE press release. "We will continue to support districts in this work and recognize that challenges remain, especially in addressing the needs of English learners."

Gov. Charlie Baker stated education is a top priority in the Commonwealth.

"Delivering a quality education to Massachusetts students and equipping them with the necessary skills for success after high school are top priorities for our administration," he stated. "We are pleased to see students from across the Commonwealth perform at such a high level, leading to the highest four-year graduation rate we have ever seen."

Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito stated the high graduation rates are the result of the strength and support of the public schools, students, families and teachers in each of the Bay State's cities and towns.

"We look forward to continuing our work to build upon this success and give families in all districts the strongest possible schools for their children," she said.

Education Secretary James Peyser said it is encouraging to see graduation rates of low-income and minority students increase each year.

"While Massachusetts students are among the strongest in the nation, we still need to work on closing achievement gaps," he said.

O'Donnell: Real Estate Market Shows Improvement

Increases In Sales Volume, Average Sales Prices For Residential, Commercial Properties In February

Bucking a stagnating real estate market, February in Norfolk County showed a few positive indicators marked by significant increases in sales volume and average sales prices for residential and commercial properties.

"While February saw a 0 percent percentage increase in the number of residential and commercial properties sold in Norfolk County compared to February of 2017, there was nevertheless a significant increase of 37 percent in the total volume of residential and commercial sales, totaling $463 million," said Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell. "Additionally, there was more good news with the average sales price, for both residential and commercial properties, rising by 46 percent to $866,610."

WILLIAM O'DONNELL
Norfolk County
Register Of Deeds

However, countering these promising statistics were the number of land documents recorded at the Registry. During the month of February there were 9,455 land documents recorded, a 5 percent reduction from the previous year. A main reason for the decrease can be attributed to the lending market.

Once again, Norfolk County saw a reduced number of mortgages recorded during February, a trend stubbornly seen for the past several months. There were a total of 1,589 mortgages recorded representing a 6 percent decrease from February 2017. However, the total amount of borrowing rose 598%, but the number was significantly skewed by a $2 billion mortgage taken out against the Calpine Fore River Energy Center in Quincy and Weymouth.

Norfolk County homeowners continued to avail themselves of the benefits of the Homestead Act. A total of 621 Homesteads were recorded in February, an 8 percent reduction year over year.

"I urge Norfolk County residents to consider filing a homestead on their primary residence. The Homestead law provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," O'Donnell said.

Foreclosure activity was relatively flat during the month of February. A total of 17 foreclosure deeds were filed compared to 16 the previous year. Also, the number of Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recordings, the first step in the foreclosure process, was 47 compared to 49 filed in February 2017.

"Foreclosure activity appeared to have stabilized during the month of February compared to the past few months when significant increases in Notice to Foreclose Mortgage recordings were seen," noted O'Donnell. "With that said, we need to make sure any homeowner facing a challenge with their monthly mortgage payments is getting the help and counseling they need."

"I urge anyone who is facing a foreclosure issue to avail themselves of these excellent programs," O'Donnell added.

In conclusion, O'Donnell said:

"In many respects, Norfolk County real estate activity is mirroring what's happening with real estate activity across the northeast United States. Home prices are rising, but total real estate sales numbers are stagnant due to a historically low amount of inventory.

This issue is especially burdensome for first time potential homebuyers. We are also seeing mortgage interest rates rise which may be causing some prospective buyers to pause."

T Garage Demo Expected To Start This Month

By SCOTT JACKSON

The MBTA plans to begin the demolition of the parking garage at its Quincy Center station this month.

Lisa Battiston, a spokeswoman for the transit agency, said demolition would start the weekend of March 24. The project will take 12 months to complete.

The Quincy Center station will remain open during the demolition work. As part of the project, the T has closed the busway on the Newport Avenue side of the station and will move the busway on the Hancock Street side away from the station structure to the area previously used as a queuing area for taxis.

The Quincy Center station, which is a stop on the Red Line and various commuter rail lines, first opened in 1971. State officials closed its 870-car garage without warning in July 2012 because of structural concerns.

The T will demolish the top three floors of the garage over the next 12 months, leaving the bottom two levels intact.

The MBTA has awarded development rights at the 6.3-acre station site to two firms, Atlantic Development of Hingham and Maryland-based Bozzuto Development. Mayor Thomas Koch and the City Council have both approved the project as required under special legislation passed in 1967; the project still requires approval from the Quincy Planning Board.

The firms' proposal submitted to the MBTA featured 600 apartments, 225,000 square feet of office space, and at least 600 parking spaces. The developers planned to construct the project in three phases, with 300 apartments in each of the first two phases followed by the new office building in the final phase. The whole project would be completed by early 2031.

The first phase would be built in front of the Hancock Street side of the station, the second phase would be located on top of the station itself, and the final phase in the area over the train tracks behind City Hall. Station upgrades would be undertaken during the first phase of the project, including construction of a new busway on the Newport Avenue side of the facility.

D.J. MacKinnon, Atlantic's president, told the City Council in December the number of apartments on site could be cut in half to 300 by converting the second phase of the project to office space.

The developers and MBTA are in the middle of a six-month due-diligence period to determine if the project is feasible.

Liang, Palmucci Seek Parking Advisory Board

City councillors approved the resolution in a unanimous vote. Chris Walker, a spokesman for Koch, said the administration would take the resolution under advisement.

During the March 5 meeting, Liang said Desman Associates, the firm Quincy retained to plan a 712-car parking garage that will be located on what is now the Hancock Lot, recommended the city create an advisory board for downtown parking matters.

"When we had a study done by Desman last year to project out existing parking situations as well as what we needed down the pike, it was recommended there was a parking advisory board established and this is just sort of a follow up to that to ensure the proper steps are taken to make sure that happens," Liang said.

The two councillors introduced their resolution the same night city officials outlined plans to provide parking in Quincy Center once the Hancock Lot closes.

Half of the 250 spaces presently open in the lot will close on April 2, and those with monthly parking passes will be reassigned to one of several municipally or privately owned lots in the area - including the Ross Lot, Hannon Lot (also known as the Messina Lot), Hancock Court Lot, and parking spaces at Central Baptist Church and Christ Church. The city will also begin a shuttle service to and from the Neighborhood Club for 120 Stop & Shop employees who do not have monthly passes. About 100 spaces in the Ross Lot will be available during weekday business hours for transient parkers, with the city using a valet service to maximize the spaces available, starting April 2.

The remaining 125 spaces in the Hancock Lot after April 2 will be reserved for transient parkers. The entire lot will close July 2, and the garage is set to open in the fall of 2019.

The city will spend $1.2 million on shuttle and valet service while the garage is under construction. Priority Parking was awarded the contract to provide shuttle and valet services; the Quincy-based company was one of four to respond to the city's request for quotation.

Liang said it was fitting to introduce the resolution the night the parking plan was released.

"I think tonight it's very fitting, because it's a clear example that there are a ton of moving parts, many departments, many different bodies and organizations that are involved with the parking that will affect the overall downtown," Liang said, identifying a number of stakeholders in Quincy Center including private developers, state agencies and different city departments.

"There is a ton of different moving parts that all come back to what our overall parking plan is going to be as it moves and changes with all these different developments coming online and ultimately with what the end product is going to be."

The new $46.6 million parking garage will feature 712 spaces once it is complete. At least one-quarter of those spaces will be leased to the developers of two-mixed use buildings set to rise on the Hancock Lot. Peter O'Connell will lease 124 spaces for his 124-unit Chestnut Place project, and LBC Partners will lease at least 50 spaces for its 171-unit Nova Residences project.

QHS Drama Club To Present 'Hunchback Of Notre Dame'

Performances Friday, Saturday, Sunday

"The Quincy High School Drama Club will present "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" with performances Friday through Sunday at the QHS Lloyd Hill Auditorium, 100 Coddington St.

The cast includes 65 students who have been rehearsing since December under the direction of Margaret Spencer, along with musical direction by Christopher Boel. The musical is based on the Victor Hugo novel and songs from the Disney animated feature.

This production showcases the film's Academy Award-nominated score. The musical begins as the bells of the Notre Dame sound through the famed cathedral in 15th-century Paris. Quasimodo, the deformed bell-ringer who longs to be "out there" observes all of Paris reveling in the Feast of Fools. Held captive by his devious caretaker, the arch-deacon Dom Claude Frollo, he escapes for the day and joins the boisterous crowd, only to be treated cruelly by all but the beautiful gypsy, Esmeralda.

Quasimodo isn't the only one captivated by her free spirit, though; the handsome Captain Phoebus and Frollo are equally enthralled.

As the three vie for her attention, Frollo embarks on a mission to destroy the gypsies - and it's up to Quasimodo to save them all.

Advertising Opportunity in The Quincy Sun's Special Supplement and Visitors Guide Historic Quincy

The Quincy Sun will again publish this spring its full color special supplement and visitors guide Historic Quincy.

Each year, this popular supplement is enjoyed by thousands of readers in Quincy and throughout the South Shore as well as visitors to the "City of Presidents" from around the world.

Historic Quincy highlights the city's many historic sites and reflects on its proud heritage through stories and photographs.

Topics include the nation's first father-and-son Presidents – John Adams and John Quincy Adams – and their wives First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams.

There are also features on the Adams National Historical Park, Josiah Quincy House, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, United First Parish Church, Adams Academy, the Thomas Crane Public Library, and the newly restored James R. McIntyre Government Center - the old "Town Hall" built in 1844 of Quincy-granite by famed architect Solomon Willard, designer of the Bunker Hill Monument.

Historic Quincy also spotlights the city's proud shipbuilding and granite-working industries and so much more.

This year's supplement offers advertising opportunities for local businesses and restaurants.

The supplement will be inserted in the May 3rd edition of The Quincy Sun. Extra copies will be printed and distributed throughout the city including historic sites year-round.

The supplement will also be posted on The Quincy Sun website - www.TheQuincySun.com – to reach even more visitors throughout the area and beyond.

Reardon Steps Down As Presidents Football Coach

Successor Expected To Be Hired In April

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

There will be a new head football coach leading the Quincy High School Presidents this fall.

Bill Reardon, who guided the Presidents the past 10 seasons including two play-off appearances, stepped down last week citing the need to spend more time with his family.

"I am stepping down because my family needs have grown immensely and there simply isn't enough time in the day to be a head football coach and meet those family needs at the same time," Reardon told the Sun. "The football team needs more time than I can afford to give it right now and it would not be fair to the kids on the team or my own kids to give less than 100 percent to either."

Reardon's tenure with the QHS football program runs 23 years. He started as a JV and positional coach in 1995 and then became the defensive coordinator in 1999. He took over as head coach in 2008.

Reardon graduated from Quincy High School in 1991. He was played for the Presidents with his final season in the fall of 1990 and served as one of the team's captains. He continued his football career suiting up for Stonehill College and was later inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame.

Reardon said Presidents football "has been a huge part of my life for more than 20 years." Stepping away from the sidelines as coach was not an easy decision, he said.

"It certainly wasn't an easy decision for me as I take great pride in all things Quincy High School, especially QHS football," he said. "It's been a huge part of my life for over 20 years and really a part of who I am. I have coached some really good kids over the past 23 years and have worked with really great people."

Reardon left open the possibility that he could return to the coaching ranks in the future.

"Hopefully, some day down the road when things are a little less hectic I will have the opportunity to come back and coach at the high school again," he said.

Reardon's record as a head coach was 40-67 including five wins over rival North Quincy in the traditional Thanksgiving Day game including four straight from 2012-2015. He led the Presidents to two play-off appearances - in 2014 and 2015. His 2013 squad narrowly missed out on the playoffs finishing the regular season with a 7-4 record.

Among the top players he coached for the Presidents were running backs Jalen Green and Jahvae Handsom-Fields, defensive standout Mike Munroe and quarterback James Lam.

Lam set the school career touchdown passing mark with 35 after tossing three scores in a 33-6 holiday win over the Red Raiders in 2014. Handsom-Fields established a new Thanksgiving Day mark in 2015 rushing for 296 yards on 33 carries in a 33-20 win over North Quincy.

The process to hire a new coach has begun. The position has been posted for applicants for 30 days. Administrators said a decision on hiring a new coach should be made by the end of April. Some of the team's current assistant coaches are expected to apply for the head coaching position.

Reardon, while stepping down as coach, will continue his job as a guidance counselor at Quincy High School.

BILL REARDON (right), shown here coaching during last November's Quincy-North Quincy football game on Thanksgiving Day at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, has stepped down as head coach. Reardon, who served as head coach for 10 years and as an assistant for 13 years, said he wants to spend more time with his family but left open the possibility of returning to the coaching ranks someday.

He met with his players last Wednesday to tell them of his decision to step down while encouraging them to continue to work hard and build on the QHS football tradition.

"I want to thank the Quincy High School community for allowing me to come back and coach at my old high school," said Reardon.

"It's been an honor and a privilege to coach these kids, and even after high school seeing them grow into young adults. It's been a blast."

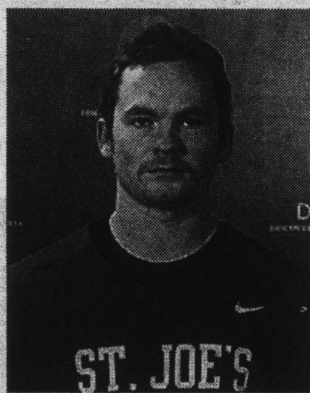

Michael Finn Reaches Milestone For Saint Joseph's Lacrosse

Junior Michael Finn, an attackman on the Saint Joseph's College men's lacrosse team, reached a milestone recently becoming the fifth player in SJC history to reach the 100-point plateau.

Finn, who was a standout lacrosse player at North Quincy High School, reached the milestone scoring six goals against Wentworth Institute recently. He has 85 goals and 20 assists for 105 points in 35 career games.

Finn has piled up some impressive milestones as a standout player for SJC.

He was named Rookie of the Week twice for back-to-back weeks during the 2016 season.

MICHAEL FINN

He played in all 15 games as a sophomore scoring 41 goals with eight assists for 49 total points. Finn scored a career-high seven goals in an 18-8 win over Anna Maria College last April and followed up that with six points (four goals, two assists) in a 17-2 over Thomas College.

As a freshman attack he played in 16 games and scored a team-high 29 goals, along with 11 assists for 40 points. In his first collegiate game Finn registered three goals and three assists in a 17-1 win over ME-Farmington.

Finn played four years of varsity lacrosse at North Quincy High School for coaches Mike Joyce, Mark Nutley and James Finn. He was named a Patriot League all-star his senior season. He was also a league all start in hockey and golf his senior year.

Finn, a business major, is the son of Joseph and Delores Finn of North Quincy.

Middle Schoolers Compete In Wrestling Championships

By CHRIS PRENDIVILLE

Approximately 20 middle school students, both boys and girls, recently participated in the six-week wrestling program held at Quincy High under the Middle School Interscholastic Athletics program.

Goals of the program include having students learn to control their bodies, being able to effectively wrestle an opponent one on one and of course, most importantly, for all the participants to have fun. Student athletes learned take downs, escapes, reversals and pins. The program culminated in a championship meet before February school vacation.

In the Featherweight Division Malachi Ficlan (Central) defeated Emraan Kafihi (Central) 6-5 to take the championship ribbon. In 3rd place was Finn Meaney (Central) and 4th Devereux Fuller.

In the Lightweight Division, sibling rivalry took center mat as Devin Nellany (Central) faced his brother Matthew. The older brother Devin prevailed 6-4 to take 1st place. Mike Colantonio (Central) took 3rd with Angelo Orlando in 4th.

The Light Middleweight final was a matchup of two of the girls in the program: Aaliyah Gomez (Sterling) and Simone Trainor (Atlantic). Trainor took home the blue ribbon with a 12-10 action packed win. Third place was Sam Traynor (Central) and 4th Sumayya Wafapor (Central).

The Middleweight Division match saw Rihui Lu (Central) defeat Noah Baker (Central) 8-0 with Jonathan Bina and Aida Costa (Central) taking 3rd and 4th place respectively.

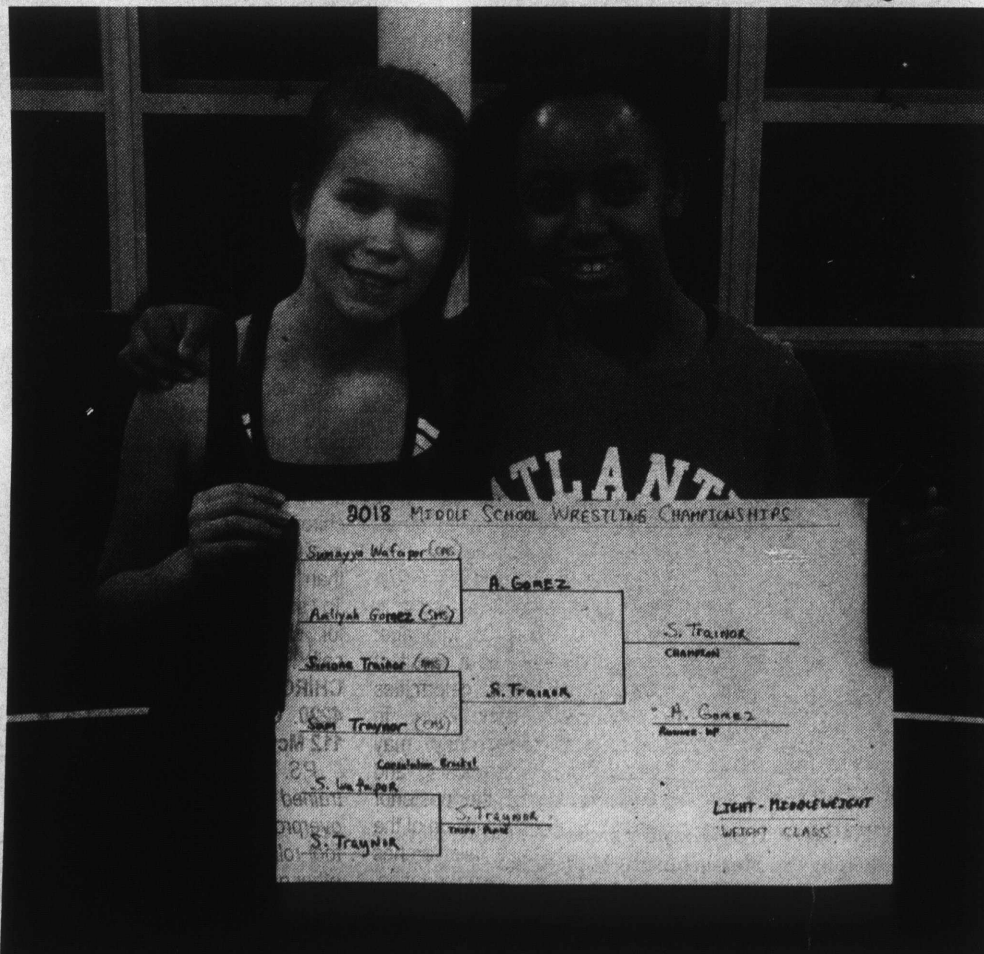

The Heavyweight Division gave Clayton Corley (Central) the crown with a 6-3 but win by pin over Michael Nellany (Central).

The wrestling program was run by Coach Mario Venturelli. Mario's brother Lou Venturelli is the head wrestling coach at Quincy High and when asked why kids should look into wrestling at the high school, Lou gave this response: "It's

B.C. High Students From Quincy Commit To Area Colleges

Three Boston College High School students from Quincy recently signed letters of intent to play sports and study at the collegiate level.

The three B.C. High honor students are John

MacDonald, Martin McCormack and Sean Healy. MacDonald and McCormack are varsity baseball players and Healy is a varsity hockey player.

MacDonald signed a letter committing to play baseball at Babson College in Wellesley. McCormack will play baseball at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Healy will play hockey at St. Anselm College in Goffstown, N.H.

BC High is proud to rec-

Fundraiser April 20 Supports Hydroplane Team

The 2018 World Hydroplane Championship will be held in the town of Slesin', Poland on June 15-17. This event is recognized by The International Olympic Committee and features the best teams and drivers from around the world.

The United States will once again be represented by the Quincy based U.S. A-Team. This group competed in Europe numerous times and took home the Bronze Medal from Germany in 2017, and they are now gearing up for their next run at a World Championship.

According to Team Captain Billy Allen, a new hull is being constructed at O'Connor Boats in Farmington, Maine and the team will soon travel south for some winter engine and prop testing.

As always, the team members pay their own airfare and hotel expenses but the shipping cost to get their container to the race venue poses the largest obstacle. The team will hold their annual fundraiser at The Nickerson Post in Squantum on Friday, April 20, from 6 to 10 p.m. There will be race boat displays, music by Councillor Bill Harris, a video presentation of past races by Valerie Lighthart, barbeque by Larry J, and the opportunity to get your picture taken with the World Championship medal the team brought home in 2017.

Suggested donation is $20 payable at the door.

FALLEN ARCHES

One person in five suffers from "fallen arches" (technically known as "pes planus"), which may affect one or both feet. "Rigid" flat feet remain flat all the time, while "flexible" flat feet have arches that collapse only when weight is put on them. Over time, flexible flat feet may become more rigid. Flat feet tend to run in families, and their incidence increases with age. They may arise as a result of congenital bone deformities or bone/soft tissue injury. In older individuals, they may result from overstretching and degeneration of the posterior tibial tendon on the inside of the ankle. In any case, fallen arches can lead to overpronation, which can lead to foot, ankle, knee, hip, and back pain.

Anyone who walks a lot has probably had pain in their feet at some point. All those who work on their feet know that it's not easy to ignore pain that radiates up from the feet into the back. There are a few causes of foot pain that chiropractic can solve just as easily (sometimes more easily) than other kinds of doctors. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic care, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Chiropractors are trained to look for signs of overpronation (wherein the foot rolls inward too much) and other gait problems. Addressing the sources of these problems often helps to alleviate pain in other parts of the body.

On Tuesday, March 6, at approximately 1:50 a.m., Officer Christopher McDermott was on patrol on Sea Street toward Quincy Shore Drive. He observed a motor vehicle traveling eastbound on Sea Street at a high rate of speed, estimated at 70-80 miles per hour in a 30 mile per hour zone.

Officer McDermott made a u-turn to attempt to stop the vehicle. The suspect vehicle immediately turned left onto Narragansett Road, still at a high rate of speed. He followed the vehicle and observed that it was parked with lights off at the corner of Narragansett and Chickatabot Road. The Officer did not see anyone in the vehicle as he neared. A check of the license plate showed that the Registry of Motor Vehicles had cancelled the license plate.

As the officer passed by the vehicle, the headlights came on and the vehicle began to travel in reverse at a high rate of speed. Officer McDermott turned his cruiser around and activated his blue lights in an attempt to stop the vehicle. The vehicle took off back out to Sea Street reaching speeds of approximately 80-85 miles per hour as it headed into Houghs Neck. Although traffic was extremely light at this hour, the officer used caution as he attempted to keep the vehicle in sight while updating Communications and responding Officers.

Once the suspect vehicle passed Palmer Street, Officer McDermott slowed his cruiser because he was aware of the recent change in road conditions after the major storm damage, namely sand still on roads with scattered debris. As the vehicle followed Sea Street at the curve near Babcock Street, the officer lost sight of it, since he was much farther back. As Officer McDermott reached the area of the curve, he found the vehicle had crashed at the intersection of Sea Street and Manet Avenue. The vehicle went through a fence and then into a tree.

The officer approached the driver's side of the vehicle and observed no operator; however, there was an unconscious female in the passenger's side seat. He immediately called for an ambulance as he approached the female, who was in the fetal position on the passenger's side floor with her head resting on the seat. He then checked her pulse which was present but she was unresponsive. Due to the violent impact of the accident, Officer McDermott did not move her. Both front airbags had been deployed and the female was not wearing a seat-belt.

Once EMTs and Quincy Fire were on scene, State Police Trooper Brian McKenna (K9 Unit) arrived on scene. He stated the same vehicle was initially stopped in Weymouth by the State Police for a window tint violation but fled from that stop. He added the State Police followed the vehicle from Weymouth, to Braintree, and into Quincy but terminated the encounter because of the high rate of speed the suspect vehicle was traveling as it entered Quincy.

Officer McDermott took out his K9 partner as did Trooper McKenna in an attempt to locate the direction the suspect fled in. Trooper McKenna search Manet Avenue towards Babcock Street while Officer McDermott checked the yards along Sea Street. Moments later, Trooper McKenna could be heard yelling commands in the distance, so Officer McDermott ran to that area where he found the Trooper and his partner Bruno focusing on a male who was hiding under a porch at 15 Stoughton St. The suspect refused several orders to show his hands and to come out from under the porch.

After numerous warnings to come out, Trooper McKenna sent his K9 under the porch to apprehend the suspect. The suspect was bit by K9 Bruno in his shoulder. The suspect now complied with directions and was escorted from out under the porch and placed into custody. A second ambulance was called to provide medical attention to the suspect and he was transported to Quincy Medical Center for treatment.

The officers noted the suspect was extremely intoxicated and could not stand without assistance. The 18-year-old female passenger from Holbrook was transported to South Shore Hospital to be treated for her injuries.

The suspect/driver, a 21-year-old resident of South Boston was placed under arrest and charged with speeding, failure to stop, operating to endanger, leaving the scene of a MV accident with personal injury and property damage, operating under the influence of alcohol, malicious damage to real or personal property, and attaching plates.

Nice Work!

CASHIER'S CHECK SENT TO YOU? Recently there have been a few incidents where local residents received checks in the mail from a large local bank. The check in one incident came as is in an envelope posted "UPS NEXT DAY AIR." The check for $3,800 was made out to a local resident and in the middle of the check was stamped, "CASHIER'S CHECK". I contacted the bank and was informed that this particular bank does not issue cashier's checks so it was fraudulent. On the envelope is the return address of "Johnson King" with a return address of Amazon in Phoenix, Arizona. A Google check of "Johnson King scam" showed this name to be involved in many types of scams. Oddly, there was nothing else in the envelope so a follow up letter may come soon. Remember, if you elect to deposit a check like this, there are two points to focus on. The Teller will often state that there is anywhere from a two to a five day hold on the check to make sure it is valid. During this time, do not send anyone connected to the check any money. It is highly likely a scam!

They have come together to be a local expression of Christ's church, studying God's word, living in community and loving our city.

The Sunday Worship Service is preceded by an adult Bible class at 9 a.m. led during Lent by Steve Emery.

At 10 a.m. Pastor Mike Fehan is preaching a series on the Gospel of Mark. Children in grades K-9 enjoy a time of worship with the larger church family and then have their own creative teaching time with a Bible lesson, video or craft.

An experienced team keeps infants - 4 year olds happy. After worship all are invited for refreshments in Fellowship Hall.

Teams are being organized for two short-term experiences this summer and fall. One will work in Texas helping to rebuild homes destroyed in the 2017 hurricane; the other will assist Central Asian refugees in Athens, Greece.

For information about these, as well as weekly adult Bible studies, men's night and youth group, call Pastor Mike at 617-406-8204.

OBITUARIES

Richard A. Storella, 83

A memorial Mass for Richard A. Storella, age 83, of Quincy was celebrated March 9 in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Storella died at his home on March 2.

He was the husband of the late Geraldine (Bruno) Storella. Born in Quincy on Nov. 28, 1934, he was the son of the late Anthony J. and Millie (D'Amico) Storella.

A graduate of Quincy High School class of 1954, Mr. Storella attended Wentworth Institute. He also served in the US Army.

Mr. Storella was employed as a sales representative in the steel industry for 40 years. He was a former board member and coach for Quincy Youth Hockey for 15 years and former assistant coach at BC High School for 5 years.

An avid golfer and member of Pembroke, Marshfield

RICHARD A. STORELLA and Granite Links Country Clubs, Mr. Storella shot the inaugural hole in one at Granite Links golf course in 2004.

He is survived by his loving companion, Kathryn Harrington of Quincy; a brother, Bob Storella and his wife Mary Lou and his grandson, John Richard Storella Mullin. He was also brother-in-law of Adrienne and Jim Brady.

Private interment.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Lois M. Bennett, 85

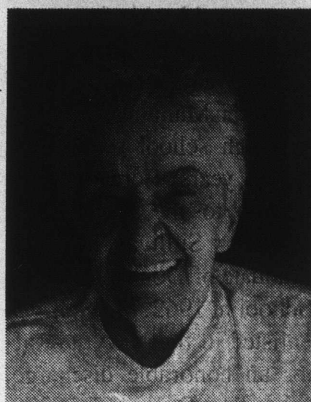

Funeral services for Lois M. Bennett, age 85, were private.

Mrs. Bennett died March 5 at Harbor House Rehabilitation & Nursing Center in Hingham.

From her birth in Quincy to her passing, she continually nourished people around her with her kindness, sense of humor and her love of family.

Mrs. Bennett's husband, Raymond Bennett, preceded her in death. Left to honor and remember her love are her two daughters, Susan Hebdon and Sandra Wilhelm, her four grandchildren, Sara Madden, Samantha Wilhelm, Nicole Wilhelm and Michael Hebdon.

Mrs. Bennett will always be remembered as a bright, shining light that loved her children and grandchildren with all her heart.

The family wishes to thank all of those who cared for her during her last few years.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association.

John K. Hansen, 96

Visiting hours for John K. Hansen, age 96, of Quincy, a former longtime resident of New Bedford, were held March 8 in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mr. Hansen died peacefully March 6, surrounded by his loving family at the Quincy home of his son, Gary, and daughter-in-law, Brenda, his devoted caregivers for the past two and a half years.

He was born to the late Andreas and Nilla Hansen in Karmoy, Norway, where he was raised and educated. He was a Norwegian Merchant Marine World War II veteran. He received two medals of honor from the King of Norway for his contribution and sacrifice during World War II and he received the Defense and Commemorative medal from the Office of the Defense Attaché, Norwegian Embassy in Washington, D.C. for his valuable service in restoring the Liberation of Norway.

Mr. Hansen immigrated to the United States, arriving in New York. He then settled in New Bedford with his family, living there for most of his life. He was a longtime, active member of the New Bedford First Church of the Nazarene.

He began his career as a fisherman, working in New Bedford's commercial fishing industry for over ten years. He went on to work as a tool and die maker and plastic fabricator. He was also employed as a house painter. Mr. Hansen was a proud, meticulous, hard-working man who was devoted to his family, especially his sons and grandchildren.

He was a loyal Boston

JOHN K. HANSEN

Bruins fan, enjoyed soccer, and took daily walks, greeting friends along the way with his handsome, bright smile and a twinkle in his eye.

Beloved husband of the late Marion (Stanford) Hansen. Devoted father of Wayne Hansen and his wife Laura of Kingston, NH; Gary Hansen and his wife Brenda of Quincy. Loving grandfather of Peter, Sarah, Aaron, and Dylan Hansen; John G. and Gary W. Hansen; and three great grandchildren.

The last of seven siblings, he was predeceased by Alfred, Malena, Agnus, Kristina, Nils, and Andrew. Dear uncle of Bernice Johannessen and Alfreda Haaland, both of New York.

Private interment at Acushnet Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to Fishing Partnership Support Services, 30 Chestnut Ave., Suite 2, Burlington, MA 01803 or fishingpartnership.org, or The Salvation Army of Quincy, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, MA 02169.

The Hansen family would like to acknowledge the staffs of VNA Hospice, Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center, and John Adams HealthCare Center for their compassion, care, and support.

Florence Daley, 83

A funeral service for Florence "Donna" Daley, 83, of Braintree and Seminole, Fla., was held Monday in Christ Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Daley died March 5 in Florida due to complications from pancreatic cancer.

She is survived by her loving husband of 16 years Dr. Henry Daley, a retired Bridgewater State University chemistry professor.

She was the loving mother of Craig Fedor, Scott Fedor and his wife Tracey and the late Richard Fedor. Cherished grandmother of Amanda Fedor, Nicholas Fedor, Kelly Fedor, Nicholas Fedor, Kelly Fedor, Dennis Fedor and Denille Fedor Carr. Also survived by her great granddaughter Emilia Carr.

Born in Quincy, Mrs. Daley had several lifelong childhood friends and loved cruising the seven seas and Europe. Playing bridge was a passion of hers and, along with Henry, they belonged to a local bridge club. Mrs. Daley enjoyed wintering in Florida and summers in New England.

The Rev. Clifford Brown, Rector, officiated the service.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169 or The Puritan Bridge Club, 22 Faxon St. Braintree, MA 02184.

Malcolm S. MacNeil, 73

A funeral Mass for Malcolm S. MacNeil, 73, of Quincy, a respected rehabilitation counselor, educator and soccer coach, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Thursday in Most Blessed Sacrament Church of Holy Trinity Parish, Quincy.

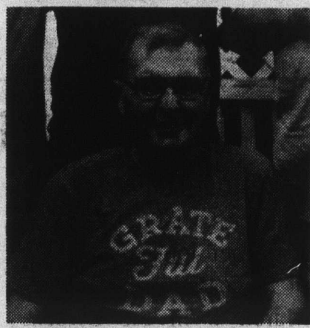

Mr. MacNeil died peacefully on the morning of March 9, 2018 surrounded by the love, comfort and care of his family.

Born in Boston and raised in Dorchester, he was the son of the late Alexander and Emily (MacKinnon) MacNeil. He was a 1962 graduate of Boston English High School where he played baseball, and received both his undergraduate degree in psychology and Master's degree in education from Northeastern University.

He moved to Quincy in 1968 and before long accepted the position of rehabilitation counselor with the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission, from which he retired in 2011 after 37 years. During this time he was concurrently serving as a drug and alcohol counselor with Bay State Community Services as well as teaching at UMass Boston.

Mr. MacNeil was an active member of the Quincy community, and served as president of Quincy Youth Soccer for 20 years, after which the organization honored his contributions by naming a scholarship and soccer field for him. He was a member of Holy Trinity Parish, Quincy where, together with his wife Joanne, they served for many years as Eucharistic ministers.

He was the devoted hus-

Jeffers and his wife Kathy Jeffers of Billerica, Paul D. Jeffers and his wife Kathi Jeffers of Hanson and Diane M. Jeffers of Quincy. Cherished Grandma to Hannah, Tyler and Madison Jeffers. Sister of Stephen Faxon and his wife Maureen Faxon of Litchfield, NH, Dennis Faxon and his wife Angela Faxon of Dracut and Donna Faxon of Malden. Also survived by many nieces, nephews and their children who she loved dearly. She also leaves behind her beloved companion, her dog Molly. She had a very special place in her heart for her Molly.

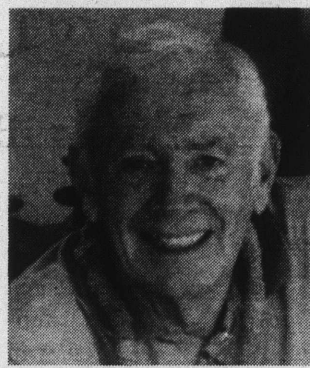

A celebration of life for Francis E. Sullivan was held Monday in St. Kateri Tekakwitha Church, Plymouth.

Mr. Sullivan died March 5 surrounded by his family after a long battle with cancer.

He was the husband of Sue (Ann Manning) Sullivan, his high school sweetheart, for 51 years. Born in South Boston to the late Francis and Mary Sullivan, he was a graduate of Don Bosco High School in 1962. Mr. Sullivan enlisted in the Navy and after an honorable discharge, moved to Quincy. In 1970, he joined the Quincy Fire Department. In his thirty years with the QFD, he ultimately served as captain of the Wollaston Hill fire station and then as the training officer of Quincy's Fire Training Academy. He also served as an instructor at the Massachusetts Fire Academy in Stowe, training top recruits from all over the state.

Always one to put family first, he served as scoutmaster of the Boy Scout Troop 5 at St. Boniface Church of Quincy. In retirement, Mr. Sullivan taught fire science at Anna Maria College, Empire State College, and Quincy College, where he founded the fire science program. He loved his home in the Lake

FRANCIS E. SULLIVAN

Fairways community of North Fort Myers, Florida; where he and his wife Sue served on the Entertainment Committee.

In addition to his wife Sue, he is survived by his sister, Elaine Breen and the late Regina Hussey; son John Sullivan and his wife Kerry; daughter Susan Wentworth and her husband Ron Reilly; son Robert Sullivan and his wife Karin; eight grandchildren; and many beloved nieces and nephews.

Interment with military honors at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne, at a later date.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Shepherd Funeral Home, Kingston.

Memorial donations may be made to Tuberous Sclerosis Alliance (tsalliance.org) or Pat Roche Hospice Home (nvna.org).

Stephen Calabro, 85

A funeral Mass for Stephen Calabro, age 85, of Quincy, will be celebrated at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Calabro died peacefully March 9 at the CareOne at Weymouth facility, in the comfort of his loving family.

He was born in Quincy to the late Joseph and Elizabeth (Celata) Calabro. He was raised and educated in Quincy and was a lifelong Quincy resident.

He was proud to have served in the United States Army during the Korean War and received the Korean Service Medal with 3 Bronze Service Stars.

Mr. Calabro worked for the City of Quincy for many years. He began his career as a laborer with the Quincy Highway Department and later worked as a kitchen aide at the former Quincy City Hospital for over twenty-five years. He loved his job and his family. He was an avid Boston Red Sox fan and enjoyed watching all the games.

One of fourteen siblings, Mr. Calabro was the beloved brother of Angelina Ryan of Quincy, Frances Bullock of Weymouth, Robert Calabro and his wife Judith of Whitman, Richard Calabro of Quincy, Lorraine Roberts of Braintree, and was predeceased by Anthony Calabro, Marie Walsh, Samuel Calabro, Joseph Calabro, Elizabeth "Lil" Iacobacci, John Calabro, Michael Calabro, and Ann Calabro. He is also survived by many nieces, nephews, and his good friend Shelley Daigle of Quincy.

Visiting hours were 5 to 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy. Funeral from the funeral home at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Interment with Military Honors at Mount Wollaston Cemetery in Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Jeanne T. Rowell, 76

A funeral Mass for Jeanne T. (Barrett) Rowell, Registered Nurse, age 76, a lifelong Quincy resident, was Wednesday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Rowell died peacefully March 7 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born in Quincy to the late Edward L. and Mildred J. (Georgianna) Barrett. She was raised in Quincy and was a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Class of 1959. She was also a graduate of the former Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing.

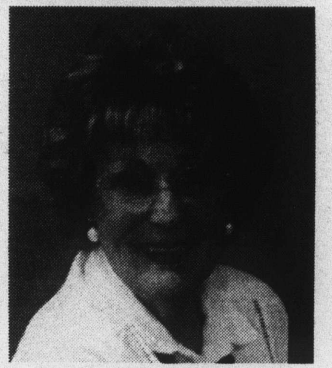

Mrs. Rowell loved being a registered nurse and began her career working in the Emergency Room at the former Quincy City Hospital. She later became the head nurse for the City of Quincy's Health Department for many years and also worked in home healthcare nursing for Pediatric Services of America.

She was a longtime member of St. John the Baptist Parish in Quincy and was active in the St. Boniface Church Haiti Foundation. She traveled to Haiti in the 1980s with Father Richard DeVeer and the St. Boniface volunteers, providing her nursing skills to those less fortunate.

Mrs. Rowell was an active alumna and supporter of Archbishop Williams High School, where her two sons and grandson proudly followed in her footsteps. She was also a passionate Boston sports fan, always knowing the score of last night's game. One of her favorite places to be was at the beach with the sun on her face and her feet in the saltwater.

Most of all, Mrs. Rowell was devoted to her family, to whom she was known as Mom, Nana, Sister, and Auntie. She loved and supported them unconditionally and wanted nothing more than to see them thriving and happy. She brought joy to their lives and created countless special memories.

Beloved wife of the late David F. Rowell, Sr., Chief,

JEANNE T. ROWELL

Richard A. Harris, 74

A memorial service for Richard Arthur "Dick" Harris, 74, of Quincy, will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday in First Presbyterian Church, Quincy.

Mr. Harris died peacefully at home following a long illness on the afternoon of March 8 in the office he mostly ignored surrounded by the love, comfort and care of family.

Born in Boston, he was the only child born to the late Frederick A. and Gladys (MacDonald) Harris. He received both his undergraduate and Master of Arts degrees from Bridgewater State, the latter in history. Mr. Harris taught history and social studies in the Quincy Public School system, assigned to Atlantic Middle School and North Quincy High School for many years.

He was a longtime member, Elder and Choir member at First Presbyterian Church, Quincy. He was a former member of Quincy Lions Club and Scott's Charitable Society. He enjoyed a good laugh, karaoke, piano bars and summers spent at Camp Wellville in Ashburnham, but his favorite times were those spent in the company of his loving family.

RICHARD A. HARRIS

Devoted husband of 45 years to Martha Sue "Sue" (Luongo) Harris. Loving father of Scott MacDonald Harris and his wife Dr. Ofelia Martines of Valley Cottage, NY, Adam Samuel Harris of Quincy, and Alex F. Harris and his fiancée Susie Donahue of Boston. Cherished grandfather of Xavier and Maxim Harris. Also survived by extended family and many close friends.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to First Presbyterian Church, 270 Franklin St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Owls Of The World Program April 18

Mark and Marcia Wilson will return to the Kennedy Center with their family of owls on Wednesday, April 18th at 1 p.m.

They will share the field marks, signs and naturalists skills used to find wild owls without disturbing them. Next they will introduce live owls (from small to huge) up close.

Everyone participates in a "hooting" lesson and learns how to attract and protect owls.

This is a great inter-generational event for the school vacation week. Seniors are encouraged to bring their grandchildren, nieces and nephews, etc.

Tickets are $3 and can be purchased at the Kennedy Center. For more information call the Kennedy Center at (617) 376-1506.

End Of Season Track & Field Reggie Lewis Track & Athletic Center

By GEOFF HENNESSY

The season didn't end at the State Divisional for several track and field stars of the Quincy-North Quincy Track team.

During the school vacation week senior Emma Nguyen established herself as one of the better weight throwers in the state placing third in the 20lb weight throw at the USATF-NE vacation invitation held at the Reggie Lewis Center. This event was part of a bigger youth meet which has been held for years over the vacation for kids 14-under.

A group of Masters (40-over) Throwers known as the Twilight Throwers Club decided to offer the opportunity for high school kids to learn and master the 20lb(girls) and 25lb(boys) weight throw which is the indoor version of the hammer throw. It is the brain child of Hingham resident and former Northeastern star Tim Morse and fellow Husky thrower Bob Cedrone and Club Director Jim Burgoyne. Emma's toss of 34'11.5" placed her third and earner her a medal and trophy.

Junior teammate Benson Nguyen (no relation) placed 7th in the boys competition with a 44'08" toss. The two throwers are coached by Michelle Bell, herself a former Northeastern throwing star (shot and discus), and former Boston University ('88) All-American and Hall of Famer Tony Kenneally.

"These kids have been exposed to a whole new world in throwing," said Head Coach Geoff Hennessy. "Colleges contest the weight and hammer but only Rhode Island and a handful of other areas of the country do the weight. Colleges offer scholarships and this opens doors to an array of opportunities.

"I can't thank Coach Bell and Kenneally for what they've done for our throwers."

Emma is already accepted at UMass-Dartmouth and is attracting attention from their staff. Benson has another year to go and also plays football for the Presidents.

At the Boston University Last Chance Invitational Alex Case and Devin Hiltunen got one more opportunity to race indoors in this, their final year of high school. Case is already destined for Wheaton College and Hiltunen has been accepted at Brandeis. The BU event only this year was given permission to include high school athletes as long as they competed unattached or with a USATF club. Both girls represented the Quincy Track Club which is directed by Hennessy. Case clocked an 8.20 in the longer 60 meter sprint but really opened eyes with a 25.77 clocking in the 200 meters, running without blocks and put out in lane one against older college athletes. She won her heat and is now the fastest girl to ever run for Quincy High. It is believed that Kristine Picarski back in 1984 clocked in the low 26's. Case placed 14th in a field of 42 runner. Hiltunen in the 400-meters ran her fastest ever, a 61.59 taking 3rd in her heat.

At the New Balance Indoor High School Nationals in New York City, Nathan Sleiman competed in the triple jump in the Emerging Elite Division. In a field of 31 athletes from all over the country, Sleiman leaped 44'3.25" good enough for 22 place. The junior establishes an indoor school record for North Quincy High School. It was his best performance indoors or out in that event.

In other news North Quincy alumnae Emily and Julia Bryson lit it up at the NCAA Division III championships held for the first time in Birmingham Alabama. Emily and Julia teamed up to represent Brandeis to a third place in the Distance Medley Relay. Julia ran the leadoff 1200m leg, while Emily anchored with the 1600 meter leg. Emily went on to win the 3000 meter run in 9:33.99. Seeded as the 17th and last competitor in the field, she hung back in the main pack until 3 laps to go moving up to second and unleashed a blistering 30 second final 200m to win by 5 seconds. It was Emily's 5th All American Certificate (3 in cross country, 2 in track) and Julia's first ever. Both girls got their start with the Quincy Track Club, beginning at age 7. Julia is now the 30th athlete from the club to achieve an NCAA or NAIA All America Certificate since 1974.

Morrisette Baseball Meeting Sunday

Morrisette Baseball will have an informational player-parent meeting Sunday, March 18 at 7:30 p.m. about the upcoming tryouts and season. The meeting will take place at the Post home, Liberty St., Quincy.

Anyone who plans on trying out for the senior or junior team should plan on attending this meeting and/or should have a parent there to represent them. Any questions contact Steve Maze (617) 777-8956.

Quincy's Emily Bryson Wins Div. III 3,000-Meter Championship

Brandeis University junior Emily Bryson of Quincy won a national championship in the 3,000-meter run Saturday, blowing away the field in the final 400 meters at the NCAA Division III Track and Field championships at the Birmingham Crossplex and hosted by Birmingham-Southern College.

Bryson, who entered the championship meet as the final entrant with the 17th-fastest qualifying time, stayed within the top eight for the first half of the race, staying on the rail inside of the pack. She moved into the lead pack with about four laps to go, and in the final 400 meters pulled away. After running a blistering final lap of 30.67 seconds, Bryson won the race in 9:39.99, a full five seconds faster than runner-up Bryn McKillop of Claremont-Mudd-Scripps.

"I felt so good headed into the final 400 meters," Bryson said. "I didn't want to go too early, knowing how many other great runners there were in the race, but [head coach] Sinead [Evans] talked to me before the race about being patient. I was ready to go on those last two laps."

Bryson is Brandeis women's track and field's first individual national champion since 1997, when Victoria Petrillo '99 won the 800-meters. She Brandeis's first 3,000-meter run All-American since 1993; when Theresa Patten '94 earned honors outdoors. Her time eclipsed the school record held by Nicole Fogarty '89 since the late 1980s by six seconds and was the ninth-fastest time in Division III history.

With her second All-America honor of the meet, Bryson became the first Judge to finish in the top eight in two events since 2003, when Mariko Tansey Holbrook Neveu '03 finished fifth in the 5,000-meters and third in the distance medley relay.

"I spent a lot of hours at Gosman," Bryson said. "And standing on top of that podium, it really felt like all that hard work paid off. Sinead has been great and had so much confidence in me. My coaches and teammates were so supportive all year long."

"She ran brilliant," Evans said. "This was a goal all season long, to compete for a national title in the DMR [in which the Judges finished 3rd on Friday night] and the 3,000. Emily was in great shape. I knew if she was within range of the leaders, she had the kick to win it, and she did exactly what she wanted to do."

With the 16 points scored by the Judges by Bryson in the 3K and by the DMR team, the Judges finished in a tie for 14th place in the team standings. That put them sixth among New England schools - including team champion UMass Boston and runner-up Williams - and third among University Athletic Association teams.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Congratulations, Lamb. This is the week to finish your project and then bask in your well-earned approval. (And if you like, you also can say "bah" to all those detractors.)

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The bold Bovine could find a new opportunity too intriguing to be ignored. But don't charge into it. Go slowly so you see how things develop as you get more involved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might try to soften your stand on that important issue. A little more flexibility actually could get you what you're looking for. A new friend enters the picture midweek.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your inner voice is on the mark when it advises you to tackle that family problem now! The sooner you're able to come to terms with it, the better it will be for everyone.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Someone reveals important news about a longtime associate. But before you decide how to deal with this information, make sure it's reliable, and not simply self-serving.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some intensive soul-searching early in the week can help you reach a decision by week's end that should please both you and the other person involved. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The possibility of a career change is intriguing. Learn more about what it can offer and what it cannot. Weigh everything carefully. And ask questions.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Work is your priority this week as you try to make up for lost time. Expect help from someone who cares about you. Things take a welcome turn by the week-end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A health problem causes some anxiety early in the week. But prompt medical attention soon eases everyone's concerns. Enjoy an arts-filled weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) As much as you might resent it, a changing situation could require you to adjust your plans accordingly. The good news: An associate agrees to cooperate.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) That old problem is finally resolved, just in time for you to take on a new work-related project. This one could be the super door-opener you've been looking for.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The early part of the week presents some difficult hurdles. But once you get over them, you can start to focus on matters that are more important to you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are respected for your honesty and your dedication to doing the right thing, no matter how difficult that might be.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Don't mess with Meryl Streep! When Harvey Weinstein's attorneys, trying to get him off of racketeering charges, quoted her as saying, "He has always been respectful to me," she shot back, "Harvey Weinstein's attorneys' use of my statement -- that he was not sexually aggressive or physically abusive in our business relationship -- as evidence he was not abusive with many OTHER women is pathetic and explosive!" She added, "The criminal actions he is accused of conducting on the bodies of these women are his responsibility, and if there is any justice left in the systems, he will pay for them."

P.S. The Weinstein Company is currently up for sale.

Netflix is resurrecting more old shows. It will launch a reboot of the classic sci-fi series "Lost in Space" (1965-1968) on April 13. A screener has already sent it to the International Space Station for the astronauts to watch. The series takes place 30 years into the future, when colonization in space is a reality. Starring as John Robinson (played by Guy Williams in the 1960s) will be Toby Stephens, Pierce Brosnan's 007 villain in "Die Another Day" (2002) and also Starz "Black Sails" series. His wife, Maureen, will be played by Molly Parker (of "House of Cards") and Will Robinson (Billy Mumy) now will be played by 12-year-old Chicago-born Max Jenkins. Dr. Zackary Smith (Jonathan Harris) has undergone a gender change and will be played by Parker Posey, best known for the Woody Allen films "Irrational Man" (2015) and "Cafe Society" (2016).

Not content to be "spaced out," Netflix also is reviving "Sabrina the Teenage Witch," with Kiernan Shipka (Sally Draper in "Mad Men") as Sabrina (played by Melissa Joan Hart from 1996-2003). Her aunts will be Miranda Otto (Eowyn in the second and third "Lord of the Rings" films), taking over for Beth Broderick as Zelda Spellman, and Lucy Davis (Etta Candy in "Wonder Woman") handling Caroline Rhea's role of Hilda Spellman.

Even though CBS has Tom Selleck in the hit series "Blue Bloods," the network is intent in revisiting his days as Thomas Magnum in "Magnum, P.I. (1980-88). For the pilot to sell the series, it has cast Jay Hernandez in Selleck's star-making role. Hernandez starred in "Hostel" (2005) and the 2007 sequel, and most recently was in "Suicide Squad" (as Chato Santana/El Diablo) and "Bad Mom's Christmas," with Mila Kunis, Kristen Bell and Susan Sarandon.

Finally, billionaire Bill Gates has filmed an appearance in "The Big Bang Theory" that will air later this month. In the show, Penny hosts Gates at her work, and the guys do everything they can to meet him. Gates' last sitcom appearance was in "Fraser" in 2001. How can anyone survive with only two sitcom appearances in 17 years?

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Perfume Lamp --- In the unsanitary world of the 18th and 19th century, bad smells were everywhere. There was no garbage pickup, no indoor flushing toilets and no refrigeration to keep food from spoiling. In the 1800s, a special lamp was used to remove the strong odors in hospitals and mortuaries. It was a catalytic lamp that burned an alcohol-based fuel. A cotton wick burned for a few minutes to heat a stone. After the flame was out, the heated stone turned odors into carbon dioxide and water.

In 1897, a Frenchman improved the lamp by adding perfume to the fuel to make a scented room. Many lamps were made in figural shapes suitable for a living room or bedroom. Today, perfume lamps heat with electricity. The best 20th-century perfume lamps were made by French makers Robj, Aladin or Etling. A perfume lamp shaped like an Art Deco chorus girl sold at a Skinner auction in Boston several years ago for $1,968. The 10-inch lamp was marked "Meu Bach Aladin."

Q: Vintage sofas are much lower priced than new ones. I like Victorian sofas with curved backs, but don't want to learn my bargain sofa has a problem I can't fix.

A: If you want a 19th-century sofa, you should buy from a knowledgeable dealer. So little of the frame shows that it is difficult to tell a 19th-century sofa from an early 20th-century one. We once told the boss at a house sale that we would pay the asking price for a sofa if we could slit the back upholstery to be sure the frame was old. The marks from old tools said it was old, and we bought it.

Smell any old upholstered furniture. Often, the smell will not leave. Decide if the upholstery is a color and condition you want to live with. Re-upholstering furniture is very expensive. Sit on the sofa to be sure it is comfortable. Some seats are low, bumpy, too narrow or much harder than most modern pieces. Some of that can be fixed with decorative pillows. Be sure you can get it in your van or car. If you want to use it in a basement or second-floor room, the stairs may have too low a ceiling or a turn that makes it impossible to take it inside. But if all looks OK, you will have a sturdy bargain.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was French poet, journalist and novelist Anatole France who made the following sage observation: "The law, in its majestic equality, forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread."

* If you're planning a trip to North Carolina in June, try to make it to the small town of Spivey's Corner for the annual Hollerin' Contest. If you'd like to participate but are worried about straining your vocal cords, you can always enter the conch-blowing contest instead of one of the ones that involves actual yelling.

* You might be surprised to learn that famed British author Aldous Huxley, best-known for his dystopian novel "Brave New World," was a consultant on Disney's 1951 animated film version of "Alice in Wonderland."

* After the vows have been said in a traditional Korean wedding, the groom formally introduces his new wife to his parents. The bride's father-in-law then pelts the bride with red dates, which is supposed to ensure fertility.

* Jazz musician Glenn Miller was the recipient of the first gold record ever awarded, for the big-band hit "Chattanooga Choo-Choo."

* You might be surprised at some of the seemingly innocuous things that arouse passions in a group of people. Take the venerable 1960s television show "Mr. Ed," for example. Evidently an evangelist named Jim Brown took issue with the show's theme song, claiming that when played backward, the tune contains the message "the source is Satan" and "someone sang this song for Satan." His preaching on the subject was so persuasive that members of a church in Ironton, Ohio, made a bonfire of recordings of the song.

Thought for the Day: "Men of genius are often dull and inert in society, as a blazing meteor when it descends to earth, is only a stone." -- Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "To make sure I'm drinking water throughout the day, I use a permanent marker to designate levels on my large reusable water cup. I labeled them 10 a.m., noon, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. That's for a big one that sits on my desk at work. I have another for at home. This way I am not trying to play catch up later in the day." -- A.L. in Oklahoma

* Three ways to save money on water-heater bills: 1) Set your temperature gauge to a lower setting. 2) Install a timer so that it's not heating water when you aren't there to use it. 3) Add an insulating cover to keep heat from escaping.

* Game changer: "When dunking a sandwich cookie (e.g. Oreos), jab a fork into the filling. Then you can dunk the whole thing or part of it without getting your fingers all milky -- or your milk all 'fingery.'" -- A.J. in Florida

* When you microwave leftovers on a flat plate, be sure to spread them out for even heating. The classic ring of food is best -- leaving the center of the plate empty. Slice already-cooked potatoes, and cover with a moistened paper towel.

* Need to light a pillar candle inside a hurricane glass? Use a stick of spaghetti! The pasta stick lights easily, and it's long enough to give you the reach you need. It burns evenly, too.

City Focuses On Becoming 'Age-Friendly Community'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch and city councillors signed a letter of commitment to start the process of making Quincy an "age-friendly community" Monday night.

The mayor and all nine councillors signed the poster-sized letter of commitment during Monday's council meeting. The letter is the first step in a five-year process aimed at making Quincy a better place to live for its senior citizens.

Council President Brad Croall, who in September 2016 had introduced a resolution seeking to join the age-friendly initiative, said signing the letter was a huge step forward for the city.

"This is in my mind a huge step forward and really an opportunity to get access to a defined network of oth-

Forty-year-old portions of the roof atop North Quincy High School will be replaced this summer once the school year comes to an end.

The City Council on Monday night unanimously approved a $1.77 million bond to fund the roof replacement project. The Massachusetts School Building Authority has promised to reimburse the city up to $1.01 million for the project, leaving Quincy responsible for the remaining cost, about $750,000.

Walter MacDonald, the city's director of building maintenance, said the sections of roof to be replaced are from 1976. The city has replaced several other areas of the school's roof since 2010, and those portions that will be replaced this summer are the last sections remaining.

"This is a wonderful project for the city," MacDonald said.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman
Chiropractor

HITTING A NERVE

The painful condition known as "sciatica" involves a nerve that runs from the lower back through the buttock and thigh to the knee, where it branches down to the feet. Besides pain deep in the buttock, irritation of the sciatic nerve may also cause pain in the thigh that radiates all the way down to the feet, as well as weakness and numbness in the legs. Diagnosis may reveal an injury to a spinal disc or inflammation and/or spasm of the "piriformis muscle" (the muscle in the buttocks that maintains hip stability and allows you to lift your leg sideways). In either case, a chiropractor can identify the cause of the pain and help relieve irritation/restriction on the affected nerve.

Chiropractic treatment is based on the principle that restricted spinal movement leads to pain and reduced function. Chiropractic care helps the body heal itself with non-invasive (non-surgical), drug-free treatment. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We accept most major insurance plans which included but not limited to Blue Cross Blue Shield, Harvard Pilgrim, Tufts, Mass Health Standard, Neighborhood Health Plan, Medicare, Network Health. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. "Piriformis syndrome" is estimated to be responsible for about 8 out of 100 cases of sciatica.

State Primary Tuesday, Sept. 4;
Early Voting Prior To Final Election Nov. 6

Calendar Set For 2018 State Election

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday night approved the calendar for the upcoming statewide election.

The November general election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 6, with primaries taking place on Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Voters across Massachusetts will have the chance to cast ballots for 10 days prior to the November election with the state set to allow early voting for the second time. Secretary of State William Galvin has proposed allowing early voting before the primary as well; City Clerk Nicole Crispo said the legislation to do so was still pending on Beacon Hill as of Tuesday.

Crispo said she is in the process of selecting a polling place for early voting in the lead up to the November election. Two sites under consideration are City Hall and the Quincy Career Center, which will be relocating to the area of the Ross Way.

Massachusetts voters will head to the polls this fall to cast ballots in several contests, including races for governor and U.S. senator. Gov. Charlie Baker, a Republican, and U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren, a Democrat, are both seeking re-election this year. Voters will also elect the state's nine U.S. representatives, and all seats in the state Legislature are up for re-election in the fall. Several referendums might also wind up on the ballot statewide.

The deadline for all candidates seeking district and county offices to submit nomination papers to local registrars of voters is May 1; those nomination papers must be submitted to Galvin's office by May 29.

Party candidates seeking federal or statewide office must submit nomination papers to local officials by May 8 and to the secretary of state's office by June 5. Non-party candidates for those same seats have until July 31 to submit papers to local officials and until Aug. 28 to submit them to Galvin's office.

The final date to register to vote before the primary election is Aug. 15. The last day to register to vote before the November election is Oct. 17.

Council OKs NQHS Roof Replacement

The city will go out to bid on the project next month. Work on the roof will begin as soon as classes end in late June and should be completed by the time the new school year starts Sept. 5.

"Once the kids are out of school we're ready to go and we feel very confident we'll have substantial completion," by Sept. 5, MacDonald said.

If punch-list items must still be completed once the school year starts, he said that work would take place after hours or over weekends.

"We would never interfere with a school day," MacDonald said.

In addition to the roof replacement, the girls' and boys' bathrooms outside the school's gym will be brought up to Americans with Disabilities Act standards as part of the project. MacDonald said the city was required to include ADA-compliance work in the project because of the amount of money involved. The city chose to upgrade those bathrooms because of their location within the building.

STAR QUALITY

A special group of "phenomenal" gemstones has the unique ability to display a star pattern, known as "asterism," that appears as rays of a star across the domed surface of the gem. The effect is produced when a strong source of light reflects off the multitude of geometrically arranged layers of thread-like inclusions inhabiting these unique gems. If the threads in the gem all align themselves in a single direction, much like the strands in a spool of thread, the reflection will appear as a single ray of light called "chatoyancy," or cat's eye. The silvery glow that floats across the surface of a gem, somewhat like a moonbeam across a fog-enshrouded lake, is called "adularescence," or the moonstone effect.

Throughout the ages, gemstones have held a fascination for man. Their mystery and allure go back as far as we can trace, to primitive days when stones were coveted as charms or amulets to ward off evil. Today, they have a power all their own, the power to express feelings and emotions. Do you have something to say? We'll help you find your voice at Rogers Jewelry, 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center. With an incredible range of dazzling gemstones available for just about any price you want to pay, it's merely a matter of matching price with size and quality. PH: 617-773-3636.

NQ Baseball/Sully Scholarship Meat Raffle Fundraiser March 31

The fifth annual North Quincy Baseball/Sully Scholarship Meat Raffle fundraiser will be held Saturday, March 31 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Chantry at Marina Bay.

The public is welcome to attend the meat raffle and make a donation to the Steven J. Sullivan Scholarship at the meat raffle.

Join North Quincy baseball coaches, family, and other members of the community to celebrate the beginning of spring and the baseball season.

Raffle items include gift baskets, scratch tickets, NQ swag and meat/fish/poultry trays. The meat trays have been donated by Bruce Maggio. Stop by and support the student athletes as they march towards their first post season appearance in years.

To donate a basket to raffle off, contact Matt Edgerly at (617) 780-2340 or edgerly.matthew@gmail.com.

Sheriff's Youth, Valor Program Brings Students, Veterans Together

Veterans of World War II, Korea and the Vietnam wars gave Quincy High School students a special gift when they agreed to take part in Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti's Youth and Valor program at the school.

The students returned the favor during a recent luncheon when they read essays they wrote about what they learned from the five veterans.

Called "Youth and Valor: From the Greatest Generation to the Latest Generation," Sheriff Bellotti's program linked the high schoolers and veterans with an aim of the kids learning not only about the men's military experience but also about facing challenges in life and coming through them.

"We were fortunate to have these inspiring veterans take part in our program. Their service in the wars is impressive enough, but the manner in which they've conducted themselves since then as citizens and family men is just as noteworthy," Sheriff Bellotti said.

"Equally important to this program were the students, who really bought into the program and got a lot out of it. I know the vets enjoyed working with them and hearing their essays," Bellotti added.

The veterans, all from Quincy, who gave of their time for the program were Russell Erikson and Robert Noble (World War II), Joseph McConville (Korea), Paul Erler and George Nicholson (Vietnam).

The students were Jo Ashman, Jacob Walsh, Sommer Davenport, Danielle Pacione, Grace Stone, Zachary Walsh, Leo Burns, Bryen McDonough and Andrea Weng.

Bellotti said he was grateful for the leadership of Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and Quincy High School Principal Lawrence Taglieri and the work of QHS Dean Steven Johnston and Deputy Sheriff Cheryl Bambery in organizing the Youth and Valor program. He said he plans to take to other communities as well.

Slaughterhouse Ban Political Overkill?

As I recently read my Quincy Sun, I noticed that a slaughterhouse ban is now before the Quincy City Council from opening anywhere inside the City of Quincy.

According to the mayor's office from whence it came, there is no one thinking of building one at the moment, the city wanted to be ready ahead of time to ban this kind of business.

Are slaughterhouses actually an economic growth area? When I think of slaughterhouses, I usually think of places like Ft. Worth, Texas or Chicago.

Hey, if the city wants to ban future slaughterhouses, go right ahead but it does seem somewhat sillier.

There has to be many more serious issues needing the attention of city councilors out there, right? This idea isn't even a feel-good measure. All I am seeing in my head are horses lined up in Marina Bay thinking they're getting on the ferry and instead end up in a dog food can.

Pass the ban but it does seem like a giant waste of time.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1924 real photo postcard view of what was the Quincy Auto Park at 1217 Hancock St. in Quincy Square. This was basically an off-street parking facility with covered bays facing Hancock Street. At the time the only other parking in the square for the public's cars was on the streets. John Miller and Henry Close, who also operated an Atlantic gasoline station in the small building on the left, owned the park. Although privately operated, this parking lot was a forerunner to Quincy's renowned municipal parking lots that two decades later were models for communities across the country. Across Hancock Street on the right was the new $150,000 home of the Quincy Lodge of Elks #943. Today, the Elks are located on Quarry Street in West Quincy and this lodge has become an office building. The auto park property is now the site of The Residences at Munroe Place, a high-rise luxury apartment complex with street-level retail stores. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

QCAN To Screen Film On Climate Change, U.S. Military March 27

Quincy Climate Action Network will cosponsor The Age of Consequences, a 2017 documentary film on the threat of climate change as seen by the US military, on Tuesday, March 27.

The film will screen at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. All are invited, and admission is free. Also sponsoring the film are the library and Fore River Residents Against Compressor Station.

Described by Toronto's Globe and Mail as "An Inconvenient Truth rides a Humvee," The Age of Consequences includes footage of numerous generals and admirals, along with former intelligence analysts and civilian Pentagon officials, speaking to the danger that climate change poses for our national security. Prominently featured is Gen. Gordon Sullivan (ret.), who served as US Army chief of staff and grew up in Quincy.

Echoing Pentagon documents that identify climate change as "an accelerant to instability" and a leading threat to world peace, the officials cite places, from Afghanistan to the Middle East and the Horn of Africa, where changing climate has caused or exacerbated conflicts. In Afghanistan, for instance, drought fueled by climate change has led farmers to cultivate opium because opium poppies need far less water than the country's traditional staple, wheat. In the Middle East and Somalia, drought has led to mass migration of rural populations into cities, where unemployment and hunger lead to rioting, radicalization, and the overthrow of governments.

Meanwhile, rising seas, another result of climate change, will likely inundate large parts of Bangladesh and other low-lying regions of the world, fueling more mass migration. Closer to home, it threatens to destroy the world's largest naval installation, in the Hampton Roads area of Virginia, where much of the U.S. fleet is based. Already, frequent flooding of local roads is preventing sailors and civilian naval employees from getting to their job sites, according to the Norfolk Virginian Pilot, and forecasts suggest that by 2050 the area around Norfolk Naval Base will experience tidal flooding almost daily.

The need to respond, once every two weeks on average, to climate change-related disasters such as last year's hurricane in Puerto Rico, also sucks up time and resources. "How much of that can you do before you start [affecting] other missions?" asks one of the officers who speak on camera in the film.

The Age of Consequences has won gotten glowing reviews from major media including BBC News ("a stark warning"), the New York Times ("compelling and frightening"), and the Hollywood Reporter ("eye-opening").

In inviting Quincy residents and others to the screening, and especially those who aren't convinced the climate is changing, David Reich, QCAN's board chair, said, "Some in our government ignore climate change or call it a hoax. But our military leaders see it as deadly serious—as a threat on a par with terrorism and weapons of mass destruction. Please come and watch the film, and decide for yourself who's more credible."

Revaluation, Master Plan, Trash Major Issues

The City Council has a number of major issues to deal with over the next few months. Among them:

Revaluation – Several orders are now pending in the council's finance committee, including: an appropriation order of $70,000 to hire an outside firm to start work on the revaluation of all real and personal property in the city. A second order would put this issue on the November ballot. A third would require the council to take a position on the issue.

Master Plan – Within a month, members of the city council should receive copies of the city's Master Plan and zoning studies.

Rubbish Disposal – Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa is considering that the city take and prepare an incinerator site in the Cashman's Quarry area of West Quincy.

COUNCIL TABLES

CONFLICT OF INTEREST ISSUE

The City Council ordinance committee tabled action on a proposal to classify members of the unpaid city boards as "special employees" under the conflict of interest law. The proposal was made by Ward 6 Councillor Richard W. Barry. At present, all city employees, including unpaid ones, are classified "regular" employees, prohibiting them from doing any business with the city. As "special" employees, unpaid board members would be restricted from doing business with the city only in areas over which they have jurisdiction.

MARSHLAND REZONING

DRAWS OPPOSING VIEWS

Conservation of marshlands or retention of a valuable industrial site were the alternatives placed before the planning board as it considered a proposed zoning change for the Montclair marshes. Ten people spoke in favor of the proposal while 17 recorded their opposition. The Planning Board took the matter under advisement.

'Shamrock Plunge' Raises $50,000 For Beach Programs

More than 150 brave beach lovers plunged into Boston Harbor at BCYF Curley Community Center in South Boston March 11th as part of the 7th annual Harpoon Shamrock Splash to benefit Save the Harbor/Save the Bay.

This year, the "pledge and plunge" fundraiser raised more than $50,000 to support Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's Better Beaches Program Partnership with the Department of Conservation and Recreation, which provides a spectacular summer of free concerts and beach festivals, sand-sculpting competitions, and youth programs on the region's public beaches in Lynn, Nahant, Revere, Winthrop, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester, Quincy and Hull. The updated tally has been posted on the website www.shamrocksplash.org.

"This year we caught a break, and missed the really wicked weather," said Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's spokesman Bruce Berman, who has splashed each year since the event began.

"Thanks to everyone who helped us raise funds to support another great season on the beach in 2018."

Commissioner of BCYF, Will Morales, was on hand to wish splashers good luck, although he did not dip into the water. "Mayor Walsh and I truly value our partnership with Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and the work they do to serve Boston's youth and families from every neighborhood," Morales said.

DCR Commissioner Leo Roy added, "Department of Conservation and Recreation staff work hard every single day to ensure that agency managed natural resources, such as beaches in Boston, Hull, Nahant, Revere, and Winthrop, are clean, accessible, and enjoyed in a safe environment. The Baker-Polito Administration continues to foster strong partnerships that leverage excellent outdoor recreational opportunities for people of all abilities to benefit from."

This year's Harpoon Shamrock Splash was the best ever, with splashers enjoying delicious brunch burritos from Baja Taco Truck and fresh, hot chowder from Daily Catch while Mix 104.1 played hit music on the beach. Harpoon beers invigorated participants after their plunge.

"All of us at Harpoon look forward to taking a quick dip into the icy water after our Harpoon St. Patrick's Day festival to support a great cause and warm up with a refreshing Harpoon, brunch burrito, and clam chowder on the beach with our friends from Save the Harbor/Save the Bay," said Harpoon Brewery President Charlie Storey. "Sure it was cold in the water, but the warm feeling you get from giving back to your community stays with you for a long time."

Participants won JetBlue flights and great Harpoon swag for reaching fundraising goals. Bridget Ryan from South Boston who raised $1,190 and Carol Haney from Revere who raised $1,185 were the top two fundraisers. They each won round trip JetBlue flights for their efforts. The two costume contest winners, Miriam Rathbun, an MIT student from Pittsburgh, PA as Ariel, The Little Mermaid, and Joe Skahan from Lynn as Shark Man won JetBlue flights as well. Every splasher and contributor also had the opportunity to win prizes in two post-splash JetBlue flight raffles.

"At JetBlue, we are committed to our community and fun is one of our core values," said Donnie Todd, Corporate Responsibility Liaison for JetBlue, who led a team of 30 participants. "More than 3,000 JetBlue crewmembers call Boston home, we cherish our harbor and proudly support Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and the work they do on the region's public beaches."

Members of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's leadership team were also key fundraisers, but were ineligible to win JetBlue flights. Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's Chair of the Board, Joe Newman from Arlington, raised $3,101. Bruce Berman, Director of Strategy and Communications from Brighton, raised $2,826. STH/STB's Vice President of Programs and Operations, Chris Mancini from Somerville, raised $2,272.

The top five teams also raised significant funds at this year's Harpoon Shamrock Splash. Save the Harbor/Save the Bay topped the list with $25,614. JetBlue raised $6,193 followed by Piers Park Sub-Aqua Warriors with $4,862. Team Harpoon! raised $4,390 and Grandma and Grandkids raised $1,295.

Participants could direct their fundraising to their favorite local beach and notable donations were raised for the top five beaches. South Boston led with $7,180 followed by Lynn & Nahant with $4,101. Winthrop was third with $3,021. Participants raised $2,200 for Constitution Beach and $1,656 for Revere Beach. In addition, Dorchester received $995, Wollaston with $880, and Nantasket with $815.

Save the Harbor would like to thank event sponsors at Harpoon Brewery, JetBlue, Mix 104.1, Baja Taco, The Daily Catch, L.L. Bean, Unreal Candy, PowerCrunch and the Blue Sky Collaborative, and their Better Beaches Program Funding Partners at The Boston Foundation, The Harold Whitworth Pierce Charitable Trust, the Richard Saltonstall Foundation, National Grid and Comcast.

The organization also thanked the Massachusetts Legislature, the Baker-Polito Administration and the Metropolitan Beaches Commission for supporting the beaches, and program partners at the Department of Conservation and Recreation, the Boston Centers for Youth and Families and the Greater Boston YMCA for their support.

As the region's leading voice for clean water and continued public investment in Boston Harbor, the region's public beaches, and the Boston Harbor Islands, Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's mission is to restore and protect Boston Harbor, Massachusetts Bay and the marine environment and share them with the public for everyone to enjoy.

Irish Hearts For Orphans Benefit Dance April 15

Mayor Thomas And Christine Koch Among Honorees

Once a year, the greater Boston Irish community comes together to celebrate their culture and raise money for NPH USA, an organization that rescues at-risk children from poverty in Central America and the Caribbean.

The Irish Hearts for Orphans Benefit Dance is a wonderful example of the way in which the Irish community constantly answers the call of those in need and offers their loving support and generosity of spirit.

Since its inception in 2010, Irish Hearts for Orphans has raised more than $860,000 for NPH USA's mission. NPH USA supports Nuestros Pequeños Hermanos (NPH, Spanish for "Our Little Brothers and Sisters"), an international organization that works to transform the lives of orphaned, abandoned, and disadvantaged children throughout Latin America and the Caribbean. Currently, NPH is raising more than 3,200 children throughout homes in Bolivia, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, and Peru. An additional 2,300 students who live outside the homes receive scholarships, meals, and health care. NPH's outreach services assist more than 100,000 people every year.

The fun-filled family event will take place on Sunday, April 15, from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Boston Marriott Quincy in Quincy. Set dancing will begin early, at 2:30 p.m. and will continue until 3:45 p.m. For a suggested donation of $20, guests can enjoy the music of several Irish bands, set dancing, local Irish step dancers, a plethora of unique raffle and silent auction items, and a grand prize raffle for two round-trip airfares to Ireland plus $1,000 cash.

A new addition to this year's event, there will be a free Irish step dancing lesson for kids given by dancers from the Kenny Academy of Irish Step. Refreshments and light sandwiches will be served, as well. There also will be a guest speaker from one of NPH's nine homes, who will share her story and give guests a glimpse into the life of a child who had nobody to care for them before coming to an NPH home. Each year, this is a favorite moment for all in attendance.

Bishop John A. Dooher is also scheduled to attend as a special guest.

Honorees at this year's event will be Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Christine A. Koch; Rev. Daniel J. Finn of the Irish Pastoral Centre; and Patricia and Paul Mikus of Hingham/Hanover; for their continued commitment to advocating for those less fortunate, while selflessly giving of themselves for the benefit of others. It is with immense gratitude and admiration that we honor them this year.

Event co-chairs Winnie Henry, Gerry McGrath, Deacon Charlie Sullivan, and Doc Walsh continue to be overwhelmed by the inspiring response this event has received over the years. "It is with great pride and gratitude that we have seen the Irish community come together year after year to support the life-changing mission of NPH. Because of this event, we have been able to change the lives of countless children and in turn, have helped make the world a better place for those in need. It is our honor to collaborate with such amazing people, all for such a wonderful cause!"

Saint Rock Haiti Foundation Gala Raises Over $400,000

Over 350 people gathered in the Granite Links Golf Club Ballroom in Quincy on Thursday, March 1, 2018, for the 10th annual gala to raise money for the Saint Rock Haiti Foundation (SRHF).

The event, Building Hope Together: Voices of Saint Rock, raised over $400,000 to support the ongoing operations of the foundation's center in the hills above Port-au-Prince.

Much of the success of the evening rested on a generous matching grant from the Flatley Foundation. Other major sponsors included Saint Agatha Parish (Milton/Quincy) Global Outreach Ministry, an anonymous donor, the Wessling Family, Cathartes, the Cole Family, Ginny and Frank Corcoran, Jack Corcoran, the Gemma Family, and Turner Construction. Longtime SRHF supporters, Hugh and Beth Anne Cole, served as honorary chairs of the event.

Master of Ceremonies Eileen Curran narrated a new video titled Voices of Saint Rock that focused on a day in the life of the clinic there. Eileen recorded most of the footage during a trip she recently took to Saint Rock.

During the evening, Eileen Curran asked the crowd to help fund a new ambulance for SRHF that will be used for the mobile clinic and will be more suitable transportation to local hospitals than the currently used pick-up truck. Guests lifted their bid numbers to donate close to $50,000.

Jocelyn Bresnahan, president of SRHF, expressed her thanks to all who supported the event.

"The funds raised will allow the foundation to continue the critically important work taking place in partnership with our Haitian colleagues," Bresnahan said. More people will receive dignified health care, more children will go to school, and more families will be nourished and drink clean water. I remain deeply grateful to our friends, neighbors, donors, and sponsors for continuing to understand the need and respond."

Minaud Dacius of Vitamin Angels traveled from Haiti to be the keynote speaker of the evening. Vitamin Angels partners with SRHF to provide vitamins and other nutrition supplements to members of the Saint Rock community. After an introduction by Bruce Ring, a physician and frequent traveler to Saint Rock, Dr. Dacius shared some grim statistics on malnutrition and the intergenerational cycle of poverty in Haiti. By providing micronutrients as well as training to SRHF, Vitamin Angels hopes to interrupt the cycle of undernutrition in that community.

Dr. Jean Kenes Eloy, Saint Rock Centre de Santé Medical Director, visiting from Saint Rock, Haiti, was introduced by SRHF board member Dr. Jon Cronin, and thanked the crowd and the foundation for their support.

Chocolate-Chocolate Chip Banana Bread (No Mixer)

By MARIE

Today's recipe for chocolate banana bread is very popular because you do not need a mixer; just a bowl, a fork to mix the eggs and a sturdy spoon to mix the batter.

While I have had many banana bread recipes in my column before this one is very unique because it incorporates both chocolate and chocolate bits. It very easy and so delicious - and the clean-up is easy too!

The best bananas to use for this recipe are the overripe bananas.

Pre-heat oven to 350 and grease 5 x 9 inch loaf pan

RECIPE

- 3 large, ripe bananas, easily mashable
- 1/3 cup melted butter
- 3/4 cup brown sugar, packed light or dark
- 1/2 teaspoon of salt
- 1 large egg beaten

- 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract
- 1 1/4 cup of all-purpose flour
- 1/4 cup naturally unsweetened cocoa powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate chips

Puree the peeled, ripe bananas until smooth. Place in a large mixing bowl. Stir in melted butter, brown sugar and salt. Wisk to break up any clumps of brown sugar.

Stir in beaten egg and vanilla.

In a separate bowl mix in the flour, soda, cocoa and all spice. Add the flour mixture into the banana mixture and stir together until well incorporated.

Stir in chocolate chips and pour batter into buttered or greased loaf pan and bake for 1 hour. Because the chocolate chips will melt, it may be difficult to use a toothpick to check for doneness so gently push the bread down with a finger when it bounces back it is done.

Mexican Mac And 'Cheese'

By SUSIE

My niece Olivia (who is a health coach like myself) loves to make healthy food for herself and her family.

Recently, she shared two recipes with me, which I will share with you today. One is for a Mexican style "Mac and Cheese" (gluten and dairy free) and the other is chocolate cake that is gluten free and vegan.

I also met a local fellow at Good Health Natural Food store in Quincy who has an amazing dairy free "grated cheese" that I used in Olivia's recipe, and have been using on basically everything else I can get my hands on.

It is made from organic cashews as well as special seasonings and hemp seeds which together create a ground-breaking new product called NOOCH IT (UPrise foods, Ben Taylor).

This stuff is addicting so you have been warned!

OLIVIA'S MEXICAN MAC & 'CHEESE'

- Cashew cheese sauce (Mexican) ish
- 1 1/2 cup cashews (soaked in boiling water for 30 minutes) then RINSED AND DRAINED

- 3-4 tablespoons NOOCH IT "grated cheese"

- Sea Salt, pepper, cumin, chili powder, (about 1/4 teaspoon each)

- 1tbls Extra Virgin Olive Oil for blending

- 1 roasted red pepper (I use the ones in the jar.)

Simply blend in high speed blender with about 1/4 cup-1/2 cup water. You may need more or less. Toss with hot cooked pasta and serve! It's that easy.

Crane Library Member Of Mass Audubon's Library Partners Program

As a way to provide individuals and families in its service area with access to inexpensive, fun and educational outdoor activities, the Thomas Crane Public Library is participating in Mass Audubon's Library Partners program.

Mass Audubon offers many convenient opportunities for patrons of the Thomas Crane Public Library to explore and enjoy the nature of Massachusetts.

As a library patron, you can use the Thomas Crane Public Library's pass to visit Mass Audubon wildlife sanctuaries at the discounted rate of just $2 per person (for up to four people per pass). Explore Wellfleet Bay Wildlife Sanctuary where more than a thousand acres of salt marsh attract a wide array of birds and other wildlife, or Drumlin Farm in Lincoln where spring means bluebirds and baby farm animals, or Pleasant Valley in the Berkshires with beautiful landscapes that have inspired artists for centuries.

While Mass Audubon is engaged in many different environmental activities, the roots of the organization are in bird conservation. Bird watching is one of the fastest-growing outdoor activities in America, and as a patron of the Thomas Crane Public Library you can connect with this nationally renowned birding resource.

Mass Audubon offers programs for beginning to expert birders, and many opportunities to volunteer and participate in citizen science to help protect wildlife and wild lands.

In Massachusetts, every season brings unique opportunities to enjoy the outdoors. Thanks to the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library, patrons can enjoy discounted access to Mass Audubon's statewide network of wildlife sanctuaries, which stretches from the Berkshires to the Cape and Islands: more than 50 wild spaces where you can explore, escape and play.

Sciatica: A Genuine Pain In The Butt

By RUTH JONES

BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Sciatica refers to pain that radiates along the path of the sciatic nerve, which branches from your lower back through your hips and buttocks and down each leg.

Characteristically, sciatica affects only one side of your body. Pain that radiates from your lower (lumbar) spine to your buttock and down the back of your leg is the trademark of sciatica. You might feel the discomfort practically anywhere along the nerve pathway, but it's particularly likely to pursue a path from your low back to your buttock and the back of your thigh and calf.

The pain can vary extensively, from a mild ache to a sharp, burning sensation or agonizing pain. Sometimes it can resemble a jolt or electric shock. It tends to be more severe when you cough or sneeze, and prolonged sitting can aggravate symptoms. Traditionally only one side of your body is affected. Some people also exhibit numbness, tingling or muscle weakness in the affected leg or foot. It is possible to have pain in one part of your leg and numbness in another part.

Mild sciatica usually goes away over time. Although most people recover fully from sciatica, often without treatment, sciatica can potentially cause permanent nerve damage. Notify your doctor if self-care measures fail to ease your symptoms or if your pain lasts longer than a week, is severe or becomes progressively worse.

Get immediate medical care if: you have sudden, severe pain in your low back or leg and numbness or muscle weakness in your leg, the pain follows a violent injury, such as a traffic accident or you have trouble controlling your bowels or bladder.

Though sciatica usually occurs when the sciatic nerve becomes pinched, either by a herniated disk in your spine or by an overgrowth of bone (bone spur) on your vertebrae. More rarely, the nerve can be compressed by a tumor or damaged by a disease such as diabetes. Risk factors for sciatica include:

- Age - Age-related changes in the spine, such as herniated disks and bone spurs, are the most common causes of sciatica.

- Obesity - By increasing the stress on your spine, excess body weight can contribute to the spinal changes that trigger sciatica.

- Occupation - A job that requires you to twist your back, carry heavy loads or drive a motor vehicle for long periods might play a role in sciatica, but there's no conclusive evidence of this link.

- Prolonged sitting - People who sit for prolonged periods or have a sedentary lifestyle are more likely to develop sciatica than active people are.

- Diabetes - This condition, which affects the way your body uses blood sugar, increases your risk of nerve damage.

It's not always possible to prevent sciatica, and the condition may recur. The following can play a significant role in protecting your back:

- Exercise regularly. To keep your back strong, pay special attention to your core muscles, the muscles in your abdomen and lower back that are essential for proper posture and alignment. Ask your healthcare provider to recommend specific activities.

- Maintain proper posture when you sit. Choose a seat with good lower back support, armrests and a swivel base. Consider placing a pillow or rolled towel in the small of your back to maintain its normal curve. Keep your knees and hips level.

- Use good body mechanics. If you stand for long periods, rest one foot on a stool or small box from time to time. When you lift something heavy, let your lower extremities do the work. Move straight up and down. Keep your back straight and bend only at the knees. Hold the object close to your body. Avoid lifting and twisting simultaneously. Find someone to assist you if the object is heavy or awkward.

Diagnosis begins with a physical exam; your healthcare provider may check your muscle strength and reflexes. You may be asked to walk on your toes or heels, rise from a squatting position and, while lying on your back, lift your legs one at a time. Pain that results from sciatica will usually exacerbate during these activities.

Many people have herniated disks or bone spurs that will show up on X-rays and other imaging tests such as an MRI or CT scan, but have no symptoms. So doctors don't typically order these tests unless your pain is severe, or it doesn't improve within a few weeks. Electromyography (EMG) a test measuring the electrical impulses produced by the nerves and the responses of your muscles, can confirm nerve compression caused by herniated disks or narrowing of your spinal canal (spinal stenosis).

Self-care treatments that might be useful are:

- Cold packs - Initially, you might get relief from a cold pack placed on the painful area for up to 20 minutes several times a day. Use an ice pack or a package of frozen peas wrapped in a clean towel.

- Hot packs - After two to three days; apply heat to the areas that hurt. Use hot packs, a heat lamp or a heating pad on the lowest setting. If you continue to have pain, try alternating warm and cold packs.

- Stretching - Stretching

exercises for your low back can help you feel better and might help relieve nerve root compression. Avoid jerking, bouncing or twisting during the stretch, and try to hold the stretch for at least 30 seconds.

- Over-the-counter medications - Pain relievers such as ibuprofen (Advil, Motrin) and naproxen sodium (Aleve) are sometimes helpful for sciatica.

If your pain doesn't improve with self-care measures, your doctor might suggest medications such as muscle relaxants or steroid injections, physical therapy, or in rare cases surgery if symptoms are severe or other treatment methods are unsuccessful. Some other alternative therapies commonly used to relieve pain and discomfort are acupuncture and chiropractic spinal adjustment.

Quincy Credit Union Supports A Bed For Every Child

Across the state, and in our own community, approximately 88,000 children do not have a bed to call their own.

Quincy Credit Union takes pride in supporting various initiatives to make a difference in their community. During a two-week long campaign, QCU partnered with MA Coalition for the Homeless to support "A Bed for Every Child" which provides homeless children with a safe place to sleep at night.

Tuck the "Teddy Bear" is the campaign's giant stuffed mascot that travels throughout the state encouraging others to #Sharethebear by taking selfies and posting on social media. Quincy Credit Union's Public Relations Coordinator, Amy Kelly and Tuck went on a sight-seeing tour, posting every stop on social media to create awareness and raise money. The two-week road trip helped MA Coalition for Homeless, earn recognition for the campaign locally through social media channels, including major television news stations where Tuck the Bear was featured doing the waltz with Quincy Police Officer, Captain Dibona.

The social media campaign results exceeded all expectations. The positive feedback and a grateful response from the community was heart-warming and hit home. One tweet, especially meaningful, "As a former Quincy resident and a former kid who spent many nights sleeping on someone's floor or in a car, thanks for doing this."

A special thanks to everyone who supported this initiative and made it possible for QCU to raise $5,000 for A Bed for Every Child.

"Quincy Credit Union's social media push gave us so many more followers and such an overwhelming amount of attention," said Karla DiDonato, director of Development for Massachusetts Coalition for the Homeless.

"Although A Bed for Every Child knows that a bed alone is not going to solve poverty, we do know that giving a child all the tools they need to receive an education can help them break the cycle and lift them out of poverty as an adult," DiDonato added.

Check out Tucks online presence with QCU by following them on Facebook

Twitter or Instagram @QuincyCreditUnion and for more information about Tuck, visit www.abedforeverychild.org

Quincy Credit Union provides financial services to over 33,000 Members operating from two locations; 100 Quincy Avenue, Quincy and 519 Columbian Street, Weymouth. Membership is available to those who live or work in Norfolk, Plymouth Counties and Dorchester, and their family members.

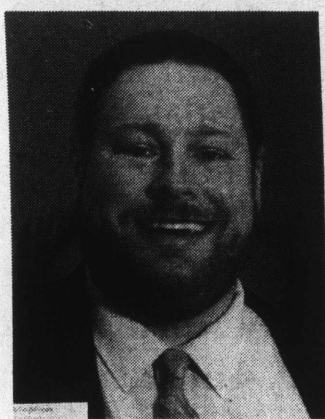

Father Bill's Hires New Chief Development Officer Stephen Muzrall To Lead Team That Raises $2M For Services

Father Bill's & Main-Spring (FBMS), a provider of services to prevent and end homelessness in Southern Massachusetts, has hired Stephen Muzrall as its next chief development officer.

Muzrall, with more than 13 years of professional experience fundraising for non-profits, will lead a development team that raises approximately $2 million per year toward a spectrum of services, such as emergency shelter for individuals and families, job training, homelessness prevention and diversion, veterans programs, and approximately 500 permanent, supportive housing units.

Muzrall joins FBMS, a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization, at a time when it is cultivating support for a number of key capital projects and advancing a strategic plan that includes adding more housing and creating an innovative Housing Resource Center to reduce reliance on the emergency-shelter system.

Muzrall, who joined

STEPHEN MUZRALL

FBMS on March 12, previously served as the Assistant Vice President for Development at Wheelock College in Boston, where he built and managed a fundraising department that launched new giving programs to grow donor constituencies and oversaw stewardship of endowed scholarships and leadership gifts. Prior to that, he served two years as Wheelock's Director of Major Gifts and Planned Giving.

"We're thrilled to have Steve joining our mission," FBMS President & CEO John Yazwinski said. "He's a highly motivated and engaged leader who cares deeply about his community. As a South Shore native, he knows our service area well and he's committed to developing the resources needed to bring hope to our neighbors in need."

Muzrall, who holds a Graduate Certificate in Nonprofit Leadership from Wheelock College and a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science & History from Providence College, spent more than eight years (2006-2014) as a Gifts Officer at Stonehill College in Easton, where he solicited major and planned gifts to support the college's programs and scholarships.

"Having grown up on the South Shore, I have long known about the mission and good works of Father Bill's & MainSpring," Muzrall said. "I am excited to partner with President John Yazwinski, the Board of Directors, and the many committed volunteers to help raise and develop new funding opportunities to support the FBMS mission to end homelessness in our community. I believe FBMS' strategic plan to increase housing opportunities will truly resonate with individual and corporate donors hoping to make an impact."

Manet Awarded $50,000 MassDevelopment Grant

Manet Community Health Center has been awarded a $50,000 MassDevelopment grant through the agency's Community Health Center Grant Program.

Founded in 1979, the Manet Community Health Center serves more than 35 communities in Norfolk, Plymouth, and Bristol Counties with locations in Quincy, Hull, and Taunton. The Center provides services to all patients, regardless of their financial income.

Manet Community Health Center will use this grant to help consolidate its administrative offices into one building in Quincy and undertake HVAC and IT infrastructure work.

"Manet is overjoyed and grateful to the MassDevelopment for investing in our efforts to consolidate our administrative office functions, a move that will create significant cost savings and efficiencies for the health center," said Manet CEO Cynthia H. Sierra. "This grant will enable us to make vital renovations to accommodate our IT infrastructure equipment and servers at the Snug Harbor site, which will be scaled to meet our current and future needs and serve as the nerve center for our medical records system."

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Social Security, Military Pension And Disability

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I am 61 years old. I have a disability rating from the VA and I draw a military pension for my years of service. How might my disability rating and my military pension affect my Social Security? Signed: Disabled Vet

Dear Disabled Vet: First of all, thank you for your service to our country. Your military pension will not affect your future Social Security benefit in any way, since military pay for service after 1957 contributed to and participated in the Social Security program. In other words, you paid Social Security "FICA" taxes from your military earnings during your years of service, and your earnings during those years contributed toward the 35 years which will be used to determine your Social Security benefit amount. So when you finally decide to apply for Social Security (you must be at least 62 to apply for retirement benefits) you need not worry about any reductions as a result of receiving your military service pension.

Similarly, your Veterans Administration disability rating will not affect your Social Security retirement benefit. But, for your awareness, depending upon the extent of your disability you may be eligible for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits in addition to your military pension and in lieu of regular Social Security benefits. You can get SSDI benefits before your normal eligibility age of 62, and they are paid instead of regular Social Security retirement benefits up to your full retirement age, which for you is 66 years and 6 months. Then, at your full retirement age, SSDI benefits will automatically convert to regular Social Security retirement benefits. Note that, if awarded, your SSDI benefit may be more than your early retirement benefit if, for example, you claimed your retirement benefit as soon as you became eligible at age 62.

Even though you have a VA disability rating, to get SSDI benefits you would still need to satisfy Social Security's own definition of "disability" and meet their other eligibility requirements. But if your disability prevents you from working and is expected to last for more than a year, it is surely worth investigating. While it is possible to apply for SSDI benefits online, we recommend you contact your local Social Security office (find it at www.ssa.gov/locator), make an appointment and apply in person. If you'd like to read up on this before contacting them go to www.ssa.gov/people/veterans/. Note too that while it doesn't guarantee approval, if your VA disability rating is "100% Permanent & Total", Social Security may provide you with expedited processing of your SSDI application. And you don't have to wait until you are 62 to apply for and collect Social Security disability benefits. Once again, thank you for your military service.

Snow Removal Costs Nearing $3 Million

Koch, on Monday said the city has spent between $2.8 and $2.9 million on snow and ice removal this winter. The city had set aside $2.4 million for snow and ice removal in the current fiscal year's budget – Massachusetts allows municipalities to deficit-spend to cover the cost of snow and ice removal.

Walker said the Jan. 4 nor'easter, which left Quincy under up to 18 inches of snow, was the most expensive to plow so far this season. The city spent about $500,000 to clean up after that storm.

A nor'easter on March 13 – certified by the National Weather Service as a blizzard – left some parts of Quincy under up to 16 inches of snow, Walker said, though other areas got little more than half of that.

"It depends where you were in the city," he said. "Some areas near the coast got 9 to 10 inches and some areas in West Quincy near the hills got 15 to 16."

The city spent between $300,000 to $400,000 clean up after the March 13 blizzard, Walker said.

Unlike the Jan. 4 nor'easter and another one on March 2, both of which caused coastal flooding in low-lying areas of Quincy, he said last week's blizzard was a snow-only event.

"Thankfully it was just a snow event," Walker said.

Koch's administration estimated the March 2 nor'easter caused $10.17 million in damages to city infrastructure as of a special City Council meeting held March 12. More than half of the damage, $6.23 million, was to seawalls and tide gates. More than $3 million in damage was done to roads and bridges, $367,000 in damage was done to parks and recreation facilities, and the city spent $485,000 on debris removal.

The council unanimously approved a $2.9 million to cover emergency infrastructure repairs during the March 12 meeting.

Of the total appropriation, $1.5 million will go towards seawalls and tide gates, including $365,000 for the seawall in the area of Manet Avenue and Nut Island Avenue, $295,000 for the seawall in the vicinity of Terne Road and Shelton Road, $285,000 for the seawall at Post Island Road, and $175,000 for the seawall in the area of Sea Street and Babcock Street.

The remaining $1.4 million will go towards 25 emergency road, sidewalk and bridge repairs. That includes $300,000 to repair sidewalks along Sea Street, $300,000 for the roadway and sidewalk on Post Island Road, $175,000 for road repair on Terne Road, and $100,000 for road and sidewalk work on Turner Street.

The appropriation came from the city's sewer and drainage rehabilitation fund, an account that is funded by developers building in the city. Koch, who appeared before the council at the special meeting, said that account was chosen for the emergency appropriation because it would be the least disruptive to the city's general fund.

The emergency repairs were to begin last week and the city hopes to complete them by April 2. State officials have waived certain procurement and other regulations through that date to let municipalities expedite repairs.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy, who represents some of the hardest-hit neighborhoods in the city, said it was important the emergency work be done quickly.

"I know how important this is and how quickly we should move on it," he said. "This is a great start."

Koch said the city would have to wrest with difficult decisions once the emer-

City Aims To Be 'Age-Friendly Community'

er cities and towns currently engaged in the process [and] potentially identify monetary resources to help us in various aspects," Croall said.

"I'm excited and happy to have been part of the process."

Koch said the initiative would build upon what the city does already for its seniors. He noted the Kennedy Center has more than 4,000 members presently and the Council on Aging provides transportation to seniors to things like medical appointments.

"The beauty is we have a great foundation to build on," Koch said. "There are some great things we as a city have done and I think this is an opportunity to look at what we're doing, how can we improve, how can we get better."

Mike Festa, the head of the AARP in Massachusetts, said the age-friendly initiative is meant to make Quincy friendly for all people in the community as they age.

"When you're doing your planning in your different departments — when you're budgeting, when you're looking at programs, when you're looking at policies — it's with an understanding that people hopefully will be able to stay in Quincy, grow old in Quincy, engage in community life in a way that they feel they are very much a part of the community," Festa said.

The first step in the five-year process is to gather input from the city's senior residents to determine what their needs are, Festa said.

"Much of what you need to do is based on not necessarily what you think they want but what the neighbors want," Festa said, noting

Boston officials were surprised to find that seniors in that city said a lack of engagement with the community was their second biggest concern, after affordable housing.

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain said housing a top concern for seniors in Quincy.

"I don't think as a society we do a good job at figuring out what's that next place for folks who've grown in a home with a family of four kids," Cain said. "Where do they go to live next?"

Festa said creation of affordable housing for seniors is a "major-league problem" without federal funding to incentivize developers to build that type of housing. Festa other potential solutions exist, including an app, Nesterly, which pairs students in need of housing with seniors who have extra rooms to rent.

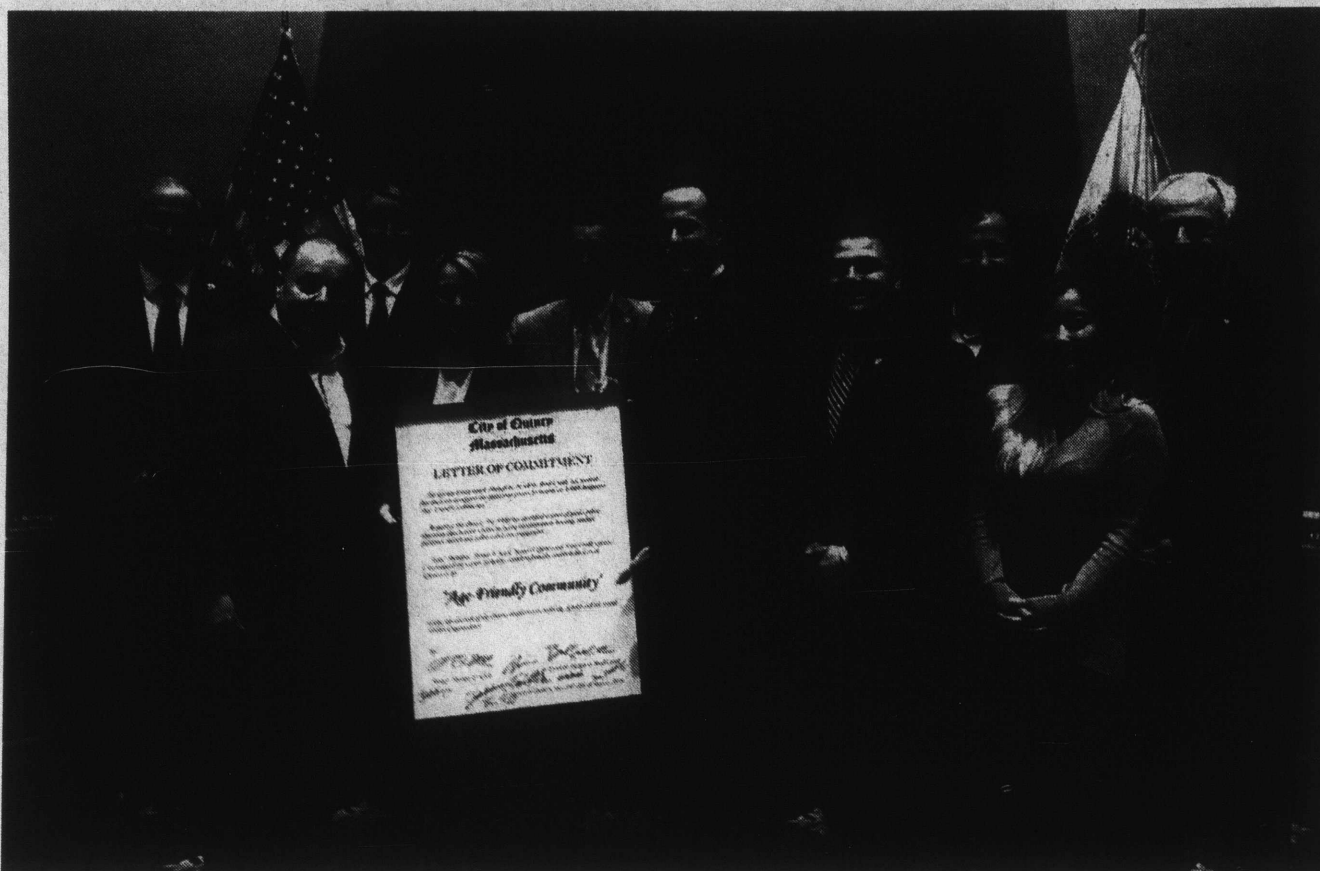

"It is an incredible idea. You take communities that have a high degree of challenge around student housing and match them with seniors who are in places where they could afford," Festa said.

Councillor Anne Mahoney said it would be important to gather feedback from community members across different demographics because all residents can benefit from the initiative.

"It is a very exciting opportunity," she said. "There are some many different elements and different ways we can go...it doesn't just help our seniors, it helps everybody in the community."

Festa said it was important to invite all community members, not just seniors, to participate in the process.

"Cast that wide," he said. "I think communities that say 'this is for the council on aging to do and that's the end of it' — that's a big mistake."

The national AARP will make $1 million in grants available to communities countrywide for age-friendly ly projects this year, Festa said, though those funds generally go to shovel-ready projects. The Massachusetts

AARP also has funds available, he added, as does the state and private foundations.

35 Storm-Damaged Streets, Sidewalks, Bridges Need Repairs

repairs in the wake of the storm. The total damage to streets, sidewalks and bridges was estimated at just over $3 million. An appropriation to cover $1.4 million in immediate emergency repairs to streets, sidewalks and bridges was approved March 12.

Streets requiring repairs as of March 12 included:

Rhoda Street, where $50,000 in immediate repairs are needed to repair 50 feet of roadway, shoulder washout and culvert rip rap repair.

Bayswater Road, which will require full replacement of 700 feet of roadway and sidewalks. That work will cost $350,000, including $50,000 in emergency repairs.

Macy Street, which will require $10,000 to repair the road at an undermined catch basin plus the Rhoda Street intersection.

Turner Street, where $100,000 in immediate repairs are needed to 200 feet of roadway and sidewalks.

Rockland Street, which requires $40,000 in immediate road and catch basin work.

Edgewater Drive, which requires $25,000 in immediate road and sidewalk spot repairs.

Spring Street, which requires $15,000 for immediate repair to about 30 feet of roadway.

Terne Road, where 875 feet of immediate gravel road repair and re-grading is needed at a cost of $175,000.

East Squantum Street, which requires $10,000 for immediate sidewalk work and curb resetting.

Sachem Street, which requires $25,000 in immediate repairs for 30 feet of road and sidewalks.

Quincy Shore Drive, which requires $25,000 in immediate repairs to the roadway edge that was washed out at Fenno Street.

Dorchester Street, where $15,000 is immediately needed to re-grade the gravel sidewalk near Shoreham Street.

Jewett Street, which requires $20,000 in repair to 50 feet of roadway.

Babcock Street, which requires $5,000 to repair 50 feet of sidewalk.

Elcott Street, which requires $40,000 to repair 100 feet of roadway.

Kilby Street, where 300 feet of roadway needs repair. The total cost there is $120,000, including $30,000 needed immediately.

Mallard Road, where 400 feet of roadway needs to repairs at a total cost of $160,000. Of that total, $50,000 would be for immediate repair.

Post Island Road, where 1,000 feet of roadway must be repaired, as well as sidewalks. The total cost is $400,000, including $300,000 for needed immediately.

Sea Street, which requires $500,000 to replace 2,000 feet of sidewalk, including $300,000 in immediate repairs.

Crane Road, which will require $35,000 to repair and re-grade 175 feet of gravel road.

Narragansett Road, which requires $10,000 in immediate sidewalk work.

Gannett Road, which requires $10,000 in immediate repairs for the washed-out/undermined sub-base.

Seagull Road, where $20,000 is immediately needed for 50 feet of roadway.

Poplar Road, where $160,000 is needed to repair 400 feet of roadway. Of that total, $20,000 is needed for immediate repairs.

Ingram Street, which requires $74,000 in repairs to 185 feet of roadway.

Shoreside Avenue, which will require $90,000 – including $40,000 needed immediately – to repair 225 feet of road repairs.

Manet Avenue, where sidewalk, road shoulder and guardrail repairs total $160,000, of which $50,000 is needed immediately.

Pawsey Street, which requires 50 feet of road work and sidewalk repairs at a cost of $20,000, half of which is needed immediately.

Victory Road, where $30,000 will be needed to rebuild shoulders.

Newport Avenue Extension, where $10,000 worth of work is needed immediately for debris issues and pavement peel back.

Commander Shea Boulevard, where $20,000 is needed for curb washout and asphalt peel back. Half of that total is needed immediately.

Tyler Street, where $2,000 is needed to fix a sidewalk was popped by a felled tree.

Hooper Street, where $12,000 is needed for 30 feet of road repair.

The Kennedy Center at 440 East Squantum Street, where 510 feet of roadway needs repair at a cost of $204,000.

agency repairs are complete. For instance, officials would have to consider whether to simply fix seawalls damaged by the March 2 storm or install new ones along a stretch of Quincy Bay from Adams Shore to Houghs Neck.

"The question then becomes do we put money into a temporary measure or do we bite the bullet and look at a whole seawall program," the mayor said. "Does it make sense then instead of spending $4-5 million on further temporary [repairs], to put that into a $14 to $15 million program to bring those seawalls up completely – perhaps up as much as two feet."

Councillor Anne Mahoney said it was important the study of the seawall along Adams Shore and Houghs Neck be completed because storms are growing more intense and sea levels are rising.

"We are dealing with hundred-year storms that are not [every] hundred years; they're two weeks apart now," Mahoney said. "Then also with the rising sea levels we're dealing with, it really comes down to our infrastructure. It really is important that that comprehensive study comes back before the council so we can really understand what's happening."

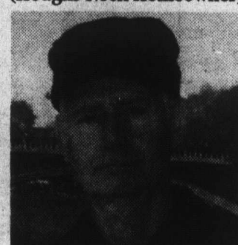

Councillor Noel DiBona said he would support the construction of a new seawall from Adams Shore to Houghs Neck, adding the city should reassess its priorities in light of the March 2 nor'easter.

"When you're talking the $14-15 million that we're going to be talking about for the future, in my personal opinion I think we can move forward with stuff like that," he said. "That also means we need to take a hard look at what we're doing for our bonding with other areas... more on the wanting side of it. We basically need to reassess what is important."

Kitchen Trends, Upgrades For Home Sales

Ask Barbara Graceffa: 'Secretary Of The Interior'

What are this year's kitchen trends? Claudine Trends come and go and forecasters often contradict each other. Most importantly, you'll never be disappointed if you choose what you like.

White and monochromatic cabinets are going out of style. If you like the clean white look, paint the bottom cabinets or island black, deep navy, and forest green, add trendy matte brass or black knobs and pulls. Choose flat front doors with clean lines. Although greys remain in vogue, light to medium wood tones are making a resurgence, too.

Granite and marble countertops are being replaced by quartz. As for backsplashes, bold is in: paint colors like a bright yellow, a single slab stone, wallpaper, and geometric print concrete tiles will take center stage. Finally, neutral walls and fewer pendants lights will appear in remodeled kitchens this year.

If I plan to sell my home this spring, how do I know what to upgrade and how much to spend on getting it ready to show? Phil

There are two schools of thought on this: update or don't bother because the new owners will bring in their own ideas and tastes. My suggestion falls in the middle.

Spend your time and money on cleaning the house - I mean top to bottom - inside and out. If you choose not to paint (with neutral colors), wash the walls thoroughly. Don't overlook the little things like removing cobwebs inside a glass outdoor light fixture. Fix safety issues like a loose railing to the basement or an electrical outlet that sparks when used. Eliminate excess clutter in every room and remove personal photos, religious items, and taste-specific decor. Don't underestimate the advantage of staging; buyers often cannot envision furniture placement without your suggestions, and an empty room actually looks smaller! And remember curb appeal, too: paint the front door and mailbox and rake the front yard.

Whatever you spend, you will get it back and more. According to Motovo.com, right now the inventory in Quincy is down four percent from February and 27 percent from this time last year. That's good news for sellers! Get it on the market ASAP as you'll see more For Sale signs as the weather improves in spring and summer.

Keep Your Lawn Green, Healthy All Season Long

By MELINDA MYERS

A healthy lawn is your best defense against lawn diseases and other problems. But when the weather favors the disease more than your lawn, problems can occur.

Reduce the risk of disease by keeping your lawn healthy. Mow high to encourage deeply rooted grass that is more drought tolerant and resistant to disease problems. Water early in the day so the grass leaves, blades, dry quickly and less water is lost to evaporation.

Apply the right type and amount of fertilizer at the proper time to limit the risk of disease. Regular fertilization, three to four times per year, encourages better results since most soils do not contain the essential nutrients for optimum growth.

Avoid high nitrogen quick release fertilizers that promote lush succulent growth that is more susceptible to disease. Instead use a low nitrogen slow release fertilizer like Milorganite (milorganite.com) that promotes steady growth that's more drought tolerant and resistant to disease.

Take a closer look at the lawn if you suspect a disease problem. As the snow recedes, watch for circular gray to straw colored areas of matted grass caused by snow mold. Use a leaf rake to lift the matted grass, remove leaf litter and reduce the risk of this disease. Keep mowing throughout the fall and avoid heavy fertilization late in the year.

Monitor lawns for Brown Patch when temperatures and humidity rise and grass remains wet for long periods of time. Infected lawns will have somewhat circular patches of thin light brown grass. Look for white cottony strands of fungal mycelium early in the morning on dew covered lawns. Check grass blades for small irregular tan spots with dark brown borders on the individual grass blades. Avoid heavy fertilization with fast release fertilizer in early spring and summer.

Look for dollar size to 6" diameter spots of bleached or light tan grass if you suspect Dollar Spot. Infected leaves have white lesions with reddish tan margins that often resemble an hourglass. Over and under fertilization, drought, water on the grass blades for extended time, and mowing too low all increase the risk of this disease.

Closely examine lawns with a reddish hue to confirm the presence of rust disease. Rust infected lawns are covered with an orange or yellowish powder, the fungal spores, that can leave an orange residue on your shoes. Newly seeded and lawns weakened by inadequate fertilization and drought are most susceptible.

Stay alert for leaf spot diseases that can attack lawns. Avoid excess fertilization and watering late afternoon and evenings.

Once you discover a disease, visit Milorganite.com for more detailed information and photos to help with diagnosis. Correct your lawn care practices to speed recovery and avoid problems in the future. Proper care and reseeding dead areas with disease-resistant grass varieties is usually enough to manage the disease. Be sure you need a fungicide before applying. These chemicals are costly, the results can be disappointing and when used improperly they can be harmful to pollinators and the environment.

Further speed recovery with a change in mowing habits. Continue to mow high but cut the healthy por-

Terry Dorilas New CEO Mass Bay Credit Union

Terry Dorilas has been named chief executive officer of Mass Bay Credit Union, succeeding John Thomas who is retiring next month.

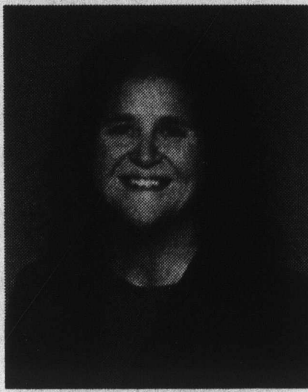

Dorilas is Mass Bay's current chief operating officer, overseeing the Operations, Accounting, Human Resources, Branch Administration, Collections, Servicing, and Lending departments. She has also held the position of chief financial officer at Mass Bay as well as at Grafton Suburban Credit Union (now Homefield Credit Union).

Dorilas has been with Mass Bay since March of 2013.

"We are excited to have Terry take the reins of our great community-centered organization," says Jeremiah Ahern, Mass Bay chairman. "I know she will continue to build on our effort to make Mass Bay the number one destination for consumers looking for locally-based banking with easy access around town, at home or anywhere you go, nationwide."

"We are also grateful to John Thomas for all Mass Bay Credit Union has accomplished for our members under his leadership."

With an MBA from University of Utah David Eccles School of Business, Dorilas has accomplished much over her more than 30 years in financial services. Recently, as Mass Bay COO, she has been instrumental with launching Mass Bay's ITM's (Interactive Teller Machines) in the Seaport and South Boston Branches.

"I am honored to have this opportunity," Dorilas said. "At Mass Bay, our focus is on service to our members and making a difference in the community. We will continue to be on the leading edge of technology to provide the products and services that will help our members achieve their financial goals, and we will also continue to increase our presence and support of community events and local charities."

"When people think of Mass Bay, we want them to think of Easy Banking at an institution that truly cares about them," she added.

Rockland Trust-Peoples Federal Foundation Presents $25,000 Grant To BCNC

The Rockland Trust Peoples Federal Foundation recently presented a $25,000 grant to the Boston Chinatown Neighborhood Center - BCNC Quincy division.

The funding will be used to strengthen BCNC's Youth Center and Family Services for the Asian community.

BCNC is the largest nonprofit social service provider for Asian families in the Greater Boston area, supporting over 2,600 children, youth, and adults each year at four locations in Boston and Quincy. The mission of BCNC is to ensure that the children, youth, and families we serve have the resources and supports they need to achieve greater economic success and social well-being. BCNC provides families access to resources and services, opportunities to learn and acquire skills, and a community of mutual support and encouragement. In May 2017, BCNC opened the Pao Arts Center, Chinatown's first community-based arts center and Boston's newly dedicated Asian American and Asian immigrant cultural space. www.bcnc.net.

Rockland Trust offers a wide range of banking, investment, and insurance services to businesses and individuals through retail branches, commercial lending offices, investment management offices, and residential lending centers located in Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, as well as through telephone banking, mobile banking, and the Internet.

Getting Ready For Spring Yard Work: Safety Tips To Remember

The Outdoor Power Equipment Institute (OPEI), an international trade association representing more than 100 power equipment, engine and utility vehicle manufacturers and suppliers, reminds home owners to keep safety in mind when getting out their spring lawn and garden equipment like lawn mowers, edgers, trimmers and more.

"After a long winter, we know that everyone is eager to get outside and start working in their yards. But remember to make safety a priority," said Kris Kiser, president and CEO. "Make sure you're 'backyard ready' by doing some basic maintenance now when we are on the cusp of spring. This will ensure your equipment operates safely and gets the job done."

A good time to assess outdoor power equipment needs is before you need it, adds Kiser. "Whether you need battery, gasoline, propane, diesel, robotic, or hybrid powered equipment, there is a product to fit your needs and that can handle any yard chore."

Before you use a mower, trimmer, blower, chain saw, pruner or other piece of outdoor power equipment this season, OPEI reminds consumers to inspect their equipment, review owner's manuals, and review safety procedures. Here are tips to help:

Get out owner's manuals. Follow all guidelines for outdoor power equipment and familiarize yourself with the controls. Misplaced manuals can be found online (and saved on your computer for future reference).

Inspect equipment. Check for loose belts and missing or damaged parts. Replace any parts needed or take equipment to a qualified service representative. Repair shops are busy when spring arrives. Getting equipment serviced before the rush means you'll be ready to get outside right away.

Drain old fuel. Fuel should not sit in your equipment's tank for more than 30 days. Untreated gasoline (without a fuel stabilizer) left in the system will deteriorate, which may cause starting or running problems and even damage to the fuel system. "Old" fuel should be drained and removed, and then newly-purchased fuel should be added.

Only use E10 or less fuel. Some gas stations may offer 15 percent ethanol (E15) gas or higher ethanol fuel blends, but any fuel containing more than 10 percent ethanol can damage—and is illegal to use—in small engine equipment not designed for it.

Label fuel cans with the date of purchase and ethanol content of the fuel. Never put "old" gas in outdoor power equipment. If you don't know the date of purchase, dispose safely of the fuel in the can and buy fresh fuel.

Clean equipment. Remove dirt, oil or grass stuck to it. A clean machine will run more efficiently and last longer.

Set expectations with your family and pets. It's been a long winter for them too, and they may want to be outside while you are doing yard work. But while outdoor power equipment is in use, the safest place for kids and pets is inside your home and under the supervision of a responsible adult. Talk with your family about safety and remind them to follow procedures.

er fueling, go to www.LookBeforeYouPump.com.

On Tuesday, March 6, at approximately 6:05 p.m., Officers William O'Neill and Joseph Paccioretti were dispatched to America's Best Defense/kick boxing gym on Newport Avenue on a report of larceny from the lockers. The manager/caller said the suspect left but described him as a young, skinny male wearing khaki pants.

Upon arrival, Officer Paccioretti interviewed the first of two victims, who stated he left items in the men's locker room/closet area while working out. When he returned to the locker room, he noticed his smart phone (iPhone 6S+), his house/car keys/fob (Nissan Rogue), his wallet (dark blue cloth), about $120 cash, his license and medical cards were gone. He added his wallet contained several credit cards. He checked his vehicle and found that the suspect had started it with the remote but it was parked far enough away that the suspect likely never located it. The first victim added that he saw the male suspect walking around the gym earlier in the evening.

A second victim stated that his sneakers (Addidas Y3, blk. with white tow cap, Y3 printed on heel) were stolen from the men's locker room/closet area. He returned to the closet area for his kick boxing gloves and came across a male matching the above description. The male appeared nervous upon being detected and said to the victim, "These are your gloves," as he handed them over to the victim. The male also had his jacket and gave it back reluctantly. The victim said he was lucky that the male didn't have a chance to go through his jacket because that was where he kept his property and cash.

Once the male suspect left, the victim said he checked around and found a discarded pair of sneakers and an athletic supporter in the shower area. The manager provided Officer Paccioretti with items that had been found abandoned in the locker room/shower area. This included a men's wallet (Relic, brown leather), a cellphone (Coolpad), a black sock and an open box of cookies (Signature Kitchens, peanut butter fudge). Inside the wallet was a $20 bill, a Visa debit card with the name on it and a 2017 W-2 federal tax statement for a different named male.

Officer O'Neill checked the QPD computer database and found that the name on the W-2 showed that he was recently arrested (February), in Quincy and he fit the description provided. Soon after, the manager informed the officers that a female patron reported that her boots (Uggs) had been moved in the locker area. It is possible the suspect searched inside the boots for any hidden valuables. According to the manager, there were no surveillance cameras at the gym and the exterior cameras did not work.

A Job Well Done

Officer O'Neill left the area and started filing his report. About an hour later, officers were dispatched to 115 West Squantum St. for a male attempting to get into the building. The male fit the description of the suspect from 33 Newport Ave. Responding Officers Steve Dabilis and Jay Borden located the suspect and placed him under arrest for outstanding warrants. Officer Dan Francis, also on scene, confirmed that the suspect was wearing the stolen sneakers.

Sergeant J.P. Kelly arrived on scene and interviewed an employee of the gym, who stated that she witnessed the suspect in the gym. She told officers she saw the suspect come in for five minutes (dressed the same), leave for five minutes, and then come back to the locker room for less than five minutes. She said that she could identify the suspect so she was brought to his location, where she stated that she was "90 percent sure" he was the suspect she saw in and out of the gym this evening.

Officer Francis then transported the suspect to the station. When he was removed from the rear seat, his pants dropped down further which revealed a wallet (blue cloth) and several credit cards/IDs on the prisoner seat of the cruiser. The cards included the first victim's Visa card, his Amex card, his CVS health card, his TD Visa, his Bloomingdale's card, his Case Visa, his Citizen's Visa, his B of A Visa card, his Barclay Card Mastercard, his Mass Health card, his USPS ID card (w/photo), his South Cove Community Health Center card (w/photo) and his Massachusetts Operator's license.

The second victim came to the police station where he identified his stolen property. The items were turned over to the victim. Officer Francis recovered an Iphone, house/car keys/fob (Nissan) and an expandable flashlight in the suspect's jacket pocket. At booking, officers located $108 during inventory of the suspect's person/property.

The suspect, a 24-year-old homeless man, was charged with larceny from building, receiving stolen property over $250 along with three default warrants. Nice Work!

FITNESS AND HEALTH CLUB THEFT: Rates vary depending upon the facility's effort to prevent crime. The theft can range from taking change from a member's locker to stealing a car by removing keys from a locker, then using the remote on the key to locate and then take the car. The crime rate in these clubs are often dependent upon the actual physical set up of the club, the clientele and the effort made by the club to deter crime.

Although there are statistics out there about how many incidents there are, they are most likely under reported because the victim may:

- report it to the police
- report it just to the health club
- not report it at all, figuring there is nothing we can do

*As always, report suspicious activity to staff and other members. You don't have to wait until someone steals a valuable to take action. Let a staff member monitor or question a person who is acting oddly.

*By reporting a loss due to theft, it helps management and the local Police Department create a pattern such as a time period and specific items being taken. It also helps law enforcement in reviewing video from security cameras for suspects or putting undercover officers in the club.

WHO IS DOING THIS?

-There are professional rings who go around and break into numerous lockers.

-Thieves who see a crime of opportunity; by leaving valuables unattended or not secured.

Here are some suggestions to avoid becoming a victim:

*Don't bring valuables into the club. Leave items like your wallet, watch, phone, money, jewelry, etc. in your car, well hidden, preferably in the trunk. Won't they break into my car? The clear majority of car breaks are due to unlocked doors. Parking in a visible, high traffic, well lit location are all deterrents. It is much safer to leave your valuables in a locked car than in a health club.

*The only item of value you really need is one key to your car and this should be with you at all times, especially if you do not shower at the facility. Tie it to your sneaker

Health Matters from Carney Hospital

ARE ACHING JOINTS SLOWING YOU DOWN?

Joint deterioration has a number of causes, including injuries, and autoimmune conditions such as rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis – the most common degenerative joint disorder due to the general wear and tear on the body's joints, which may cause pain and inhibit motion.

Common symptoms include:

- Mild to severe pain in a joint, especially after overuse or long periods of inactivity, such as sitting for a long time
- Creaking or grating sound in the joint
- Swelling, stiffness, limited movement of the joint, especially in the morning
- Deformity of the joint

"Osteoarthritis usually affects the hands, feet, spine, hips, or knees," explains Carney Hospital orthopedic surgeon Leonid Dabuzhsky, MD. "The symptoms of osteoarthritis usually appear in middle age, but almost everyone has some symptoms of osteoarthritis, ranging from minor to severe, by the time they are 70 years old."

The Nuts and Bolts of Joint Replacement

Joint replacement is one of the most common orthopedic surgeries performed today, with the knee and hip being the most frequently replaced joints. In fact, knee replacements have doubled in the past decade, and not just among the elderly. Many factors however, will determine whether trading in your aching joint for a stronger, better, faster replacement is the right step for you.

Joint replacement surgery exchanges the worn out part with a prosthesis made of plastic, metal or a combination of both. With successful outcomes in more than 90 percent of cases, patients who've had a joint replaced may enjoy better quality of life, relief from pain, stiffness or swelling, and improved range of motion. But no surgery is without risks and, although the complication rate in joint replacement is low, patients are susceptible to infection, blood clots, and loosening or dislocation of the joint.

When is Joint Replacement the Right Choice?

The severity of your condition will likely be a significant factor in the decision to have joint replacement surgery. If aching and stiff joints cause constant pain, limit your ability to walk or climb stairs and affect your quality of life, you may be a likely candidate for joint replacement surgery.

In addition to the extent of your pain and lost mobility, your doctor will consider other treatment options such as lifestyle modifications, medications, injections, physical therapy or aids such as a brace. Patients who are unresponsive to these treatments may determine that joint replacement is the appropriate option. And if you need knee replacement surgery, Dr. Dabuzhsky, who recently joined the staff at Carney's Center for Orthopedics & Joint Replacement, can now offer patients exclusive access to OMNIBotics, an advanced robotic-assisted treatment option for total knee replacement that uses sophisticated software and instrumentation to tailor each procedure to the patient's unique anatomy in order to optimize implant fit and alignment with a less invasive surgical technique which may promote a quicker recovery than traditional knee replacement surgery.

Get Back in the Game

Whether you want to get back in the game, or simply back to your life, the orthopedic surgeons at Carney Hospitals' Center for Orthopedics & Joint Replacement can help you find the treatment option that works best for you. To make an appointment with an orthopedic surgeon close to home, visit CarneyHospital.org/ortho or call 617-506-4930.

Contract Awarded For Quincy Adams, Braintree T Projects

By SCOTT JACKSON

The MBTA has awarded a $64.3 million contract to upgrade and modernize parking garages at the Quincy Adams and Braintree Red Line stations.

The MBTA's Fiscal and Management Control Board on March 12 awarded the project to McCourt/Consigli JV1, who submitted the lowest of five bids for the project. Construction at Quincy Adams and Braintree stations parking garages is anticipated to begin during the summer of 2018 with an estimated completion in summer of 2022.

Officials said the contract provides for improvements at these garages, including improved pedestrian and vehicular traffic flow, increased customer safety, new amenities that enhance the customer experience, and a 40-year extension of service life at each facility.

"We're excited to continue these rehabilitation efforts for our Red Line customers," MBTA General Manager Luis Manuel Ramirez said in a statement. "With brand new safety features, improved amenities, and improved traffic flow, the approval of this contract award means our South Shore customers will receive the parking experience they deserve - with parking continuing to be available at both stations during the reconstruction efforts."

Both parking facilities will receive rehabilitation of their structural elements, replaced drainage systems, upgrades to fire alarms and security systems, fully replaced lighting, new way-finding signage, better circulation for accessibility vehicles, and additional parking spaces through an improved parking layout.

The work at Quincy Adams will also include repairs to the Centre Street Bridge, a new atrium roof, new roofs over the drum ramps, and a restored parking office.

Before Quincy celebrated St. Patrick's Day with a traditional boiled dinner and a side order of political humor, Quincy Community Action Programs' chief executive was honored for her contributions to the city.

Quincy's 22nd annual St. Patrick's Day luncheon was held March 16 in the Tirrell Room. Proceeds from the event went to the Quincy Storm Relief Fund, which benefits those residents impacted by the March 2 nor'easter that inundated low-lying coastal areas in the city. The event in recent years has benefited the Quincy Parks Conservancy, but David Murphy, the organization's president, suggested the money go to the relief effort instead.

Beth Ann Strollo was named "Irishwoman of the Year" during the two-hour bash. Mayor Thomas Koch presented Strollo with the award and said QCAP helps so many in the community in so many different ways.

"We're so fortunate in the city in so many ways. We have outstanding employees and departments, outstanding organizations and volunteers, and one of those great organizations is Quincy Community Action," Koch said.

"They do an awful lot of work day in and day out for so many folks in our community that need that help — that need that lift — whether it's through education program, fuel assistance, food pantry, housing assistance — QCAP does it all.

"They have an incredible staff, a lot of great volunteers, but really Beth Ann is one of the most remarkable administrators that I've seen. I really admire her tremendous leadership."

Strollo received a plaque — describing her as a community leader, advocate and friend to all — as well as a walking stick.

In her acceptance speech, Strollo said she was humbled to receive the award, adding there are many amazing women in Quincy throughout different walks of life.

"I feel a bit of humility standing up here accepting this award because there are so many amazing women in the city of Quincy and a lot of them are here today — a lot of women I have the privilege of knowing and working with," Strollo said.

"They come from all sectors of the city — city hall, the wonderful women who work there, the school department, the business community, the healthcare community, the non-profit community — there are so many incredible women."

Strollo recognized two longtime community activists she called mentors — Josephine Shea and Rosemary Wahlberg.

Strollo also recognized Koch for his leadership of the city.

"I want to thank the mayor for his great leadership in the city," she said. "He has brought so much positive leadership to the city, which is wonderful, and he has the courage to give this award to a woman this year and the guts to give the first Irishwoman of the Year award to an Italian."

Strollo credited QCAP's staff and board of directors for helping make the organization what it is.

"The mayor mentioned the staff at Quincy Community Action and the board of directors. They are amazing," she said. "They devote so much of their work life and their volunteer life to make QCAP great. A lot of you work with them in various capacities and they're why I can stand here and accept this award. The good work they do has really made the city, I hope, stronger and better."

The luncheon started on a serious note with the presentation of the award, but was soon followed by levity as Quincy's officials roasted each other.

Koch brought back a favorite bit years past, showing a slideshow of Quincy officials and their celebrity doppelgängers. This year's crop included City Clerk Nicole Crispo and a Barbie doll, Quincy Chamber of Commerce President Tim Cahill and a Ken Doll, and Ward 6 Councillor William Harris and Family Guy's Peter Griffin.

Koch also showed a slide with his look-alike, Tom Brady.

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti presented a slideshow of lawn signs with rejected campaign slogans. They included a sign for Rep. Tackey Chan with the phrase "I'm smarter than you," one for Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain saying, "I'm smarter than Tackey," and one for Rep. Bruce Ayers that read "nice hair, better suit."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci thanked Councillor Noel DiBona for his efforts to help out Houghs Neck residents during the March 2 storm, calling him an unsung hero.

"People probably don't know, but Councillor DiBona personally saved nine families trapped by rising water levels. He used his inflated ego as a flotation device," Palmucci quipped.

Murphy, the Quincy Parks Conservancy President, said Koch — who had his head shaved recently to benefit Dana-Farber — was overshadowed at that fundraiser by Tom Brady. Murphy suggested an alternative way for the mayor to raise funds.

"I think that you should do a Brazilian wax for charity," Murphy joked. "I think you and Bellotti should take those 'Dan Raymondi for Council' bumper stickers that you didn't put on your cars and just rip them right off."

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Newton made an impromptu appearance at the luncheon, and said he thought Koch shaved his head for other reasons.

"I didn't read the article mayor — I thought you shaved your head because the tax bill came out and I didn't think anyone would know what you look like on the street," Newton said.

Quincy Youth Hockey Crowns Jamboree Champs

Quincy Youth Hockey Jamboree Championships were held March 16th at Quincy Youth Arena.

The Elementary School League, sponsored by Callaghan Construction, kicked things off for the evening. All four teams participated in the half ice U8 Final. The consolation game went back and forth with everyone skating hard for both the Red and Teal teams. The championship game saw an offensive explosion by the green team for the win against the yellow team.

The Callaghan Construction Elementary League U10 Final saw excellent goaltending for both teams to make for a tight game. Offense was tough to come by with both teams playing great defense. It was a one goal game for most of the night. The Teal team pulled their goalie, but Green was able to hold on for the exciting 4-3 win.

The Middle School League Final saw the IBEW Local 103 team getting out to a quick 3-0 lead. The Steven Barrett Club team stormed back to tie it 3-3 in the third period. IBEW went ahead mid-way through the third. With their goalie pulled, Steven Barrett had opportunities to tie the game late but IBEW was able to add an empty net goal for the 5-3 win.

America FC Team Participates In Antigua Youth Soccer Classic

The America FC United Boys under fourteen soccer team returned from their trip to the Antigua u14 Youth Soccer Classic held March 10 and 11 on the Caribbean island of Antigua. The tournament was organized by Antigua Barbuda Football Association youth coordinator Micah Samuel and brought together island teams Villa Lions, North Coast FC, SAP FC, Grays Green, and Pigotts FC to play against the Quincy-based America FC United side, coached by former Antiguan national team striker Conrad Whyte, Jr. Over five tightly contested matches, AFC United was not scored upon from the run of play, and conceded only one goal on a penalty kick awarded in stoppage time. America FC United took the championship trophy in a contentious final held at the national team's training field. Whyte, a Quincy resident and Associate Head Coach at Stonehill College, has made a tradition of bringing local teams to play in his island home.

"It is good for the boys to see the conditions these (island) teams train and play in, and to see how soccer is played in the rest of the world" said Whyte. He noted that some of the teams come from impoverished parts of the beautiful island nation, and soccer is all they have. Whyte had his team tour his hometown of St. Johns, visiting his youth club's training site on King Obsolete Avenue and the rustic bakery where the boys sampled the locally produced bread. The sixteen boys and one girl on his team hail from Quincy, Milton, Braintree, Dorchester, Norwell and Holbrook and were also able to visit cultural landmarks at Shirley's Heights and Devil's Bridge as well as some of the island's white-sand beaches.

"Every year that we go down to the island the players have a great experience and play some good soccer" Whyte continued. "We also try to give something back to the local teams. Last year the boys gave away their uniforms—which was a little problematic since we still had games to play up here. This year we brought three suitcases of cleats and soccer gear." He said that it was gratifying to see young Antiguan children wearing AFC jerseys donated in past years. "They remember us and look forward to having us come back again" he concluded.

In addition to winning the tournament, America FC United players took some individual honors as well, including goalkeeper Liana Sawyer of Braintree, top striker Sam Wong, and golden-boot winner and tournament most valuable player Jair Whyte, both of Quincy.

America FC United fields thirteen teams in the Northeast Soccer League, and conducts youth soccer training programs year-round, according to club president Jim Sheridan of Quincy. For more information about the club, see their website: <http://www.americafcunited.com/>

4 Ways To Crush The Debt That's Been Crushing You

Debt continues to be a crushing burden for many Americans. From credit cards to auto loans, mortgages, student loans and medical bills, a high percentage of the nation's households have one or more of those types of debt.

According to a NerdWallet debt analysis in 2017, the average American household carrying credit card debt owed a balance of $15,654. The average balance for a household with auto loans was $27,669; it was $46,597 for a student loan; and $173,995 for the average remaining on a mortgage.

"Debt is that great financial enemy we'd all love to defeat," says Garrett Gunderson, founder/wealth architect of Wealth Factory and co-author of 5 Day Weekend: Freedom to Make Your Life and Work Rich with Purpose (www.5dayweekend.com) with entrepreneur Nik Halik. "People struggle to get out of debt because they don't have a wise and coherent strategy to pay debt down."

Getting out from under a mountain of debt can be a challenge, but Halik says a consistent plan founded upon discipline can open a path toward financial freedom. He and Gunderson give a four-step strategy for paying down debt:

Build savings first. Trying to make higher payments in order to reduce your debt is admirable, but that doesn't make sense without having adequate savings for emergencies. "You need to have at least three months of income, ideally six, in a liquid savings account to create a safety cushion," Gunderson says. "If you have no cash reserves, what happens when you experience an unexpected cash-flow crunch?"

Restructure your loans. Minimizing your payments and maximizing your cash flow are the main goals. "You can restructure your loans by rolling short-term, high-interest loans into long-term, low-interest, tax-deductible loans," Halik says. "If you have enough home equity, you can refinance your mortgage, which can be a tax-deductible loan, and roll as many of your non-deductible loans into it as possible."

Attack one loan at a time. Although most financial advisors suggest paying off your loans with the highest interest rates first, Gunderson advises to ignore the interest rate and use a technique developed by him and his team called the Cash Flow Index. "Divide the loan balance by the minimum monthly payment," Gunderson says. "That gives you the Cash Flow Index for each loan. A low cash flow index of between 0 and 50 is a priority to pay off, because the idea is to free up more monthly cash."

Be cautious about locking money in an asset. Halik says paying extra on your mortgage can make sense when you're financially stable, but other times it's just locking money into a hard-to-access equity. "A good rule is to only put extra money into debt where your minimum payment goes down as your balance goes down, such as your credit card," Halik says.

"The big picture purpose in paying off debt is to free up cash that you can then use to invest in passive income vehicles," Gunderson says. "The best place to start is to maximize the efficiency of your existing resources. You may discover, as most people do, that you actually have a lot more to work with than you think."

PALM SUNDAY, HOLY WEEK, PASSOVER, EASTER SERVICES

Evangelical Clergy Holy Week Services

The Quincy Evangelical Clergy Association invites the Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week services.

On Good Friday, March 30, at 12 noon, a worship service will be held at The Covenant Church of Quincy, 315 Whitwell St., Quincy. Local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship which commemorates the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, April 1, the annual Easter Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Wollaston Beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club, on Quincy Shore Drive. In case of rain the service will be held at the Covenant Church of Quincy.

The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be led by members of the Clergy Association with music from the brass band of the Quincy Corps of The Salvation Army.

All are welcome to attend both of these services.

Fort Square Presbyterian Church

Fort Square Presbyterian Church, 16 Pleasant St., Quincy, welcomes all to attend Easter Worship services.

They are:

- Easter Cantata- a beautiful morning of music on Sunday, March 25th at 10 a.m.

- Maundy Thursday service, a reverent and somber perspective of the Easter events on Thursday, March 29 at 7:30 p.m.

- Celebration of the Resurrection at the Easter service Sunday, April 1 at 10 a.m.

All are welcome.

Wollaston Congregational

Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., Quincy, announces the following activities:

- Saturday, April 7th,

Spring Trivia Night, at 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Quincy. Call to submit a team or come and join a team.

- Saturday, April 28th,

Spring Craft Fair and Lunch, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the church Social Hall. Crafter tables still available for $35.

Passover Activity Day, Open House Sunday At Beth Shalom Blue Hills

To prepare for and learn about the upcoming Jewish holiday of Passover (Pesach), Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills and its Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will hold a Passover Family Activity Day and Open House Sunday, March 25 from 10:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., at the synagogue in Milton.

All interested families in the area, including non-members, are invited to attend this free program.

The Activity Day invites everyone to get into the Passover spirit by learning how to make Bedouin Matzoh, Matzoh balls and exotic Charoset. The traditional symbolic signing and sale of Chametz can also be completed by adults, while the entire religious school and visiting children will participate in singing, group activities, and arts and crafts.

Visitors can also meet Rabbi Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Molitor as well as other temple members and officers, and learn about the congregation's activities, religious services, holiday celebrations, and the Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School.

The spring holiday of Passover (Pesach) commemorates the liberation of the Jewish people from slavery, and their exodus from Egypt, led by Moses. It lasts eight days and is marked by Seders, meals which include the retelling of the exodus story, along with consumption of special foods and restrictions from others.

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is an egalitarian congregation which welcomes inter-faith families. It is located at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton.

Parking is limited, and overflow parking is available on nearby Pleasant Street. No parking is allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

For more information, call the synagogue office at 617-698-3394.

Pauline E. O'Brien, 93

Funeral services for Pauline E. (Saulnier) Couch O'Brien, age 93, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, were held March 16 in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mrs. O'Brien died peacefully March 10 at the Colonial Skilled Nursing Home and Rehabilitation Center in Weymouth, in the comfort of her loving family.

She was born in Whitman to the late Paul and Helen (Comeau) Saulnier. She was raised and educated in Quincy and was a graduate of Quincy High School and had lived in Weymouth for nine years, previously Quincy and many years in South Carolina.

Mrs. O'Brien had been employed at the former Raytheon Corporation in Quincy for forty years and retired as the manager of the shipping department. She enjoyed playing bingo. She was devoted to her family, especially to her grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great, great-grandchildren.

PAULINE E. O'BRIEN

Beloved wife of the late Russell F. O'Brien. Devoted mother of the late Elaine E. Harding and the late Roger Couch. Loving grandmother of Michelle Ash, Michael Ash, Adrienne Ash-Giles, Patrick Harding and the late Daniel Harding. She is survived by many great-grandchildren and great, great-grandchildren. Dear sister of Marie Conway of Rockland and Terry Davis of Holbrook. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

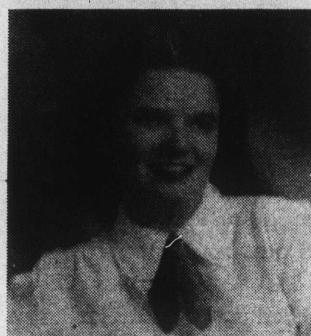

Julie E. Morrissey

A celebration of life service for Julie E. (Mowles) Morrissey of Quincy, originally Dorchester, was held March 14 in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Morrissey died March 8.

She graduated from Dorchester High School for Girls and went on to marry her beloved husband and raise 12 children together. She adored her family and spending holidays together, crocheting afghans for family and friends, and making sure everyone was happy. She also enjoyed ceramics, traveling all over the world with her husband, cooking, baking, and passing on her skills to those she loved. Mrs. Morrissey was active in the community and involved in all of her children's events. She made lifelong friendships and was a loyal and nurturing woman. She put others before herself and loved celebrating life. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Daughter of the late Daniel and Agnes (Noonan) Mowles. Beloved wife of the late John F. Morrissey. Loving mother of Elisabeth M. Morrissey USN-Ret. of Portsmouth, VA, John S.

Memorial donations may be made to Mr. Canale's wife Cheryl to help her and his family through this difficult time.

Willmore F. Holbrow, Jr., 77

A funeral Mass for Willmore "Bill" Frederick Holbrow, Jr., age 77, life enthusiast, was celebrated March 10 in St. Denis Church in Diamond Bar, Calif.

Mr. Holbrow died peacefully March 4.

He was born in 1941 in Dorchester to Wilmore Frederick Holbrow and Marguerite Callahan Holbrow.

He graduated from Boston Latin School in 1958, the Air Force Academy in 1962, and received his Master's Degree in aeronautical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1964. He was an entrepreneur in the biomedical field, developing portable EKG machines at his own company, International Equipment Company (later Luxon Industries). He transitioned to the telecommunications field in the mid 1980s, finding a new outlet for his love of life-long learning as an independent consultant.

Mr. Holbrow was a storyteller, private pilot, excellent skier, regular golfer, frequent flyer at Yosemite, but most importantly a family man. There were no strangers to Mr. Holbrow, only friends he had yet to meet. He was a tremendous example of generosity and kindness and would lend a hand to anyone who asked. Most of all he will be remembered for his constant, welcoming smile that endeared him to so many, earning him the nickname Happy Holbrow.

He is survived by his loving wife of 53 years, Mary (Erwin) Holbrow, originally of Braintree, his sisters Mary Holbrow Long, and Laura Holbrow Griffin, and his children Ann Holbrow Verwiel and her husband Mark, his son Willmore Frederick Holbrow III, and Maureen Holbrow Martin and her husband Bryan. Some of his happiest moments were spent enjoying his grandchildren, Willmore IV, Haley, Christopher, Jake, Ethan, Taylor, and Gabbie. He will be missed dearly by all those who loved him.

A memorial is being planned for the spring in Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Memory Garden Memorial Park & Mortuary in Brea, Calif.

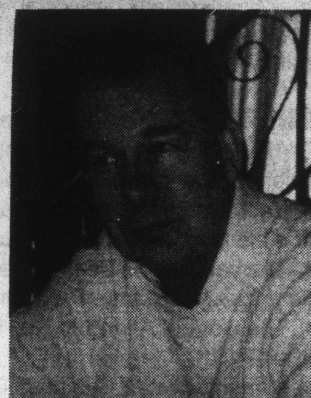

Edward P. Fisher

Funeral services for Edward P. Fisher of Weymouth were held Wednesday in McDonald Keohane Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Mr. Fisher died peacefully surrounded by his loving family on March 17.

He was the founder of Fisher Associates, Architects and Engineers in Quincy since 1976. He was a member of the Quincy Lions and also the Toastmasters. Mr. Fisher enjoyed golfing and was very proud when he got his first hole in one at Dennis Highlands in Dennis. He was also a Korean War veteran serving with the United States Army. He will be dearly missed by all those that knew and loved him.

Beloved husband of the late Dolores V. (Sullivan). Loving father of Kathleen J.

EDWARD P. FISHER

McDonald and her husband, David, Patricia J. Fisher and her late husband, Glen P. Fealy, and Edward J. Fisher all of Weymouth, Proud Papa to David McDonald, Lauren E. McDonald, Edward "Teddy" Fisher, Veronica K. Fisher, and Garrett G. Fisher.

Interment at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

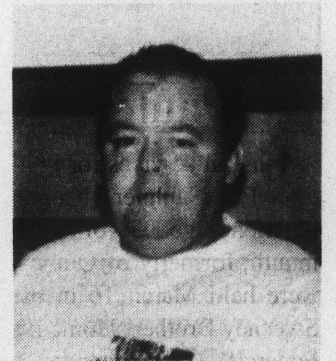

Raymond Crombie

A funeral Mass for Raymond "Ray" Crombie, 70, a resident of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in Holy Trinity Parish at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Quincy.

Mr. Crombie died March 16.

He was a proud veteran of the U.S. Army 25th Infantry Division. Mr. Crombie served three tours of duty in Vietnam where he earned numerous medals and commendations. He worked for the City of Quincy Courthouse for most of his career. He was Catholic and active in the church. He loved his country, his fellow vets and his family; he was a helper.

Mr. Crombie is survived by his wife, Ruth Galligan of Quincy, his brothers Ronald Crombie of Hingham, Russell Crombie of Quincy, Randall Crombie and Roy Crombie; sisters Patricia Brightman and Joanne Boyden along with many nieces and nephews who he loved dearly. He was the son of the late Alexander and Margaret Crombie, and brother of the late Robert and Richard Crombie, Jeanne Gunning, Janet Wilson and Judy Cross.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the veterans organization of your choice.

John W. Nason, 81

A funeral Mass for John W. Nason, 81, of Braintree and formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Nason died March 11. Born in Boston and raised in Quincy, Mr. Nason served his country with honor in the U.S. Navy during the war in Vietnam. He lived most of his adult life in Weymouth.

Son of the late Ernest W. and Marie G. (Giardina) Nason, he was the brother of Patricia Gorham of Hanover, Kathleen Grant of Milton, Teresa Fielding of Marshfield, Peter Nason of Weymouth, and the late Mary Doerr. Also survived by 14 nieces and nephews and 31 great nieces and nephews.

Interment at Milton Cemetery.

Meeting On Garage, Downtown Parking Wednesday

By SCOTT JACKSON

City officials were to make a public presentation on plans for the construction of a new 714-car garage that will be built on what is now the Hancock Lot, as well as the plan to provide parking in Quincy Center once the garage closes in the coming months, at a community meeting last night (Wednesday).

The meeting was scheduled for 7 p.m. in the lower-level meeting room in the McIntyre Government Center, 1305 Hancock St.

The meeting will include a presentation of the final design of the $46.6 million garage, including a video animation of the civic space that will envelope the new parking structure. The garage is set to open in the fall of 2019. City officials had previously provided the City Council with the same presentation.

Also on the agenda for the meeting is a presentation on the parking plan for Quincy Center that starts when half the remaining spaces in the Hancock Lot close on April 2. The remaining section of the lot, which will be open only for transient parkers, will close on July 2.

Starting April 2, those with monthly parking passes will be reassigned to one of several municipally or privately owned lots in the area - including the Ross Lot, Hannon Lot (also known as the Messina Lot), Ward 6 Councillor William Harris, whose district includes North Quincy High School, called the school an important asset in the community that must be properly maintained.

"North Quincy High School is a vital community asset," he said. "We all know the great work that goes on inside its walls through the school department making it one of the very best urban high schools anywhere in Massachusetts. Also important is protecting and enhancing its physical structure."

Councillor Nina Liang welcomed the roof replacement project as well.

"I think the students over at North and all across the city deserve a great school," she said. "We're investing heavily in the city, specifically here in the downtown, so it's important to invest in other assets in the city as well."

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy, a former school board member, said it was difficult to find funding for capital projects like the North Quincy High roof work before the MSBA was established and credited then Treasurer Tim Cahill for his work in establishing the state agency.

"We used to scrounge a little bit to find the capital improvement money in the budget, and once in a blue moon we were able to do something that was of the large capacity like North Quincy's roof," McCarthy said.

"The MSBA kind of made its appearance under Tim and...if you add up the money that's been saved up with reimbursements across the board, it's immense."

All work of the Base Bid portion of the project under this contract shall be completed within one hundred and thirty-five (135) calendar days, excluding re-test inspection.

All work of the Base Bid plus Alternate No. 1 under this contract shall be completed within one hundred and sixty (160) calendar days, excluding re-test inspection.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form of a bid bond or certified/treasurer's check.

The work of the Base Bid portion of the project is funded in part by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority I/I Local Financial Assistance Program.

The work of Alternate No. 1 portion of the project is funded in part by the Massachusetts Water Pollution Abatement Trust (the "Trust").

Minority-owned Business Enterprise (MBE), women-owned Business Enterprise (WBE), Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE), and Equal Employment Opportunity policies of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP), and the City of Quincy are applicable to this Contract. The Bidder shall comply with all applicable laws and regulations pertaining to nondiscrimination, equal opportunity and affirmative action, including without limitation executive orders and rules and regulations of federal and state agencies of competent jurisdiction. The Bidder shall make positive efforts to achieve: (1) a minority employee work force hour goal of 15.30 percent, (2) a woman employee work force hour goal of 6.90 percent (3) a goal of 7.24 percent participation of Minority-owned Business Enterprise(s), and (4) a goal of 3.60 percent participation of Woman-owned Business Enterprise(s); (5) a goal of 4.20 percent participation of Disadvantaged/Minority Business Enterprise(s), and (6) a goal of 4.50 percent participation of Disadvantaged/Women Business Enterprise(s) within project contracts. All MBEs and WBEs shall be certified by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts under the provisions certified by the Supplier Diversity Office (SDO). At a minimum, MWRA, MassDEP, and the City of Quincy should allow MBEs and WBEs the maximum feasible opportunity to compete for subagreements performed under the project. Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE) goals are applicable to the total dollars paid to the construction contract. The two low General Bidders shall submit completed DBE forms (EEO-DEP-190 & EEO-DEP-191) by the close of business on the third business day after bid opening. Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be deemed to render a proposal non-responsive. No waiver of any provision of this section will be granted unless approved by the MassDEP.

The project requires compliance with Massachusetts Diesel Retrofit Program [MDRP] by use of after-engine emission controls that are EPA certified, or their equivalent, on at least 100% the off-road [non-registered] diesel vehicles/equipment used at the job site.

American Iron and Steel Requirement shall apply to this project and all iron and steel products shall be produced in the United States. Iron and steel products include pipes and fittings, manhole covers and other municipal castings, hydrants, tanks, flanges, pipe clamps and restraints, valves, structural steel, reinforced precast concrete, and construction materials.

All bids for this project are subject to applicable bidding laws of Massachusetts, including General Laws Chapter 30, Section 39M as amended.

Prevailing Wage Rates as determined by the Director of the Executive Office of Labor and Workforce Development under the provisions of the Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 149, Section 26 to 27H, as amended, apply to this project. It is the responsibility of the Bidder, before bid opening, to request if necessary, any additional information on Prevailing Wage Rates for those trades people who may be employed for the proposed work under this contract. Federal Minimum Wage Rates as determined by the United States Department of Labor under the Davis-Bacon Act also apply to this project.

The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids when such an action is deemed in the best interests of the City.

Non-responsive, and/or unbalanced bids may be rejected.

garage project also features two brand new elevators, sidewalk upgrades, a new parking office, a new electrical substation and emergency generator to serve the station and garage, new pedestrian ramps connecting adjacent parking levels as well as a new ramp to the commuter rail, and new canopies at the busway, commuter rail ramp, and between the garage and station. A new parking lot will also be available along Ivory

Street with a new pedestrian crossing between the Ivory Street lot and the station entrance.

Both parking garages will remain open throughout the reconstruction with no more than 300 parking spaces between the two garages unavailable at any one time during construction. A total of 400 replacement parking spaces will be provided immediately adjacent to the existing garage facilities (300 surface parking spaces along Ivory Street next to Braintree and 100 surface parking spaces immediately adjacent to Quincy Adams). Customers will continue to be able to use pay-by-phone or pay-by-plate with the same parking fees as other MBTA surface lots.

Work will be underway at all five stations on the Red Line's Braintree branch starting this summer.

The Wollaston station closed in January for a 20-month project to rebuild the platform and make it compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act. The project will also modernize the facility and mitigate flooding at the station's entrances.

The T plans to start demolition of the Quincy Center station's garage, which has been closed since July 2012, this weekend. The demolition of the top three floors there will take 12 months. The T has awarded development rights to a pair of developers – Atlantic Development of Hingham and Maryland-based Bozzuto Development. The T and the developers are now in the midst of a six-month due-diligence period to determine the feasibility of a project there.

Atlantic and Bozzuto will also begin construction of a mixed-use project at the North Quincy station this summer. The $205 million project will include 610 apartments, 50,000 square feet of retail space and 1,600 parking spaces. The first phase of the project features the construction of a parking garage with 852 parking spaces, the same total currently on site on the Hancock Street side of the station. The garage will take about a year to complete.

Sorensen Leads ENC Volleyball Team Over Newbury

Senior Kenny Sorensen of Quincy racked up a career-high 30 kills to lead the Eastern Nazarene College men's volleyball team to a 3-1 victory over Newbury March 17th at the Lahue Physical Education Center.

The Lions improved to 9-9 on the season and 4-3 in the New England Collegiate Conference with the win.

Sorensen's 30 kills and 67 attempts are the highest totals in NCAA Division III this season. He also finished with 12 digs on the day to collect his sixth double-double of the year.

James Hoopes (Lenexa, Kan.) posted 11 kills and seven digs in the match. Andrew Jayne, also of Quincy, chipped in with six kills and a team-best 14 digs.

Matthew Tyree (Lansdale, Pa.) dished out 53 assists and added nine digs while Brandon Jenkins (Norton) recorded 13 digs.

laces, or secure it to clothing. Do not bring in the car remote. The thief with the remote can locate your car and access it, drive off and even break into your house while you are unaware as you work out.

*When showering, be sure to secure your locker during that brief period of time. If you follow the suggestions above and only have a car key, hide the key within your belongings (inside a sock – who wants to look in there!) You could also covertly pin the key to the towel that you bring to the shower area.

*Use a QUALITY padlock on your locker with a combination lock, not a key lock. Don't buy a $5.00 lock to secure a $500.00 phone.

*Completely lock your lock.

*Thieves sometimes bring in bolt cutters to cut through the thin metal in the lock, hitting numerous lockers at once. Again, use a quality padlock.

*Pick the locker closest to the locker room entrance/exit. It has the most pedestrian traffic and is most visible.

*At some health clubs, there are smaller valuables lockers in plain view of staff and/or pedestrian traffic.

*If you need to bring in valuables, such as a cell phone, etc., consider using a fanny pack, which can be kept with you at all times with the exception of the shower. Keep in mind that thieves know that valuables are kept in fanny packs too!

*Wallets – sometimes only one credit card is taken so it takes much longer to be discovered missing. As in this particular case, the victim could have been responsible to cancel numerous credit cards if the Thief had gotten away.

What can you do? Urge your health club to take the following measures:

There are measures that can be taken by health clubs to tighten the place up, such as Card swiping, but the locker room door needs to shut quickly behind you.

All those entering the building need to be checked for membership and identity in order to know who is in the building.

Exterior door need to be alarmed and secured, with video camera monitoring.

Video cameras should be used outside locker rooms and throughout building, with notification that the building uses this program. Inside locker room is invasion of privacy

All staff should be trained to be on the alert for potential criminals and should take the time to educate members when they do not secure their valuables.

There should be documentation of non members who are in the building, whether with a friend or paying a separate fee.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Resist a confrontation with that irksome person. The matter will soon blow over anyway. Meanwhile, channel your high Arian energy into areas with more positive potential.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The innovative Bovine finds a creative way to resolve a sensitive domestic problem by midweek. A former colleague returns with an intriguing business suggestion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An unexpected critical statement from someone you trust could catch you momentarily off guard. But you soon recover your equilibrium and rise to the challenge.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel you can handle a new project on your own. But advice from someone with experience could help you avoid possibly costly as well as time-consuming obstacles.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Waiting for others to make decisions is difficult for the take-charge Lion. But by week's end, you should hear news that will help you regain control of the situation.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your superjudgmental side could dominate the week unless you try to keep it in check. Otherwise you risk offending people, including some who are very close to you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect more information to come out about that possible career shift. Meanwhile, your loving concern helps someone close to you get through a worrisome period.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Despite an occasional setback, workplace pressures should continue to ease through most of the week. This would be a good time to plan that long-delayed trip.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The sage Sagittarian quickly recognizes an opportunity when she or he sees it, especially if it's one you've been planning for. Take aim and go for it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The Sea Goat's unique insight guides you as you check out a questionable situation. Your efforts should prove rewarding for you and your many supporters.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might want to pace yourself a bit more. Rushing could lead to serious slip-ups. Take more time to check out details you might otherwise overlook.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The best way to resolve those remaining problems is to ask others for help. They'll be happy to do so, especially when you agree to share the credit for a job well done.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your natural gift for honest leadership earns you the respect and admiration of others.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Leonardo DiCaprio and Brad Pitt are joining forces for Quentin Tarantino's ninth film, "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood." Tarantino spent five years writing the script about Hollywood in 1969, and since he is one of the ultimate film buffs, who better than Tarantino? The film has DiCaprio playing a former Western star and Pitt as his longtime stuntman. Leo's cowboy lives next door to Sharon Tate, who was murdered, with her friends, by The Manson Family. Margot Robbie, Oscar nominated for "I, Tonya," is set to play Sharon Tate. Tarantino worked with Pitt in "Inglorious Basterds" (2009) and with DiCaprio in "Django Unchained" (2012).

Chris Hemsworth may put his "Thor" hammer down, for a while, to take on aliens in the spin-off of "Men in Black" (which won't have either Tommy Lee Jones or Will Smith). It's set for a June 2019 release.

"Saturday Night Live" alum and "Bridesmaids" (2011) star Kristen Wiig will do battle with Diana Prince (aka "Wonder Woman") in the sequel of the blockbuster 2017 film, which grossed $821 million. "Black Panther" is set to pass "Wonder Woman" at the box office any day now, and hit the $1 billion mark shortly thereafter.

When "The Bad Seed" hit movie theaters in 1956, it earned three Oscar acting nominations, for Nancy Kelly, Eileen Heckart and young Patty McCormack. It was remade as a TV film in 1985 with Lynn Redgrave and David Carradine, but wasn't a critical or ratings hit. Lifetime planned to remake it in 2015, but it was postponed ... until now.

Rob Lowe will star, produce and direct for Lifetime and has cast McKenna Grace in the title role as the murderous child. McKenna has a recurring role in "Designated Survivor" (as Kiefer Sutherland's daughter), is in Netflix's "Fuller House" and will star in its upcoming remake of "The Haunting of Hill House." "Hill House" was filmed as "The Haunting" in 1963 with Julie Harris and Claire Bloom, and in 1999 with Liam Neeson and Catherine Zeta-Jones. Patty McCormack, long associated with the original "Bad Seed," will play the psychiatrist who treats her in this one.

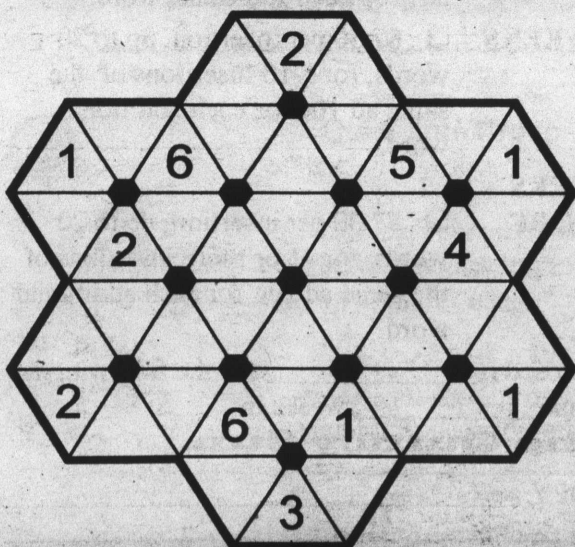

Six-time Oscar-nominee Shirley MacLaine, who won an Oscar for "Terms of Endearment" (1983), is truly one of the last movie stars left on the planet. She'll play an elf named Polly, the childhood nanny of Noelle, the daughter of Santa Claus, played by Anna Kendrick, in Disney's "Noelle." "SNL" alum Bill Hader plays her brother, and Julie Hagerty plays Mrs. Claus. Michael Gross of "Family Ties" will portray the Elder Elf. It's set to open in November 2019. MacLaine, who has written several books about past lives, probably never thought she'd be an elf in this one!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Easter Bunny --- When did the Easter bunny become part of the tradition of the religious Easter holiday? Easter began to be observed hundreds of years ago to commemorate the rising of Christ from the dead, and it has gradually become associated with the themes of the renewal of life in nature and flowers. It was not until about the 18th century that the Easter egg became part of the celebration.

The egg has long been a symbol of eternal life, and decorating and hunting for eggs became part of the symbolism of the holiday. As years passed, cardboard and papier-mache eggs were used, then real eggshells with the liquid egg blown out through a small hole. Other countries used sugar eggs and wooden eggs. All eggs were decorated. Soon there were Easter egg hunts and Easter egg rolls, but still no Easter bunny.

During the early 18th century, Pennsylvania Germans suggested that, in spring, the Easter Bunny would hide eggs or perhaps put them in an upside-down hat that was left out overnight. That custom soon grew to a basket to be filled with eggs, candy and fake green grass. By the 20th century, there were stuffed-toy Easter bunnies, porcelain figurines of bunnies and a German business making papier-mache and cardboard Easter bunny candy containers, which were sold in the U.S. and filled with candy. By the 1920s, there were tin or glass candy containers shaped like bunnies and other Easter symbols and, of course, toys. Holiday collecting is becoming more popular. Easter items include religious pictures and memorabilia, baskets, bunnies, chicks, ducks, nut cups, place cards, postcards and store advertising. Prices have gone down and up since 1980.

Q: My childhood teddy bear is, I am told, a Steiff and valuable. What determines the price?

A: Some Steiff teddy bears sell for thousands of dollars, but many things influence the price. A real Steiff should have a button in the ear that says Steiff. The high-priced bears are old and have mohair fabric in a rare color. White, lavender, black or red is best. Older bears are stuffed with straw, kapok, excelsior or sawdust, not polyester. Any nylon or plastic part suggests a newer bear, worth a lower price. Very large and very small bears are expensive. "Well-loved" (tattered) bears used to be OK, but now collectors want toys in almost perfect condition.

CURRENT PRICES

Juice glass, Swankyswig, Easter lily, white trumpet blossoms, yellow center, green leaves, Boscul, Peanut Butter glass, 5 inches, $45.

Chocolate mold, Easter bunny, standing with basket of eggs on back, cast aluminum, c. 1910, 14 x 8 inches, $160.

Easter basket, tin lithograph bucket, pail handle, nursery rhymes, candy, eggs and Easter designs, 1950s, 4 x 4 inches, $70.

TIP: Doors from a garage should have inside locks. Get a strong door. We know someone who came home to find a burglar had used an ax to "open" the door.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was famed Roman emperor Marcus Aurelius who made the following sage observation: "Everything we hear is an opinion, not a fact. Everything we see is a perspective, not the truth."

* The United States isn't the only country that has an accolade to recognize excellence in the film industry. Here the awards are known as the Oscars, but other nations have their own names: In Canada they're known as Genies, in France they're Cesars, in Russia they're called Nikas, in Mexico they're Golden Ariels, in Spain they're known as Goyas, and in the United Kingdom they're called BAFTAs (formerly the Orange British Academy Film Awards).

* Here's a disturbing statistic for parents: If your child is like the average American youth, between the ages of 5 and 15 they will see approximately 13,500 people killed on television.

* A chicken, a sheep and a duck get in the basket of a hot air balloon. No, that's not the first line of a joke; they really were passengers on a hot air balloon -- the very first passengers in that type of conveyance, as a matter of fact.

* Those who study such things say that fully one-third of all your brainpower is used for vision.

Thought for the Day: "I always find it more difficult to say the things I mean than the things I don't." -- W. Somerset Maugham

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "If you make your own whipped cream, try using honey instead of sugar. I find that it has a sweeter flavor, and it also stays firm longer than regular sugar. I especially like it on tarts." -- C.A. in Louisiana

* Here's a nifty trick to store lots of sunglasses using two thumbtacks and a length of ribbon. Keep your ribbon no longer than 10 inches, and tack it up to the wall in a taut horizontal line. Then slip one arm of the sunglasses behind the ribbon. Instant display and easy access.

* Keep charger cords from fraying by slipping on a spring from an ink pen. You also can cut a straw in half and make a slit down the side. Then slip the straw over your charging cord.

* Dried-out markers are the worst, but they don't have to be. Refresh your dried-out washable markers with a little marker therapy -- something that your kids can do! Dip a dried marker into a very small amount of water -- just enough that it takes up the water rather than coloring it. Then wrap the tip with a small piece of plastic wrap, and recap. Let set for an hour or so, then repeat until refreshed. You can do the same with permanent markers using alcohol rather than water.

* "I love bumper stickers, but hate the look of an old, faded, peeling tableau on the back of my ride. When I get a bumper sticker I like, I apply it to a sheet magnet found at craft stores. Then I cut out and slap it on. In fact, I can change my look whenever I like, and I store them on the inside of my garage door!" -- E.K. in New Hampshire

Quincy Rotary To Present Dan Quirk Paul Harris Fellowship

At Club's Annual Scholarship Gala April 12

Wendy Simmons and Walter White of The Rotary Club of Quincy recently met with Dan Quirk of Quirk Cars to discuss Quirk's upcoming award of a Paul Harris Fellowship by The Rotary Club of Quincy at their Annual Scholarship Gala on April 12th at The Neighborhood Club from 5:30 to 9 p.m.

The gala is a ticketed event and the public is welcome with advance registration.

Simmons and White spent time with Quirk explaining that it is considered a high honor in Rotary to be awarded a Paul Harris Fellowship. Honorees are selected based upon "Exceptional Service." In Quirk's case, he is being recognized for his long-standing and generous support of the Rotary Club of Quincy, with annual donations spanning two decades. He is also well-known for his generosity toward many other local causes, consistent with the Rotary motto: Service Above Self. The Rotary Club of Quincy thanks and honors Dan Quirk for his truly "Exceptional Service."

The Rotary Club of Quincy and its 501c3 Foundation provides more than $32,000 annually in college scholarships. It also offers financial support to selected Quincy and South Shore charitable causes such as the Salvation Army, Interfaith Social Services and Quincy Community Action to name a few. Lastly, Club members perform service projects in Quincy and the South Shore Community.

The Rotary Club of Quincy is a group of business professionals who value ethical business conduct and associate as friends for the purpose of bettering their Quincy community, as well as the world community through Rotary International.

Quincy Rotary meets at the Neighborhood Club on Tuesdays for lunch from 12:15-1:30 p.m. Guests are welcome. To learn more about the Rotary Club of Quincy attend a luncheon or visit the club's website at www.quincyrotary.com.

ROTARY CLUB of Quincy will present Rotary's highest honor - The Paul Harris Fellowship - to auto dealer and philanthropist Dan Quirk (center) at the club's annual Scholarship Gala April 12 at The Neighborhood Club from 5:30 to 9 p.m. With Quirk here are Quincy Rotarians Wendy Simmons (left) and Walter White.

What Does It Mean To Be A Rotary Paul Harris Fellow?

Paul Harris created the very first Rotary club in Chicago in 1905. He and three business associates met for lunch on a weekly basis in each other's offices.

They brought their own lunch and rotated meeting locations every week. Hence the name "Rotary" Club.

Rotary has grown to 1.2 million members with 32,000 clubs worldwide, just like ours in Quincy, which was founded in 1923.

A Paul Harris Fellow (PHF) recognition represents a contribution to the Rotary International Foundation of $1,000 to support their humanitarian work around the world.

This contribution to the Rotary Foundation can be made by an individual or a local Rotary Club. The honor of the PHF can be bestowed upon a Rotarian or non-Rotarian in recognition of exceptional service, above and beyond the Rotary standard of "Service above Self."

When a Club chooses to recognize one of their own or a non-Rotarian with a donation to the Rotary Foundation and present the individual with a Paul Harris Fellow, it is symbolic of their respect and admiration for the exceptional service of the recipient, in their community and in the world. An individual Paul Harris Fellow recognition by a Club is considered a high honor in Rotary.

What does the Rotary Foundation do?

The Rotary Foundation is a non-profit corporation that supports the efforts of Rotary International to achieve world understanding and peace through international humanitarian, educational and cultural exchange programs. It is supported solely by voluntary contributions from Rotarians and Friends of the Foundation who share its vision for a better world.

One of the most notable efforts and accomplishments on the part of the Rotary Foundation (TRF) is the goal of eradicating polio worldwide. Rotary began the effort to eradicate polio in 1988 when polio was present in 125 countries, paralyzing nearly 1,000 children per day, well over 300,000 per year.

The World Health Organization and the Melinda Gates Foundation were impressed by the Rotary effort so they partnered with TRF in the mid-1990s to immunize children and adults around the world against polio. This goal presents significant challenges in poor, third world countries, particularly in remote and inaccessible locations. Rotary's main effort has been to establish an infrastructure throughout the world for the distribution of the polio vaccine.

Thanks to immunization efforts that have reached nearly 3 billion children, the incidence of polio has decreased by 99 percent since then, 13 cases worldwide in 2017, down from over 300,000 in 1988.

Despite this progress, if polio is not completely eradicated, the world could witness a resurgence of 200,000 new cases annually so the effort is ongoing. The Rotary Foundation and the Gates Foundation have recommitted themselves to this effort and pledge to eradicate polio for good. The Gates Foundation is matching the Rotary Foundation's funding on a 2:1 basis, meaning $2 for every $1 from TRF. From 2013-2017 The Rotary Foundation and the Gates Foundation have contributed more than $1.6 billion dollars to end polio.

Other significant accomplishments of The Rotary Foundation are the funding of clean water and sanitation projects, disease prevention and treatment, economic and community development, basic education and literacy, maternal and child health and peace and conflict prevention and resolution. The Rotary Foundation also funds disaster relief and recovery efforts. On the home front, local Rotary clubs may apply for "District Grants" to fund projects of their own design and identified need. The Rotary Club of Quincy is presently administering a Grant in which they are providing healthy snacks, mainly fresh fruit and other desperately needed items, to children in an elementary school identified as having dire need in the City of Quincy.

What does the Rotary Club of Quincy do?

- Awards $32,000+ in college scholarships to Quincy Public Schools Seniors
- Prepares and serves 2 pancake breakfasts to seniors and other guests

Holocaust Window Rededication At Beth Shalom-Blue Hills

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills will rededicate its Holocaust Memorial Window at its new and permanent home, the congregation's synagogue at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge St.) in Milton, on Sunday, April 8th at 2 p.m.

The window was designed and created by renowned stained-glass artist David Holleman in 1986 for Temple Shalom of Milton, formerly at 180 Blue Hill Ave. It has resided there under the care and protection of the Concord Baptist Church, the current owners of the property. Meanwhile, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, the result of a merger of Temple Shalom with Temples Adas Shalom and Beth El, both of Quincy, built a new home on land donated by Marvin and Andrea Gordon off Lodge Street in Milton.

The new synagogue was dedicated in May of 2016, and it included a planned space for the Holocaust Memorial Window. With the support of the community and a successful fundraising campaign which drew some media attention, the synagogue was able to have the window moved and installed in its new home.

The rededication of the newly-backlit window will include appropriate musical pieces, survivors' recollections of the Holocaust, reminiscences of commissioning and receiving the window, remarks by clergy and temple officials, and prayers of mourning. The synagogue's other artifacts of the Holocaust will also be on display. The public is invited, but RSVP are required from all who plan to attend. Parking is limited at the synagogue, with overflow parking on nearby Pleasant Street. There no parking allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets

It is hoped that this meaningful and beautiful work of art will serve as a focal point of remembrance and a centerpiece for Holocaust education to the greater community, as a way to promote understanding between Jews and those of other faiths, and as a way to ensure that the lessons of the Holocaust are not forgotten by future generations.

Donations to continue support of the congregation's Holocaust education and other programming are welcome at www.bethshalombluehills.org. The congregation is joining with the Milton Public Library to screen the Holocaust-related film "Labyrinth of Lies" on Thursday, April 12th, at 6:45 p.m. It is free of charge and open to the public.

For more information about the Holocaust Memorial Window rededication or Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, or to RSVP, call 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org, or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

HOLOCAUST MEMORIAL WINDOW will be rededicated at synagogue of Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills – the window's new and permanent home – at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge St.) in Milton, on Sunday, April 8th at 2 p.m.

$75,000 Raised For Storm Relief

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy's residents and businesses have raised about $75,000 for a fund established to assist those impacted by the early March nor'easter that inundated low-lying coastal areas in the city, with more donations expected to pour in.

The city held a fundraiser March 20 at Alba Restaurant to benefit the Quincy Storm Relief Fund - the event had been postponed one week because of a blizzard on March 13. The March 20 event raised $40,000 at the door, Mayor Thomas Koch said in a recent interview, and corporate donations have also come in.

"We had $10,000 into the bank before the event [at Alba] because it was moved. We took in about $40,000 at the door and then we got a check from Quincy Mutual for another $10,000, LBC for another $5,000, and there is more coming in. My guess is we're probably in the $75,000 range right now," Koch said, with more money expected to come in.

Proceeds from this year's St. Patrick's Day Luncheon - a $50-per-plate fundraiser that typically benefits the Quincy Parks Conservancy - will also go into the storm relief fund. Koch did not have total for how much that

Student Safety In Schools Forum April 9

The Quincy Citywide PTO will host a Student Safety in Schools Forum on Monday, April 9th from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd., Quincy.

Presenting during the forum will be Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan, Mike Draichio, director of Transportation, Safety, and Security for Quincy Public Schools and Maura Papile, senior director of Student Support Services.

The forum will open with a presentation reviewing school security/safety procedures, detailing how QPS and Quincy Police work together to prepare for safety incidents, and outlining the services that are in place to assist students before and after an incident. Following the presentation, there will be a Q&A session which will give all in attendance the opportunity to ask questions, share concerns, and offer suggestions.

Due to the subject matter, families are asked to use their discretion if they are considering bringing their children.

The Citywide PTO is a group that brings parents and families from schools around Quincy together to discuss issues on a broader citywide level. All of their meetings are open to the public and they encourage all to attend.

Quincy Center Parking Changes Next Week

The city next week will implement the first phase of an interim parking plan necessary to make way for the construction of a new 700-space public parking garage, a new civic space and public park, and a 15-story mixed-use tower in the Hancock Parking Lot.

On Monday, April 2, the Ryan Parkway entrance to the Hancock Parking Lot – the entrance closest to the Quincy District Court – will be closed and all public access to the lot will be via the Revere Road side of the lot. During this phase of construction, 125 spaces of parking in the middle of the lot will remain open to the public as free two-hour parking. All monthly parking pass holders are being transferred to the Ross Parking Lot and other satellite lots.

During daytime business hours, paid hourly parking will also be available at the Ross Lot. A free valet service will be managing the lot to maximize available space.

Through a combination of new lots and maximizing existing parking, the city has made available more

House Fire Claims Life Of Quincy Woman

Cause Of 2-Alarm Blaze Ruled Accidental But Undetermined

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 54-year-old Quincy woman was pronounced dead at a Boston hospital after being rescued from a two-alarm house fire in the Montclair section of the city early Sunday morning.

Fire Chief Joseph Barron on Monday identified the victim as Cindy L. Sullivan, age 54.

Mrs. Sullivan was a long-time Quincy Credit Union employee and was most recently a real estate lending specialist there. Flags at Quincy Credit Union's branches were at half-staff Tuesday in her memory. (Mrs. Sullivan's obituary appears on Page 27 in this week's paper.)

A passerby called 9-1-1 to report the fire at 292 Harvard St. at 12:24 a.m. Sunday and the first firefighters arrived on scene two minutes later, Barron said.

"It was a terrible fire. The fire was extending out of windows on the first floor," he said.

Firefighters were able to quickly knock down the flames and located the victim on the first floor of the home, Barron said. They immediately began to administer CPR before EMTs with Brewster Ambulance took over and rushed her to Brigham & Women's Hospital, where she succumbed to her injuries.

"The firefighters did an

outstanding job, but unfortunately the outcome is we lost a resident," Barron said.

The residents living on the second floor – two brothers and one of their sons – were able to escape the fire along with their cat. Mrs. Sullivan's dog was also killed in the fire.

The Quincy Fire and Police Department, State Police and the fire marshal's office investigated the cause of the fatal fire Sunday. Barron said investigators were unable to determine its exact cause, but ruled it unintentional.

"We were looking at a couple causes, both accidental, but were not able to determine the cause because of the amount of destruction," he said. "It certainly was not intentional."

The Fire Department estimated the fire caused $150,000 in damage to the home.

LGBTQ Pride Event June 3

The Q Pride Committee will be hosting the city of Quincy's first ever LGBTQ Pride event, Q Pride, on the afternoon of Sunday, June 3.

A fundraiser for Q Pride will be held on April 4.

A free, family-friendly community event, Q Pride will be held at Pageant Field in Quincy from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday, June 3. As a city that is known for its bold and historical traditions, the Q Pride Committee encourages and invites all friends of Quincy to help carry on that legacy by participating in the first annual

Q Pride, a celebration of our families, our diversity, and our community. The Q Pride Committee is organizing food, entertainment, games and information tables for Q Pride. No rain date is scheduled.

"While the LGBTQ community of Quincy has always been welcome and a part of Boston Pride, many of us have wanted, for decades, an event of our own in our home city, Quincy. The time is now. We have a community that has become stronger by our struggles together. We are integral strands in the colorful and diverse tapestry of Quincy citizens. We are all one Quincy family. I am proud to have both my professional practice and my home in Quincy for over 20 years", Dr. James P. Hahn, Atrius Health, Quincy.

8-10 Year Sentence In 'Puppy Doe' Case

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Polish national accused of torturing a young dog and leaving her for dead in a Quincy playground more than four years ago was sentenced on Tuesday to up to a decade in state prison.

Superior Court Judge Beverly Cannone on Tuesday sentenced Radoslaw Czerkawski, age 37, to 8 to 10 years in prison one day after a jury convicted Czerkawski on all 12 counts of animal cruelty he was facing. He was also sentenced to two years probation.

Czerkawski's sentence in the animal cruelty case will begin after he has served out his sentences in two other cases.

The dog Czerkawski was convicted of abusing was found in a Whitwell Street playground on Aug. 31, 2013. The dog was beaten with a heavy object, stabbed in the eye, burned repeatedly, had her tongue split down the middle and her joints were dislocated. The dog's injuries were so severe she was euthanized.

The case quickly gained national attention and the dog was nicknamed "Puppy Doe" as Quincy police sought to identify her and her abuser. Czerkawski was arrested in October 2013.

Prosecutors alleged Czerkawski was living with an elderly Quincy woman in 2013 as her caretaker and responded to a Craigslist advertisement for a pit bull puppy named Kiya. Prosecutors say that was the same dog found in the Whitwell Street playground.

Czerkawski's attorney admitted his client purchased the dog but denied Czerkawski had tortured her, saying instead that the dog ran away and her injuries could have been caused accidentally.

Norfolk County DA Michael Morrissey credited the work of the Quincy Police Department in investigating the case. "The Quincy Police Department took this case very seriously from the onset," he said. "Law enforcement at every level needs to treat animal cruelty cases as the serious crimes that they are. The Quincy Police Department's work in this investigation laid the foundation for this just verdict. I also recognize that Assistant District Attorneys Greg Connor, Tracey Cusick and Stephanie Glennon did outstanding work presenting this case to the jury."

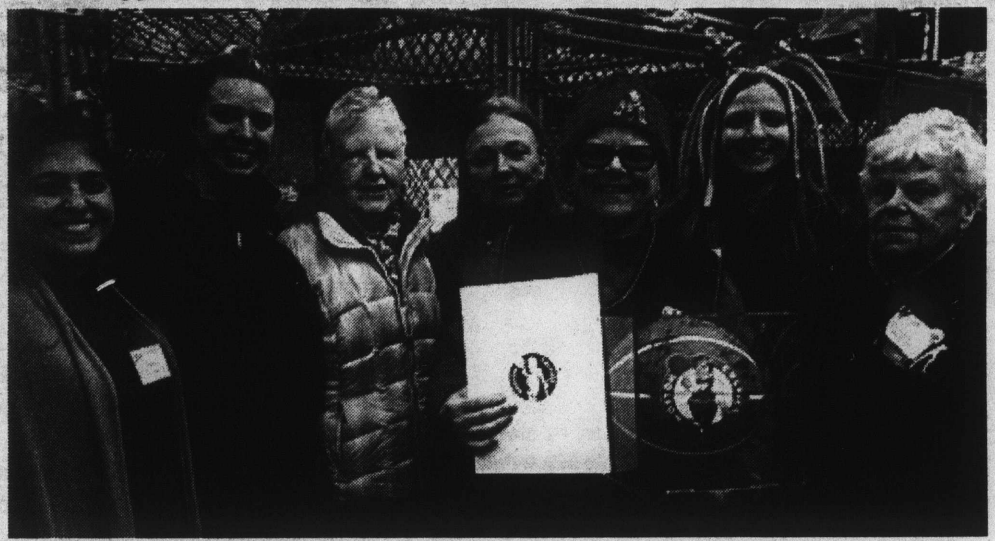

Morrissey also thanked the Quincy Animal Shelter and three veterinarians whose contributions he called "invaluable." Dr. Amanda Duffy, Dr. Martha Smith-Blackmore and Dr. Diana Rosenstein. "This was a rare case, perhaps the first time in Massachusetts, that the Commonwealth has successfully admitted canine DNA analysis as evidence."

Math professor Dr. John Rhodes of the University of Alaska (Fairbanks) offered his expert assistance in statistical analysis of the DNA evidence pro bono. Florida Anthropology professor Dr. Jonathan Bethard provided technical expertise in the case pro bono as well. After his arrest in the Puppy Doe case, Czerkawski was later charged with stealing $130,000 from the Quincy woman, who died inside her home the same day the dog was found in the playground. Czerkawski was convicted in Norfolk County Superior Court of all four charges he faced related to the theft of the $130,000 and was sentenced to 3-5 to five years in prison in 2015.

NATURE-INSPIRED JEWELRY

While jewelry with designs that are inspired by nature is as old as jewelry itself, there is currently renewed interest in jewelry with natural motifs. Whether found in pendants, bracelets, rings, or earrings, feathers, wings, leaves and other delicate objects capable of becoming airborne are always of interest, as are birds, butterflies, beetles, and dragonflies. Of course, flowers and seashells are always in fashion, as are good-luck objects such as turtles, frogs, and elephants. More contemporary natural designs make use of honeycombs, spider webs and tree branches as backgrounds to which beautiful colored gemstones are mounted and inset. Whatever it is that inspires you in nature, you can be sure to find it in a jeweled piece.

Our customers choose our fine jewelry because the pieces make a personal statement about them. The fashion conscious people who come to us at Rogers Jewelry do so because they don't want to look just like their friends - they want to express their own unique, individual style. You aren't just another shopper when you visit us; you're as special as the designs we create. We hope to see you soon at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center for fine jewelry sure to suit all tastes and all budgets. We also have an assortment of estate and pre-owned jewelry we'd like you to see. THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 15, 1783, the Continental Congress of the United States officially ratifies a preliminary peace treaty with Great Britain. Five months later, the Treaty of Paris was signed, bringing an end to the Revolutionary War.

- On April 9, 1859, a 23-year-old Missouri youth named Samuel Clemens receives his steamboat pilot's license. Clemens is better known by the pseudonym "Mark Twain," a boatman's call noting that the river depth was two fathoms (12 feet) and safe for travel.

- On April 14, 1912, the luxury liner RMS Titanic, on its maiden voyage, fails to divert its course from an iceberg, ruptures its hull and begins to sink. Of the estimated 2,224 passengers and crew aboard, some 1,500 were killed.

- On April 12, 1945, while on a vacation, President Franklin Roosevelt suffers a stroke and dies. FDR had been elected president four times and had served for more than 12 years, the only president ever to serve more than two terms.

- On April 11, 1951, President Harry Truman relieves the flamboyant and egotistical Gen. Douglas MacArthur of command of U.S. forces in Korea. The firing set off a brief uproar among the American public, and he returned home to a hero's welcome.

- On April 10, 1963, the atomic submarine USS Thresher sinks in the North Atlantic during deep-diving tests, killing the entire 129 man crew. An investigation found that a silver-brazed joint in the engine room had caused a short in critical electrical systems.

- On April 13, 1970, disaster strikes 200,000 miles from Earth when oxygen tank No. 2 blows up on Apollo 13. Commander James Lovell reported to mission control on Earth: "Houston, we've had a problem here." Using dramatic and untested maneuvers, Apollo 13 touched down safely in the Pacific Ocean four days later.

In Worst Of Times We Found The Best In People

As "A friend in need is a friend indeed," we will address you all as Dear Friends:

On March 2nd and 3rd Winter Storm "Riley" brought historic flooding and damage to our Post Island neighborhood and our home. It is miraculous that no one was injured or died and this is largely due to the courageous and professional actions of emergency responders who braved treacherous waters and evacuated so many in boats and front end loaders.

The recovery response by Mayor Koch and his entire City Team continues to be expert and compassionate- responding to the myriad storm related special needs of each individual and family. Thanks to each of you for your true public service in this emergency. Too numerous to name- you know who you are and how much and how many you have helped.

In the worst of times, we found the best in and of people. Beloved family and friends stepped in to help in every imaginable way. As always our wonderful neighbors reached out to help one another in countless acts of kindness, support and encouragement. Though painfully damaged, Post Island survives and will thrive. Our thoughts and hopes go out to neighbors in Houghs Neck, Germantown, Wollaston and Squantum who were likewise effected by the storm.

Of special note were the 40 Quincy Life Community Church volunteers on Saturday, March 10 and the 30 members of Curry College Men's Lacrosse Team on Sunday, March 11 - a small army of kind and strong, men and women, came to our neighborhood and accomplished a monumental amount of debris removal in only 3 hours each day. We will always remember their kindness.

The breadth of community spirit and generosity was demonstrated by the Flood Fundraiser held at Alba Restaurant March 20th as city and local officials, neighbors effected by the flooding and those just wanting to help the recovery effort all came together for great food, camaraderie, information sharing and even laughter- a wonderful morale booster and beginning to the long term recovery.

We have been surrounded by sea water many times over the years, but this was the first time in our 68 years living hereabouts that we or any of our family were flooded into the first floor of our homes. Climate change, hastened by human activity, and sea level rise are facts now literally at our front doors.

The destructive combinations of astronomical high tides (the three highest tides on record since 1927 have occurred in this January and March), high nor'easter winds, and massive tidal surges are becoming more frequent and fierce. Governor Baker stood in the midst of our ravaged neighborhood on March 11 and spoke of his commitment to "coastal resiliency" and Senator Warren visited March 17 and pledged her commitment for federal aid for those not covered by insurance and for funding to help elevate homes where necessary to prevent further loss.

Individual homeowners still need City guidance and support to rebuild their homes in flood proof manner. We applaud the long overdue and proposed seawall replacements coming in 2019 and urge that these be built as high as possible to protect our vulnerable areas for as long as possible. State and national government must realize these promises.

"Riley" was terrifying and a warning. The response of our neighbors and great City is a reminder of the goodness of people and the challenges ahead.

Sheriff Bellotti Creates New Programs To Address Issues Facing Younger Inmates

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti has instituted a roster of programs designed to address issues contributing to an increase in young people being incarcerated at the Norfolk County Jail.

"One of the results of the opioid epidemic in recent years has been a surge in young adult inmates between the ages of 18 and 25," Sheriff Bellotti said. "We have identified a special set of issues they tend to share. As a result, we have adopted a holistic approach, including new occupational and nutritional health programs in addition to the more traditional substance use treatment tracks and high school graduation equivalency classes. The goal is to stop the cycle of crime while these people are still young."

Specifically, the Norfolk Sheriff's Office has implemented young offender computer programming, young offender financial literacy and vocational safety certification in addition to the already-existing job readiness classes and instruction in carpet cleaning, horticulture, culinary arts and custodial management.

All are industry-recognized certification courses.

Sheriff Bellotti also has established a partnership with the New England Wildlife Center in Weymouth. Specially selected inmates are taken to the center each day over the course of six weeks. Under close supervision by the center staff, they learn and perform essential tasks involving the medical treatment and care of animals at the center.

"This program gives these young men valuable hands-on experience and job skills that are transferable to pet stores and veterinarian offices," Sheriff Bellotti said. "Beyond that, the participants really seem to become engaged in learning and working in an extremely positive environment. It's like a light switch being turned on in their heads."

The educational and job-training programs are combined with enhanced medical treatments including the use of the drug Vivitrol to block the euphoric effects of opioids.

"Every person we save makes this programming a success," Bellotti said. "We simply cannot give up on these young people."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1908 REAL PHOTO postcard shows a group of employees of the Boston Gear Works in Norfolk Downs on their way to an outing at the old Rocky Point Amusement Park in Warwick, R.I. Connections between the various local street railway companies along the way allowed groups like this to go on one-day excursions without changing cars. Open sided trolleys like the one shown here were widely used in the summer months.

But, it still must have been pretty warm inside the car if you were wearing a jacket, necktie and hat as these fellows were. This picture was taken from the west side of Hancock Street near Hayward Street. The barely visible three-decker on the left is now the site of the North Quincy Post Office. ### Classification Plan Up To Council

The fate of Mayor Francis X. McCauley's classification plan is now in the hands of the city council.

Business leaders who appeared at the council's public hearing looked on it as a plan of moderation.

And there was no actual protest from homeowners.

McCauley urged the City Council to act swiftly on his plan, which would give residential property a $21.95 tax rate and commercial and industrial property a rate of $32.50.

About 60 interested property owners — mostly business — who attended, heard the Mayor explain in considerable detail his proposal which some city officials and property owners are calling a middle of the road approach or moderate approach, towards a fair and equitable rate.

There was no opposition expressed by homeowners.

The City Council has the final word as to what the classification would be. (Editor's Note: The City Council unanimously adopted Mayor McCauley's plan.)

CHARTER CHANGE PETITION IN 3rd READING

The city home rule petition to call a special election to fill the Ward One Council seat is still in its third reading in the House of Representatives.

With assistance from Senator Paul Harold, the petition won Senate approval last week and was sent to the House for further action.

Representatives Thomas Brownell and Michael Morrissey both indicated they will follow the bill through various stages of enactment and are hopeful that an election will be held as soon as possible.

Representative Robert Cerasoli, who initially said he would oppose this bill in the House, said that he would not take any action to defeat the bill.

O'CONNELL BROTHERS PLAN VIETNAM VETERANS MEMORIAL

Peter and Williams O'Connell, partners in O.B.C., Inc, and developers of Marina Bay, believe that Quincy veterans who served in the Vietnam War deserve permanent recognition, which has been given to the fighting men of other wars.

With the help of other community members, the O'Connell brothers will be making this thought a reality. They have organized the dedication of a memorial scheduled to be held Sept. 5 on the historic sight of Marina Bay.

"I think it is a great idea," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "The O'Connell's should be commended. They have always taken time out to do something for the city in which they were born and raised and we appreciate that."

School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon said the memorial is an appropriate and beautiful gesture on the part of the O'Connell brothers.

Advisory Committee members included former Mayor Walter J. Hannon and former POW Capt. Richard Stratton of the United States Navy.

Bicycle Traffic Skills Class April 7-8

The Mayor's Bicycle Commission and QuincyCycles, in collaboration with MassBike, are bringing a League of American Bicyclists' Traffic Skills 101 class to Quincy on April 7-8.

The class will be held at the Quincy Recreation Department, 1 Merrymount Parkway from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. both days: Saturday, April 7, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for an indoor session, and Sunday, April 8, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for an outdoor session on the bike.

The League of American Bicyclists' Smart Cycling program is designed to develop your knowledge and expertise in the craft and science of bicycling — the ability to use a bicycle with confidence and competence for pleasure, utility and sport under various highway, climate, terrain, and traffic conditions. The bicycling education program was started in 1974, and continues to be the only nationally recognized cycling education program with trained and certified instructors.

Traffic Skills 101 is the foundation of the program. It provides instruction and guidance in the basic principles of vehicular bicycling. Bicyclists have more fun when they ride with skill and confidence. This course combines classroom discussion and parking lot activities with on-road practice of the principles of vehicular bicycling. The instructor for this course is certified by the League of American Bicyclists and has years of experience and training.

Registration fee is $50 for MassBike members and $60 for non-members. For more information and to register, visit massbike.org/ts101quincy.

'Falling Asleep' Thoughts

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

I think a lot of us are sleep deprived. No matter who I talk with, the subject will come up.

Invariably, they will complain about being tired all the time, and of waking up during the night and then having trouble falling back to sleep.

Sometimes we fall asleep too early while watching television, and then wake up a couple of hours after, and then not being able to go back to sleep. By the time we do get back, it's almost time to get up!

Sound familiar? I wrote a little poem about sleep and since I am such a romantic, I fashioned it after an old love song called "I fall in love too easily." I changed the word "love" to "sleep."

"I fall asleep too easily. I fall asleep too fast. I fall asleep so terribly fast that sleep can never last.

"My mind should be well schooled, cause I've been fooled in the past, but still I fall asleep too easily. I fall asleep too fast!"

I don't know if there is a solution, except to try to stay up a little later, and then after a few hours it's at least 5 a.m. instead of 1 a.m. Whatever works for you!

NQ Baseball/Sully Scholarship Meat Raffle Fundraiser March 31

The fifth annual North Quincy Baseball/Sully Scholarship Meat Raffle fundraiser will be held Saturday, March 31 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Chantey at Marina Bay.

Quincy Entrepreneur Releases New Book: Superconnector

By ERIC BRAUN

Entrepreneur, writer, community builder and co-founder of South Shore Innovation.

"Networking as we know it, as we have been taught it, is dead," begins Superconnector, the new book on building business relations. Networking has been around in business since the invention of clams as a currency.

Today, in the age of cryptocurrencies (like bitcoin, ethereum and dogecoin), a hodge-podge gathering of somewhat random people just doesn't cut it. We know we need more, and we acknowledge we want more. In comes Superconnecting to the rescue!

Thursday, March 15, South Shore Innovation hosted a private party to launch the new book, Superconnector, by Quincy entrepreneur Ryan Paugh and his co-author, Scott Gerber. The event was sponsored by FoxRock Properties and catered by Suddenly Simple Events.

We curated the attendees and designed the event to be a learning opportunity with food and drink that would be conducive to superconnecting. I interviewed Ryan to help the attendees get a better understanding of superconnecting and provide for a learning opportunity.

"This book launch was an exciting moment for me, Scott, and The Community Company. I was glad to be able to share the night with my South Shore Innovation friends. There are so many smart and innovative people in Quincy. South Shore Innovation, and companies like FoxRock who are supporting their efforts, are leading the charge in bringing us together, showcasing our businesses, and getting us taken seriously in the greater Boston community."

Superconnecting is not new, but Ryan and Scott compiled some valuable concepts together with real life stories for a fresh view on how to make better trusted connections in business. This insight is more relevant today than every in a world where most of us get sucked into the virtual social network void and often lose sight of how to make true connections.

According to the authors, research shows there could be more than 400 million people worldwide who are addicted to social media. Superconnecting can turn our virtual and live social interactions into more positive and productive experiences rather than wasted time.

In a nutshell, superconnecting is about using techniques to make people want to be with you and want to help you meet others and meet your goals. It's about creating trusted relationships that are mutually beneficial. Typical networking often does the opposite and creates alienation or, at least, self-centeredness.

To achieve the positive outcomes of superconnecting, there are three main points: 1) asking questions, 2) helping others, and 3) avoiding the appearance of being a stalker.

By asking the people you are talking to about themselves, you show them you care about them and you learn valuable information about what they like, what they do and how they think. Networkers, on the other hand, often hijack a conversation and start selling at the other person. Nothing will create a wall and drive someone away faster than this.

In your communications, however, keep true to who you are. Authenticity creates trust which is a key component of building any strong relationship.

As Ryan puts it, "Now more than ever, it's important to be yourself in business. Showcase your vulnerabilities, have less surface-level conversations, and let people know what makes you special. You can be your weird, wonderful self and be uber successful. With all of the phonies and hucksters out there crowding the room, it will be seen as a breath of fresh air."

Once you've starting asking about the other person, they will inevitably ask about you in many cases, and voila, you have a productive two-way conversation. Even if they don't ask about you, you learn about them, what they care about and how they think, which allows you to think about how you can help them with your skills, experience or products and services.

By knowing more about them, you will know better how to get them interested in what you have to offer than you ever could have guessed.

Ryan and Scott tell us, "Connecting is about finding out what the other person needs and how you can help." Make sure to make it all about others, not about you.

No one likes a stalker. It's creepy and creates more tension that trust. If you think you need to get at the top dog in a company or organization, going directly to them often backfires. They're often too busy and a nervous first impression can make you feel like a star-struck stalker.

Alternatively, finding someone in their circle of influence -- an assistance or colleague -- could be less intimidating and the start of an easier conversation. If you can connect with them using the first two points, there's a good chance they will help you meet the person you had hoped to meet.

In the book, John Ruhlin, author of Giftology, recalls an early mentor telling him, "If you do something for the inner circle, everything else in business seems to take care of itself."

In our world today, where we feel like we have too little time to get things done, we often rush into a connection too quickly and end up destroying our chances for making it a valuable connection. Learning to be a superconnector can help change that.

But don't take my word for it, read the book and uncover the details and stories that helped other entrepreneurs, including Ryan and Scott, grow their companies. It will be well worth your time.

Superconnector can be found at Amazon.com, Barnes and Nobles, iBooks and many local bookstores.

Laurie Graf, Kristine Lilly To Receive Woodward School Honor

Women Of Distinction Ceremony At Granite Links Golf Club April 3

The Woodward School in Quincy will honor the achievements of two women at its 12th annual Women of Distinction Awards Ceremony Tuesday, April 3 at the Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

This year's honorees are Laurie Graf, a Woodward alumna and owner of CenterStage Dance Studio in Quincy, and U.S. Women's Soccer Olympian, Kristine Lilly. Graf and Lilly will be recognized for their extraordinary accomplishments and contributions to community as well as serving as role models for Woodward's students.

Born and raised in Quincy, Laurie Graf is the founder of Center Stage Performing Arts Studio in Quincy, a studio serving over 200 students throughout the South Shore. Graf graduated from The Woodward School in 1991 and received a B.A. in psychology from Stonehill College in Easton, and a Master of Arts in counseling psychology from Lesley University in Cambridge.

She has many accomplishments including serving on the Woodward Board of Trustees, working as a school counselor, and serving as the Dean of Students. In addition to raising three children (one of whom also attended Woodward) with her husband Paul, Laurie volunteers for many local schools and organizations including her children's school, Adams Montessori, where she served on the Board of Trustees.

KRISTINE LILLY

Laurie credits two things with her success at Center Stage: the love and support of her family, and the strong foundation Woodward provided her in her formative years.

Kristine Lilly's accomplishments on the soccer pitch are almost too numerous to list. The New England native is a two-time World Cup champion, two-time Olympic Gold Medalist, the fourth all-time leading scorer in world history, all-time leader in minutes played and has appeared in more international soccer matches than any person in world history - male or female.

A center-midfielder, Lilly was one of the stars of the 1999 U.S. World Cup team that beat China in the final before an international TV audience and more than 90,000 fans in attendance - the largest crowd for a women's sports event in world history and the largest TV crowd for a soccer game, men's or women's, in United States history.

Off the field, Lilly has fought for more equitable pay for female athletes, while supporting Boston Children's Hospital, the Special Olympics and Athletes for Hope, with a special focus on organizations that help young female athletes, including the Mia Hamm Foundation, the Julie Foudy Leadership Foundation and the Women's Sports Foundation.

'The Race To The South Pole' At Historical Society April 11

Guest speaker Robert Begin will present a program entitled "Scott, Amundsen and Shackleton: The Race to the Pole" at the Quincy Historical Society on Wednesday, April 11 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The program, originally scheduled for March 21, was postponed to April 11 due to inclement weather.

Begin will speak on the race of the dawn of the 20th century to be first to reach the South Pole.

In the early 1900s, Antarctica, as the major uninhabited, unexplored region of the world, attracted international interest and rivalry. England, as the great imperial power, felt it her duty to explore the continent and reach the Pole. Other countries also sought the prestige of discovery.

At the heart of the story of Antarctic exploration are three heroic figures with contrasting personalities and contrasting fates. An obscure young Royal Navy officer, Robert Falcon Scott, was chosen to lead England's National Antarctic Expedition. Scott's death would result in a heroic status as "a true and gallant Englishman." Roald Amundsen, a Norwegian, would be the first to reach the Pole but he would never receive the fame and glory he felt he deserved. Ernest Shackleton, another English explorer, would fail in his expedition, but his courage and leadership skills would allow him to overcome unprecedented hardships and safely bring all of his men home.

Begin has previously presented several programs at the Historical Society on the USS Quincy, HMS Bounty, John Paul Jones, and the Barbary Pirates. Everyone is welcome. There is no charge for admission.

WHAT'S COOKING

Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Panko Bread Crumb Spinach-Stuffed Red Bell Peppers

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for red bell peppers stuffed with panko bread crumbs and spinach. This recipe contains one of my favorite kinds of stuffing and that is a bread stuffing.

I did not cook the spinach but seasoned it with salt, pepper and garlic powder and also topped each pepper with a couple of drops of olive oil. I also cut the peppers in halves but, if you prefer, you can stuff them whole.

RECIPE

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and grease a casserole dish

2 red bell peppers, medium sized, cut in half

1 and 1/2 cups of tomato sauce
1 cup of panko bread crumbs (other favorite bread crumbs can be used)
1 slice of bread, diced

1 cup of fresh spinach
1/2 teaspoon of basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon of garlic powder
1/2 cup of grated cheese - You can use either Romano or parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper to taste

First cut the peppers in half, cleaning out the seeds and set aside.

In a casserole dish put 1/4 cup of water and a couple of tablespoons of tomato sauce and set aside. In a bowl place bread crumbs, spinach, 1 cup of tomato sauce (one-half cup of sauce will be for topping.)

Add the diced bread, basil, salt, pepper and garlic powder, mix until well blended and moist.

Fill the peppers to the top with the stuffing and sprinkle with the remainder of tomato sauce and then top with the grated cheese and a couple of drops of olive oil on top of each one.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes until cheese is melted and peppers are tender.

Vegan Chocolate Cake

By SUSIE

My niece Olivia (who is a health coach like myself) loves to make healthy food for herself and her family.

Here is a recipe for chocolate cake that is gluten free and vegan.

OLIVIA'S CHOCOLATE CAKE
(gluten free and vegan)

Preheat oven to 350

1 cup almond flour
1/4 cup coconut flour
1/4 baking powder
dash sea salt
1/2 cup maple syrup

1/2 cup ghee or butter
4 eggs
Chocolate chunks (I guesstimate that)

Mix all ingredients together well then fold in chocolate chunks.

Bake at 350 for 30 - 40 minutes. Let cool.

FROSTING( OPTIONAL)

1 package of choco chunks
1/4 cup ghee or butter
1 tablespoon honey or maple syrup
I like maple syrup better it's more mild than honey with the chocolate.

'Who is My Neighbor?' Multifaith Conversations Continue In April

Because of the interest generated in its first series of conversations, Missions and Social Justice Committee of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, will host a second, "Who is my Neighbor?" series.

Each session will feature a presentation by a leader from a different faith community, a time for discussion, and a time for refreshments and fellowship.

In the first series, the church hosted leaders from the Jewish, Muslim and Roman Catholic traditions.

Carol Johnston, who chairs the Missions and Social Justice Committee of the church, said, "We are excited to continue on with a new group of faith leaders to further foster understanding about the different religious groups that make up the city."

All sessions will start at 7 p.m.

Dates and speakers are:
• Wednesday, April 4, Jack Richardson, a member of the church and a student of Buddhism.

• Wednesday, April 11, Rick Doane, Executive Director of Interfaith Social Services and a lay leader in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

• Wednesday, April 19, Pradipt Sharma, a Hindu priest

• Wednesday, April 26, Rev. Rebecca Froom, minister of United First Parish Church (the Church of the Presidents) Unitarian Universalist, in Quincy.

The series will be featured in a segment of the television show, "Currently in Quincy" on Friday, April 6th at 11:30 a.m., on Quincy Access TV.

The sessions will take place in the Social Hall of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington Street, Quincy Point, located on the lower level. Handicap access and parking are at the Abbey Road entrance.

Contact the church by calling 617-773-6424 or email office@quincypoint-cong.org.

Senior Men's Luncheon At Kennedy Center

The Quincy Council on Aging will host a lunch for men over the age of 60 on Wednesday, April 4th at noon at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

Men can enjoy lunch, meet new friends from the community and share ideas and interests. Menu is a Chinese food buffet.

Guest speaker is Richard Koch Jr., former Quincy city councillor and retired Brewster Police Chief.

This is a free event. Tickets are required and can be picked up at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum Street, Quincy.

Cow, Soy Or Almond: Which Milk Is Best For You?

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES

BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

There's a mind boggling array of milk choices in the dairy section of any supermarket that you may frequent.

Choosing the type that is right for you may be a tedious and time consuming task. Here are some helpful tips to assist you in deciding which milk to buy for yourself and your family.

Cow's Milk

Cow's milk is healthy, but if you're lactose intolerant you may want to select one of the non-dairy alternatives. Cow's milk is a treasure of nutrients because it contains the vitamins and minerals many Americans lack in their diet, like calcium, vitamin D and potassium. Calcium and vitamin D are essential because they work collectively to support strong bones, especially as you age, while potassium helps maintain a healthy blood pressure.

Additionally one cup of cow's milk contains 8 grams of protein, something you may want to add to your breakfast. Not only does it fill you up, but it also builds muscle, which is vital to staying lean. Though critics say it's unnatural for humans to drink milk from another species, our bodies have evolved to digest cow's milk, unless you're lactose intolerant.

Cow's milk is still the most beneficial option in many cases, particularly for infants and toddlers who need the calories, protein, fat and calcium for proper growth and development.

So if you're drinking cow's milk which should you choose?

• Skim: When you're trying to lose weight skim milk is the best choice. At only 80 calories per cup, fat-free versions of milk pack nearly the same amount of calcium, vitamin D and potassium as low and full-fat versions of milk.

• Reduced or low-fat: When you need more flavor than skim milk, reduced and low-fat milk may be a good alternative. The 1 and 2% varieties offer about 100 and 120 calories, respectively, per cup. They also pack some saturated fat, 3 grams in a cup of 2%, or about 15% of the daily recommended amount.

If you prefer the taste of this type over skim and don't consume an enormous amount of red meat or cheese, then go ahead and choose higher-fat milk.

• Whole: This may be a good choice for the infrequent milk drinker. It contains 5 grams of saturated fat per cup, nearly a quarter of your daily limit, but if you're drinking one glass a day, it should not be a huge problem.

• Organic: If you're converting your baby from breast milk to cow's milk, this may be an option because it doesn't contain any added hormones. But studies show organic isn't necessary for any health-related reasons. Research shows it contains more heart-healthy omega 3 fatty acids compared to non-organic milk, which costs less. But if omega 3s are a concern, you're better off eating a piece of salmon for dinner.

If you're opting to ditch dairy altogether because of digestive woes or ethical reasons, consider these Non-Dairy Milk choices.

• Soy: Soy is most nutritionally similar to cow's milk. Per cup, it contains 110 calories and 8 grams of protein and fortified versions pack more calcium and vitamin D than cow's milk. Additionally, if you choose to feed your kids plant milk, dieticians recommend soy for its high amounts of nutrients children need to grow.

• Almond Milk: A low-calorie option, there is no doubt that almond milk is extremely popular, and it may have to do with the health benefits surrounding almonds. In addition, in taste tests, many people say they prefer almond milk to regular cow's milk.

Almond milk is made by soaking almonds in water, blending and straining, a process that leaves very little protein from the nut behind. Subsequently, drinking almond milk is not the same as eating a lot of nuts. Compared to an ounce of almonds (23 whole ones), which contains 6 grams of protein, a cup of almond milk only has one gram of protein, so you could be genuinely missing out.

Using unsweetened almond milk in a smoothie or bowl of cereal is a positive step if you're watching your calories, since one cup may be as low as 30 calories. But focus on getting other sources of calcium and vitamin D, like sardines, fortified juices and leafy green, to make up for what almond milk lacks.

• Rice Milk: If you have food allergies, you're less likely to have a reaction from rice milk than from soy or nut milks. Plus, the flavor is mild, which fits some people's preference. But similar to almond milk, it's low in protein with only 1 gram per cup. It's also higher in natural sugars and carbohydrates than other milks, and flavored varieties contain even more added sugar.

• Coconut Milk: Coconut milk has recently become very popular. Coconut milk comes from the white flesh of mature brown coconuts, which are the fruit of the coconut tree. Coconut milk should not be confused with coconut water, which is found naturally in immature green coconuts.

Unlike coconut water, the milk does not occur naturally in liquid form. The solid flesh is mixed with water to make coconut milk, which is about 50% water. By contrast, coconut water is about 94% water.

Coconut water contains much less fat and fewer nutrients than coconut milk. Coconut milk is a high-calorie food. About 93% of its calories come from fat, including saturated fats and one cup contains a whopping 552 calories and 57 grams of fat.

Almond milk, soy milk, rice milk and coconut milk may all offer lactose-free alternatives to cow's milk, but new research suggests that the dairy version remains the most nutritious option.

BID Hospital - Milton Now Offering Women 3-Dimensional Mammography

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton (BID-Milton) recently installed a new three-dimensional (3-D) mammography system and is now providing this state-of-the-art imaging technology which has been shown to increase breast cancer detection rates in women by up to 40 percent.

The hospital's new Hologic Genius® 3-D mammography system has been proven by numerous clinical studies to provide significant benefits compared to two-dimensional mammography. In addition to a 40 percent improvement in breast cancer detection rates, particularly in women with dense breast tissue, 3-D mammography also reduces "false positive" results and "call backs" for repeat mammograms by 20 percent.

The difference between traditional two-dimensional mammography and 3-D mammography lies in the number of images taken of the breasts and how they are displayed to radiologists interpreting the mammogram results. Two-dimensional mammography only takes images of the breasts from two angles. Because the images are compressed, suspicious areas can be hidden between layers of breast tissue, a problem in particular for women with dense breast tissue.

With 3-D mammography, multiple three-dimensional images are taken of the breast and displayed layer-by-layer. As a result, suspicious areas are less likely to be hidden by tissue above or below and are easier for the radiologist to identify.

"Woman may not notice a difference in how the 3-D exam is performed compared to the traditional two-dimensional exam but the benefits of this new technology are significant. 3-D mammography offers improved clarity and breast cancer detection," explained Brook Longmaid, MD, chief of radiology at BID-Milton and a member of Harvard Faculty Physicians at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. "This state-of-the-art system also offers patients greater peace of mind, which is invaluable."

The new 3-D mammography system is the latest addition to BID-Milton's growing Women's Health Program. Last fall, the hospital began offering, for the first time, minimally invasive robotic surgery for pelvic prolapse and certain cervical and endometrial cancers.

Annual mammogram appointments at BID-Milton may be made by calling (617) 313-1700.

To learn more about 3-D mammography at BID-Milton, go to www.bidmilton.org/3Dmammography.

CANCER SCREENING

During comprehensive twice-a-year dental check-ups, the dentist and hygienist not only perform a professional cleaning and health assessment of the patient's teeth and gums, but they also screen for signs of oral cancer. Also known as "mouth cancer," these types of cancers include cancers of the lips, tongue, cheeks, floor of the mouth, hard and soft palate, sinuses, and pharynx (throat). If not diagnosed and treated early, these cancers can be life-threatening. Because oral cancer rarely causes pain in its early stages, it is usually only detected by dental professionals, who can spot abnormal cell growth that looks like flat patches. A sore in the mouth that does not heal is the most common symptom of oral cancer.

Your total health is always our concern. That's why all new patient exams are so thorough, so we can establish a baseline against which we can measure your future oral profile and progress. And regular professional checkups make it possible to watch for developing concerns and address them while they are still small, before they can turn into something more serious. For an appointment for advanced, gentle dental care, please call us at 617 479-6220. Office hours at 44 Greenleaf Street are by appointment. To learn more about us, please visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Some oral cancers are not detected until they produce symptoms similar to those of a toothache.

Quincy Family On Zee TV Game Show

By KUMU GUPTA

On a past weekend I almost fell off my chair when I turned on Zee TV USA to watch a new game show, "America's Smartest Family," because the Bhagania family of Quincy was one of the families to compete in the debut episode of the 11-part series.

Doubly amazing was when the host asked the question, who is the Second President of the United States? The answer: John Adams, whose birthplace is Quincy.

Dr. Manish Bhagania moved to Quincy in 2016 with his wife, Mina, and twin 8-year-olds, Gauraang and Chitraang, from Manipal, India, to pursue a career in oral and maxillofacial surgery.

Upon speaking to Dr. Bhagania about his experience, here are a few things he shared:

Dr. Bhagania chose Quincy due to its history and proximity to downtown Boston where his work would be.

Dr. Bhagania found out about the game show from a Zee TV promo soliciting participants from across America. He has been very involved with quiz shows since college days at Manipal University and even after, when he was professor there for nine years. Dr. Bhagania's family found it very exciting and thrilling to be on TV since it was their first time ever to be on television.

Dr. Bhagania said the family found the toughest question to be one on trigonometry. If they win, they will visit back home to India and take a tour around Europe.

We wish the Bhagania family Best of Luck in moving through all the rounds and winning the grand $10,000 prize to become America's Smartest Family.

Launched in 1998, Zee TV USA was the first Hindi general entertainment channel in the U.S. Zee TV now has 43 networks and a full-time dedicated workforce across five different locations all across North America and the Caribbean. Zee TV was the first Hindi network to be measured by Nielson in the U.S., and is available to more than 86 million American households an all major providers.

Lifeguard Training Course

The City of Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool during April School Vacation.

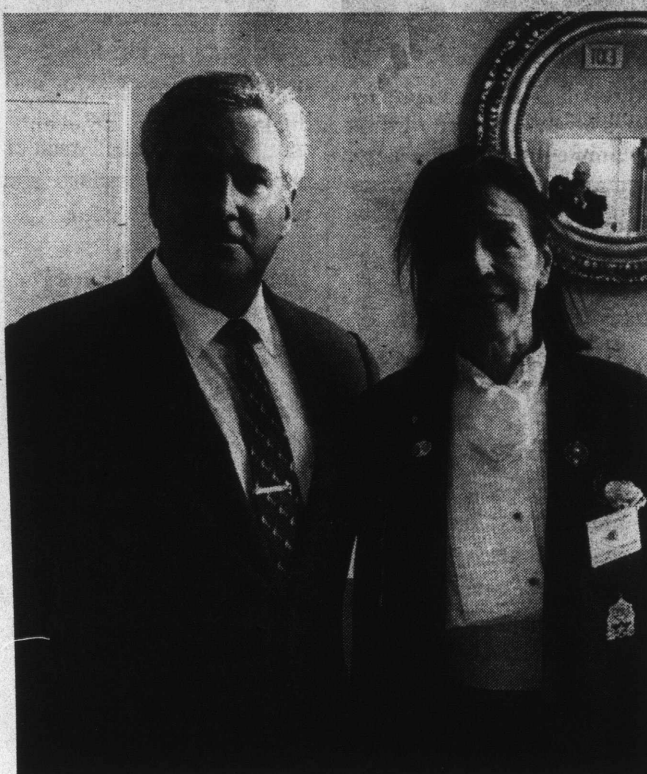

The course is open to participants who are at least 15 years of age and capable of passing a pre-requisite water skills test. The pre-requisite swim test will be given to all candidates on Friday, April 13 at 7 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Class will be held on Tuesday, April 17th through Friday, April 20th from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool. Registration for the course is limited and can be done online at QuincyRec.com, by phone at (617) 376-1394, or in person at the Quincy Recreation office, One Merrymount Parkway, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The cost of the program is $150, which includes all books, supplies, and Red Cross fees.

Upon successful completion of the course, an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Certificate, CPR for the Professional Rescuer and First Aid Skills will be issued.

For more information call 617-376-1394.

Social Security Matters Restricted Application For Divorced Spouse

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I've recently started reading your column on Social Security and am learning a lot! My particular question is this: I was born in November 1953 so my full retirement age is 66, which is coming up faster than I would have ever imagined. I am divorced but was married for 25 years before the split, and I have not remarried.

I've heard that because I was born before 1954 I can still claim my ex's Social Security as a spousal benefit when I reach my full retirement age and let my own benefit continue to grow, switching to it when I turn 70. Is that correct? Is it likely to change if Congress looks for ways to cut entitlements to make up for the tax cuts? And how do I find out what my ex-spouse's benefit amount is if we are no longer speaking?

Also, does your Social Security benefit amount continue to grow if you quit working but just don't take it? Or do you have to still be contributing to Social Security for it to continue to grow by that 8 percent per year I've seen you mention? Signed: Ex-Spouse

Dear Ex-Spouse: Yes, because you were born before January 2, 1954, you are "grandfathered" into something called the "restricted application for spousal benefits only." That means that if your ex-spouse is collecting his Social Security when you reach your full retirement age (FRA), you may file the restricted application, collect spousal benefits equal to 1/2 of the amount he is/was entitled to at his full retirement age, and allow your own benefit amount to grow until you reach age 70 (you don't actually need to wait until you are 70 to claim on your own record; you can claim at any time between your FRA and age 70).

By delaying your own retirement claim you will earn delayed retirement credits at a rate of 2/3rd of 1% per month for each month you delay (that comes out to 8% per year). Social Security will require that you visit their office to find out what your ex-spouse's current benefit amount is, and they will ask you to provide his Social Security number (otherwise you'll need to provide his date and place of birth and his parents' names). If you meet any reluctance to provide you with his benefit amount when you visit, be insistent and ask to speak to a supervisor; it's your right to get that information to help with your retirement planning. You should also have a copy of both your marriage certificate and divorce decree available when you file the restricted application.

You don't need to worry about Congress changing your option to file a restricted application; it was already changed by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 to eliminate the "restricted application for spousal benefits" for anyone born after January 1, 1954. If you wish to go ahead with the restricted application once you have reached your full retirement age of 66, you can apply online starting with the regular benefit application process, but when you see the question Do you want to start your benefits now, answer NO. You will then see a drop-down menu from which you can select November 2018 as your benefit start date. After that when you see the question If you are eligible for both retirement and spousal benefits, do you want to delay receipt of retirement benefits, answer YES. Then on the last screen enter I wish to exclude retirement benefits from the scope of this application. I am filing a restricted application for spousal benefits. I am not applying for retirement benefits on my own work record. I want to earn delayed retirement credits. Since Social Security recommends you apply for benefits 3 months before you wish them to start, you may file your restricted application in September but be sure to specify November as the month you wish your spousal benefits to begin.

And regarding your last question, yes, your Social Security retirement benefit amount continues to grow, even if you quit working and are no longer paying FICA taxes from your earnings. You don't need to continue contributing to Social Security to earn delayed retirement credits.

$75K Raised For Storm Relief; QCAP To Disburse Funds

event raised.

Quincy Community Action Programs is in charge of disbursing the money raised to help those impacted by the March 2 nor'easter.

"Quincy Community Action will be disbursing it. Their organization is set up with fuel assistance, food assistance, so they have a pretty good structure on how to do these things," Koch said.

"I don't want government involved in it. I don't want to get involved in transfers. I don't want to get involved in mixing up with the general fund. This is a specific purpose. We've got great organizations in the city that can assistance us."

The Quincy Storm Relief Fund is for residents who lost items such as furniture, clothing and food in the March 2 nor'easter. The city is also working with NeighborWorks to provide temporary housing and interest-free loans of up to $25,000 to those displaced from owner-occupied homes.

"I requested an emergency appropriation from the Affordable Housing Trust Committee. They've allowed for up to $1 million to assist with temporary interim housing, which we've been doing. We've been helping some people with apartments [and] initially hotels," Koch said.

"Subsequent to that... there are going to be free-interest loans of up to $25,000 per house. This is owner-occupied houses; this isn't income properties with apartments. It has to be owner-occupied. That loan then only gets paid back, without interest, at the time that property is sold so there is no burden on that individual to repay it."

"That's somebody that maybe had insurance but not flood insurance, or their deductible was so high - it's a $5,000 or $10,000 deductible and they don't have the money," Koch added.

"It's to help with the actual physical improvements to the home. Some may be raising the boiler and everything out of the basement... others it could be helping them raising the house up a few feet. That program is ongoing and NeighborWorks has been meeting directly with individual families on that."

The city held a community meeting at the Atherton Hough School earlier this month for residents impacted by the March 2 storm. More than 150 applications for assistance were filed at that meeting, Koch said. QCAP and NeighborWorks will be vetting those applications, and have also begun outreach to others impacted by the storm that might be reluctant to seek assistance.

Koch estimated the March 2 storm caused between $10 and $11 million in damage to city infrastructure, namely seawalls, tide gates, streets and sidewalks.

The city was able to start emergency repairs to its coastal infrastructure - funded by a $2.9 million appropriation from the sewer and drain rehabilitation fund - earlier this month. Koch hoped to start road and sidewalk work this week with temperatures in the 40s and 50s after several weeks of colder temperatures and snowstorms.

Koch said the emergency repairs are needed where roads and sidewalks were undermined, causing them to buckle and heave. The city will have to completely replace those damaged sections.

"They got undermined," he said. "Once a road gets undermined, it's all done."

The city's spending on snow and ice removal this winter has surpassed $3 million, Koch said, and could reach $3.4 million or more; the current fiscal year's budget had $2.4 million set aside for snow and ice removal.

"We're probably going to be... a good million in deficit - probably a little more than that," the mayor said.

Koch said the city would likely use free cash to pay off the deficit later this year. The city is also allowed under state law to apply the deficit directly to next year's tax levy.

In response to the March 2 storm and a nor'easter on Jan. 4 - which also caused coastal flooding while leaving the city under up to 18 inches of snow - Koch has said he will propose the creation of a new full-time director of emergency management when he introduces his budget for the new fiscal year later this spring. Presently, the city's fire chief is also tasked with overseeing emergency management.

"Police and fire are terrific - they are good at what they do - but I think I need someone that looks at all of it and they are working on it year-round so that everything is ready to go, set up, when the time comes," Koch said.

Among other duties, Koch said the emergency management director could be tasked with putting together a list of volunteers in the community who could staff shelters in times of need. The mayor also suggested the new director could help establish a permanent shelter at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall by renting a room there and stocking it with emergency supplies and a generator.

"Those are the kind of things we're looking at," Koch said.

The emergency management director would report directly to the mayor, Koch said. The city's budget currently includes an emergency management office whose one employee is a secretary that now works with the Fire Department. The secretary would be re-assigned to the emergency management director if the position were created.

Koch said he has yet to determine the salary for the new director.

In addition, Koch said city officials would work with the MWRA to discuss creating a permanent path along The Dike - the high-level sewer main that carries sewage from 21 communities to Nut Island for screening. Pedestrians used The Dike to travel to and from Houghs Neck after streets become impassable because of flooding on March 2, and Koch wants to explore possibly running all-terrain vehicles along the top of the structure in the future so vehicles don't have to ford flooded roads.

"Could we put a permanent path on it and maybe run ATVs back and forth shuttling people rather than shuttle people through the deep water?" Koch said. "What level can we bring it to without any possible structural effect to The Dike itself?"

On Saturday, March 17, at approximately 1 a.m., Officers Sean Crowley, Christopher Fish and A.J. Sweeney were assigned to the Hancock parking lot to assist patrons in leaving the area due to a history of fights and disorderly conduct at closing time of surrounding clubs and bars.

Officers on scene had already quelled a large disturbance after some patrons got into a shoving match as they were leaving the bars. Peace was restored without arrests and patrons were directed away from the congregating area.

As the last few patrons were leaving Kelly's Cellar night club, the officers heard a disturbance across the parking area behind the area of an establishment known as S6. Officer Crowley observed a male punch a female in the face followed by the male and female falling to the ground. The female then jumped up and straddled the male while punching him in the face in rapid fire mode.

During this time another fight broke out a few yards away between another female and a male, who were shoving each other. Officer Crowley yelled out, "Quincy Police" and ordered the straddling female to get off the male. The female continued inflicting the punches on the male, refusing to comply. The officers then separated the combatants by pulling the female off the male.

The male quickly got up and lunged at Officer Crowley, punching the officer in the chest with a closed fist. The male was brought to the ground (again) with the assistance of Officers Fish and Sweeney. The male, while on the ground, kicked Officer Crowley in the knee. The male was brought to a standing position and instructed that he was under arrest. He was told to put his hands behind his back, but instead, he started resisting the Officers attempts to get his hands behind his back. The male then curled his hands into his torso's fetal position.

As the officers tried to pry the male's arms free, the male started swinging his fist wildly in the air striking Officer Fish in the chest area with a hammer strike. The officers were able to gain control of the male and handcuff him. During this time, the other combatants ceased fighting to watch the arrest of the male. The female in the initial assault was nowhere to be found.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

The male, a 27-year-old Quincy resident, highly intoxicated, was transported to the station for booking. Once at the station, the male kept repeating, "I'm really sorry guys." He was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (to wit: shod foot), assault and battery on a police officer (two counts) and knowingly resisting arrest.

Nice Work!

SAFETY STEPS TO TAKE REGARDING ENERGY COMPANY SOLICITORS:

With the weather improving, you can expect to see an increase in door to door solicitations.

Although there are some good deals from alternate energy companies, keep in mind anyone may come to your door soliciting any product, or pretend to be selling something. There are some legitimate offers but more often than not you can get a better deal by researching the offer online. I have heard so many stories of scams from door to door sales that range from being scammed out of money to being robbed and assaulted. The Quincy Police Department has taken safeguards to prevent scammers from coming to your door and offer the following recommendations;

1. Never open the door to strangers. Talk through the door. Don't leave yourself vulnerable. Once you open the door, a sudden push and you are inside and out of sight with the assailant.

2. Even if it sounds legitimate, give QPD a call so we can see if they are registered with us and a background investigation was done on each solicitor. If you elect not to open the door or remain silent, again give QPD a call and let us check him/her out to protect your neighbors.

3. Many of the complaints with the energy offer solicitations relate to high pressure tactics, demanding to see your energy bill or belittling you for not "saving money."

Rudeness and forcefulness are the top complaints.

4. Never let any solicitor in your house. A common request is to use your bathroom. A quick check of your medicine cabinet for medications or a quick step into your bedroom, where your jewelry box may be, can result in losses.

5. Pressure from the solicitor may be for you to show your utility bill so that they can see if they can save you money. Don't do this! He/she may write down your account number and just switch you. Only by looking closely on you current utility bill will you know whether you have been switched.

6. Each Solicitor in Quincy is required to have a photo ID issued by the city as proof that they have been checked out. A photo ID from their company is not the same thing.

7. If you choose to do business with the various solicitors, tell them to come back later after you confer with a friend, which will allow you to make a clear cut decision on the offer. Check online by googling the name of the company with the word "scam" and a second time with "reviews" after it to see what others say.

8. Skip the sales pitch. Go to <https://www.chooseenergy.com/massachusetts/> and you can get the best prices.

9. If in doubt, don't do anything. Give me a call and I'll help you.

Guests are welcome to park in the Harpoon lots after 5 p.m. Sunday, April 8. There is also a parking garage across the street. If arriving by public transportation, Harpoon is on the MBTA Silver line.

Nutley Steps Down As NQ Head Football Coach

By TOM JOYCE

The North Quincy High School football team will have a different leader this upcoming fall.

Red Raiders head coach Mark Nutley will not be returning to his post, a position he had held since 2013. Nutley, who started out as an assistant coach in the program in 2010, stepped down as head coach Monday.

"We had a fairly decent season and a nice win (over Quincy) on Thanksgiving," Nutley said of the 2017 season. "I felt like it was the right time to go, leaving some talent there for the next coach. I get an opportunity to spend more time with the family and have time to watch my boys growing up. They're getting involved in a lot of sports as they get older, and I want to be a part of that."

Last year, Nutley helped lead the Red Raiders to some success. They earned their first playoff bid in 25 years and had an entertaining 7-6 Thanksgiving Day win over Quincy last November where they stopped the Presidents in the red zone in the final minute of the contest. It was the second year in a row the Red Raiders defeated the Presidents on Turkey Day.

A 1993 Quincy High School graduate, Nutley said it was a special opportunity to be able to give back to a community he enjoyed while growing up.

"It was awesome," Nutley said. "Just being around the Quincy kids on either side of the town, it meant a lot. It was a community that was awesome to me. I love teaching there. It's a great place. I'm so thankful I had the opportunity to coach there."

Nutley will continue teaching at Point Webster Middle School, but the decision to step away from the Red Raiders football program gives him an opportunity to spend more time with his family. Specifically, he will be able to enjoy his own kids' athletic careers. He coaches them on the Boston Kings, a club lacrosse team, helps out in the Marshfield Youth Lacrosse program as well as in the town's flag football program.

"I'll be able to go to their games and be able to heckle their coaches like I got heckled sometimes," he joked. "I look forward to seeing them play. It should be a lot of fun."

At the high school level,

Nutley has over a decade of experience coaching lacrosse at North Quincy. He also served as the team's wrestling coach before the team disbanded prior to this past winter.

Although he is stepping away from the game for now, Nutley said he is not done with football forever. He said when his children are older, he sees himself getting back into coaching football once again.

Nutley also had a message for the school he coached at these past eight seasons.

"I want to thank North Quincy High," he said. "The kids are amazing, the administration was great. Everyone was on board to help build a special program. It was a great opportunity and a lot of fun. Whoever gets them, I wish them luck. They've got some good players coming back and it should be a good opportunity."

Now, both Quincy football teams will have new head coaches in the fall. Bill Reardon also stepped down from his position as the Presidents head coach earlier this month to spend more time with his family as well.

Morrisette Baseball Seeks State Tournament Volunteers

Morrisette Legion baseball team is looking for volunteers to work the 2018 Legion State tournament being held at Adams Field this summer.

O'Donnell Promotes Registry's Social Media

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds consumers about the various social media platforms available to them.

"A core mission here at the Registry of Deeds is to make important information readily available on a 24/7 basis," O'Donnell said. "After all, just because our doors close at the end of the business day doesn't mean the Registry has to stop working for you. For example, our website www.

norfolkdeeds.org lets people review scanned images of up to six million land documents back to 1793, as well as to learn about our latest consumer protection programs. I also want people to note that Registry information is available not just from using their workstations or laptops, but also from their smartphones or tablets."

O'Donnell also noted individuals can print out an application of the popular Homestead Act, a law which provides a homeowner with limited protection against the forced sale of their primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000, or sign-up on-line for its free Consumer Notification System. This program will alert a person anytime a land document has been recorded or amended against their name in Norfolk County.

Additionally, there is valuable county real estate information that can be researched and tracked based on the monthly and quarterly real estate statistical reports, such as the number of residential and commercial properties sold and average prices of property sold, and much, much more.

Other forms of social media utilized by the Registry of Deeds include Facebook, facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds, Twitter, twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds, and Instagram.

"The Registry has utilized Facebook and Twitter extensively to provide information to the public," O'Donnell said. "We have also begun to use Instagram which will capture the demographics of younger property owners and real estate professionals."

"We are optimistic that first-time homeowners will use these social media platforms. They can learn more about home ownership and other consumer initiatives like protecting themselves against Deed Scam rip-offs, along with other outreach services, including learning about Registry office hours

Quincy To Celebrate Community Development Week 2018

Events Feature Client Impact Stories, Partnerships That Leverage Funds Effectively

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director James J. Fatseas announce the City of Quincy will join other communities across the nation in celebrating "National Community Development Week" (CD Week) which begins on April 2nd.

This weeklong celebration provides the opportunity for Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) communities across the nation to showcase CDBG-funded projects and programs, and to educate residents, community groups, and legislators about the block grant programs administered by the city's Department of Planning and Community Development.

The CDBG program is a flexible program, overseen by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development's (HUD's) Office of Community Planning & Development, that provides communities, such as Quincy, with resources to address a wide range of unique community development needs. Locally, these HUD block grants are used to support activities and services such as community center programs; emergency food centers; housing rehabilitation activities; code inspections; the creation of affordable housing units; and also supports economic development activities.

Since 1975, the CDBG program has provided over $87.8 million to the City of Quincy for community development programs.

Events planned throughout the week feature client impact stories and highlight partnerships that leverage the funds effectively.

The week kicks off at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, April 2 with a video release on the Quincy Planning Department's Facebook Channel (fb.com/quincypcd) of Father Bill's & MainSpring's (FBMS) Veteran's CDBG-funded services. The video was created by Pat Ronan, the Marketing/Communications Specialist at FBMS and features one of their veteran success stories, and an interview with George Nicholson, the city's Veterans Services Director.

All social media posts throughout the week will be shared with #CDWeek2018.

The Asian American Service Association Wollaston Senior Center at 550 Hancock Street, Quincy will feature their "Yuan Ji Dance" at 10:30 a.m. on Monday, April 2. This program serves Asian elders with their physical movement and socialization needs.

The South Shore YMCA Germantown Neighborhood Center at 366 Palmer Street, Quincy will feature their Youth Cooking Class in "Bob's Kitchen" at 3 p.m. on Monday, April 2. A certificate of recognition will be given to a summer camp scholar who has shown exemplary growth during the program. "Bob's Kitchen" was a past CDBG funded public facilities program named in honor of Robert "Bob" Donald who retired in 2016 after 41 years of dedicated service as the Fiscal Manager for the City of Quincy Department of Planning & Community Development.

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. will feature their "Tasty Tuesday" Cooking Demo & Tasting at their Head Start location at 22 Pray St., Quincy at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, April 3. A certificate of recognition will be given to the Greater Boston Food Bank to recognize their leadership in access to healthy food in the region.

Quincy After School Child Care (QCARE) will feature their Lincoln-Hancock Community School location at 300 Granite St., Quincy at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, April 4. A certificate of recognition will be given to TD Bank and the Boston Celtics for their contribution in renovating the space this past fall. QCARE is celebrating 30 years of service to the children and families of Quincy and will host a Carnival Gala on May 10th at Granite Links Golf Course.

The Houghs Neck Community Center will feature their Senior Luncheon and Activities at 1193 Sea Street, Quincy at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesday, April 4. Staff from Quincy's Housing Rehab Office will provide a presentation.

The South Shore YMCA Quincy Branch will feature their Adult Skills Program at 79 Coddington St., Quincy at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, April 4. A certificate of recognition will be given to Christine Desaulniers, who has been a tireless advocate for CDBG funds for this program even before it was a program offered by the South Shore YMCA.

The North Quincy Community Center will feature their Multi-cultural Senior Luncheon at 381 Hancock St., Quincy at 11:30 a.m. on Thursday, April 5. Staff from Quincy's Housing Rehab Office will provide a presentation.

A private presentation by MassDevelopment for non-profit organizations interested in prospective leveraging opportunities will conclude the week on Friday, April 6 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Planning Department, 34

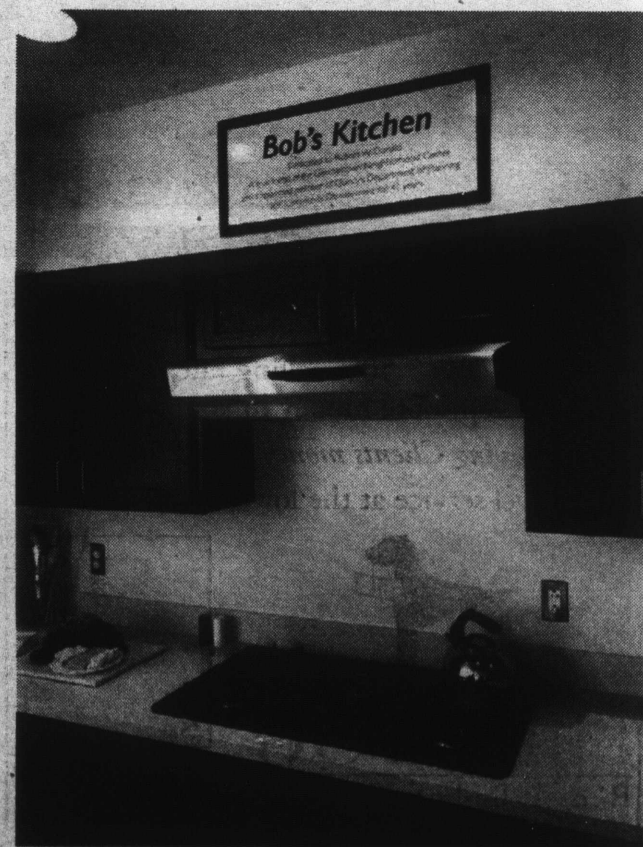

Coddington Street. MassDevelopment, the state's economic development and finance agency, works with businesses, nonprofits, financial institutions, and communities to stimulate economic growth across the Commonwealth.

Quincy residents who have questions about Community Development Week may contact Sean Glennon, Community Development Director, at 617-376-1167.

THE NEW statue of John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence and the Commonwealth's first governor, will be placed at the southern end of Hancock-Adams Common under construction in Quincy Center in the area between old City Hall (Mayor James McIntyre Government Center) and United First Parish Church. The Hancock statue location (visible in the foreground of this photo) is near the Hancock Cemetery (left). Another statue of John Adams, second U.S. president, will stand at the northern end of the common. Both statues will be unveiled at a public dedication ceremony Saturday, Sept. 8.

ams Green.

"Common is more appropriate, we think," Koch said of the new name. "When you think of a green, you think of a town green. It's not really a town green. It's going to have a lot of granite pavers and granite elements. I just don't think it lends itself to a green so we kicked it around a bit and we went to common."

The new park will be on par with some of the region's best attractions, Koch said.

"This is a significant public park with some incredible elements that you don't see too often," he stated. "This will rival anything, I think, in the area. Boston has got some good stuff, but it will be equal to some of their best stuff in my opinion."

Among the common's most prominent features will be statues of the founding fathers for which it is named, John Hancock and John Adams. Baker will unveil the statue of Hancock, who was the first governor of Massachusetts after independence from Great Britain. McCullough will unveil the state of Adams; the author won a Pulitzer Prize for his 2001 biography of the second president, which was later adapted into an HBO miniseries and has been crediting for renewed interest in the Adams family.

The Hancock statue will be located at the southern end of the park near the Hancock Cemetery, which is the final resting place of Hancock's father, the Rev. John Hancock. The Adams statue will be located on the northern end of the new common. The new statues will be surrounded by information about the two men, and their signatures will appear on the base of each statue.

"There is so much to say about them," Koch said. "There will be, inscribed in the granite leading up to the statue, information about the individual and of course on the base will be their signature."

During the Sept. 8 ceremony, a new water fountain in the park will also be turned on for the first time.

ANOTHER PROMINENT FEATURE of the Hancock-Adams Common will be a water fountain in the middle of the park. The new fountain will be turned on during the dedication ceremony Saturday, Sept. 8.

Changes 'Afoot' For Interfaith's Annual Road Race

Proceeds From The Stop The Stigma 5K Support Neighbors Fighting Mental Illness And Addiction

Get ready to lace up your sneakers and hit the streets of Squantum on April 28, for Interfaith Social Service's 44th annual Stop the Stigma 5K. Hundreds will be walking and running in support of friends, family and neighbors fighting mental illness and addiction.

The name of the race has been modified from the South Shore Walk and 5K to the Stop the Stigma 5K. Organizers said the new name puts more emphasis on the purpose behind the race, which is to draw attention to the importance of mental health counseling and addiction recovery treatment, ending social stigmas attached to mental illness and supporting those suffering.

The race course has changed, too. Slight adjustments have been made to try to avoid some of the hillier sections of Squantum. Check out the new route at StopTheStigma5K.org.

All participants who register by April 13 will receive a Stop the Stigma 5K cotton T-shirt. This year, for an extra $5, upgrade to a dry-fit performance tee (previously reserved for runners only). And, this year everyone will receive a numbered bib from RaceWire. This will allow all participants to be timed as well as tagged in race-action photos.

SUSAN BOSSA, of Quincy, hits the home stretch during Interfaith Social Services' 2017 South Shore Walk and 5K Race. This year's race, supporting those battling mental illness and addiction, has been renamed the Stop the Stigma 5K.

THE TEAM FROM Commit 2B Fit Quincy/Weymouth poses for a post-race photo in 2017. The 2018 Stop the Stigma 5K welcomes businesses, churches or other groups to run or walk as a team. Photos Courtesy Hurley Event Photography

Besides a scenic, challenging race route and the chance to support an amazing cause, this event also includes a post-race Family Fun Celebration with lunch, snacks, drinks, a kids Fun Run, games, raffles, a bouncy house, face painting and so much more.

The Arbella Insurance Foundation and Boston Medical Center HealthNet Plan have both come on-board as Platinum Sponsors for the fourth year in a row and Quincy College has joined for the third time as a Gold Sponsor. In addition, Balducci's House of Pizza and Unchained Pizza are kindly providing lunch to all participants.

Registration is underway. Visit StopTheStigma5K.org.

All funds from this event support Interfaith's various programs, including The New Directions Counseling Center. New Directions has been offering compassionate and skilled counseling to the South Shore since 1947. Our nonprofit counseling services provide a safety-net ensuring that everyone is able to receive care regardless of their health insurance status or income.

RMV To Issue 'REAL ID' Licenses

By TOM GORMAN

Massachusetts drivers now have the option of receiving the new federal REAL ID license or identification card that allows the holder to board a domestic airline flight or enter a federal building.

The Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) rolled out its new ATLAS computer system this week at its centers and AAA offices that processes the new REAL ID drivers' licenses and identification cards in addition to the standard drivers' licenses and identification cards. The RMV closed its offices for three days late last week to switch over its 30 year-old computer system to the new ATLAS mainframe. No RMV services, including vehicle inspections, were conducted during that time.

Registrar Erin Deveney hosted a demonstration of the new computer system at the RMV's headquarters in North Quincy on March 20. The demonstration also included simulations of RMV employees processing "customers" license renewals for the new REAL ID license with the new system.

Deveney explained that beginning on Oct. 1, 2020, the regular drivers' licenses will no longer be valid as a form of identification to

STUDENT ATHLETES OF THE MONTH

Sponsored by

James Robinson

Golf, Wrestling - Quincy H.S.

"James is the whole package. He excels in the classroom and on course, mat and field. He displays exemplary leadership skills."

- Lou Venturelli

James played baseball for 4 years and golf and wrestling for 3 years. He received the Individual Scholar-Athlete award for both the golf and wrestling teams. James represented Quincy High School at the Division 1 South Sectional Tournament for golf. He is a member of Harvard Model Congress and Boston Model U.N. He participates and manages the tutoring program for National Honor Society. He has 4.15 G.P.A. and ranks 38th in his class. In the fall, James plans to major in engineering at either Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in N.Y. or Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Juliana Chieng

Swim, Lacrosse, Track
North Quincy H.S.

"Juliana is certainly deserving of this recognition. As a junior captain, school record holder, and state meet qualifier, she is an exceptional athlete."

- Julia Kusiak-Corey

Captain Julia Chieng has been on North Quincy's swim team for 3 years. She also plays lacrosse and runs track. As a junior, she broke a 27-year old North Quincy High record in the 50 freestyle. She clocked a 24.95 which qualified her for the sectionals and states where she later placed. Julia is part of the National Honor Society and High Honor Roll. She also swims for the South Shore Y.M.C.A. Strypers team. In the near future, Julie would like to swim in college and work in the medical field. She plans to study Health or Marketing in college.

REGISTRY OF MOTOR VEHICLES Registrar Erin Deveney holds a checklist available on the mass.gov/id website explaining documents required to apply for the new federal REAL ID license.

Judges Head Coach Denise Dallamora, made the announcement.

"The Brandeis Women's Soccer program welcomes Kari Wismar to our university and soccer team. We are so excited and elated to have Kari as part of the team next fall," Dallamora said.

In choosing Brandeis University, Wismar is excited about what the Judges will be able to offer her, both academically as an estimable educational institution and athletically with its strong soccer program. The Judges have made four-straight appearances in the NCAA Division III Tournament including a 2016 Final Four appearance.

Wismar was a four-year varsity starter for Quincy High School and a senior captain under Coach Seth Harmon. As a President she scored the first winning goal over cross-town rival North Quincy High School in 28 years. Although Kari missed the majority of her senior soccer season due to knee surgery, she came back late in the season and scored the 1-0 winner in the most recent 2017 rivalry match-up.

Wismar has played the majority of her soccer career for America FC United of Quincy under the patient guidance of Quincy coaches Jim Sheridan, Conrad Whyte, Edris Senyonjo and Charles Landry. She has also worked as a referee for Quincy Youth Soccer and played in QYS programs for many seasons. Wismar currently plays soccer for the New England Futbol Club - Boston Breakers Academy in the U18 division of the National Premier League.

Kari plans on majoring in business and currently has an internship with Wessling Architects through the QHS Business Technology program. She's also president of the National Business Honor's Society.

Indoor Practice Preps Teams For Spring Season

By TOM JOYCE

By the time spring is supposed to roll around in New England, the impact of winter is usually still present which impacts local high school sports teams as they prepare for their seasons.

Temperatures in mid-to-late March still hover around the freezing mark, there is still snow on the ground and the threat of more snow coming exists. That said, it is difficult to get outside for many local teams early in the season, so both the Quincy High Presidents and North Quincy High Red Raiders completed the majority of their practices last week in their school's gymnasiums.

"Our teams have been really great and flexible with us," North Quincy Athletic Director JJ Niamkey said. "We want to get the teams out there as soon as possible, but it's usually not possible right away with the baseball and softball fields."

"The coaches have been great," Quincy Athletic Director Kevin Mahoney added. "They're really flexible and good about working with each other. I think at one point we had five teams in the gym at one point, but you kind of break it up to give them space."

Both schools have broken down specific time blocks where teams can practice in the gym which start at 3 p.m. and run through 9 p.m. North Quincy even had a few instances where teams came in before school to get some practice time.

Each of the schools also has access to a turf field, so a couple of their teams like baseball, softball and lacrosse were able to get a day or two on it last week. The girls' lacrosse team was also able to get a couple of days of practice on Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The turf fields certainly help the teams, but holding tryouts indoors or on a different playing surface is still difficult for some teams.

"It's tough, especially for like baseball when you're not on a diamond so you can't assess how they are there," Niamkey. "We're in a situation where we don't really have to make cuts to fill out our teams, so that was one of the things that makes it not as bad. They're still able to get some work in."

Earlier this month, the MIAA announced it would be extending the regular season for teams by a week apiece so that they would not have to cram makeup games into their schedules on top of the games they already had. For example, tennis, lacrosse, and girls golf teams have until May 31 to complete their season this year compared to May 24 while baseball and softball teams have until June 4 rather than May 28.

"I remember a couple of years, baseball would have four games in five days or something crazy," Mahoney said. "The whole spring, we know rain is going to come and it's going to be tough, so some extra time will definitely help us."

As of the start of the week, neither team had to make any postponements yet. Although a couple of scrimmages were questionable, the regular season appeared ready to go on as planned.

The boys' lacrosse co-op is slated to begin its season with a home game at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Tuesday, April 3 (4 p.m.) against Norton. Quincy girls' lacrosse starts its season at the same time and date as the boys, but they will play Brookline on the road. The North Quincy girls' season will begin on Thursday, April 5 (4 p.m.) on the road against Plymouth South.

The North Quincy softball team opens up its season on Monday, April 2 (4 p.m.) on the road against Norwell. Three days later on Thursday, April 5, Quincy starts its season at home (Mitchell-McCoy Softball Field) against Duxbury (4 p.m. start time).

In baseball, North Quincy is slated to open their regular season on Tuesday, April 3 (4 p.m. start time) on the road against West Roxbury Academy; Quincy begins its regular season at the same time and date, but they will host Cohasset High School at Adams Field.

Both the Quincy and North Quincy boys' volleyball teams start up their seasons on Thursday, March 29 at 4 p.m. with Quincy hosting Weymouth and North Quincy hosting Boston Latin Academy.

There will also be plenty of rivalry games taking place this spring where the two Quincy schools go head-to-head.

In volleyball, North Quincy will be at home against Quincy on Wednesday, April 25 at 5:30 p.m.; the Presidents will host the Red Raiders on Wednesday, May 16 (5:30 p.m. start time).

The softball teams meet up twice this season as well, both time at the Mitchell-McCoy Softball Field. On Wednesday, April 25 (4 p.m.) Quincy will act as the home team and on Wednesday, May 23 (4 p.m.) North Quincy will be considered the home team in the intracity rivalry contest.

Like softball, the baseball teams share a home field, so their rivalry games will be played at Adams Field. On Wednesday, Apr. 25 (4 p.m.) and Saturday, May 19 (6:30 p.m.) the Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams will play each other; both times

Quincy will be "home team."

The girls' lacrosse teams also play each other twice. On Tuesday, May 8 (5:30 p.m.) North Quincy hosts Quincy at Creedon Field. Fifteen days later on Wednesday, May 23 (5:30 p.m.), Quincy will be the home team against North Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Chiropractor

PAIN ON BOTH SIDES OF THE LOWER SPINE

Located in the lower back on either side of the lumbar spine, the "quadratus lumborum" (QL) is the deepest abdominal muscle. It starts at the lowest rib and ends at the top of the pelvis. It plays an essential role in stabilizing the pelvis when we stand upright, and it helps support the body's core when we breathe. Due to its many functions and central positioning, the QL is a primary source of lower back pain. Symptoms include tightness and discomfort in the lower back region that arise as a result of sitting too long, slouching, weak muscles, unequal leg length, and trauma. Once the problem is properly diagnosed, the chiropractor can begin to work on its specific cause(s).

A chiropractic adjustment, also known as chiropractic manipulation, manual manipulation, or spinal manipulation, is a common therapeutic treatment for lower back pain. To schedule an appointment for chiropractic treatment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We see infants, children, pregnant women, adults and seniors. We also accept most major insurance plans. Our office is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. If left untreated, quadratus lumborum pain can lead to pain in the hip joints, buttocks, thighs, abdomen, and sacroiliac joint as the body overcompensates and misalignments occur.

SUV Choices, Rusty Brakes, Snow Tires In Summer?

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

My Volkswagen convertible top is starting to show some signs of wear, not much about the size of a penny. The car is only about three years old and I'm a bit disappointed. I had always thought VW used better materials than other cars. Do you have any suggestions about what to do?

The topping material is from Haartz, one of the largest and in my opinion best convertible top companies in the world that just happens to be located in Massachusetts. The problem isn't with the top material, it is with the adjustment of the top. The top rubs when in the open position causing the wear. Volkswagen did issue a technical service bulletin that describes the proper adjustment and replacement of the top. If the car is still under warranty the repair will be covered at no charge. As a side note my wife's car has the same problem which I noticed when I washed the car on a recent warmer day.

My Toyota Camry is having a problem with the transmission; it feels like it is dragging when I drive. I had a neighbor check under the hood and he said he couldn't see any transmission fluid. Could the low fluid be a problem and what should I do?

Low transmission fluid could certainly cause the transmission to act erratically. Unlike the engine which burns some oil during normal combustion, if the transmission fluid is low there is a leak that needs repairing. At this point the best thing to do would be to have the car towed to a trusted repair shop. Driving even a short distance without sufficient transmission fluid will certainly cause the transmission to fail. If you don't have a shop you work with AAA (aaa.com) has approved repair shops that offer quick diagnosis and two-year warranties on repairs.

I have 2008 Lincoln Town Car that was formerly used as an executive limo. I love this car but the radio is terrible; it has lots of static on both AM and FM and worse when the rear defroster is on. Any ideas on what to do?

The first thing is to determine if it is the radio or the car. A simple test is to put a portable radio in the car. If there is no static, then the issue is the car radio or antenna. More than likely the issue is the antenna; which is part of the rear window. If the antenna grid has been damaged by aggressive cleaning the radio will have static. In addition if the previous owner added privacy tint to the window this only make matters worse. If this were my car I would add a new fender mount antenna to replace the one made into the rear window.

I'm in the market for a smaller SUV and there are too many choices. Have you driven anything lately that surprised you? I'm looking to spend no more than $35,000 and ride and handling are more important than off-road driving, although I still want all-wheel-drive for snowy weather.

You are correct this is a very popular segment with plenty of choices and all of them are pretty good. The Hyundai Sante-Fe Sport is a good choice as is the Nissan Rogue but the one vehicle that I think is a "best-kept" secret is the Mazda CX-5. The CX-5 handles like a sedan, rides smoothly and depending on the model has an almost luxury car interior.

I have read your column for years and learned plenty so I tried to fix what I thought was a simple problem. I have a 12-year-old Chrysler and the defroster only works on the high-speed fan setting. I have seen you answer this question before as a faulty fan motor resistor. I replaced the resistor and still only have high-speed. Could the problem be a poor ground?

If the fan works on the high speed setting the ground circuit is okay. The next step is to test the switch and you can do that with a test light. As you change positions with the switch the light should illuminate. If the light only comes on the high position, the problem could be the switch or a loose corroded wiring connection. At this point you may be spending some time under the dash doing some additional investigation.

I just inherited my elderly aunt's 2002 Honda Accord with a V-6 engine. It was purchased new and was well maintained by a local garage. The car has only 52,000 miles on it and is closing in on 16 years old. The car runs great and I only drive it about 10 miles per day to the train. Is it necessary to have the timing belt replaced and what else should I do to keep the car running great?

According to the database I use (www.alldata.com) Honda recommends replacing the timing belt at 105,000 miles. If the belt breaks it will cause severe engine damage. At this point I would look at all the vital fluids, consider replacing the radiator hoses, carefully inspect the radiator and as the timing belt is being replaced, swap out the water pump. You should also look at the brake condition for wear and well as the tires for age damage.

I have a 2011 Volvo C 70 with 107,000 miles on it. From time to time almost since I have owned the car, it has had an intermittent electrical problem the dealer has been unable to fix. When I turn the key, it sometimes won't start. The dealer replaced the starter, but it still does it. Over the years the dealer has kept the car for several days but just really haven't come up with anything. When it doesn't start it will always starts on the second try. Any thoughts? I am afraid it will die one day and leave me stranded.

Volvo did publish a very interesting technical service bulletin that describes the complexities of the ignition system immobilizer. The symptom sounds just like your car with it always starting on the second try. In some cases, the problem is the immobilizer just doesn't recognize the key. There is no fix but rather put the key in the ignition and wait half a second before trying to start the car. For more information your repair shop should reference Volvo's technical journal TJ16335

I have a 2011 Volkswagen Jetta and I love this car, but it is so plain. I want to make my car unique to me. I was in Key West and saw a car with seashells glued all over the car and it was beautiful. What do you think about doing something like this to my car?

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, but you also have to think about what happens when someday you decide to sell the car. Not everyone may be interested in a car covered with seashells. Not quite as dramatic as seashells, perhaps you could start with eyelashes (www.carlashes.com), and some custom interior details that are also removable. Start with funky floor mats, seat and steering wheel covers and even removable window film. If you need inspiration, start with a simple search on www.pinterest.com.

We live about 3/10 of a mile from the ocean and go to Arizona in the winter. For the past few years, after leaving a car in the driveway, for the first three months of the year, we have come home to noisy, rusted brakes. Normal driving hasn't worn off the rust and I have had to replace rotors or more. Some years the brakes haven't had much mileage on them. Any preventative suggestions, perhaps spraying the brakes with WD-40, covering the tires with a plastic bag something other than renting a garage?

Surface rust on brake rotors will occur in as little as a couple of hours if the conditions are just right. In most cases after a few brake applications the rust wears off. Since much of the moisture can come from the ground, parking on top of a tarp may help limit the moisture and in turn the rust. Don't put any lubricant or rust inhibitor on the rotors as it will contaminate the brake pads and compromise braking. Covering the tires with a plastic bag will only trap moisture. The best solution would be to have someone drive the car every few weeks.

I am starting to shop to replace my 15-year old Subaru Outback. We use our Subaru for weekends adventures, not just trips to the landfill and the home improvement store. We drive to New Hampshire to camp, spend plenty of time on dirt roads and carry a canoe, kayak, fishing equipment and a dog. This car has been relatively expensive to maintain over the past 15 years and I'm thinking about something other than a Subaru. The other issue is the Outback is pushing the limit of my budget and size. I don't think we need a vehicle as big or expensive as the Outback. As we are shopping we would like good fuel economy, all-wheel-drive and nothing bigger than our current Outback. Where should I begin my research? I was thinking Honda HR-V.

As good as the Honda HR-V is for your weekend adventure lifestyle, Subaru is still a good place to start looking. I think you will find the new Subaru models more refined, better constructed and able to handle your weekend adventures. I would look at the Crosstrek; it is a bit smaller than your old Outback but, in my opinion, better packaged. Overall, I like the size, it has surprisingly good off-road ability and the fuel mileage is pretty good.

You over the years have talked me into using synthetic oil in all my vehicles, even my lawn mower and snow blower. My question is: are all synthetic oils the same? I have been using Mobil-1 synthetic oil but it seems to get more expensive each time I buy it. I would like to save a little money but don't want to risk a problem. We have two cars: one is a hybrid and the other a truck and they all have over 100,000 miles on them. Can I use less expensive oil?

Being somewhat frugal (cheap) by nature I tend to shop around for oil. It has always been my understanding that all synthetic motor oil needs to pass certain industry performance standards and that is good enough for me. Over the years I have used every brand of oil and I have seen virtually no differences with those brands. In my opinion it is more important that engine oil is full and clean than the brand used. If the synthetic oil meets the specification for your car's engine and meets your budget, use it.

I have a 2003 Ford Windstar and the check engine light was on. I took it to a shop and they said all of the oxygen sensors were faulty. They replaced the sensors and the van runs better than it has in a long time, but the check engine light came back on. The shop now tells me my van will need a very expensive computer. When the lights came back on there were two codes: P0174 and P0171. I'm not sure what to do at this point.

Hancock-Adams Common Dedication Sept. 8

"It's a pretty significant water element, so that will be pretty cool," Koch said.

Tours of City Hall and the United First Parish Church will be offered throughout the weekend. The mayor said the museum space in the first floor of Old City Hall would be updated before the unveiling; a collection of John F. Kennedy photographs will also be put on display there starting in late August. Koch said renovations to the hallway leading to the Adams Crypt at the United First Parish Church, including a new elevator, should also be done in time for the dedication.

"We're going to have City Hall ready and the Church of the Presidents ready, open for tours all weekend for people," the mayor said.

"To me it's kind of like a re-opening — a major statement about our history," Koch added later. "Here is the park that brings this, this and this all together in a beautiful, beautiful way. What a great visitor experience it's going to be when we're finished."

"The goal is for Sept. 8, all that is finished and we're ready to roll."

Construction of the Hancock-Adams Common began last June after the City Council approved a $25 million park improvement bond, funded by hotel tax revenue, which included $15.7 million for the new park in Quincy Center. The common is being built along a portion of Hancock Street that closed to traffic in June 2016 as part of a two-year-long roadway improvement project, which was largely funded by a federal earmark.

Koch said the contractor for the current phase of the park project — Halifax-based WES Construction — was able to work straight through the winter.

"They used heaters. They used heating blankets. There was some tough weather they worked right through," the mayor said. "They're a good company. They're right on schedule, so we're good."

Once the common opens, Koch said he could see the space hosting concerts and other events, including the annual Quincy Christmas Festival held after Thanksgiving.

"It's hard to predict how it will evolve, but once it's finished in its entirety I can see weekly concerts or something going on on some of the public space during the week," the mayor said. "Whatever happens there has got to have some dignity and respect to what's there, but I think there are all kinds of possibilities."

"It almost to some extent will become our living room, you know, as a community," he added. "It will be interesting to see how it does evolve."

In addition to the statues of Adams and Hancock, Koch said the city is planning ways to honor several other notable Quincyans in the downtown area.

Koch said the city is looking for ways to honor John Quincy Adams and Abigail Adams — whether in the Hancock-Adams Common or elsewhere in Quincy Center as the area is redeveloped.

A memorial of some sort could also be built for Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

The city, Koch said, has asked the state to name a new bridge over Burgin Parkway "Generals Bridge" after four generals who were raised in Quincy: Ronald Rand, Gordon Sullivan, James McConville and Joseph Dunford Jr.

The mayor also plans on putting together a commission to design a new monument in Quincy Center for those who served in the ongoing War on Terror, including Army Lt. Charles Todd Caldwell and Army Specialist Ciara Durkin, who died while serving the nation.

The mayor said the city could also find creative ways to honor two businessmen who launched national and international companies in Quincy: Howard Johnson, founder of the hotel and restaurant chain of the same name, and William Rosenberg, founder of Dunkin' Donuts. Koch suggested a large ice-cream cone could be sculpted in honor of Johnson, and a coffee cup or doughnut for Rosenberg.

Koch: Ross Lot LDA Out In April

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch plans to submit a land disposition agreement for the area of the Ross Lot to the City Council for review as soon as next week.

The mayor, who addressed the development of the Ross Lot and several other topics in a recent interview, has designated FoxRock Properties as the developer for that piece of Quincy Center.

In addition to the future of the Ross Lot, Koch also discussed ongoing construction of a new middle school in southwest Quincy that could be open in just over a year, the plan to build a new maritime center in Houghs Neck, and his proposal to make sweeping changes to the way Quincy disposes of its trash.

FoxRock — a North Quincy-based company owned by Granite Telecommunications CEO Rob Hale — plans to build up to 1 million square feet of commercial space in the vicinity of the Ross Lot.

Koch said negotiators on both sides continue to meet regularly to hash out the details of the land disposition agreement. He intends to submit it to the City Council — where six votes are needed for approval — as soon as next Monday though it could have to wait until the body's following meeting on April 23.

"It's in the nitty-gritty details now. You think you're there and there is a sentence or a word and you spend hours on a word. We've got to make sure we get it right for all involved," Koch said. "The goal is to have it to the council April 2. I'm not sure we're going to make that. If it's not that, it will probably be the following one."

If the LDA were approved, Koch said FoxRock could begin demolition in the area later in 2018, but it could take a year before the company breaks ground on new construction.

"You might see some demolition this year, but it would probably take a solid year before you see construction," the mayor said. "They're not going to spend all the money yet on designing with an architect and a user without having control of the land — until they get full control. Then everything will go in 100 percent design and my guess is that will take a good year"

Koch, in a previous interview, said FoxRock had reached an agreement to purchase the building at 77 Parkway, which is home to several businesses, including Coffee Break Café and Revel, which was formerly The Commonwealth. The mayor, in the recent interview, said the city's plan for Quincy Center has long included the demolition of that building to make way for new development.

Construction of the $59 million middle school, which will replace the 91-year-old Reay E. Sterling Middle School, has been seamless so far, the mayor said.

"It's going well," Koch said. "They're making great progress...it's been seamless."

Koch said the new school could be ready to open as soon as April 2019, with teachers and students moving into the building after April vacation.

Within the next month or two, Koch said the School Committee could begin to discuss what to call the building. The mayor said he would prefer the school, like the city's four other middle schools, be named after its neighborhood. The present Sterling was first known as South Junior High School before it was renamed in honor of Reay E. Sterling, a longtime principal there.

"My position — and again it's a School Committee decision — would be to change it to Southwest Middle School — and honor Mr. Sterling with naming the library and media center with his name," Koch said.

"I like the idea of the geographic names that we have. You've got Atlantic and Broad Meadows. You've got Central and Point...I think it gives the neighborhood a little bit more pride."

The Massachusetts Seaport Economic Council awarded Quincy a $1 million grant for design and construction of the new maritime center in Houghs Neck in February. Koch said Paul Hines, the city's commissioner of public buildings, has now taken the lead on the project. At the same time, City Solicitor Jim Timmins is negotiating the purchase of three homes in the vicinity of the lot with their owners.

"We're finalizing the design and my city solicitor has been in discussions with the private property owners about purchasing some of the properties. I've said right along we weren't going to take these if they didn't want to sell them, so we're in discussions now," Koch said.

"The parking lot and that portion of it really is determined by what happens with these private homes. The building itself can be built regardless of what happens to the homes."

The mayor said the new maritime center will be a public building owned by the city. The land it is being built on is owned by the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation, Koch said, and the city remains in negotiations with them.

The new building will be named after Francis X. McCauley, a former mayor, city councillor and school board member, Koch said.

The Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit currently utilizes the maritime center, and preliminary plans for the new building included new space for those officers. In addition, Koch said the new facility could be used by the U.S. Department on Homeland Security for occasional training exercises or on an emergency basis, but DHS would have no permanent presence on site.

"They could probably have exercises out of there or, from time to time, if need an emergency command center for something that's happened in Boston Harbor, sure, but I don't think there would be any permanent regional Homeland Security stuff out of there," Koch said.

Koch in September 2016 announced he wanted to overhaul how the city's trash and recyclables are collected. The centerpiece of the plan would be the distribution of uniform covered containers — 96-gallon bins for recyclables and 64-gallon ones for trash — to households throughout the city. Similar programs have been put in place in Braintree and Weymouth, among other communities.

In the recent interview, Koch said the plan, remains on the table.

"It's still on the burner," he said. "I don't think we'll be able to get it done by July, but it's definitely something we're looking to do. One, for efficiency; two, for cleanliness; and three, for rodent control."

The mayor said the delay in rolling out the new program is in part because of dissatisfaction with the city's current trash and recycling contractor, Sunrise Scavenger.

"We've had a lot of issues with this vendor, quite frankly, with [Sunrise] Scavenger on the pickup and everything," Koch said. "We haven't really been satisfied with them, so we've been just trying to get them to do what they're supposed to do."

At the same time, the mayor said the city is still working through the logistics of the plan. One issue is that some residents, including senior citizens, might want smaller barrels than the ones the city is planning on issuing. That could prove problematic down the road if a larger family were to move in, because the barrels stay with the property.

"Trying to figure out those details ain't easy," Koch said.

Quincy Center Parking Changes Next Week

than 600 parking spaces, not including on-street parking, in the immediate vicinity of the Quincy Center core to access shops and more than 40 restaurants and bars in the area.

A newly renovated and newly lit pedestrian walkway now connects more than 300 surface-level parking spaces in the Ross lot to the downtown's restaurant hub.

Two hundred spaces are available nights and weekends in Quincy District Court lot thanks to an agreement between the City and Norfolk County.

An additional 102 spaces are available in the temporary Hannon Lot, also known as the Messina Lot, at the intersection of Hannon Parkway and Hancock Street.

Construction of the new garage and private development will require the permanent closure of the Hancock Lot in July. The full project is scheduled to take between 18 to 24 months to complete.

'QHS Sports' New Series On QATV

By ALBI BIBA

Quincy High School's Broadcasting program has introduced their own series called "QHS Sports," containing updates and information about the school's sports programs and their progression throughout their respective seasons.

The series has already premiered, constantly airing at 6 p.m. on Quincy Access Television Channel 22 throughout the week. The series has gotten off to a solid start, recapping the school's successful men's and women's basketball seasons, which have recently ended.

The show looks to stay on a steady pace by progressing to the second episode this upcoming week, when we highlight the girls and boys hockey seasons.

HOLY WEEK, PASSOVER, EASTER SERVICES

Evangelical Clergy Holy Week Services

The Quincy Evangelical Clergy Association invites the Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week services.

On Good Friday, March 30, at 12 noon, a worship service will be held at The Covenant Church of Quincy, 315 Whitwell St., Quincy. Local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship which commemorates the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, April 1, the annual Easter Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Wollaston Beach near the Wollaston Yacht Club, on Quincy Shore Drive. In case of rain the service will be held at the Covenant Church of Quincy.

The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be led by members of the Clergy Association with music from the brass band of the Quincy Corps of The Salvation Army.

All are welcome to attend both of these services.

Passover Activity Day, Open House Sunday At Beth Shalom Blue Hills

To prepare for and learn about the upcoming Jewish holiday of Passover (Pesach), Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills and its Rabbi Weistrop Religious School will hold a Passover Family Activity Day and Open House Sunday, March 25 from 10:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m., at the synagogue in Milton.

All interested families in the area, including non-members, are invited to attend this free program.

The Activity Day invites everyone to get into the Passover spirit by learning how to make Bedouin Matzoh, Matzoh balls and exotic Charoset. The traditional symbolic signing and sale of Chametz can also be completed by adults, while the entire religious school and visiting children will participate in singing, group activities, and arts and crafts.

Visitors can also meet Rabbi Benjamin and Education Director Nancy Molitor as well as other temple members and officers, and learn about the congregation's activities, religious services, holiday celebrations, and the Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School.

The spring holiday of Passover (Pesach) commemorates the liberation of the Jewish people from slavery, and their exodus from Egypt, led by Moses. It lasts eight days and is marked by Seders, meals which include the retelling of the exodus story, along with consumption of special foods and restrictions from others.

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is an egalitarian congregation which welcomes inter-faith families. It is located at 18 Shoolman Way (off Lodge Street) in Milton.

Parking is limited, and overflow parking is available on nearby Pleasant Street. No parking is allowed on Lodge or Maitland Streets.

For more information, call the synagogue office at 617-698-3394.

'Labyrinth Of Lies' Film Screening

In honor of Holocaust Memorial Day, Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, along with the Milton Public Library, invites all to a free screening of the 2014 German film "Labyrinth of Lies" on Thursday evening, April 12, at 6:45 p.m. (doors open at 6:30).

The film will be screened at the Milton Library, located at 76 Canton Ave. at the corner of Reedsdale Road in Milton. Holocaust Memorial Day (Yom HaShoah) is also on April 12th this year.

"Labyrinth of Lies" is a fact-based drama that describes the hesitancy of many Germans to accept responsibility for the Holocaust. Through the eyes of a young and idealistic German public prosecutor in the late 1950's, it illustrates the roadblocks and frustrations of trying to fight the "system" and bring former Nazi war criminals to justice.

The film will be followed by a brief discussion.

Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is pleased to co-sponsor the film and make it available to the entire community.

For more information, contact the Milton Public Library at 617-698-5757 or Cong. Beth Shalom-Blue Hills at 617-698-3394, email office@BethShalomBlueHills.org or visit www.BethShalomBlueHills.org.

OBITUARY

Cindy L. Sullivan, 54

Visiting hours for Cindy L. Sullivan, 54, of Quincy, formerly of Weymouth and Milton, will be held Thursday from 4 to 8 p.m. in Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Mrs. Sullivan died Sunday along with her beloved dog, Brandie, as a result of injuries sustained in a house fire.

Raised in Milton, Mrs. Sullivan was a 1982 graduate of Milton High School. She was the daughter of Richard H. Marks of Reading, his late wife Janice Marks. She worked in various positions with Quincy Credit Union for 23 years, most recently as a real estate lending specialist, and will be greatly missed by her friends and colleagues there.

Mrs. Sullivan had a big, loving and friendly personality and she cared deeply for her family and friends, with whom her most cherished times were spent.

CINDY L. SULLIVAN

In addition to her father, she is survived by her son, James M. Sullivan of Quincy, her dear friend and former husband James H. Sullivan of Quincy, nieces, nephews, extended family and many good friends. She was the sister of the late Richard Marks.

Funeral and interment arrangements are private.

Memorial donations may be made to Quincy Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 690088, Quincy, MA 02269 or online at quincyanimalshelter.org.

Quincy Point Congregational

Come Celebrate Holy Week at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The remainder of Holy Week services include Maundy Thursday, March 29 at 7 p.m. in the Baharian Chapel at QPCC for a traditional service of Tenebrae. Rev. Stan and Peter, along with the Deacons will lead the service.

This service is not accessible directly via elevator, at least four stairs are required; the best door to enter is door closest to Dunkin' Donuts.

This year, Quincy Point hosts the noontime Good Friday service on March 30th. Rev. Dr. Peter Preble, Interim Pastor at Bethany Congregational will preach and the Chancel Choir will sing. The sanctuary is accessible with designated parking and an elevator via the Abbey Road side of the church.

Then on EASTER DAY, April 1 we rejoice because, "Christ Has Risen!" Come join our joyous Festival Service of the Resurrection at 10 a.m. Musical Prelude by the South Shore Brass Quintet begins at 9:30 a.m.

The Easter sermon will be given by Rev. Stan Duncan and more special music offered by The SSBQ and the Chancel Choir. Worship is followed by Easter Egg Hunt.

Save your Wednesdays in April for the Second Interfaith Conversation Series at 7 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church Social Hall (accessible to all). This series will have speakers that are Buddhist, Mormon, Hindu and a Unitarian Universalist. Come learn about and understand your neighbor.

Rev. Gertrude Stone Interim Pastor At Union Congregational

Union Congregational Church of Wollaston welcomes Rev. Gertrude "Trudy" Stone as the church's interim pastor.

Rev. Stone was raised in Quincy and was a member of Memorial Congregational Church. She trained and had a career as a registered nurse before attending Bangor Theological Seminary after a call to ministry. She came back to her Quincy roots, Memorial Congregational, for her ordination in 1998.

She worked in hospice care for over 20 years, finishing her career as the Manager for Hospice of South Shore.

Join us at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, each Sunday at 10 a.m. as Pastor Stone as she leads us on our journey.

Captain Fishbones To Become Victory Point

By SCOTT JACKSON

The owners of Captain Fishbones in Marina Bay plan to re-launch the restaurant under a new name as early as next month.

The Board of License Commissioners on March 20 approved a request from owner Donato Frattaroli to rename the restaurant Victory Point.

Frattaroli has owned the restaurant, located at 332 Victory Rd., since December 2016. He is also the owner of Il Molo in Boston's North End.

Captain Fishbones will remain open under its current name until the change-over takes place, which could happen as soon as mid April, depending on the weather. The restaurant might close for up to a week for staff re-training.

Following the board's meeting, Frattaroli said he would be making changes to the menu of the Marina Bay restaurant as part of the transition to Victory Point, but it was too early to announce them.

In other business March 20, the board granted a cabaret license to Rozafa Mediterranean Bistro at 1089 Hancock St.

Claudio Vila, brother of restaurant owner Marlon Vila, said a three-piece band would be playing inside the eatery on Friday nights.

"He has a band coming in on Friday nights that he would like to get the license for," he said. "It's just a three-man band."

The board granted the license pending final inspection by the Quincy Fire Department. Deputy Fire Chief Joseph Jackson said the restaurant's hood, fire extinguishers and Ansul system need to be updated.

Vila said those fixes could be made within the next day or two after the meeting.

In additional business March 20, the board:

Francis E. Mullen, 85

Funeral services and interment for Francis E. "Frank" Mullen, Chief, Quincy Police Department, Retired, age 85, of Norwell, formerly of Quincy and Hingham, were private.

Mr. Mullen died peacefully March 23 at the Pat Roche Hospice Home, following a long illness, in the comfort of his loving family.

He was born in Quincy to the late Francis J. and Rose (Messenger) Mullen. He was a graduate of the former Sacred Heart High School in Weymouth where he was an all-scholastic athlete in basketball. He later earned an Associate's degree in communications from Boston University, a Master's degree in criminal justice from Anna Maria College, and a Bachelor of Science degree from Northeastern University. He also graduated from the FBI Academy in Quantico, Virginia, the New England Institute of Law Enforcement Management from Babson College, and the U.S. Army Military Police School in Fort Gordon, Georgia.

Mr. Mullen proudly served in the United States Navy during the Korean War aboard the heavy cruiser USS Des Moines, CA-134.

He began his career in law enforcement by joining the Quincy Police Department in 1956 after the death of his father who was a Quincy patrolman for thirty-five years. Mr. Mullen held nearly every position in the department beginning as a walking patrolman, patrol sergeant, detective, juvenile officer, police prosecutor, and director of planning and research. He particularly enjoyed overseeing the police academy at both the recruit and in-service levels. He later taught at Northeastern University and Quincy College. He was an innovator in police training throughout the Commonwealth.

Mr. Mullen was appointed chief of the department on Sept. 6, 1990, and served for seven years before retiring in 1997, after forty-one years of service to the City of Quincy.

He was an avid New England Patriots and Boston Red Sox fan. He was also well known for his love of running, which he started in 1970. He completed forty-two marathons, his best being the Marine Corps Marathon in Washington, D.C., which he completed in three hours and two minutes. Mr. Mullen enjoyed many years of golfing as a member of the Ponkapoag and Pembroke Country Clubs. He was a proud life member of the South Shore YMCA where he enjoyed many friendships.

He was a past commander and gold life member of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post 294 of Quincy.

Most of all, Mr. Mullen was dedicated to his family. He enjoyed watching his sons' hockey games and taking his family on vacations to Disney World, New Hampshire, and Cape Cod. Chief Mullen will be remembered as a quiet man, extremely loyal to his family, friends, and country.

Beloved husband for fifty-nine years of Mary E. (Barrett) Mullen. Devoted father of Elizabeth Holland and her husband Stephen of Reading, Michael Mullen and his wife Carole of Marshfield, the late Gregory Mullen and his wife Paula of Franklin. Loving grandfather of seven grandchildren. Dear brother of the late Dorothy (Mullen) Earley and also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the charity of your choice.

Carmela F. Bersani, 89

Funeral services for Carmela F. (Caci) Bersani, age 89, of Bridgewater, formerly of Braintree, were held March 23 in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

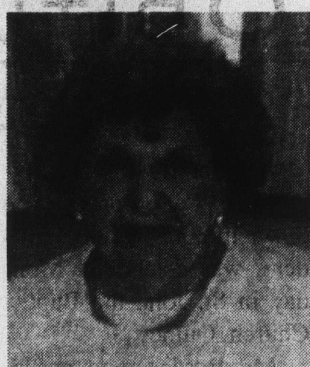

Mrs. Bersani died peacefully March 20 at the Schem Center for Health & Rehabilitation in East Bridgewater.

She was born in North Quincy to the late Joseph and Dorothea (Papile) Caci. She was raised there and was a graduate of North Quincy High School. She had lived in Bridgewater for the past eleven years, previously in Braintree for over forty years.

Mrs. Bersani was employed with Sears, Roebuck and Company for thirty years. As a young woman, she had also worked for Boston Gear Works.

She and her husband, Al, were talented ballroom dancers and enjoyed many evenings dancing with friends. She was also an avid reader. Her greatest joy was her family and she enjoyed supporting the activities and accomplishments of her children and grandchildren.

Beloved wife for fifty-nine years of Alfred N. Bersani.

CARMELA F. BERSANI

Devoted mother of Robert J. Bersani and his wife Mary of Wrentham, Joseph J. Bersani and his wife Donna, Steven J. Bersani and his wife Donna, Linda M. LaVangie and her husband Todd, all of East Bridgewater. Loving grandmother of Julie Bersani, Jessica Swenson, John Bersani, Kyle Bersani, Lauryn Bersani, and Nicole LaVangie.

The last of four siblings, Mrs. Bersani was predeceased by Stephen Caci, Vincent "Jim" Caci, and Susan Hurley. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Activities Fund at the Schem Center for Health & Rehabilitation, 66 Central St., East Bridgewater, MA 02333.

Dawley M. Chadbourne, 76

Funeral services for Dawley M. (Smith) Chadbourne, age 76, of Quincy, were held March 24 in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

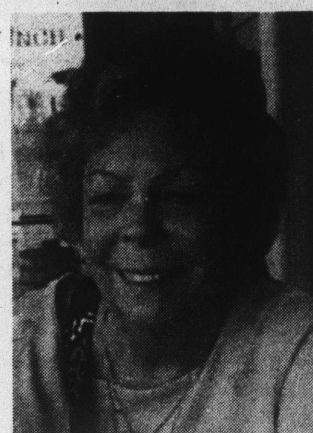

Mrs. Chadbourne died peacefully March 18 surrounded by her loving family.

She was born, raised and educated in Quincy. She was proud to have been a lifelong "Houghs Neck" Quincy resident.

Mrs. Chadbourne was a well-known waitress at the former Alfredo's Restaurant in Quincy for forty-three years. She enjoyed traveling and cooking. She was fun loving and adventurous. She loved and respected the ocean and was a member of the Quincy Yacht Club and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Most of all, she was dedicated to her family, especially to her children, grandchildren and her great granddaughter. She cherished her time with them and supported all their activities and accomplishments.

Mrs. Chadbourne had a loving marriage of forty-three years with her late husband.

Catherine E. Brandolini, 71

CATHERINE E. BRANDOLINI

Funeral services for Catherine E. (Reynolds) Brandolini, age 71, of Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, will be held at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Mrs. Brandolini died unexpectedly March 23 at South Shore Hospital.

She was born in Medford to the late Charles A. and Roxie A. (Maze) Reynolds. She was raised and educated in Quincy and later received an Associate degree from Quincy Junior College. She had lived in Weymouth for thirty-one years, and previously in Quincy.

Mrs. Brandolini was a homemaker but recently worked as a dispatcher for the Checker Cab Company in Quincy. She was an avid Boston Red Sox fan and was a member of the "Women of the Moose" at the Moose Club in Braintree. She enjoyed playing cards and also enjoyed her loyal pet dog, "Penny."

Most of all, she was dedicated to her family, especially to her cherished grandchildren. She loved spending time with them and supporting all their many activities and accomplishments.

Beloved wife of the late Frederick J. Brandolini. Devoted mother of Cheryl A. Keenan and her husband John of Weymouth and the late James J. Brandolini. Loving grandmother of Mario Picariello, Marisa Picariello and Curtis Keenan all of Weymouth. Dear sister of Virginia Barilone of Maynard, Charles Reynolds, Robert Reynolds, Edward Reynolds all of Florida, Michael Reynolds of Las Vegas, Nevada and the late James Reynolds. She is also survived by many nieces and nephews. Best friend and cousin of Faith Cattey of West Palm Beach, Florida and friend of the late Donald Gauthier.

Visiting hours were at the funeral home Wednesday from 5 to 8 p.m.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Jimmy Fund, Memorial Contributions, P.O. Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284-9168.

Robert E. McDonald

A funeral Mass for Robert E. "Bob" McDonald of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, Quincy.

Mr. McDonald died March 23 after many years of suffering with illnesses.

He loved his family and enjoyed spending time with them and traveling to Disney. He also loved dogs, especially his cherished dog Sampson. He enjoyed car shows and working on his own car. He was a member of the Local 369 and retired from Boston Edison. Mr. McDonald was a calm and easygoing man who could strike up a conversation with anyone. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Beloved husband of 62 years to Jeanne (Campbell) McDonald of Quincy. Loving father of Robert McDonald and his wife Eileen of W. Boylston, Barbara Cannata and her late husband Edmond of Canton, and Edward McDonald and his wife Jennifer of Kingston. Cherished "Bumpa" of Martin, Michaela, Kyle, and Nolan McDonald, and Alexis and Eric Cannata. Brother of the late James McDonald.

Interment at Cedar Grove Cemetery, Boston.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Assn., MA Chapter, 309 Waverley Oaks Rd., Waltham, MA 02452.

Quincy Supermarket Owner Settles Wage Claims

By SCOTT JACKSON

The owner of two supermarkets in Boston and Quincy has agreed to pay more than $80,000 for failing to pay employees minimum wage, overtime, and Sunday/holiday wages and more than 100 employees will receive restitution.

The settlement agreement with the Attorney General Maura Healey's office, announced March 22, resolves citations issued against Zen Market Quincy, Inc., at 733 Hancock St. in Wollaston, Ming's Supermarket, Inc. in Boston's Chinatown, and president Long Deng for the alleged violations. The AG's Office has also cited other Chinatown businesses after conducting strategic compliance visits.

"My office is dedicated to making sure that employers and workers know what is required under state wage and hour laws," Healey said in a statement. "When we see employers failing to comply with those laws, we will take action to ensure that workers are treated fairly and receive the wages they earn."

Zen Market and Ming's Supermarket have approximately 120 full- and part-time employees between them. The AG's Fair Labor Division began an investigation after receiving complaints from two former employees who alleged they were not paid Sunday/holiday premium pay.

The investigation revealed that over an approximately three-year period, the employer did not pay 82 employees time-and-a-half premium pay as required by the Massachusetts Blue Laws for Sundays and holidays. The employer also failed to pay overtime wages to 61 employees and did not pay minimum wage to 17 employees.

Healey's Fair Labor Division is responsible for enforcing state laws regulating the payment of wages, including prevailing wage, minimum wage, overtime, and earned sick time laws.

To increase proactive enforcement, the Fair Labor Division has prioritized compliance visits in communities and industries across the state to discuss workers' rights with employees, distribute materials on state wage and hour laws to employers, and note any concerns that require follow-up.

The Fair Labor Division has increased the number of voluntary compliance visits to employers in recent years, visiting almost 300 businesses in more than 100 cities and towns across Massachusetts in fiscal year 2017. As a result of follow up visits to more than a dozen businesses in the Chinatown area of Boston, the AG's Fair Labor Division issued citations in November 2017 against multiple businesses, which failed to post free wage and hour posters in multiple languages that were provided to employers at a prior visit. The employees have all since paid the citations in full.

Ask John Paul: AAA's Car Doctor

I think the shop could have misdiagnosed the problem. Although the codes indicate a problem with fuel, the issue is more likely related to a slight leak in the intake manifold causing a lean running condition. Historically, replacing the intake manifold gasket/O-rings solves the lean running problem and the check engine light will go out.

I plan to keep my car about nine months and last year I put four snow tires on the car. The summer tires were just about worn out and I can't see spending the money on four new tires. Can I use the snow tires over the summer months?

The rubber compound in winter tires is designed for cold weather use. In warm weather the tires will work fine but will wear quicker. It is not an ideal situation, but if it is an economic trade-off, use the winter tires. Driving with good winter tires is safer than driving with bald summer tires.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Rumors of a change in the workplace could make you a mite uneasy about going ahead with implementing your ideas. Best advice: Ignore the talk and proceed as planned.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Everyone has an opinion on how to handle a recent business suggestion. Thank them for their advice. Then go ahead and follow your own fine instincts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) While home is your main focus this week, new issues in the workplace need your attention as well. Take things step by step. Pressures ease in time for weekend fun.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Be less rigid when handling a relationship problem. You might believe you're in the right, but try to open your mind to the possibilities of facts you're currently not aware of.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leos and Leonas run at a hectic pace throughout much of the week. But by the weekend, the Lions' Dens become a purrfect place for you Fine Felines to relax in.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Change is favored early in the week. This should make it easier for you to reassess your plans for handling a troubling professional relationship. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A suggestion from a colleague could give your professional project that long-needed boost. Meanwhile, someone close to you still needs your emotional support.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Before complying with a colleague's request, check to see that the action benefits all, not just one person's agenda. Continue firming up those travel plans.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your social life is on the upswing, and the only problem is deciding which invitations to accept. Enjoy yourself before settling down for some serious work next week.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With your creative aspects on high, you might want to restart your work on that novel or painting you put aside. Your efforts will bring a surge in your self-esteem.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) While you're generous with others, be sure you're not overlooking your own needs. Take time to assess your situation and make adjustments where necessary.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Being applauded for your achievement is great. But watch out that you don't start acting like a star. It could lose you valuable support with your next project.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your strong belief in justice, along with your leadership qualities, help you protect the rights of others.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Meryl Streep is the epitome of the modern-day movie star. That was evident from the way so many people at the Oscars focused on her. She's had 21 Oscar nominations and three wins. In the early days of television, movie stars didn't do TV, but Meryl will not pass up a good role. She'll play Alexander Skarsgard's mother in season two of HBO's "Big Little Lies," which was conceived as a one-time, seven-episode series. The success of the show and the two Emmy wins, for Nicole Kidman and Alexander Skarsgard, prompted a second season, with seven episodes.

Skarsgard is on fire. His Netflix film "Mute," with Paul Rudd and Justin Theroux, recently became available for streaming. His next Netflix film, "Hold the Dark," with Riley Keough (Elvis Presley's granddaughter), becomes available June 1. Also in the works are the thriller "The Hummingbird Project," with Jesse Eisenberg and Salma Hayek, which began filming in Quebec in November for theatrical release; "The Aftermath," with Keira Knightly, is awaiting distribution; and the comedy "Flasky," with Seth Rogen and Charlize Theron, is set for a February 2019 release.

Justin Theroux, who recently split from wife Jennifer Aniston also is busy. His film "The Spy Who Dumped Me," produced and directed by Ron Howard with partner Brian Glazier, stars Theroux with Mila Kunis and SNL's Kate McKinnon, due Aug. 3. He's currently making "On the Basis of Sex," a biographical drama about Ruth Bader Ginsburg, with Felicity Jones (as Ginsburg), Armie Hammer, Kathy Bates and Sam Waterston, also opening Aug. 3. Meanwhile, his soon-to-be ex, Jennifer Aniston, is producing and starring in a new TV series with Reese Witherspoon.

"Three Billboards" best-actress Oscar winner Frances McDormand is represented in the Wes Anderson animated film "Isle of Dogs," which opened March 23. You won't see her, but you can't mistake that voice.

Guillermo Del Toro, a double-Oscar winner for best director and best picture for "The Shape of Water," hasn't announced his next project, but he's one of the producers of the sequel to his 2013 hit "Pacific Rim," which starred Charlie Hunnam and was produced, directed and co-written by Del Toro (at a cost of $190 million with a $411 million gross). The sequel, "Pacific Rim Uprising," stars "Star Wars: The Force Awakens" and "The Last Jedi" alum John Boyega (who also is one of the producers) and Scott Eastwood, son of Clint Eastwood. It opened March 23 and is expected to bring in a bigger box office than the original, thanks to Boyega's "star" power and Del Toro's Oscars.

Del Toro is more concerned now with the shape of the box office than "The Shape of Water"!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Floral Platter --- Spring brings flowers, and lately designers are using more floral prints than usual for fabrics and designs. But a picture of a plant as a decoration on dinnerware is an old idea going back to at least the 1600s. In 1761, an Encyclopedia of Danish Flowers (Flora Danica) was commissioned by King Frederik V of Denmark. Thousands of hand-colored illustrations from engraved copper plates were made that accurately showed the wild flowers and plants. It was not completed until 1874, but some of the drawings were used to decorate a banquet service in 1790.

The first Flora Danica dinner set of 1,802 pieces was made for King Christian VII to give as a gift to Empress Catherine II of Russia. It is said it was to make up for not helping the Russians in their war with Sweden. Catherine the Great died before the set was finished, so it stayed in Denmark. The remaining 1,530 pieces belong to Queen Margrethe II, and some have been used for special occasions.

You can still buy new dishes from the Royal Copenhagen factory or old ones at antique shops and auctions. It is said to be the only 18th-century set that is still being made. Each piece has a single plant pictured as the decoration. Dishes can be ordered with the preferred plant. A Flora Danica platter recently sold for almost $1,000. It was decorated with "Verbascum Thapsiforme Beuspidatum Shad." We call it a mullein or velvet plant. The tall yellow flowers are used in herbal medicine. Today there are more than 300 varieties of mullein, and more are being propagated to get more flowers, shorter flower stalks and other changes. If you own a Flora Danica piece, be very careful. Even a tiny chip in the notched edge can lower the price by half or more.

Q: I bought a Belleek creamer and sugar bowl decorated with a yellow ribbon and bow back in the 1960s. The marks has a circle "R" over a harp and the words "Belleek, Ireland" and "Deanta in Eirinn, Reg. No. 0857." The sugar bowl has a green mark and the creamer a black mark. Why are the marks different colors?

A: The black mark with the words Deanta in Eirinn was used from 1926 to 1946. The green mark that is the same, except for the color, was used from 1946 to 1955. A sugar and creamer pair usually have the same marks since they were bought at the same time. Belleek made some patterns for many years, and you may have a replacement for a broken piece.

TIP: Your cellphone's camera is a magnifying glass. Focus on the marking you want to read and go in for a close-up. It is great for ceramics or prints, but a little difficult for metal because of glare. No need for a ruler and a magnifier anymore. Now you can go to a show with a dollar bill (a 6-inch ruler) and a phone.

Strange BUT TRUE

* The unknown soul who made the following sage observation must have been a keen observer of events: "A politician can appear to have his nose to the grindstone while straddling a fence and keeping both ears to the ground."

* Swedish chemist and engineer Alfred Nobel, famed inventor of dynamite and originator of the Nobel Prizes, could speak five languages fluently by the time he was 17 years old.

* Most languages change dramatically over time. If we in modern America were to try to read, say, "Beowulf" (which was written in Old English), only those who have spent time studying the language would be able to make out more than a word or two here and there. If you're from Iceland, however, this isn't the case; the written language there has remained virtually unchanged for more than 1,000 years. Modern Icelanders have no trouble reading sagas that were written in the 10th century. * At some point in your life you've probably gotten your hands gooey with papier-mache, whether you were making crafts yourself or helping your kids. You may not have realized, though, that the term "papier-mache" means "chewed-up paper" in French.

* You might be surprised to learn that there are people who study how air quality, humidity, the hardness of the water and pollution affect people's hair. According to these researchers, the worst American cities for your tresses are Corpus Christi, Texas; Olympia, Washington; and Pittsburgh.

Thought for the Day: "Jobs are like going to church: It's nice once or twice a year to sing along and eat something and all that, but unless you really believe there's something holy going on, it gets to be a drag going in every single week." -- Thomas Michael Disch

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* "Plastic grocery bags are handy for so many uses, but keeping them organized was always a pain, until I discovered that I could use an empty tissue box to store them. I just ball up each bag individually (so there is no air trapped) and stuff it in the tissue box. You can store even more bags by using an empty 12-pack box from soda. I keep one of these in my shop." -- F.C. in Pennsylvania

* Tech tip: "Invest in a DVR -- a digital video recorder. Our kids record something the night before, and they can only press play in the morning once they're ready for school -- dressed with shoes, books and bag at the ready. It gives them an incentive to hustle." -- B.R. in Washington

* To get the most juice from a lemon (or lime), microwave for 10-15 seconds, then roll on the counter to break up the pulp. Only then should you slice them and use your hand juicer.

* "My son has two laundry baskets, one white and one black. The black one is for dirty clothes, which is pretty obvious. The white one is for clothes that are clean. He wears clothes from the clean basket without ever folding, hanging or putting them in a drawer. I have learned to be OK with this, as long as they are kept separate and he looks and smells nice when he leaves the house. My mom always said I have to pick my battles!" -- T.F. in Connecticut board a domestic aircraft or enter a federal building. For the time being, Bay State residents can continue to use their standard driver's license or identification card.

RMV To Issue 'REAL ID' Licenses

"The current driver's license continues to be recognized as a valid form of federal identification and people will be able to use their current license until Oct. 1, 2020," she said. "At that time, customers would then need to have the federal REAL ID card for identification purposes."

The REAL ID law was passed by Congress in 2005 in the wake of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorists attacks. The terrorists that carried out the attacks were able to obtain fraudulent identifications for them to board planes.

The law beefs up requirements to produce various documents proving lawful presence or legal U.S. citizenship, residency and identification in order to receive a driver's license or a state identification card. Non-citizens can use a federal passport or employee authorization card. All states must comply with the new mandate by 2020.

The REAL ID license looks similar to a standard license but has a white star in a gold circle located in the upper right corner. The person's name, address, birth date, picture and signature are on the credential as are embedded security devices to prevent counterfeiting or tampering.

To obtain a REAL ID license, a person must bring

RMV OFFICIALS Lloyd Kropilak and Jay DiLisio and Registrar Erin Deveney demonstrate the new customer service lines at RMV service centers.

several documents to the RMV or AAA office proving U.S. citizenship. These include a Social Security card, a birth certificate, a passport, an immigration card or tax form and two proofs of Massachusetts residency such as a utility bill.

The RMV's ATLAS system is connected to several federal agencies that will run a check of the documents provided and confirm their validity. If information provided by the customer such of proof of citizenship or residency cannot be confirmed, the applicant will be denied the license. The customer would be instructed as to the next steps to take.

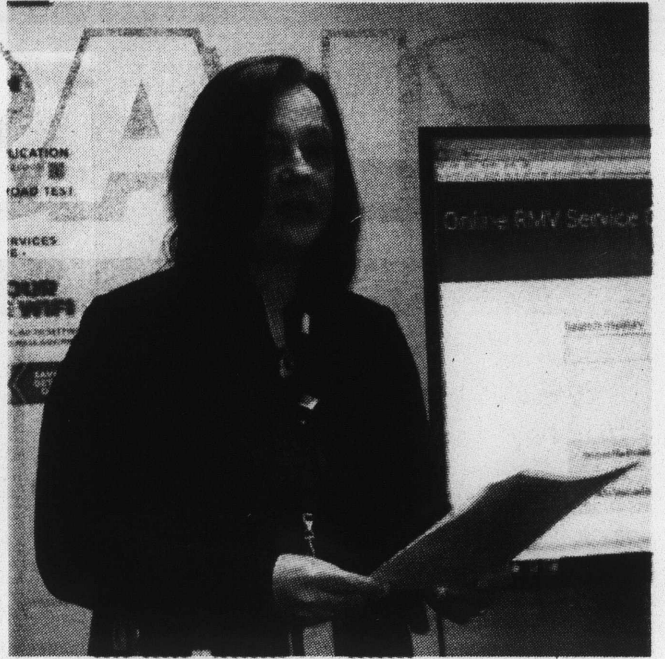

The first time opting for the REAL ID license requires an in-person visit to the RMV or AAA office where the person's picture and signature will be obtained. When the license is up for renewal in five years, the transaction may be processed online.

processed online.

"It's a one trip and done for the REAL ID," said Deveney.

The RMV website - mass.gov/id - has a list of required documents and the "Get Ready" application for the new REAL ID license. The application may be completed online or downloaded, filled out and then brought to the RMV or AAA office.

"By using Get Ready, the customer will be walked through the documents he or she needs to bring in," explained Deputy Registrar Mary Tibma. "When a customer completes Get Ready online, they will receive a confirmation page that they will be told to bring with them. This page can be used to locate the customer's record at the service center counter. This new feature will limit the time to complete the transaction and reduce the number of errors."

DEPUTY REGISTRAR Mary Tibma explains that customers should complete an online REAL ID license application before coming into a Registry of Motor Vehicles service center.

Tibma said customers should use the "Get Ready" feature online before coming into the RMV.

"We want to be sure customers complete as much as they can online," she said. "We're encouraging customers to go online or use our self-service computers whenever possible."

According to Deveney, the $52 million ATLAS system was paid through a capital bond and that license fees would not be increased to fund the new mainframe.

"There will be no additional cost to our customers," she said.

Deveney said that in addition to processing the new REAL ID licenses, the ATLAS system also enhances and streamlines customer service and improves efficiencies for law enforcement, insurance companies and government agencies to access the RMV's database.

The Registrar said the RMV is striving to improve customer service and reduce wait times. During the demonstration, she posed as a customer being greeted by an RMV "door advocate" who asked the purpose of her visit. After explaining she had the REAL ID application and documents, the advocate then instructed her to go to the "Ready to Go" green line to a customer service representative who checked out her documents.

Deveney then went to another customer service representative who pulled up her information, confirmed her eligibility for the REAL ID license, took her picture, performed a vision test, and had her complete an electronic signature. The representative ran a check of the documents through the ATLAS system and then successfully completed the transaction within a few minutes.

Deveney said the addition of the REAL ID license should not increase wait times at RMV offices, provided that customers complete the online application. She said that additional staff have been added to help deal with the roll out of the new license and noted that 92 percent of customers now have wait times of 30 minutes or less.

"We've made great progress reducing wait times," she said.

All states must comply with the REAL ID law by 2020. So far, 31 states have implemented the system. States share their database of drivers' information with each other.

The REAL ID program puts the United States in the company of about 100 other nations in having a national identification credential.

The Registry has also filmed multiple public service announcements (PSAs) which are available on the Registry's website and YouTube. These PSAs have touched on a variety of issues such as assistance for residents who have received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage from a lender. Videos highlighting the Registry's various philanthropic initiatives, such as its Annual Holiday Food Drive and its

Palmucci Seeks To Make Tax Payments Donations

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci wants to give Quincy homeowners the chance to make donations to the city in lieu of paying property taxes, a move that could save some residents on their federal tax returns.

Palmucci on Monday introduced a resolution in response to the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017, which was signed into law by President Donald Trump in December. Among other changes, the law caps the deduction for state and local taxes paid – also known as the SALT deduction – at $10,000 for those who itemize their taxes instead of taking the standard deduction starting next year on 2018 tax returns. The SALT deduction was previously uncapped.

The 2017 law did not set

Woodward School Eyes Renovation, Expansion

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Woodward School plans to renovate and expand its current facility in Quincy Center, which would allow the school to increase its enrollment in the future.

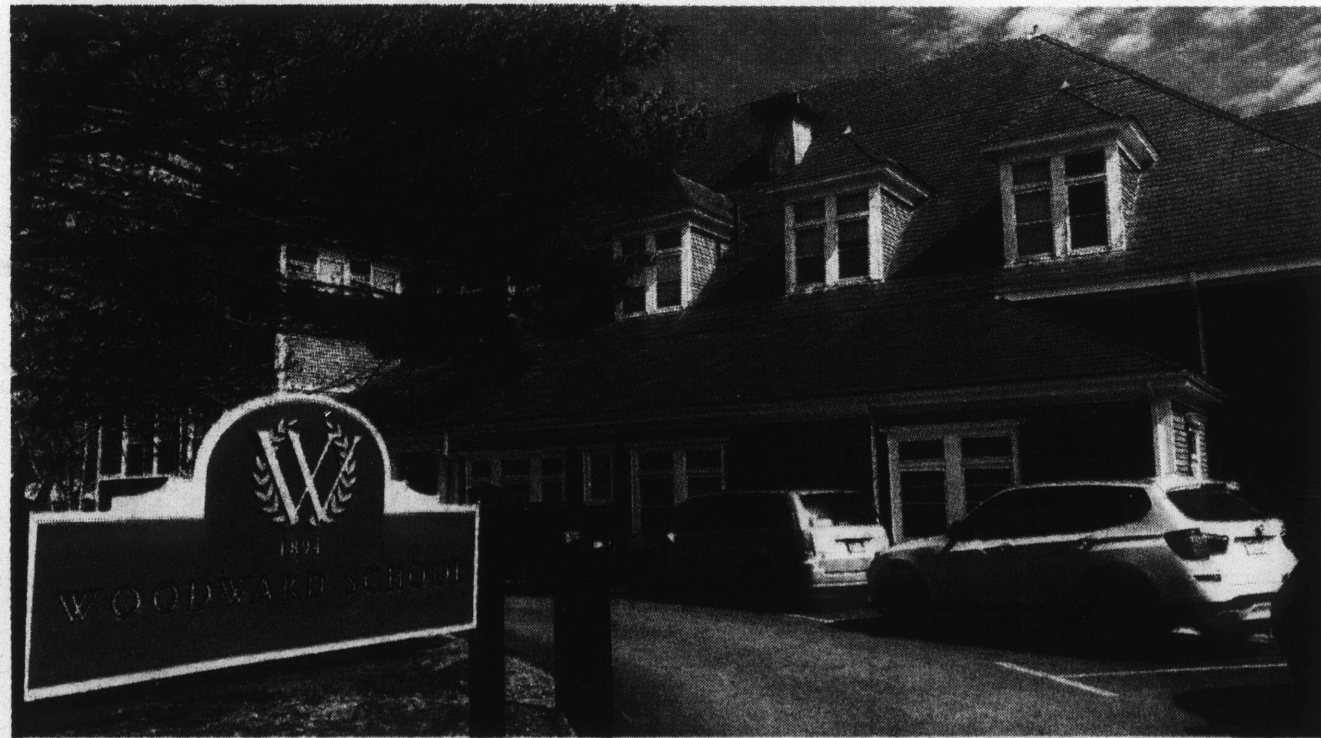

The private school for girls began operating in 1894 in a six-room schoolhouse at the corner of Hancock and Greenleaf Streets. The original building was then expanded over the next two decades, bringing the school to its current size.

Walter Hubley, who has served as the school's headmaster since July 2016, said the plan is to complete the renovation and expansion of the building by the fall of 2019 – in time for Woodward School's 125th anniversary.

"We're hoping to have all of this done and to conclude to coincide with our 125th school year anniversary, which will be the 2019-2020 school year starting in September of 2019," Hubley

Quincy Police Adult Self Defense Class April 10-11

Quincy Police will offer a free Adult Self Defense program Tuesday, April 10 and Wednesday, April 11.

The two-night course will take place at the Quincy Sons of Italy, Quarry Street, from 6 to approximately 8:30 p.m.

The program is open to females aged 18 and up, 16 if with a parent/guardian. Attendance is required both nights because this is a progressive learning program.

There is no exam and no one is required to do anything that they do not feel comfortable with. The first night involves learning strikes, blocks and blows and the second night provides an opportunity to test your skills against an "attacker."

Bring a friend. To sign up or get more information, contact Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton at 617 745 5719 or dminton@quincyma.gov.

QCAN To Screen New Film On Food

Quincy Climate Action Network will cosponsor, along with the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Fore River Residents Against the Compressor Station, the new documentary film Wasted! The Story of Food Waste on Tuesday, April 10.

In the film, solid-waste experts, along with celebrity foodies such as TV chef Anthony Bourdain and writer Mark Bittman, discuss how Americans can help save money, lives, and the planet — and experience some great new dishes — by taking a more thoughtful approach to food.

The movie will screen at 7 p.m. at the library's main branch at 40 Washington St. in Quincy.

Wasted reveals some uncomfortable facts about Americans' relationship with food, including the fact that a shocking 40 percent of the food produced in the US goes to waste, worth $1 trillion annually. It also reveals that food production is the biggest cause of deforestation and that soy and corn grown to feed pigs, animals that do better on a diet of food scraps, could feed far more people than the number that currently go hungry.

Crucially, it also points out that methane emissions resulting from rotting food in landfills make a major contribution to climate change.

The film outlines a hierarchy of strategies for reducing food waste and mitigating its effects. Best of all, food should feed people rather than go to waste; second best, it can feed farm animals; third best, food that can't be consumed can be turned into electric power in anaerobic digesters such as the one run by Stop and Shop stores in Freetown, Mass.; and if all of those options fail, it can be turned into rich organic fertilizer through composting.

Among the novel projects featured in the film are Toast Ale, a UK-based business that uses surplus bread in its brewing formula, and the Daily Table, a Dorchester, Mass., non-profit store that sells affordable groceries, including fresh produce, that would otherwise be discarded by for-profit supermarkets. The film also shows chefs crafting delicious-looking dishes that use foods or parts of foods that normally get thrown away.

After the film's showing in Quincy, the city's director of waste management, John Sullivan, will award one audience member a free composter that can turn food scraps into rich garden soil. The composters normally cost $25 at the Department of Public Works at 55 Sea St.

The film's cosponsor, the Quincy Climate Action Network, is working to get the city to join a growing number of other communities, including Cambridge, Mass., in picking up food waste along with trash and recycling in an effort to save money and reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

"If you're looking for an entertaining film that will also show you ways to eat better and help reduce climate change, come and see Wasted," said David Reich, QCAN board chair. "I can almost guarantee you will have a great time."

Neighbors Concerned With Adams Street Apartment Plan

By SCOTT JACKSON

Neighbors voiced their concerns about a proposal to convert a commercial building on Adams Street into two residential units and office space during a recent board meeting.

The proposal by Lenny Chen to convert the building at 657 Adams Street into two two-bedroom residential units along with 400 square feet of office space went before the Zoning Board of Appeals on March 27.

Under Chen's plan, the two residential units would be located in the portion of the building on site that runs perpendicular to Eddie Street. The 400 square feet of office space would be located in the brick-clad addition facing Adams Street.

Rob Fleming, Chen's attorney, said the proposal had been changed to address concerns from neighbors. Originally, a retail user would have moved into the 400-square foot addition, but Chen changed that use to office space based on feedback at a neighborhood meeting.

Fleming said the property had been home to a number of commercial users — including a travel agency, an accountant and a realtor — and the conversion to residential units would be beneficial.

QCAP Annual Meeting, Awards Ceremony April 25

Elect Neighborhood Representatives To Board Of Directors, Present 'Extra Mile,' Employee Awards

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) Board of Directors will induct board members and officers at its Annual Meeting and Awards Ceremony on Wednesday, April 25 at 5:30 p.m. at The Neighborhood Club of Quincy, 27 Glendale Rd.

As one of Massachusetts' 24 Community Action Agencies (CAAs), one-third of QCAP's board is comprised of representatives of low-income residents. These representatives are elected to serve for a three year term on QCAP's board by low-income residents of the North Quincy/Atlantic, Germantown, Quincy Point and Southwest neighborhoods of the City of Quincy and for the Town of Weymouth. Residents of these Quincy neighborhoods and the Town of Weymouth, who are at or below 175% of the poverty level, are encouraged to vote in the QCAP board election. Voting will take place in Germantown, at O'Brien Towers and the Germantown Neighborhood Center, the Southwest Community Center at 1 Copeland Street, the North Quincy Community Center, at QCAP's Head Start Center on 22 Pray Street in Quincy and the Lakeview Manor residences in Weymouth. Eligible residents may vote by walking-in and completing a ballot at the appropriate location. Voting has already been completed in Quincy Point.

At the Awards Ceremony on April 25th QCAP will be honoring its Extra Mile and Employee Awards. This year the Board of Directors is recognizing The Patriot Ledger's Lend a Hand program, Chef Paul Wahlberg and John (posthumously) and Judy Farmer with Extra Mile Awards and Maggie Yeung with QCAP's Lois Craig Employee Award.

Twenty Year Employee Service Awards will be given to Nancy Abrams, Head Start Enrollment Coordinator and Shirley Tsang, Energy Office Assistant.

To attend QCAP's Annual Meeting, or for more information on the board election, contact Elizabeth Hannon at 617-657-5356 or ehannon@qcap.org.

LIVING LARGE

One of the most popular trends in diamond engagement ring design in recent years involves surrounding a central diamond with a collection of round pave, or micro-pave diamonds (or faceted color gemstones). With the high-carat diamond at the center encapsulated by a "halo" of smaller diamonds, there is an accumulated effect that makes the central diamond look larger than it actually is. To put it concisely, a "halo" diamond ring gives consumers more bang for their buck. The halo engagement ring was first introduced during the Art Deco movement of the 1920s. Today, renewed popularity of the halo ring places it in second place (behind only the classic solitaire) as a favorite style of engagement rings.

When you have your engagement and wedding rings custom designed, you are investing in timeless beauty that makes an intensely personal declaration. THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 18, 1775, as British troops march out of Boston on a mission to confiscate the American arsenal at Concord, Massachusetts, patriots Paul Revere and William Dawes set out on horseback to sound the alarm. Early on the morning of April 19, a British patrol captured Revere and briefly questioned him.

• On April 16, 1789, newly elected President George Washington leaves his Mount Vernon, Virginia, home and heads for New York, to be sworn in as the first American president. Washington had admitted that he would have preferred to stay in retirement.

• On April 22, 1889, at precisely high noon, some 50,000 to 60,000 would-be settlers make a mad dash into the newly opened Oklahoma Territory to claim cheap land. Towns like Norman, Oklahoma City, Kingfisher and Guthrie sprang up almost overnight.

• On April 21, 1953, two of Sen. Joseph McCarthy's chief aides return to the U.S. after a controversial investigation of United States Information Service posts in Europe. As a result, thousands of books were ordered removed from USIS libraries. Authors targeted included Dashiell Hammett, W.E.B. Du Bois, Herman Melville, John Steinbeck and Henry Thoreau.

• On April 20, 1978, Soviet aircraft force a Korean Air Lines passenger jet to land on a frozen lake after the jet veers into Russian airspace. A civilian American aircraft later retrieved the survivors.

• On April 19, 1993, at Mount Carmel in Waco, Texas, the FBI launches a tear-gas assault on the Branch Davidian compound, ending a tense 51-day standoff with the religious cult. The compound was burned to the ground, and some 80 Branch Davidians perished in the inferno.

• On April 17, 2002, ABC airs the 10,000th episode of the daytime drama "General Hospital," the network's longest-running soap opera. The show premiered on April 1, 1963.

Apartment Plan Concerns Neighbors

"We feel what's been there for many years was certainly much worse than what's proposed before the board this evening with two residential units and just a real minimal 400 square feet of office space," he said.

Martin Aikens, the board's chairman, said building at 657 Adams St. is an eyesore.

"The building really is an eyesore," he said. "The whole place is."

Aikens asked about renovations to the exterior of the building. The applicant had originally proposed installing new vinyl siding to the portion of the building where the residences will be located because that is what is there now, but Chen agreed to use wood planks instead after Aikens raised the issue.

Three residents of Edie Street spoke against the project during the ZBA meeting.

Among them was Joanne Petrongolo, who said the Adams Street property lacks "the Quincy charm." She suggested the owner be required to cleanup the site before the board considers approving the proposal to put apartments there.

"We have many people that are on our street that are lifelong residents—who have been there 40 or 50 years—who just want to be able to preserve the community," Petrongolo said. "This residence is really the gateway for our street and to have an establishment that looks like that—that's not the Quincy charm. I would recommend that maintenance be done to the property itself before it is considered for the apartments."

Robert Perkins said the property has fallen into disrepair since Chen purchased it and questioned who would be responsible for maintaining the site if the proposal before the zoning board were approved.

"Who is going to pull weeds once we renovate this thing and landscape it? Who is going to shovel snow? Who is going to upkeep the property?" Perkins said. "It's already fallen apart since he bought it and that was when he was trying to rent it—what happens once we have somebody in there?"

The board did not vote on the proposal after holding a public hearing on the plan, and will take up the matter again on April 24.

In other business March 27, the Zoning Board of Appeals:

Continued to April 10 a hearing a request from Allison MacLellan for permission to reconstruct the non-conforming home at 149 Rockland Street. Neighbors expressed opposition to the project at last week's meeting in part because of the height of the proposed buildings, which would be constructed on piles. The project is located in a flood zone.

Approved a request from James Trotter for a variance to convert the single-family home at 66 Bicknell St. into a two-family home.

Approved a request from Michael Webber for a variance to construct a front porch and second level to provide practical living space at 1 Thurston Ave.

Continued to April 10 a request from Simon Lam for a variance to convert the two-family home at 172 Vassall St. to a three-family home. Lam said a previous owner had illegally converted the house to a three-family home. Board members asked Lam to come up with a plan to provide adequate parking on site.

Continued to April 24 a request from 365 Newport Ave. LLC for a variance to build a 14-unit residential building at that address.

Continued to April 10 a request from Todd Egan for permission to build a nine-unit building at 92 Sagamore St.

Continued to May 22 a request from McDonald's Real Estate Company for a special permit to reconfigure the drive-through at the McDonald's located at 295 Hancock St.

Continued to April 10 a request from Edward Page for a variance to convert the single-family home at 33 Edison Park into a three-family home.

Continued to April 10 a request from Daniel Cellucci for a variance to add a two-story addition to 105 Gridley St.

Withdrew without prejudice a request from Betty Yau to add a second kitchen for an additional living unit at 28 Holmes St. There was a mistake in the advertisement for the proposal and it could be reheard again in May.

AARP Fraud Update - April 2018

By CINDY CAMPBELL
Communications Director
AARP Massachusetts

Did you know that someone's identity gets stolen every two seconds?

The AARP Fraud Watch Network provides you with tips and resources to help you spot and avoid identity theft and fraud so you can protect yourself and your family. Our watchdog alerts will keep you up to date on con artists' latest tricks. It's free of charge for everyone: AARP members, non-members, and people of all ages.

The AARP Fraud Watch Network is:

• An Educator: Get real-time alerts about the latest scams, tips on how to spot them, and the inside scoop on how con artists think so you can outsmart them before they strike.

• A Watchdog: Our nationwide scam tracking map gives you access to a network of people who've spotted scams and the opportunity to pass along your own experiences, so together we can beat con artists at their own game.

• A Resource: Get connected to a real live person trained in how to avoid fraud and advise you if you or a loved one has been scammed by calling our fraud hotline or attending a forum in your community.

• Free for Everyone: Anyone, of any age, can access our resources at no cost.

SCAM ALERT #1:

Medicare is sending out new cards to beneficiaries starting this month and running through April 2019. The new cards will no longer list the beneficiary's Social Security number, making them much safer. However, the change gives scammers an opportunity. If you get a call purporting to be from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services saying you either have to confirm your Social Security number or pay for your new card, hang up. The new cards are free, and Medicare already has your Social Security number.

Tips To Avoid Identity Theft, IRS Imposter Scams - Page 31

SCAM ALERT #2:

As tax filing season winds down, be on the alert for the IRS tax scam. A caller, claiming to be an IRS employee, says you owe taxes and you face arrest if you do not pay immediately. Know that the IRS will not call to demand immediate payment without first sending you a notification by mail, will not ask for credit or debit card numbers over the phone, and will not threaten to bring in local police or other law enforcement to arrest you for nonpayment. If you have any doubts, call the IRS directly at 800-829-1040.

SCAM ALERT #3:

A surge in television, radio and internet ads from law firms and lawsuit marketing companies is causing some patients to take serious risks. While "opt-in" notices are required for law firms bringing class action complaints, the rhetoric of these ads have frightened some patients into stopping critical life-saving medications without consulting a healthcare practitioner. The ads, using terms like "medical alert", "consumer alert", "recall", or "FDA warning", warn about the risk of death and other serious medical problems such as stroke, heart attack and cancer. Always consult your healthcare provider before starting or stopping any medications, or if you have questions or concerns about the medications you have been prescribed.

SCAM ALERT #4:

Each year, the Federal Trade Commission releases a data book on consumer complaints and scams as reported to the agency in the prior year. The top complaint for 2017 was debt collections, followed by identity theft and imposter scams. The report reveals that younger people were more likely to become victims than people age 70 and older, but older victims lost a lot more money. Also of note—70% of reported scams happen over the phone, suggesting that screening your calls is a good practice.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. Contact the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatch-network for more information on fraud prevention.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the first fire station in Atlantic that was built on Newbury Avenue in 1890. Built to house horse-drawn fire apparatus the fire department was forced to move to a new station when they purchased new larger engines in 1927. Since then this building has been used for a wide variety of activities. It was home to the DAV, a dance studio, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and as a community meeting hall for many other groups for almost 75 years. Today, it is home for the William R. Caddy Marine Corps League Detachment 124. The street going off to the right is marked Madison Street on the postcard. It has since been renamed Kendall Street for the well-known Dr. Walter Kendall whose Atlantic Street estate included the famed Kettle Bowl formed by glaciers during the Ice Age. ### QHA Commissioner: Honor To Serve And Witness 'A Dramatic Transformation'

(Editor's note: A copy of following letter was submitted by the author for publication in The Quincy Sun.)

Mr. Michael Flaherty
Chairman, Quincy Housing Authority
80 Clay Street
Quincy, MA 02169

Mr. Flaherty:

It is with deep regret that I inform you that effective March 29, 2018, I resign my position as commissioner of the Quincy Housing Authority. I will be relocating out of state for personal reasons.

I wish to express the honor it has been to serve on the Board and witness perhaps the most dramatic transformation a Housing Authority in the Commonwealth has ever accomplished. When I was appointed to the Board by Mayor Koch eight years ago QHA was perhaps the most poorly managed Authority in Massachusetts. The properties were falling into ruin. As many as forty homes struggled through the winter with only portable electric heaters for warmth. Sewage dripped from kitchen ceilings. Decayed structural beams were supported by random lumber installed by tenants. The high rises had a rancid reek and were infested with bed bugs. Landscaping was unmaintained and overgrown. The grounds were always strewn with litter and debris. Residents parked on lawns. Rules and regulations were ignored. Employees were often disgruntled and unresponsive.

Today all of the properties are pristine. Buildings have new flooring, fresh wall coverings, and new furnishings. The buildings are warm and inviting. All of the high rise buildings have new high efficiency heating and cooling. Every property has been properly insulated. Every structural concern has been addressed. The family units are receiving over 600 new trees and shrubs. The historic center of the community will receive a $100,000 overhaul. Germantown will additionally install a new playground, basketball court and splash park ($800,000 project). Vacated homes are now refurbished and re-leased within days maximizing the number of families that we can serve. New regulations that benefit the residents are enforced. Spirit and neighborliness are the rule.

I am immensely proud of my involvement in the process but need to point out the individuals most responsible for the transformation. First, Mayor Tom Koch was instrumental in carefully choosing new Board members to plan and select the outstanding new management team. He has been cooperative, enthusiastic, and inspirational. I'd like to think the leadership he exhibits in Quincy is reflected in the Quincy Housing Authority.

Secondly, I wish to offer my sincere gratitude to Executive Director James Marathas. He has been relentless in his efforts to improve Quincy Housing Authority. He immediately resolved every health and safety violation. He worked diligently with DHCD and HUD to create a new spirit of cooperation. He groomed maintenance staff members into proud, responsible leaders. He infested the entire maintenance staff with energy and care. He replaced some inefficient senior staff members with aggressive, innovative leaders. He infused a new spirit into the remaining staff. I have worked to imagine ingenious new ideas for improvements to the Authority but rarely get to make the suggestions because they are implemented before I can present them. It is impossible to overstate the importance of Mr. Marathas to the ongoing process.

Mr. Marathas would not be successful were it not for every employee at the authority. They accepted the challenges and have absolutely excelled. I am proud to know many of them and want to express my profound respect for their abilities and enthusiasm. The workers, who are the backbone of any enterprise, have accomplished beyond my imagination.

I will miss my association with everyone at QHA and wish to thank them for my wonderful adventure there.

Sincerely,
Tom Lynn

Commissioner
Quincy Housing Authority

$112-$115 Tax Rate Seen For 1969

Quincy taxpayers face a threatened $112-$115 tax rate following City Council approval of a record high $34,600,000 municipal budget for 1969.

Councillor John J. Quinn, chairman of the council's finance committee, said the budget anticipated the loss of state revenue and other factors will mean a tax rate impact of between $14 and $17. The 1968 tax rate was $98.90.

Quinn's predicted figure is about $3 under that forecast earlier by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

ECUMENICAL MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR FORMER PRESIDENT EISENHOWER

An ecumenical memorial service for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower was held at Quincy's historic United First Parish Church. Participating clergymen included Rev. Bradford E. Gale, Rev. Dean E. Benedict, Rabbi David J. Jacobs, Rev. Richard J. Hawko, Rev. Demetrios Michaelides and Rev. Stephen W. Brown.

The bell tolled sadly and solemn words were spoken in a farewell tribute to the late president.

The Rev. Stephen Brown, pastor of First United Presbyterian Church, Quincy, noted that "Dwight David Eisenhower is a symbol of that which is good and right and strong in our nation."

The nation's 34th president died at his home in Gettysburg at age 78.

QUINCY-ISMS

The Quincy Sun Sunbeams column reported that Edward Roberts would succeed John Schmock as Quincy's Civil Defense Director. ## Supporters Of School Music Program Honored

By TOM GORMAN

The Quincy Band Boosters and K&C Music of Norwood were honored by the school committee recently for supporting the district's instrumental music program.

Quincy Public Schools Director of Academic Programs Dr. Elizabeth Hallett noted that K&C Music is one of the school department's community partners. She singled out K&C's general manager, Walter Andruchow, for his work with the district.

"We have been so fortunate to work closely with him," she told the committee on March 7.

Hallett said that over the past 10 years, the company has provided the Quincy Public Schools band students at all levels with thousands of instruments with cases through purchases, rentals or scholarships.

"This year alone, K&C has donated $50,000 worth of instruments," she said.

These included 11 saxophones and 10 each of clarinets, trumpets, flutes and trombones.

Hallett said Andruchow also provides flexible instrument rental payment schedules for families and assists the music department with instrument repairs, weekly communications with music teachers and "offers valuable professional advice regarding growth and sustainability in our flourishing instrumental music program."

Hallett presented Andruchow with a certificate of appreciation.

"We cannot thank Mr. Andruchow and K&C Music enough for all they have done for the Quincy Public Schools music program and look forward to continuing this wonderful partnership for many years to come," she said.

Andruchow said his company's philosophy is caring "about parents and kids and to see that music teachers do their job and help with their growth."

Quincy Band Boosters (QBB) Lori Hagborg was also honored on behalf of the organization and its other board members, David Jacobs, Amy O'Regan, Annette Donahue and Wendy Adams.

Hallett said the QBB has been an important community partner since its inception in 2013. She explained that the organization supports the music program through fundraising and advocacy.

According to Hallett, since 2015 the QBB has outfitted the entire Sterling Middle School band's percussion section with such instruments as drums, xylophones, bells and cymbals. Additionally, Hallett noted the organization has provided the Quincy High School marching band with such percussion instruments as two concert euphoniums, a marimba, drum sticks and mallets.

"Marching band instruments are made differently to accommodate being carried and moved across a football field or carried along a parade route," said Hallett.

The QBB also provides scholarships to students for private lessons and to attend summer music camps.

"We are grateful to Mrs. Hagborg and the QBB for all they have done to make sure that Quincy band students and their families have everything they need to participate in this meaningful program," said Hallett. "We look forward to continued success and we thank them for their work with us."

In another matter, Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro informed the committee that 125 middle school families received CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation) and AED (Automated External Defibrillator) training by Brewster Ambulance during a program as part of the Matter of Heart Month in February. Nearly 700 grade 8 students were certified in CPR as part of a heart wellness program.

Quincy Native Wins Film Award At Houston Festival

Quincy native and filmmaker Frank DiCesare is pleased to announce that his debut short documentary "Blacksmith" has won the prestigious Remi Award at the 51st WorldFest - Houston International Film Festival.

DiCesare, who is president and CEO of Oskar Films in Sarasota, Florida said, "I am both honored and humbled at the judges' decision to award 'Blacksmith' a Remi. On behalf of the film's subject, Blacksmith Rob Flurry, and my film team of Mahmoud Salimi and Tyler Hargraves, we thank you for this award."

Past Remi Award recipients include Stephen Spielberg, Francis Ford Coppola, George Lucas, Brian De Palma and Ridley Scott. The award is named for American artist and sculptor, Frederic Remington.

Founded in 1961, WorldFest is one of the oldest film festivals in the world and the third oldest in the United States.

Produced in conjunction with Lamar University, "Blacksmith" is a 16-minute documentary that highlights the work of Rob Flurry, the resident blacksmith at the Spindletop-Gladys City Boomtown Museum (<http://www.lamar.edu/spindletop-gladys-city/index.html>) in Beaumont, Texas. Unlike the blacksmiths portrayed in the media today, Flurry's craftsmanship is that of the old-school artisan - no expensive equipment; no modern forge in which to work. Instead, Flurry relies solely on nature's elements of fire, iron, air, and water (along with his own strength) to hammer out beautiful creations within the smoky furnace of his shop.

Filmed in the tradition of poetic documentary, "Blacksmith" was an Official Selection for November, 2017, at the Miami International Film Festival and was recently named an Official Selection at the Boomtown Film & Music Festival in Beaumont, Texas.

"Blacksmith's" trailers can be viewed at <http://www.frankdicesarephoto.com/oskar-films>.

For information about sponsoring "Blacksmith" contact DiCesare at (941) 465-6111 or at frankpjd@gmail.com.

Bob Halloran Guest Speaker At Rotary Club Luncheon

Bob Halloran of WCVB Channel 5 Sports recently addressed The Rotary Club of Quincy about his new book Count The Rings. The book is a boastful, fully illustrated, Boston fan's celebration of the most amazing run of sports dominance any city has ever seen: 10 championships from 4 teams in just 16 years.

Halloran described the journey of how he came to write this book, being invited to do so by a publisher in Connecticut. In addition he shared his well-known fight back from a brain aneurysm. This life-threatening event came exactly at the time that he was supposed to commence writing Count the Rings. He also shared some interesting insights on his personal experiences with Bob Kraft, Bill Belichick and Tom Brady.

Halloran an anchor/reporter for Sports Center 5 on WCVB. He is also an award-winning journalist, accomplished author, movie consultant and sportswriter.

The Rotary Club of Quincy is a group of business professionals who value ethical business conduct and associate as friends for the purpose of bettering their Quincy community, as well as the world community. The group meets at the Neighborhood Club on Tuesdays for lunch from 12:15 to 1 p.m. Guests are welcome.

The Quincy Rotary Club donates volunteer services and money for charities in Quincy and the south shore. They have a 501c3 Foundation that raises money for the purpose of distributing funds for College Scholarships and to support other local service organizations and charities.

Maria Droste 'Pretty In Pink' Spring Fashion Show April 26

The Maria Droste Counseling Agency's annual Spring fashion show, "Pretty In Pink" will be held Thursday, April 26th at Lantana's in Randolph.

Each year this event is held to benefit the efforts of the Maria Droste Counseling Services founded in Quincy in 1992 and located 1354 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The event committee is now in the process of planning what will be a full-fledge welcome to a very long awaited spring. As always this event will prove to be a very fashionable opportunity to socialize with friends and associates.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour followed by dinner, music, live and silent auctions opportunities. The event will culminate with a sensational spring fashion show. This will be the 26th year for this always eagerly awaited gala presentation.

Several local celebrities and trend setters, both male and female, will take to the runway that evening to showcase important spring selections from Caryn's Corner of Quincy. The male side of the fashion story will feature a collection from Hajjar's apparel for men, also of Quincy.

Hair styles will again be under the direction of Susan Canavan from the award-winning Quincy salon, Aura.

Four basic values - acceptance, respect, compassion and healing - are the guiding credo for the staff of counseling professionals at the Maria Droste Services Agency. In order to bring "Hope to Life" to their clients, the staff provides quality services to all in need of a brighter future by offering affordable and timely mental health and holistic services that nurture body, mind and spirit.

Since the agency's beginning, the full-time staff and the many volunteers, all licensed professional social workers, have provided critical support to individuals, couples and family groups with clients of all ages. A negotiated sliding fee scale, based on financial ability to pay, makes it possible to offer support to all people in need of help in several South Shore communities.

The ability to offer this program relies on the work of the committee organizing this special evening, the gracious event sponsors, those offering their services on the runway and in addition those who annually attend that evening. This is the agency's major fund-raising effort and the success of the evening makes the most vital services the agency delivers available to those so in need of their compassionate care.

Check the agency's website for more information about the agency, their services and a peek at past events. www.mariadrostecounseling.com

Peek-A-Blue Hikes Kick Off April 10

The Friends of the Blue Hills will host its first Peek-a-Blue Hike of the year Tuesday, April 10.

The free, one-hour guided hikes created for babies and toddlers are offered every other Tuesday morning at 11 a.m. at Houghton's Pond, 840 Hillside St., in Milton. Free snacks and drinks are provided.

Although the meeting place is always the same, the hike route varies. Parents, grandparents, and child care givers are all welcome, and the hikes are stroller friendly.

There will be special activities at the kick off, including storytelling, songs and an "I Spy with My Little Eye" scavenger hunt with all children receiving a nature coloring book and crayons at the end.

While news headlines bemoan the rise in childhood obesity and related health issues, many local children grow up with one of nature's finest playgrounds in their backyard and yet do not even know it. According to respected researcher Richard Louv, nature offers a documented antidote to many of today's ills, encouraging creativity; decreasing symptoms of attention-deficit disorder (ADD) and depression; increasing standardized test scores and grade-point averages; and improving critical thinking, decision making and problem solving. Parents who bring their children to the Peek-a-Blue Hikes frequently cite their desire to spend time with their children outdoors as the reason for attending the hikes.

Peek-a-Blue Hikes are made possible by a grant from the Milton Junior Woman's Club, L.L. Bean at Legacy Place, and AFC Urgent Care in Braintree and Dedham. The hikes will continue through mid-November weather permitting.

For more information and the dates of the 2018 Peek-a-Blue Hikes, please visit www.FriendsoftheBlueHills.org/peekablue.

Children's Movie Matinees @ NQ

Monday afternoons at 3 p.m. join us at North Quincy for a movie matinee. Our movies for April are:

- April 9th City of Ember Rated PG 90 min.
- April 23rd The Secret Garden Rated G 101 min.
- April 30th Fantastic Mr. Fox Rated PG 87 min.

Music and Movement

with Rubi

On Saturday, April 7th at 10 and 10:30 a.m. sing and dance with Rubi Lichauco! Rubi brings her popular preschool program to Quincy so put on your favorite dancing shoes and join us for this lively mix of music and movement for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

This program is presented as 2 half hour sessions to ensure there is space for everyone to dance and move around.

Middle School

STEAM- Sphero Robots
Students in Grades 5-8 are invited to join us on Tuesday, April 10th at 2 p.m. for Middle School STEAM.

This month we'll be exploring coding with Sphero. Using a variety of Sphero robots we'll be creating mazes and learn how to put them through their paces testing for both speed and accuracy. We'll also try our hands at Robot Bowling using our app controlled Spheros as the balls. Can you get a strike?

Each month we will be exploring a different STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art and math) topic.

Preschool Discovery @ Wollaston

Drop by the Wollaston Library with your preschooler any time between 10 and 11 a.m. on Thursday, April 12th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month we'll be exploring the Ocean as we sort shells, get a close look at sand, eat like whales, and maybe even make our own waves! This program does not require registration.

Science Saturday

- Saving Sea Turtles

Come join us on Saturday, April 14th at 10 a.m. to watch Saving Sea Turtles, a feature-length independent documentary about the efforts to save sea turtles, which includes stories of activities right here in Quincy.

Late each autumn, hundreds of sea turtles strand on Cape Cod, Massachusetts due to hypothermia. For more than 25 years, the New England Aquarium and the Mass Audubon Wellfleet Bay Wildlife Sanctuary have worked together to rescue, rehabilitate and release thousands of these sea turtles, mostly Kemp's Ridleys, the world's most endangered sea turtle.

We will also have sea turtle activities available for more information about these wonderful creatures.

This program is recommended for school age children ages 4 and their families.

Book Clubs for Kids

Do you like to read? Would you like to talk to others about books? Then you will like our book discussion groups. Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3 and 4 meets on the 2nd Thursday of each month.

This month we'll be meeting on April 12th at 7 p.m. to discuss Inventors of LEGO Toys by Erin Hagar.

Everyone has played with LEGO® toys, but not many people know who is behind this awesome invention. Join us for this fun and engaging book that tells the story of how a Danish carpenter and his family created the most popular toy in history!

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 will meet on Tuesday, April 17th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

This month we will be discussing Worldwide Historical Fiction - Cast your net wide and see where (and when) you end up! This month we're reading historical fiction from around the globe and throughout history. Visit the 1960s in the United States and read about the Civil Rights movement, head to China during the Tang Dynasty and travel the Silk Road, or visit Pompeii - just before the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 A.D. Whatever and whenever you read about, come tell us about it in April!

Too busy to join us this month? Stop by the library anytime to find out about when we'll be meeting next.

Mystery Crafts for School Vacation Week

Stop by the Children's Room any time Tuesday, April 17th through Friday April 20th and get crafty.

We'll have all sorts of crafty materials available for you to use so stop by can get creative. This program is for children of all ages, toddlers and preschoolers will, of course, need help from their caregivers in crafting their creations.

Children's Movie

Matinees @ Adams Shore
• Tuesday, April 17th at 10 a.m. Coco rated PG 105 minutes

• Tuesday, April 17th at 2:30 p.m. Ferdinand Rated PG 108 minutes

• Wednesday, April 18th at 2:30 p.m. Wonder Rated PG 113 minutes

Drop in Craft

@ North Quincy

Stop by the North Quincy Library on Thursday, April 19th from 2 to 4 p.m. and make a craft. This program is for children of all ages, toddlers and preschoolers will, of course, need help from their caregivers in crafting their creations.

Mazes and Minotaurs @ Wollaston

If you're looking for something to do during school vacation week, get ready to get lost in the labyrinth! Children ages 5+ are welcome to join us at the Wollaston Branch Library at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 19th for Mazes and Minotaurs! Hear the story of Theseus and the Minotaur, solve some maze puzzles, make your own maze to challenge your friends and family and more!

Percy Jackson Day

Middle School Students are invited to join us on Friday, April 20th from 1 to 4 p.m. for a celebration of all things Percy Jackson. Try your hand at trivia, run the obstacle course, hunt for mythological creatures, craft your own laurel wreath and shield and more.

This program is for middle and high school students.

Puppet Show with Deborah Costine

Join us on Saturday, April 21st at 10:30 a.m. for Turtle's Wetland Quest a story about the Blanding's Turtle and her need to find a new safe wetland for herself and her babies.

"Blanding" the turtle is in search of a new, safe wetland habitat. The little pond where she has lived for many years is no longer safe because a road has been built between her pond and the place where she goes every spring to lay her eggs. Blanding knows what happens when a turtle tries to cross a road! When she meets young Castor the Beaver, who is eager to build a dam and create a new pond, she sees that her problems might be solved! We also meet her friend the Blue Spotted Salamander as well as a little boy named Edward and his nature-loving babysitter Rachel, who teaches him how to look closely at nature for signs of animals and their activities.

This original puppet show by Deborah Costine is recommended for children ages 4 and older accompanied by an adult.

Dungeons and Dragons Encounters

New and experienced players ages 10 to 15 are invited to join us on Tuesday, April 24th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room for this introduction to D&D 5th edition game play. Take on the role of a fantasy hero in this monthly Dungeons and Dragons game.

We will help you customize an Adventurer's League D&D character you can use both in our monthly adventures and at other D&D Organized Play. If this is your first time joining the group please arrive early, about 6:45 p.m., to create your character so we'll be ready to play when everyone else arrives.

Your group of adventurers will start out at level one and take on the module from the 5th Edition D&D Starter Set. Unravel the mysteries of the Lost Mine of Phandelver and what monsters and treasures lie within!

Celebrate Superhero Day

Celebrate Superhero Day, Saturday, April 28th with a special Superhero storytime at 10 a.m. in the Main Library Children's Room. After our stories participants will have a chance to design their own superhero mask and cape.

Saturday Storytime @ North Quincy

Join children's librarian Cathy deVeer and Quinn Z. Bear at the North Quincy Branch, on Saturday, April 28th at 10 a.m. for baseball stories, songs and more.

This program is for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult No registration required.

Preschool Discovery @ North Quincy

Drop by the North Quincy Library with your preschooler any time between 11 a.m. and noon on Saturday, April 28th to do some fun simple science together. Activities, experiments and instructions will be provided for science you can do with your child.

This month we'll be exploring the Ocean as we sort shells, get a close look at sand, eat like whales, and maybe even make our own waves! This program does not require registration.

All programs sponsored and supported by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Rita's Mac & Cheese

By MARIE

Who doesn't love the ultimate comfort food, mac and cheese?

Here is a great recipe especially if you have left over rotisserie chicken as my daughter Rita did. Of course if you don't have that any kind of cooked chicken will fill the bill.

Many of you readers probably know that there is a program on the Food Network Channel titled "The Best Thing I Ever Ate," and this casserole is the best thing I ever ate.

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees, grease a casserole dish

RECIPE

- 1 cup of cooked chicken, diced
- 1 cup of fresh spinach, sautéed
- 1 red bell pepper, diced and sautéed
- 4 ounces cheddar cheese, shredded
- 2 ounces cheddar cheese for topping
- 2 tablespoons of butter
- 2 tablespoons of flour

2 cups of milk

Bread crumbs for topping (about ½ cup)
12 ounces of penne pasta any small pasta will do

To make the roux, melt the butter, stir in the flour until it is a roux. Add the two cups of milk and cook on low heat and mix the ingredients until well blended and thickens. Then add the 4 ounces of cheese to the mixture and blend well until sauce is thickened and set aside.

In olive oil, sauté the spinach and sauté the bell pepper. Then cut up the cooked chicken in small pieces, set aside.

Boil the pasta according to the directions.

In a large bowl mix the pasta, chicken, spinach, bell pepper and then place in a greased casserole dish. Pour the roux over the mixture and spread well.

Sprinkle with remaining 2 ounces of cheese and bread crumbs.

Bake in a 350-degree oven for one half hour to 40 minutes until cheese is bubbly.

Brown Rice Salad

By SUSIE

Here is a delicious Brown Rice Salad recipe that is so nice to make when the weather gets warmer. It tastes even better the next day and is great to bring to a pot luck as well.

This is loaded with protein, nutrients, herbs and vegetables, and will keep you satisfied, and great as a side dish or a light meal. The fresh herbs really make it so don't substitute for dried. Hope you like it!

2 cups of brown rice cooked in 4 cups of vegetable or chicken BROTH according to package directions and let cool. Toss with.....

1 can organic garbanzo beans, drained and rinsed.

1 cup cherry or grape tomatoes, halved

1 cup chopped yellow, green, or red pepper

¾ cup chopped red onion

½ cup chopped fresh basil leaves

¼ cup chopped fresh parsley

And about 1 cup of vinaigrette.....
(More or less as needed)

½ cup apple cider vinegar

½ lemon, squeezed

1 cup extra virgin olive oil

1 clove minced garlic

2 teaspoons raw honey

2 teaspoons sea salt

Pepper

Whisk vinaigrette together well. Toss well with other ingredients and check for seasoning. This is best when chilled for a bit, stirred, and taste tested since all the flavors take a bit of time to "mingle."

E-Cigarettes & Younger Generations: A Public Health Concern

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES

BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

E-cigarettes, devices that typically deliver nicotine, flavorings, and various additives to users through an inhaled aerosol, are a fast emerging trend, and are especially fashionable among youth and young adults. These devices are referred to by a multitude of names, including "e-cigs," "e-hoo-kahs," "mods," "vape pens," "vapes," and "tank systems." E-cigarettes can also be utilized to convey other drugs besides nicotine, such as marijuana. Scientists are still discovering more about how e-cigarettes affect health. However, there is already adequate evidence to justify efforts to prevent use of e-cigarettes by young people. We know that the vapor from e-cigarettes is harmful because it contains dangerous ingredients, including nicotine. Nicotine exposure during adolescence can cause addiction and can be injurious to the developing brain.

Recent e-cigarette use among middle and high school students tripled from 2013 to 2014, according to data published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's Center for Tobacco Products. Findings from the 2014 National Youth Tobacco Survey illustrate that current e-cigarette use (use on at least 1 day in the past 30 days) among high school students increased from 4.5 percent in 2013 to 13.4 percent in 2014, rising from approximately 660,000 to 2 million students. Amongst middle school students, current e-cigarette use more than tripled from 1.1 percent in 2013 to 3.9 percent in 2014, an increase from approximately 120,000 to 450,000 students. This is the first time since the survey began collecting data on e-cigarettes in 2011 that current e-cigarette use has exceeded current use of every other tobacco product overall, including traditional cigarettes. E-cigarettes were the most used tobacco product for non-Hispanic whites, Hispanics, and non-Hispanic other race while cigars were the most commonly used product among non-Hispanic blacks.

The U.S. Surgeon General's Report on e-cigarette use among youth and young adults in 2016, was the first report issued by a federal agency that prudently reviewed the public health issue of e-cigarettes and the impact on young people in the United States. Due to the fact that most tobacco use initiates during adolescence, actions to protect young people from a lifetime of nicotine addiction are crucial.

E-cigarettes are now the most commonly used form of tobacco by youth in the U.S. And dual use, or using both e-cigarettes and conventional cigarettes, is customary among youth and young adults 18-25 years of age. Some of the reasons reported by young people for using e-cigarettes include curiosity, taste, and the idea that e-cigarettes are less harmful than other tobacco products. Flavored e-cigarettes are extremely popular, especially with young adults. Approximately 9 of every 10 young adult e-cigarette users said they use e-cigarettes flavored to taste like menthol, alcohol, candy, fruit, chocolate, or other sweets. More than 8 of every 10 youth ages 12-17 who use e-cigarettes admitted that they use flavored e-cigarettes.

E-cigarettes are a 2.5 billion dollar business in this country. As of 2014, the e-cigarette industry spent $125 million a year to publicize their products, and used many of the techniques that rendered traditional cigarettes trendy such as sexual content and customer satisfaction. We are well versed to the fact that marketing and advertising of traditional tobacco products like cigarettes can steer youth to use tobacco, and researchers are discovering that youth who are exposed to e-cigarette advertisements are more likely to use the product than those who are not exposed.

It is imperative to prevent damage to youth and young adults from e-cigarettes. We are now more aware of the dangers and know enough to take action now to protect the health of our young people. Everyone has a responsibility, including parents, health care providers, teachers, and others who work with and care about young people. You can begin by talking to your kids or to other young people you know about the dangers of e-cigarettes. Tell them about the destruction that nicotine (in any form) can do to their growing brain. Let them know that you take a strong stance against using any tobacco products, including e-cigarettes, now or in the future. If you have used tobacco yourself, share your struggles with them, they will listen.

The following are specific actions that parents and other adults can take to reduce young people's exposure to e-cigarettes:

- Restrict E-cigarette use around young people.

Don't let anyone use e-cigarettes or other tobacco products around young people. Not only are youth observing the behaviors of others as an example, but they're also at risk of exposure to nicotine and other chemicals that can be harmful to their health.

- Frequent tobacco-free locations. Avoid restaurants and other locations that allow use of tobacco products, including e-cigarettes.

- Ensure school is tobacco-free. Check with your school administration to ensure your child's school, college, or university is completely tobacco-free, including being free of e-cigarettes.

- Make certain that

your home is tobacco-free. Make your home and vehicles tobacco-free by not allowing use of any tobacco products, including e-cigarettes, by family members, friends, and guests. This is an essential step to completely protect your children from exposure to second-hand cigarette smoke and secondhand aerosol from e-cigarettes.

- Be an example. Be an example to youth by living tobacco-free. Even if you're quitting tobacco, reveal the reasons why you want to be tobacco-free and ask for their support in your journey.

Remember, youth tobacco use in any form, including e-cigarettes, is hazardous. In today's rapidly progressing tobacco marketplace, the surge in youth use of innovative products like e-cigarettes forces us to confront the reality that the advancement that we have made in reducing youth cigarette smoking rates is being endangered. Working together, we can keep America's youth and young adults safe from the dangers associated with tobacco use and nicotine addiction.

Fallon Ambulance Joins Transformative Healthcare

Fallon Ambulance Service, Massachusetts' oldest independently-owned ambulance service, is joining the Transformative Healthcare family of companies through a major equity investment by Transformative.

The transaction accelerates Transformative's strategic mission to deploy innovation and data analytics in medical transportation to improve healthcare delivery and patient outcomes while reducing costs.

Fallon, which was founded in 1923, has nearly 650 employees, 150 vehicles, and municipal contracts serving over 300,000 Massachusetts residents. It will continue to operate under the Fallon brand name.

Transformative is also the parent company of Life-Line Ambulance Service, operating from 12 locations across New Hampshire and Eastern Massachusetts, and Stewart's Ambulance Service, which has served New Hampshire's Lakes Region for 35 years.

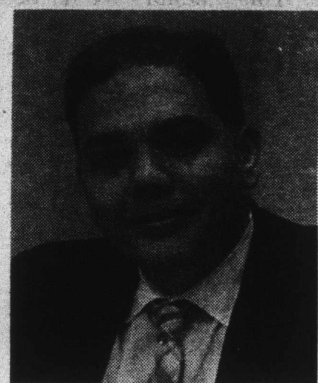

With its investment in Fallon, Transformative has become the largest ambulance service provider in the Massachusetts-New Hampshire market, measured by patients served. Transformative is now the majority owner of Fallon, with the Fallon family retaining a substantial passive ownership position.

As part of this transaction, Fallon's president and chief operating officer, Sean Tyler, has been appointed CEO of Transformative.

"Everyone wants to be on a winning team, and partnering with Transformative Healthcare catapults Fallon into the leading position in our market and in our industry's use of technology and data to transform healthcare delivery for patients, providers, and our communities," Tyler said.

Fallon owner and CEO Tim Fallon said: "With the accelerating pace of change in the EMS field, we recognized we need a strong capital partner to support our ongoing growth and innovation. After considering a number of options, I'm confident Fallon's employees, healthcare institutions, and communities will be best served by the stewardship of the trustworthy team at Transformative."

Student Safety In Schools Forum April 9

The Quincy Citywide PTO will host a Student Safety in Schools Forum on Monday, April 9th from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd., Quincy.

Presenting during the forum will be Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan, Mike Draichio, director of Transportation, Safety, and Security

for Quincy Public Schools and Maura Papile, senior director of Student Support Services.

The forum will open with a presentation reviewing school security/safety procedures, detailing how QPS and Quincy Police work together to prepare for safety incidents, and outlining the services that are in place to assist students before and after an incident. Following the presentation, there will be a Q&A session which will give all in attendance the opportunity to ask questions, share concerns, and offer suggestions.

Due to the subject matter, families are asked to use their discretion if they are considering bringing their children.

The Citywide PTO is a group that brings parents and families from schools around Quincy together to discuss issues on a broader citywide level. All of their meetings are open to the public and they encourage all to attend.

For a schedule of meetings, email pto.citywide@gmail.com, or follow them on Facebook under "Quincy Citywide Parents' Council - Citywide PTO."

DOVE Participates In Day Of Action To Prevent Sexual And Domestic Violence

Staff and supporters from DOVE, Inc. recently participated in Jane Doe, Inc.'s annual Day of Action to Prevent Sexual and Domestic Violence.

Hundreds rallied at the Massachusetts State House and met with state legislators to promote greater funding for community-based services in the Fiscal Year 2019 state budget and support legislative action to increase public awareness and meet the needs of sexual and domestic violence survivors.

This year's Day of Action focused on several specific budget and policy priorities, including:

- Increasing funding in the FY2019 state budget for the Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Prevention and Treatment Services line item;

- Maintain funding for the Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE) program and pediatric SANE;

- Support the Safe Communities Act to support members of immigrant communities in general, and specifically to remove barriers for those who experience sexual and domestic violence from reaching out to police or seeking services; and

- Raise awareness and improve prevention on college campuses by passing an Act Relative to Sexual Violence on Higher Education Campuses.

"The Commonwealth provides critical support for DOVE's programs and services, including our Emergency Shelter, Children's Services, and Community Programs," said Sue Chandler, DOVE's executive director. "We applaud the Commonwealth for its commitment to ensuring access to care for survivors of sexual and domestic violence, and urge their continued leadership."

The Day of Action is just one part of ongoing efforts to expand access to services for survivors in Massachusetts and help prevent future instances of sexual and domestic violence. DOVE encourages community members to get involved; for more information, visit www.janedoe.org.

DOVE is committed to partnering with diverse communities, families, and individuals impacted by domestic violence.

DOVE promotes hope, healing, safety, and social change by providing a broad range of preventive and responsive services.

DOVE provides services to individuals impacted by domestic violence and welcomes refugee and immigrant survivors both documented and undocumented, people with disabilities, people who are deaf or hard of hearing, people of color, and LGBTQ/T and gender non-conforming individuals.

The cost of the program is $150, which includes all books, supplies, and Red Cross fees.

Upon successful completion of the course, an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Certificate, CPR for the Professional Rescuer and First Aid Skills will be issued. For more information call 617-376-1394.

Social Security Matters

Turning 70 And Still Working: What About Social Security?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I turned 70 on March 13, 2018 and I'm single. I was told to apply for Social Security one month before I turn 70, but now I'm hearing that I should have applied 4 months in advance. I have also been told not to apply for Social Security because I plan on still working. I think this is not right, but thought I'd ask anyway. I plan on working after 70 and I'm wondering what happens to the Medicare and Social Security deductions. Are they still deducted? Any other hints would be appreciated. Signed: 70 but Still Kicking

Dear Still Kicking: I'm happy to be able to clarify these things for you. The Social Security Administration recommends that you apply for your benefits up to 3 months before you want them to start, but you won't lose anything because you didn't. Just be sure you specify in your application that you want your "Benefit Start Month" to be March 2018. They will make sure your benefits start for that month, even if they must pay you retroactively.

Working after your benefits start will not affect your Social Security payments in any way. Social Security's annual "earnings limit" goes away once a person reaches their full retirement age, which in your case was age 66. So now at age 70, you can earn as much as you like and your benefits won't be reduced as they might normally be for someone who had not yet reached their full retirement age. But if you continue to work, even though you are on Medicare and collecting Social Security, FICA taxes (which include both Medicare and Social Security contributions) will continue to be withheld from your earnings. There is no exemption because you are already on Medicare or receiving Social Security benefits, nor because you've attained a certain age.

By claiming your benefits at age 70, your Social Security check will be 32% higher than it would have been at age 66. Please be aware also that depending on your income level, some of your Social Security benefits may be taxable income when you file your Federal taxes. As a single filer, if your "combined income", also known as your Modified Adjusted Gross Income (MAGI), exceeds $25,000 then up to 50% of your benefits may be taxable; if your MAGI exceeds $34,000 up to 85% of your benefits may be taxable. To clarify, your "combined income" includes your regular Adjusted Gross Income for income tax purposes, plus 50% of your Social Security income, plus any non-taxable interest you received but did not need to claim on your IRS Form 1040. You should include this potential additional tax obligation in your thinking as you consider your income tax situation.

Quincy Center MBTA Garage Demo Underway

By SCOTT JACKSON

The demolition of the Quincy Center MBTA station's garage has begun, T officials said Friday.

The T plans to demolish the top three floors of the five-story garage, which has remained closed since July 2012. The demolition was slated to begin the weekend of March 24, but it was postponed a week because of an anticipated snowstorm on March 21 that did not come to pass.

The station's busway has been relocated to the center of the parking area on the Hancock Street side of the station, where the taxi queue was previously located. A shielding system is being installed around the station to protect the public while demolition is ongoing.

Demolition work will occur in three shifts. The station will be in full operation during daytime hours on weekdays. During nighttime and weekends shifts the station will be closed to the public and shuttle bus service will be in operation. T officials said the nighttime and weekend work is required because much of the station structure is located over the railroad right-of-way.

Lisa Battiston, a T spokeswoman, previously told The Sun the demolition would take 12 months to complete.

Long Overdue: Renewing The NQ Library Branch

Fundraiser April 27 At Richardson Room To Help Purchase New Tables, Chairs And Shelving

Do you love your library? Do you have fond memories of afternoons spent at the North Quincy Branch back in the day?

Show your support of the city's busiest branch by attending "Long Overdue: Renewing the North Quincy Branch," an evening of food, drinks, music and a silent auction on Friday, April 27. The event will take place from 6-8 p.m. in the Thomas Crane Public Library's beloved and historic Richardson Room, 40 Washington Street, and will be catered by JP Fuji Group.

The event is being hosted by the Thomas Crane Public Library Foundation, a non-profit organization with a mission to support and strengthen the Thomas Crane Public Library by raising visibility of the library and its programs, and encouraging community involvement. The Foundation initiates major fundraising efforts for projects above and beyond what the city can provide while reinforcing the need for continued and increased support for the library.

This year, the Foundation is focusing on the North Quincy Branch so that this special place gets the much needed makeover it needs as it celebrates its 55th anniversary. The North Quincy Branch serves a very active and appreciative community of users of all ages, with significant circulation of children's books and Chinese language materials. Over the last five years, library visitors have increased 34% and the number of items borrowed has increased 45%. Recently, the branch hours have expanded to include Monday mornings.

The Foundation's "Long Overdue" campaign will raise funds to purchase new tables, chairs and shelving to replace dated and worn furnishings as well as allow for a new floor plan to meet the needs of the 21st century.

Tickets for the event are $100 per person and $150 per couple. There are various opportunities to sponsor the event as well as specific areas of the library. Proceeds will benefit interior improvements at the branch and will provide comfortable and flexible spaces for all ages.

In 2015, the Foundation's "Chair Affair" campaign raised $43,000 to purchase new chairs for the Main Library. Current board members include Pamela Linskey, Wayne Miller, Nina Liang, Eric Clark, Diane Costagliola, Diane Dopp, Jennifer Elliot, John Heaney and Emily Walt.

To learn more about the Foundation or for more information about the event and to purchase tickets, visit tcplf.org.

Citywide PTO Begins 'Yakoo' Discussions

By TOM GORMAN

The Citywide PTO has begun discussions on the future of the North Quincy High School "Yakoo" mascot after the organization called for its retirement, saying the symbol is offensive to Native Americans.

Citywide PTO Co-President Scott Alessandro told the school committee on March 7 that his organization planned to hold a meeting the following Monday seeking input from parents on the issue that would be used in future discussions in the district.

"We look forward to sharing the thoughts and insights from the meeting with all of you and working toward an open discussion related to the North Quincy High School mascot," he said. "In those discussions, we will be bringing together information and different perspectives to look at the issue from all angles. This is a wonderful opportunity for the school committee and the QPS (Quincy Public Schools) administration to model for students how to have effective and inclusive conversations and enabling them to have the same conversations in schools and classes."

Alessandro noted that the mascot's model, longtime Quincy dentist Dr. Allan Yacubian, spoke at length on the matter during the school committee's February meeting. Yacubian defended the mascot at the meeting, saying it is supported by North Quincy High students and that "political correctness has run amok."

Yacubian posed for the caricature in 1957 that would become the Yakoo mascot. The symbol has come under fire several times over the past four decades for what some say is a disrespectful image of a Native American. According to Yacubian, representatives from the Harvard University of Native American Studies had told him that they had no problem with the mascot.

At the February meeting, committee member Paul Bregoli backed Yacubian's support for the mascot, saying that the mascot is something is "what the kids want (and) not what some outside people think is the correct thing to do."

Alessandro said the discussion at the February meeting was a good first step on the matter.

"It was helpful to have the North Quincy High School mascot discussed at last month's school committee meeting," he said. "We look forward to the school committee creating opportunities for further discussions."

Alessandro pointed to a letter sent to Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro in December which outlined the PTO's stand against the mascot and asked that school officials hold open discussions about the perception of the symbol.

"In the letter, we requested that the school committee and QPS administration create a strategy and a timeline for enabling a discussion about the North Quincy High School mascot in the Quincy Public Schools," Alessandro told the committee. "We don't know what is best for everybody, but we do know that to get the best solution, it is important to hear from everybody. Open discussions, and more importantly, more formal deliberate opportunities for discussions, allow this to happen. This is what we are hoping to build towards, deliberate, informed, and inclusive discussions about the mascot in the Quincy Public Schools."

None of the committee members responded to Ales-sandro's comments. The issue had been placed on the policy subcommittee's docket last year for future discussion.

In other matters: The committee approved a temporary budget transfer of $900,000 from the special education salaries budget to the vehicle maintenance budget to purchase 27 new minibuses that were deemed totaled by district's insurance carrier as a result of being flooded by the March 2 nor'easter.

Business manager James Mullaney explained that the money would be transferred back to the special education budget once the insurance is paid.

DeCristofaro informed the committee that the state has awarded a $150,000 Project Lead the Way grant to the district where each middle school is to receive $30,000 to help build the STEM (Science Technology Engineering Mathematics) program. The grant will fund the purchase of educational materials for the program.

The committee accepted an $8,500 gift from Blue Cross/Blue Shield for the district's substance abuse prevention program.

The committee approved three school trips: Quincy High school's trip to France and Italy April 12 to 14 where students will visit Monaco, Nice and Eze in France and Rome, Pisa, Florence and Assisi in Italy; Sterling Middle School grade 7 trip to Camp Wing, Duxbury, May 21 to 23; and Quincy High School's Academic Decathlon Team's trip to the National Championship in Washington, D.C. April 27 to 29.

READERS FORUM

'Ill Directed Effort' To Remove NQ Mascot Should Come To An End

We relocated to North Quincy in 1986. For my wife, it was a homecoming as she had lived here for most of her life and went to the three local schools, including North Quincy high school, as did her brother.

Although she knew Doctor (Allan) Yacubian before we relocated, I did not. He became my dentist, however, and remained so until his retirement. He is one of the most caring people that I have ever met. What he has done for the city is there for all to see.

Over the years, I became aware of the story of "Yakoo" and how he inspired the students - past and present. As far as I can tell, he stands for everything that is good relating to camaraderie and team spirit. The Boston high school that I attended did not even have a mascot.

Now it seems that there is a faction in the city that feels that they know better. I have read time and again, in The Sun and elsewhere, that continuing to have Yakoo as the North Quincy high school mascot is somehow detrimental. "To whom", I ask. Not the Native Americans, as this faction would have you believe. The last Sun article I read on this very subject stated that the local Native Americans were in favor of Yakoo because he kept their story alive. One tribe even wanted Yakoo for their mascot.

Why was there no Yakoo chosen for the last Thanksgiving Day football game? I understand that it was the first time this happened. I have always been amazed by the gall of some individuals who believe that they have the right to set the bar regarding what is right and what is wrong.

It is long past the time that this ill directed effort come to an end. It's also time for the NQHS alumni association to let themselves be heard and voice how they feel about their Alma Mata's mascot.

Major Changes Planned For Kincaide Park

recreation committee. The proposal also includes a new rope course, new play and exercise equipment, new lighting and drainage systems, new seating and the planting of 136 new trees.

A $25 million park improvement bond passed by the council last spring set aside $1 million for Kincaide Park, which is currently home to single baseball and softball diamonds as well as a playground. City officials began eyeing bigger changes to the site, however, after receiving input from 100 neighborhood residents last summer. Sterling Middle School and the Lincoln-Hancock Community School were also consulted during the planning process.

"The vision that we developed for Kincaide Park was informed from this community-engagement process and we really looked to create significant benefit by improving this park, which in turn improves the public vitality and health of this area," said Scott Bishop of Quincy-based Bishop Land Design.

"It's been vetted with the public in terms of what their programmatic wishes are, but it's also been vetted with the local schools because it's very critical that they also use this space as part of their programming throughout the day."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, whose district includes Kincaide and the surrounding neighborhoods, referred to the park as dark and sketchy Monday. The proposed improvements would change that, he said, and create a field the entire community could use.

"This is a part of our community that has been often overlooked and this is an opportunity now to, in the park space, get some parity," Palmucci said. "This spot could be the epicenter of South Quincy, community-wise."

"The ability to reimagine Kincaide and have it be a point of interest for all ages, all incomes and for the entire community – not just the folks who are living in that South Quincy area – is amazing and that's what this plan does."

Other councillors welcomed the improvements as well, including Councillor Anne Mahoney, who recalled playing at Kincaide while growing up, and Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy, the committee's chairman.

"It's something that I know this area of Quincy has been waiting for for a long time and I'm excited to see that," Mahoney said. "You're going to be serving two schools – Sterling and Lincoln-Hancock – plus a community that has really been underserved."

"It's a way overdue in West Quincy," McCarthy said. "This will just make it much more brighter and put us in the right direction, so I applaud Councillor Palmucci and Councillor Mahoney...for getting behind this."

There is no estimate for how much the park project would cost, according to Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch. The cost will surpass the $1 million included for Kincaide in last year's park improvement bond, he said, and the city will seek outside funding sources – including federal and private grants – for the project.

"It's safe to say at this point it will be substantially more – the appropriations request – than what was originally set aside in the park improvement bond," Walker said.

"The economics of this neighborhood open us up to some potential federal and foundation grant monies for this so we're exploring those opportunities and we will have a plan before this body in the relatively near future for financing this project."

Bishop said the project could be ready to go out to bid by this summer. The project would take nine to twelve months to complete, he said following the meeting.

Under the plan for Kincaide unveiled Monday, the central portion of the site would be made into a FIFA-regulation soccer pitch with a natural-turf playing surface. The large soccer field could be broken down into smaller fields as needed; a schematic shown Monday had four youth soccer fields taking up the space of the larger field.

"This nice green opening allows for a lot of different types and scales of play," Bishop said. "This will be a high-use field...we have to design that in a way that it is going to withstand that high use throughout the season."

Two basketball courts and a half court would be located at the Roberts Street entrance to the park and an additional hardscaped area could be used for other games, such as foursquare. Bishop said the basketball courts could be converted to tennis courts in the future if that was desired.

Two bocce courts would be located near the Water Street entrance to the park.

Terraced seating would be provided overlooking the soccer pitch and the courts. Benches would also be installed in the park.

The splash pad and a rope course would be located between the Roberts Street and Gilbert Street entrances to Kincaide; the latter entrance would be improved as part of the project as well. The splash pad would not require supervision because water will not pool on site, Bishop said. He said South Boston's Sweeney Playground has a similar splash pad.

The sprint track, which Bishop said was sought by the schools, would be located along the western edge of the parking lot. The running and walking track would loop through the park.

"Middle school is primarily doing sprint in terms of how they do their track workouts, so we designed a sprint track that fits that specific need," Bishop said. "People can utilize the greater running or walking trail in combination with that."

The park would include a new playground near the splash pad. Additional play and exercise equipment would be located throughout the park.

Palmucci: Make Tax Payments Donations

a cap on charitable deductions a taxpayer can claim.

Palmucci's resolution asks Mayor Thomas Koch's administration to create a mechanism that would allow the city to reduce a resident's property tax liability provided the resident make a charitable donation to the city equal to the property tax forgiven.

"This is an effort to provide tax relief for Quincy taxpayers," Palmucci said.

Palmucci said 1,100 of the 25,000 residential properties in Quincy pay more than $10,000 in property taxes. Of those, 100 are single-family homes.

The median household income in Quincy is $62,000 and the median value for a single-family home is $430,000, Palmucci said. He said a median-income earner living in a median-valued single-family home would pay $8,900 in state and local taxes - $3,200 in state income tax and $5,700 in property taxes to the city.

"This would have significant benefits to Quincy residential taxpayers," Palmucci said.

Several states – including California, Nebraska, Virginia and Washington – are contemplating similar provisions, according to Palmucci, and New York could soon become the first state to enact such a law.

Palmucci said some legal scholars have determined such a workaround to the cap on the SALT deduction to be legal, though he expects the IRS will challenge New York's law once it is enacted.

The council approved Palmucci's resolution in a 7-1 vote. Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes cast lone no vote against the resolution.

"I just think there are too many variables now and a lot of states are trying to score political points," she said following the meeting. "I think we should slow our roll on this and see how this plays out."

"I'm all for thinking about this if it makes sense in the future, but not right now."

Backyard Safety Checklist: Tips To Inspect Trees

By JIM DOYLE

Hartney Greymont,

A Davey company

With winter storm season hopefully behind us, it's time to survey our homes and trees. Storms, ice and temperature fluctuations during winter took their toll on trees, wreaked havoc on local ecosystems and caused loss of power and major damage.

After these storms, make it a priority to check landscape trees. Keeping trees healthy, pruned and structurally-sound helps minimize accidents throughout the season.

Trees maintained

throughout the year are less likely to break apart in storms because weak branches are identified and carefully removed before the storm can break them.

Poorly maintained trees can become a problem. Regularly check trees for broken, damaged, or leaning trunks, branches or limbs. Some maintenance is best left to the professionals. Check for the following signs to reduce the risk associated with your trees.

7 Signs Your Trees Need Attention:

1. Deadwood: Dead trees and branches can fall at any time. Look for leafless branches when others begin to flaunt new, green leaves. Another sign of deadwood is old bark that has mostly fallen away—instead there is only smooth wood underneath.

2. Cracks: Storms can cause branches to twist, bend and crack. Check for deep splits in the bark that extend into the wood of the tree.

3. Decay: Soft wood or cavities where wood is missing are signs of decay. Decay at the base of the trunk or in the roots can lead to the entire tree falling over. So, be particularly attentive to signs of decay in these areas. Healthy trees are better suited to wall off decay while struggling trees will succumb to decay more quickly. This is another good reason to keep your trees healthy.

4. Weak branch unions: When two or more branches or trunks that are roughly equal in size come together in a tight "V"-shaped angle, there is frequently bark embedded in the union. This makes for a weak attachment that is more likely to break apart.

5. Evidence of soil lifting near roots: High winds can cause trees to rock, even causing roots to break off or lift. Check to see if a tree is leaning, or if the soil near the base of the tree is lifting on one side. This can be a particularly serious problem in areas where digging, trenching or construction activities may have damaged roots.

6. Imbalanced tree crown: Some trees grow naturally with an imbalanced or lopsided canopy, and they compensate by growing extra wood to support the weight. Other trees begin growing in a balanced manner, but excessive pruning or damage removes much of the canopy on one side. This sudden imbalance in the canopy brings additional force to the trunk and roots, increasing the likelihood of failure. Pay close attention to trees that have experienced rapid change in the shape or size of their canopy.

7. Trees impacted by construction: Closely examine trees near areas where construction activity has impacted the area near the tree, particularly if digging has taken place within the drip line of the tree (that's the area directly under the branches). Digging can cut through roots, and the compaction of soil with heavy equipment or the addition of fill soil can smother the roots, increasing the likelihood that the entire tree will fall over.

Although defective trees present increased risks, not all of them need to be removed immediately, and some defects can be treated to prolong the life of the tree. Seek a consultation with a certified arborist to evaluate tree species, soil conditions, wind exposure, defects, overall health and other factors to determine a tree's hazard potential.

Tree risks aren't always visible or obvious. Advanced analysis, sometimes through the use of specialized arborist tools or techniques, may be necessary.

Storms can be quick but cause significant and lasting damage. Be prepared by having a plan to prevent devastation on your property. Consult with your local Hartney Greymont Tree Expert about tree safety today.

O'Donnell Delivers Donated Clothing To Interfaith Social Services Suits For Success Program

Thanks to the continuing generosity of many Norfolk County residents, Register of Deeds William O'Donnell recently delivered a sizeable clothing donation through its Suits for Success program to Interfaith Social Services of Quincy.

"I want to thank Norfolk County residents and those that visit the Registry of Deeds for their overwhelming response. It was my pleasure to deliver these critically needed clothing items to Interfaith Social Services of Quincy," O'Donnell said.

Suits for Success is a program that facilitates the collection of donated business clothing for men and women who are in need of appropriate workplace apparel whether it's going on a job interview or starting your first day on the job. These contributions help deserving individuals reenter the workforce and achieve economic independence.

O'Donnell handed over an array of clothing items, such as men's suits; dress pants; collared shirts; women's suits; women's dress pants and blouses.

Eileen Kelly, Food Pantry and Career Closet Manager for Interfaith Social Services, said "We very much appreciate everyone's generosity. The Registry's Suits for Success program is one of the reasons we are able to partner with organizations such as Quincy Career Center to help men and women who are attempting to get back into the workforce."

"The Registry is proud of its partnership with Interfaith Social Services," O'Donnell said. "This is a great program for it truly helps out people who want to help themselves out."

Those interested in making a clothing donation can drop off new or gently used business appropriate clothing, professionally cleaned, at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, 649 High St., Dedham, Monday through Friday during the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Registry. For more information regarding a donation, contact Alicia Gardner at (781) 461-6104.

"I want to again express how grateful I am to all the caring individuals in our Norfolk County communities who have made the Suits for Success program a great success," O'Donnell said. "Having something in your closet that you don't usually wear can make a world of difference to someone else."

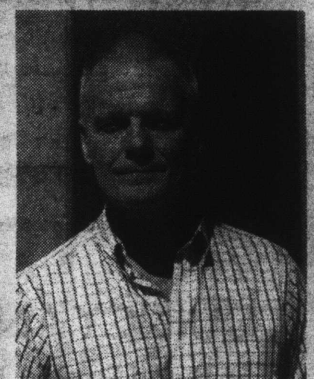

"I also want to express my thanks to Rick Doane, executive director, the board of directors, staff and volunteers at Interfaith Social Services who do an outstanding job helping those less fortunate in our South Shore communities."

On Saturday, March 24, at approximately 7:26 p.m., Officers Sean Fitzgerald and Nick Rolfsen were dispatched to a School Street address for an unwanted female banging on the front door.

Upon arrival, the officers saw a male and a female at the entrance. The male, who was the homeowner, stated the unknown female was banging on his door. He opened the door and the female immediately claimed that she had the wrong address. The owner's wife called the police when the female refused to leave.

The officers noted the female appeared slightly intoxicated while reiterating that she simply went to the wrong address. The female was not very cooperative but since no crime was committed and there were no outstanding warrants, she was sent on her way. In the back of their minds, the officers believed the female may have been checking to see if anyone was home prior to breaking in.

At 7:46 p.m., 20 minutes after the first call, another call came in from an apartment three houses away. The frantic caller stated an unknown female just walked into their apartment and was wrestling with her husband. Upon arrival, Officers Fitzgerald and Joseph Paccioretti entered the apartment complex and as they walked down the hallway, a large group of people began yelling to them to come quickly. The officers entered the apartment and encountered the same female from the earlier call. The residents were very excited and yelling that the female broke into their apartment and tried to steal a cell phone.

There were multiple families and children around the female so the officers escorted her out to the hallway, where she was handcuffed. Once she was out of the building and en route to the station for booking, Officer Fitzgerald returned to the apartment to talk to the residents. The wife said she was in bed when the bedroom door opened and it was this woman she has never seen before. She said she started yelling for her husband who immediately came to her rescue. He demanded to know from the female why she was in their apartment.

In response, the female started yelling and pushing him. The husband said he suffered a laceration to his elbow during the struggle. The female had in her possession a cell phone and other valuable items that she attempted to leave with. The wife called the police who quickly responded and took the female into custody. The husband refused medical treatment.

The residents stated their apartment door was shut but not locked because they were expecting family to come over. The wife was shocked to believe the female was still trying to steal items even after being confronted by her husband. The wife said that she was in fear that her family would be harmed.

The female, a 46-year-old Braintree resident, was charged with breaking and entering and assault and battery. Nice Work!

POINTS TO PONDER FROM THIS CASE:

- At the first house, it is not wise to open your door to strangers. It was dark out and beyond the time when solicitors would come to your door. Even then, most people do not want to be harassed by unwanted offers.
- Better - look out a window to see who and how many people are at your door. If the person claims that they are from a delivery service, look for a company vehicle to corroborate their claim. Talk through the door, making sure that it is locked and inquire what the person at your door wants. If you do not want them there, sternly tell the person that you are not interested. If he/she/they persist, immediately call the Police.

• Best - Call the Police regardless. Let us check into who is going door to door, whether they are authorized to do so, especially when it is dark out. If it is a solicitor, an Officer will advise them to cease in order to prevent alarming residents. By calling, you are protecting your neighbors too.

At the second house, which was an apartment building, tenants should be concerned that the female gained access into the building. There should be locked exterior doors to prevent access by unwanted solicitors and potential criminals.

• The tenant said that their door was left unlocked because they were expecting friends. Unlocking a door when company arrives takes seconds in an apartment. The incident caused a minor injury and no financial loss, but it can be traumatic, especially for children.

REMEMBER - in an emergency, when calling "911" from a cell phone, the call is received by the State Police, who will then forward it to the Quincy Police. Many callers in their panicked emotional state start telling the State Police dispatcher what is occurring while the Dispatcher is asking for your city or town. When the dispatcher answers, immediately say, "Quincy" which will save crucial time.

• Start out by stating your address. This helps the Dispatcher by immediately sending cruisers in the right direction. Provide as much information as possible but be sure to listen to the Dispatcher's questions because they have been trained and are well experienced to handle emergency calls.

Health Matters from Carney Hospital

SPOTLIGHT ON MINIMALLY INVASIVE SURGERY

Potential benefits such as quicker recovery and less pain has made minimally invasive surgery increasingly popular for a variety of surgical procedures. There are some operations, such as gallbladder removal, where minimally invasive surgery is more widely used than conventional open surgery.

Minimally invasive surgery, also called laparoscopic or endoscopic surgery, may require a few incisions of less than a half-inch each, compared to an incision of five to eight inches or longer with open surgery. During minimally invasive surgery, the surgeon inserts a scope consisting of a flexible tube with a camera and light attached into one of the incisions. Images are sent to a screen, which the surgeon watches while performing the surgery using a tool or tools inserted through one or more of the other incisions.

Benefits of Minimally Invasive Surgery

Not all surgeries can be performed using minimally invasive techniques. Major cancer, heart or other surgeries may require a more open surgical field. In some instances – even if a laparoscopic procedure is performed routinely – a physician may determine that a patient doesn't qualify for the surgery based on his or her overall health or condition.

However, when laparoscopic surgery is determined to be a good option, it may offer the following benefits over open surgery:

- Shorter recovery time. Since small incisions usually heal faster than large ones, some surgeries can be done on an outpatient basis. Surgical patients who are admitted to the hospital may be released sooner and return to their regular activities faster.
- Less pain. Smaller incisions generally mean less post-operative pain.
- Lower risk of infection. Smaller wounds are generally at less risk of infection.
- Less blood loss. The tiny incisions involved in minimally invasive surgery usually result in less blood loss than would be experienced with open surgery.
- Less scarring. This can be a significant consideration for some patients.

Cutting-Edge Surgery with Less Cutting

Gallbladder removals and appendectomies are among the most commonly performed minimally invasive procedures, but laparoscopic surgery is commonly used for many other procedures including:

- Gallbladder removal
- Gastrointestinal disorders, including anti-reflux surgery
- Bariatric procedures for weight loss
- Hernia repair
- Gynecological surgeries
- Colon and rectal conditions including colitis and diverticulitis, Crohn's disease, bowel resection, and colon cancer

Urological procedures

Martin Williams, MD, Carney Hospital Chief of Surgery, notes that Carney Hospital has expanded its minimally-invasive and orthopedic robotic-assisted surgery options for patients seeking less-invasive surgery.

"With the arrival of advanced laparoscopic and endocrine surgeon Matthew Brackman MD, FACS, and orthopedic surgeon Leonid Dabuzhsky, MD, Carney Hospital can provide a number of minimally invasive general and orthopedic surgical options," says Dr. Williams. "We are pleased to provide surgical options that make the patient's experience shorter, easier and less painful."

If you are anticipating surgery, your physician will discuss your options with you and determine whether minimally invasive surgery is appropriate for you.

SURGERY WITH LESS PAIN?

CARNEY HOSPITAL WELCOMES SURGEON MATTHEW BRACKMAN, MD, a specialist in minimally-invasive, laparoscopic procedures which can mean less pain, smaller incisions and scars, and quicker recovery. Less-invasive surgeries are one more way that Carney Hospital is helping patients get back to normal faster.

Over 100 Bands Expected To Perform At PorchFest June 23

By SCOTT JACKSON

More than 100 bands are expected to participate in the third annual PorchFest Quincy, which will take place this year on June 23.

The event will run from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. that day in the city's Merrymount, Squantum and Wollaston Hill neighborhoods. PorchFest features musical acts performing on porches, yards and driveways.

Walter Hubley, who is co-organizing the event with Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain, said the 2017 PorchFest saw more than 100 bands perform at 80 different residences in those three neighborhoods. He expects just as many this June – if not more.

"Last year we had about 110 bands at 80 locations. We see it maybe staying about the same size, maybe getting a little bit bigger as it gets more popular," Hubley said.

Registration is ongoing for musical acts looking to perform and residents looking to host musicians on their porch or yard. Volunteers can sign up online at porchfestquincy.org through May 31.

"We're currently accepting sign-ups for bands and porches. Anyone who is in a band that wants to perform regardless of whether they're from Quincy or not – we've had bands from as far away from Connecticut and all over Massachusetts. We're taking sign-ups on the website for bands," Hubley said. "And then if someone in those neighborhoods wants to volunteer a porch, we can't use everybody but they go to the website too."

Last year's event also included a beer garden in Squantum, and Hubley said this year's PorchFest could include beer gardens in Merrymount and Squantum.

PorchFest, Hubley said, showcases local artists, Quincy's neighborhoods and the people who call them home. It also helps bring people together.

"Here is how I think about it. It highlights three amazing things: local artists, Quincy's beautiful neighborhoods and the people who live there," Hubley said.

"I love seeing neighbors get together and get to know each other. One thing I find as well is people have different interests even different cultures and so forth, but what we all have in common is a love for music. That can bring people together and give people something to have in common."

Hubley, who helped the Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association with his wife, Kathryn, called PorchFest the most exciting community initiative in which he has been involved.

"It is probably the most exciting and well-received community effort that I've ever done," he said. "My wife and I started the Wollaston Hill Neighborhood Association, we've been on PTOs, we've done all kinds of fundraisers and events and stuff like that. I've never experienced something as exciting to people as PorchFest. It's just so well received."

Hubley said he was inspired to start PorchFest after meeting with Cain. They planned to have 10 or 20 bands perform in the Wollaston Hill neighborhood the first year of year, 2016, but more than 70 bands would end up participating that year.

"It started at my dining room table – he came over and we were talking about neighborhood association stuff and we decided to try this PorchFest thing. We thought let's get 10 porches on our hill, maybe 10 to 20 bands and call it a success," Hubley said of his meeting with Cain. "Next thing you know, the first year it was 74 bands in three neighborhoods. It was crazy."

Discover Quincy has helped fund the event the past three years, and this year t-shirts are being sold on the PorchFest website. Proceeds will go towards covering the cost of the event.

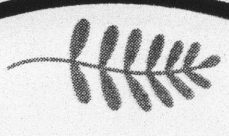

"This is our third year getting some help from Discover Quincy. Margaret Laforest has been awesome," Hubley said. "But we also started to sell t-shirts to help fund it as well and t-shirts can be purchased on the website and all the profits go to the non-profit that is PorchFest Quincy. It's a non-profit 501 (c)(3), so anyone who donates to it or buys a t-shirt, that money is tax deductible."

Squantum School runs on Dunkin'

SQUANTUM ELEMENTARY SCHOOL recently received a generous donation from the local Dunkin' Donuts that will be used to support a number of programs and projects during the current school year. The donation was presented to Principal Stephen Sylvia (center) and PTO president Kenda Coulter (right) at the Dunkin' Donuts on East Squantum Street. With them is Krisanthi Jankulla, general Manager, Govostes group DD. "We cannot say thank you enough to the Govostes family for their generosity and supporting our school," Sylvia said. "We are very fortunate to have Dunkin' Donuts as part of the Squantum community."

Woodward School Eyes Renovation, Expansion

said. "That's when we're hoping to do sort of your traditional ribbon cutting of sorts."

The project will aim to preserve much of the school's historic look, while at the same time modernizing the building.

"We're trying to do our best to preserve that which we know was original to the school. Over the years, there have been a lot of modifications done and we're really engaging professionals to try and make sure we're preserving as much of the school's historical look as possible while also trying to make the school even more supportive of our mission," Hubley said.

"There is a balance there – you need more technology and it's good to have more comfort but you also want to preserve the historical aspect. I think that's going to be the thing we need to balance."

The first phase of the project will commence in June after the school year comes to an end. At that point, the original six-room schoolhouse – the portion of the building closest to Greenleaf Street – will be renovated. The plans is to make the exterior look like it did when the school first opened in 1894, including painting the exterior its original shade of blue and installing Victorian windows.

"We just got approval from the historic commission here in Quincy with our plans," Hubley said. "We're going to be re-siding it – new trim, new clapboards. We're going to bring it to its original color as close as possible. We're going to do new landscaping and we're going to do new insulation...to really make that school a lot warmer in the wintertime. And we're going to be replacing the windows and bringing it back to the original look because we have some of the original photos."

"The historic commission was thrilled with the plans," Hubley added, "that we're going to make it look closer to what it did in the period in which it was built."

The school has also started planning the expansion of the rest of building, gathering feedback from parents, alumni, and others. That work could begin this fall.

"The design phase starts now because we're gathering input from our alum, we're gathering input from

WOODWARD SCHOOL HEADMASTER Walter Hubley (right) points to the southern wing of the private school which is eyed for expansion. "Our goal is to add an auditorium space and an official-size gymnasium spaces as well as additional classroom space and redo the existing cafeteria and some library space," Hubley said. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth our current families who have students there, gathering input from our teachers, and we're also consulting professionals within our accreditation body, NEASC, just getting input on what we need to think about, what we need to do," Hubley said,

"We're also taking tours of other schools that have recently done renovations and expansions to get sort of the lessons learned from their experience. We're going to put all that together in the hopes we'll have a plan that we'll execute on probably starting in September."

To plan the project the school has retained two architects including Maggie Will, a 2011 Woodward graduate.

"It's great to have a former student involved who is an architect because she is going to have a unique perspective as a seven-year student of the building and using it and the way it is,"

Hubley said. "She is really going to be able to give me good input and ideas on how it could be that would have made her experience even better."

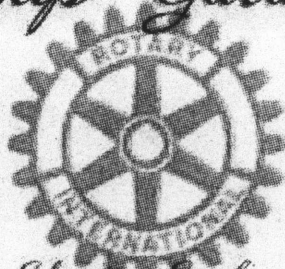

The southern wing of the building houses Woodward School's cafeteria, gymnasium and several classrooms. The gym is not regulation size, Hubley said, which requires the school to rent the basketball court at the Salvation Army's building on Baxter Street to host home games. By expanding the wing, the school would be able to build a regulation-size gym.

"The expansion we're contemplating in the future is to redo the south-facing side and potentially expand it a bit. Our goal there is to add an auditorium space and an official-size gymnasium spaces as well as additional classroom space..."

Clean Sweep For 4th Grade Girls

The outlook is certainly promising for girls' basketball in the City of Quincy in future years. Quincy's 4th grade girls concluded their basketball seasons with championships in both the Metro West Travel Basketball program as well as a State of Massachusetts Basketball Championship.

North Quincy's Sacred Heart Basketball 4A team lead by Jose Diaz and Angela Mergel concluded with a Division 1 Metro West Championship and an entry in the Massachusetts state tournament which was won by the North Quincy Girls Sacred Heart Basketball 4A team.

"This was just a great season by all our girls, these girls work tremendously hard all season long and the work they have put in shows," said Coach Diaz. The 4A team concluded the season with a 13-1 record with tournament wins over Newton (37-10) and Easton (win 36-24) for a Metro West Championship. In state tournament play 4A had wins over Haverhill (20-7), Reading (36-15) Westwood (34-26) with a State Championship win over Haverhill (22-12).

Not to be outdone was the 4th grade girls Basketball B team lead by coaches Mike Healy and Cole Barry with a Metro West Travel Basketball Tournament Championship.

"Our girls played tough opponents in Mansfield (win 33-2), Easton (win 28-18), Hopkinton (win 30-16) and a Championship win over Medfield 24-14," Healy said. "Our girls went 12-0 on the season, 16-0 including our Tournament wins, we couldn't be happier for them."

Both teams play for the North Quincy Sacred Heart Basketball program which has travel basketball teams in grades 2-8 (boys & girls) as well as a strong House Basketball program grades k-12. Travel Basketball teams compete in both the South Shore Basketball Leagues & Metro West Basketball leagues. "It's been a lot of fun and I can't believe the winter season is over. This is collective effort by all, we have parents from both sides (both teams) attending and watching our girls play and it couldn't be more exciting for everyone we can't wait to see what's ahead," said North Quincy 4A parent Kathy Mann.

Best of luck in the future girls!

Bricks for Veterans Program

Announcing PHASE 2

Last year, the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 294, Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy began a new initiative called "Bricks for Veterans" at Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, Quincy.

The program was a success with more than engraved 416 bricks sold and placed along the walkway to the island's main flag pole.

Now, the Squadron is announcing PHASE 2.

These engraved bricks will form a patio in front of the flower bed located on the Pleasant Street side of the island in Fort Square.

Bricks are available for $50 each. The bricks can be inscribed with a veteran's name, rank and branch of service. A sample brick appears above.

This form can be clipped, filled out and mailed to order a brick.

Quincy Boys Volleyball Battles In Loss To Braintree

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High boys volleyball team played well in its second game of the season, but a few points separated them from a win over the Braintree Wamps last Saturday.

The Presidents had many competitive volleys, but came out on the short end of a 3-0 loss (25-21, 25-17, 25-23) in their second game of the season to put their record at 1-1.

Quincy battled back-and-forth with Braintree in the first set, but started to lose some ground late, and the Wamps carried that momentum over to the second set. In the middle frame, the Presidents' foe was able to get out to a 10-1 advantage from the start, putting the home team in a hole. The Presidents managed to out score their opponent for the remainder of the set, but it would not be enough to overcome the deficit.

Morrisette Baseball Seeks State Tournament Volunteers

Morrisette Legion baseball team is looking for volunteers to work the 2018 Legion State tournament being held at Adams Field this summer.

The tournament runs from Saturday, July 28th through Thursday, Aug. 2nd.

The first of three meetings will be held Sunday, April 8th at 4 p.m. at the Morrisette Post. All volunteers are welcome.

For more information contact Head Coach Steve Maze at Morrisetteball@aol.com.

NQ Girls Lacrosse Wins Opener, 15-8

North Quincy girls varsity lacrosse won its home opener, 15-8, against Fontbonne Academy March 29.

Goal scorers from North were: Olivia Hussey scoring 5 goals, Nora McLaughlin scoring 3 goals, Celia Hussey scoring 2 goals, and Celia White, Jill Hallisey, Olivia Liang, Olivia Murray, and Sara Wong each scoring a goal.

Joanna Setow has a great game in net with 12 saves.

Bicycle Traffic Skills Class April 7-8

The Mayor's Bicycle Commission and QuincyCycles, in collaboration with MassBike, are bringing a League of American Bicyclists' Traffic Skills 101 class to Quincy on April 7-8.

The class will be held at the Quincy Recreation Department, 1 Merrymount Parkway from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. both days: Saturday, April 7, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for an indoor session, and Sunday, April 8, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for an outdoor session on the bike.

The League of American Bicyclists' Smart Cycling program is designed to develop your knowledge and expertise in the craft and science of bicycling — the ability to use a bicycle with confidence and competence for pleasure, utility and sport under various highway, climate, terrain, and traffic conditions. The bicycling education program was started in 1974, and continues to be the only nationally recognized cycling education program with trained and certified instructors.

Traffic Skills 101 is the foundation of the program. It provides instruction and guidance in the basic principles of vehicular bicycling. Bicyclists have more fun when they ride with skill and confidence. This course combines classroom discussion and parking lot activities with on-road practice of the principles of vehicular bicycling. The instructor for this course is certified by the League of American Bicyclists and has years of experience and training.

Registration fee is $50 for MassBike members and $60 for non-members. For more information and to register, visit massbike.org/ts101quincy.

CHIROPRACTOR AS GAIT KEEPER

Simply stated, the term "gait" refers to the way a person walks. While walking may seem to be an uncomplicated activity, injuries, underlying conditions, or problems with the legs and feet can lead to an abnormal gait that can compromise a person's mobility and health. For this reason, chiropractors devote a good deal of their attention to evaluating the gait of their patients for signs of abnormal gaits such as "spastic gait" (dragging the feet), "scissor's gait" (crossed legs that hit while walking), "steppage gait" (pointing the toes inward and scraping them on the ground), "waddling gait," "propulsive gait" (head and neck pushed forward), and "limp." Once diagnosed, chiropractors treat abnormal gait by determining and correcting the underlying cause. A person's gait can reveal problems in the feet, ankles, knees, and hips — even in spinal alignment. A problem with gait can indicate pain in a patient as well as serious conditions like diabetes and arthritis. To schedule an appointment, please call FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617-472-4220. We accept most major insurance plans which included but not limited to Blue Cross Blue Shield, Harvard Pilgrim, Tufts, Mass Health Standard, Neighborhood Health Plan, Medicare, Network Health. Our family-oriented practice is located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy.

P.S. Because an individual with an abnormal gait may develop additional aches and pains associated with his or her walking pattern, it is important to address the problem.

Quincy Boys Volleyball Battles In Loss To Braintree

The Presidents took that momentum from the second half of the second set and used it to their advantage by the time set No. 3 came around. In it, the Presidents led 16-11 before the Wamps raced back and defeated them by two points.

Although the Presidents were unable to come out on top in their second game of the season, they showed they could play a highly competitive game against a quality opponent early in the season.

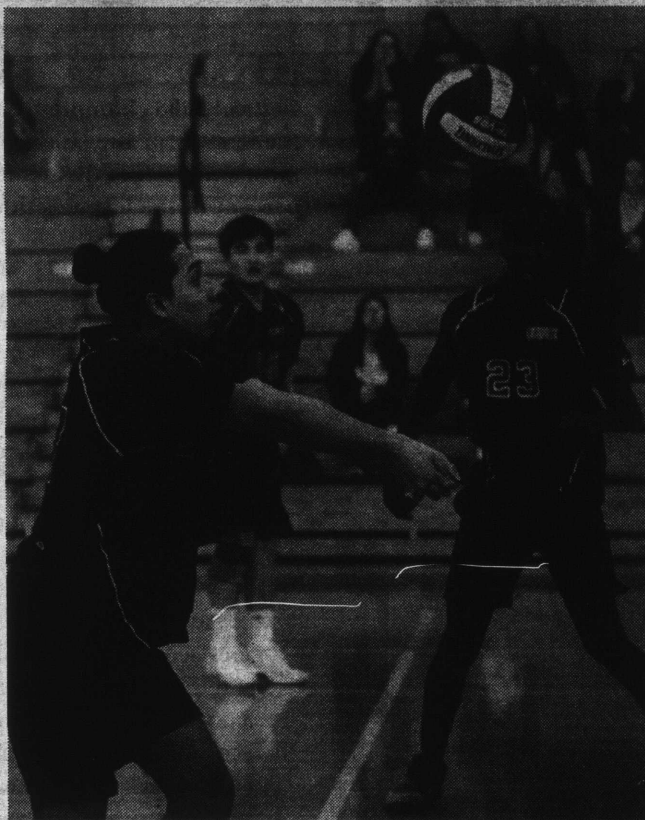

"We definitely came back and hung with them," Presidents head coach Jacqui Niosi said. "I think we got a little shell shocked late in the first one and early in the second one, but we rebounded nicely."

Certainly, it was beneficial for the Presidents to play a tough program like Braintree early in the season. After all, there are not really any easy games in the Bay State Conference.

"Braintree is good," Niosi said. "They've got some big hitters up there. We've got a mix of seniors and younger kids, but there's definitely a bit of a learning curve, but we're getting there."

"Our league is really tough and Braintree is a really good team," she added. "Anytime you step onto the court against a team like that, it's very good for us."

Christ Pham had a team-high seven kills for the Presidents against Braintree while Ian Kahugo was second with five and Stephen Andrews finished close behind him with four. Pham also had a team-best nine digs while Brendan Corbett finished the day with five and Thomas Le and Tommy MacPherson each put up five apiece. Le also had 20 assists in the bout. Corbett, QUINCY'S RAFAEL PENA GARCIA returns a Braintree shot.

Pham, MacPherson and Andrews each recorded an ace while serving.

In practice, Niosi said her team's biggest focuses include working on communicating and their play in transition.

"Those are two of the toughest things to do consistently, as we're getting used to playing next to one another," she said. "You have to know what their style is like, what plays they're going to make and what you need to do to help them out and what not."

Watching her team practice as well as play in two games so far, Niosi said one major positive aspect of the team is their passion for the game.

"They've been pretty good teammates trying to help each other out and all that," she said. "I think when we focus on basics and take it one day at a time, things go better."

Consider Michael Flavin For QHS Head Football Coach

I am writing to recommend Michael Flavin for the head coaching position at Quincy High School. Michael is more than just a football coach; he is a born leader both on and off the field. I first met Michael in 1994 during my senior year at Quincy High School when he accepted a position on Jack Raymer's coaching staff. Even as a young coach, Mike displayed a level of enthusiasm and knowledge of the game that was unparalleled.

As a former member of the Manets coaching staff, I believe Michael would be a great addition to Quincy High School. In 2013, I was asked to join the coaching staff of the Houghs Neck Manets as the JV head coach and to assist Mike on varsity. I jumped at the opportunity to work with Michael and to learn from him. That was a tough year, but Mike brought a sense of pride to a new look Manets and that resonated on the field where the varsity team earned their first win in years.

Working with Michael Flavin on the sidelines was probably one of the most exciting and greatest learning experiences of my coaching career. Not only did he get the most out of his players, he also mentored other coaches and brought out the best in all of us. Mike made us all better coaches by sharing his experiences and vast knowledge of the game and life. He took me under his wing and showed me how to be an effective leader and how to be a positive role model for the players. Mike was the main reason the Manets went to three straight championship games and won their first championship in over 13 years. More importantly, he taught us all to never give up and hard work and dedication will help you achieve in football and life.

Speaking from a parent's perspective, I am forever grateful for the way Mike accepted my daughter Cinneide as a football player. It's not easy being a female playing a male-dominated sport. My daughter chose to play for the Manets when she was in fourth grade and stayed with it for five years. She is not the tallest or the strongest but Michael treated her like everyone else and he gave her every opportunity to succeed. She improved as a player but most importantly she gained a level of confidence in herself that she will have forever. When other coaches wanted to keep her off the field, Michael stepped in and started her the very next game. She proved that she belonged on that field and Michael's confidence in her was what made her better. She will never forget what Mike did for her and she created some great memories. As a parent, I highly recommend Michael to run any organization because he will make it better.

I cannot think of anyone more qualified for this position than Michael Flavin. He has a proven track record of success as a coach and he is dedicated to helping the children of Quincy. He leads by example and always with integrity. Thank you for considering my recommendation and I hope to see Michael on the sideline next year. Go Presidents!

Thank you,

Gregg Santoro

Celtics CEO Tells Business Leaders 'Follow Your Passion'

Wyc Grousbeck Keynote Speaker At Quincy Chamber Of Commerce Meeting, Business Showcase

By TOM GORMAN

Boston Celtics CEO and Managing Partner Wyc Grousbeck told local business leaders that the feeling of fulfillment isn't always tied to money.

"Do what's in your heart," he said. "Follow your passion. Follow your dream."

Grousbeck's remarks were made during the Quincy Chamber of Commerce Annual Meeting and Business Showcase at the Granite Links ballroom on March 27. More than 600 business and organization representatives networked and offered information about their respective services.

Also during the event, the first Bruce Wood Grant — named after the late businessman, community activist and longtime member of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors — was awarded to a local business that "exemplifies his business sense and commitment to the community he loved."

During his keynote address, Grousbeck told the gathering that of all the chamber of commerce events he has been to, Quincy's stands out.

"You guys have the real thing going on here," he said. "This is the real deal. I'm really optimistic about the future of Quincy."

Grousbeck, who owned an investment venture firm, recounted how, 15 years ago, he decided to purchase a Boston sports team after seeing John Henry acquire the Red Sox in an auction. Not having much money to work with, Grousbeck said he ruled out the New England Patriots that had been bought several years earlier by Robert Kraft. After being turned down by the Bruins owner, he set his sights on the Celtics.

He tracked down the Celtics owner in New York, whom Grousbeck said had not lived in Boston for four years.

"This was my first clue, maybe there was something he didn't enjoy about owning the team," Grousbeck said. "The team was publicly traded."

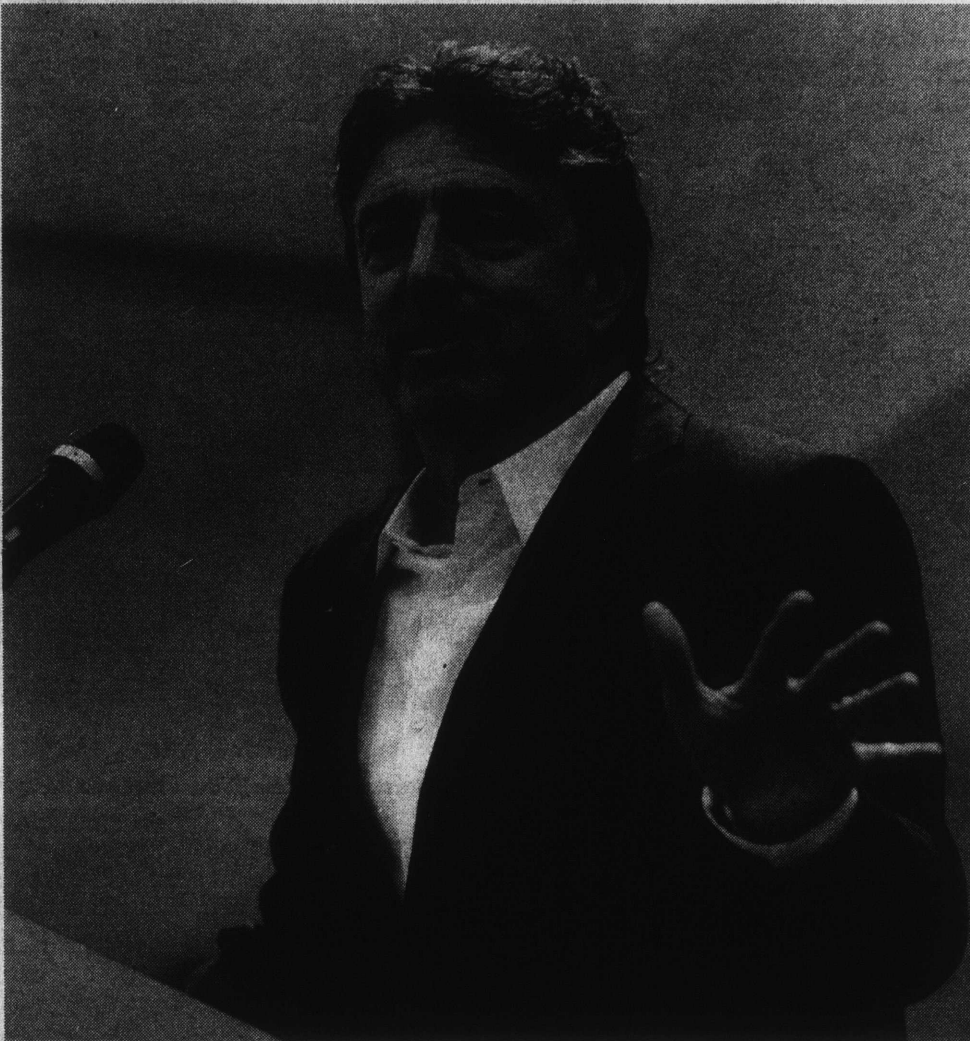

Grousbeck said he got an appointment with the owner and asked him if he would sell the team.

"He named a number," said Grousbeck. "I accepted."

Grousbeck scrambled to raise $360 million in three months and had to make a non-refundable deposit.

"In order to make the deposit, I had to mortgage my house," he said.

Even though making much of a profit or paying dividends was unlikely, Grousbeck rounded up 24 investors in Boston "who bought into the idea of the dream" and was able to raise the funds. He said the dream was about hanging a 17th championship banner from the TD Garden rafters.

BOSTON CELTICS CEO Wyc Grousbeck sports the Celtics' 2008 championship ring - the team's 17th title in the history of the storied franchise. The Celtics are the most successful NBA team in history winning nearly 24 percent of the league's titles since its inception in 1946.

"It wasn't about money," he said. "It was all about love and passion. I wanted to be a world champion. Imagine being in a parade."

Imagine how it's going to feel if we take the Celtics back to where they ought to be, to take Celtics pride back."

Grousbeck named his new firm, Banner 17 LLC, for the Celtics' quest of its 17th NBA championship.

He asked if anyone in the audience was a New York Knicks or Los Angeles Lakers fan.

There is a (Los Angeles Lakers) Kobe (Bryant) fan here I know," he said. "I just wanted to hold this up."

At that point, Grousbeck held up his right hand to a rousing applause where the 2008 NBA championship ring was prominently on his finger. The Celtics defeated the rival Lakers in the 2008 championships, four games to two in the best of seven series. It was the first Celtics' championship since 1986.

Grousbeck explained how he built the Celtics team after he bought it by trading players, acquiring draft picks and hiring coach Doc Rivers and general manager Danny Ainge. He said acquiring center Kevin Garnet — who led the Celtics to its 2008 championship — in a seven player deal with Minnesota "was of the greatest moments of my life."

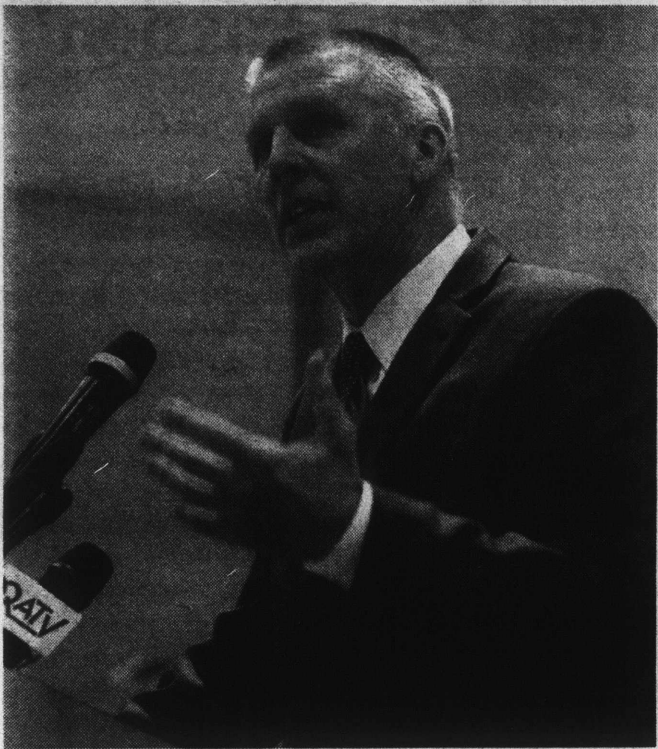

Grousbeck said he is now in the process of rebuilding the team again to position it for an 18th championship banner. Winning championships, however, isn't Grousbeck's only goal.

"I don't know what the meaning of life is, but, I know what the meaning of my life should be," he said.

He talked about his 25-year-old son, Campbell, who was born blind. Campbell's disability prompted Grousbeck to support research to find a cure for blindness. For the past eight years, he has served as chairman of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Grousbeck encouraged the business leaders to share their success through philanthropy and to take up a cause.

"I want to put up two more banners, but not the 18th or 19th," he said. "I want to put up a banner that says we beat blindness. I want to put up a banner that says we beat deafness."

He asked the business leaders what they would like their banner to read: solving world hunger, curing cancer, making the world a better place, or just being a great mother or father.

"So, what banner do you want to raise before you are done?" asked Grousbeck. "Let me encourage you to take the time to raise it. Let me know when it's going up to the rafters, and I'll come to the celebration."

Following Grousbeck's remarks, Quincy Chamber of Commerce board Chairwoman Dolly DiPesa awarded the first Bruce Wood Grant to Pureflections Chocolate owners Lisa Trifone and Christine Bartkus.

Bruce "Woody" Wood owned a successful painting company and served with several community organizations and on city committees. He was one of the founding members of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. He died in 2016.

DiPesa was joined by Mr. Wood's son, Mike Wood, and family friend and chamber board member Frank Trainor.

"The Bruce Wood Grant is our way of honoring his memory and inspiring other entrepreneurs to run their business according to Woody's rules: love your God, love your family, love and work in your community and you have to have fun while doing all of this," said DiPesa. "He really spent his life giving back to the community. What we really remember is that he was a family man."

Local businesses applied for the $5,000 grant and the winner was chosen by the chamber and Quincy 2000. The grant can be used to improve a business.

Bartkus expressed appreciation for the grant, saying that it was "somewhat bittersweet."

Referring to the discussion of championship banners, she said for "those who didn't know Bruce, this room would be full of banners for him."

Quincy Chamber of Commerce President Tim Cahill thanked the support of the business community for making the annual meeting and showcase event a success.

"The businesses of the chamber make the chamber what it is," he said.

Mayor Thomas Koch encouraged the business leaders for their input in the Quincy 400 initiative. In 2025, the city will mark its 400th anniversary and officials are drafting a plan to address economic growth, transportation, tourism and neighborhoods.

"Every aspect of our community will have a plan of action going forward to make our city an even better place to live and work," he said.

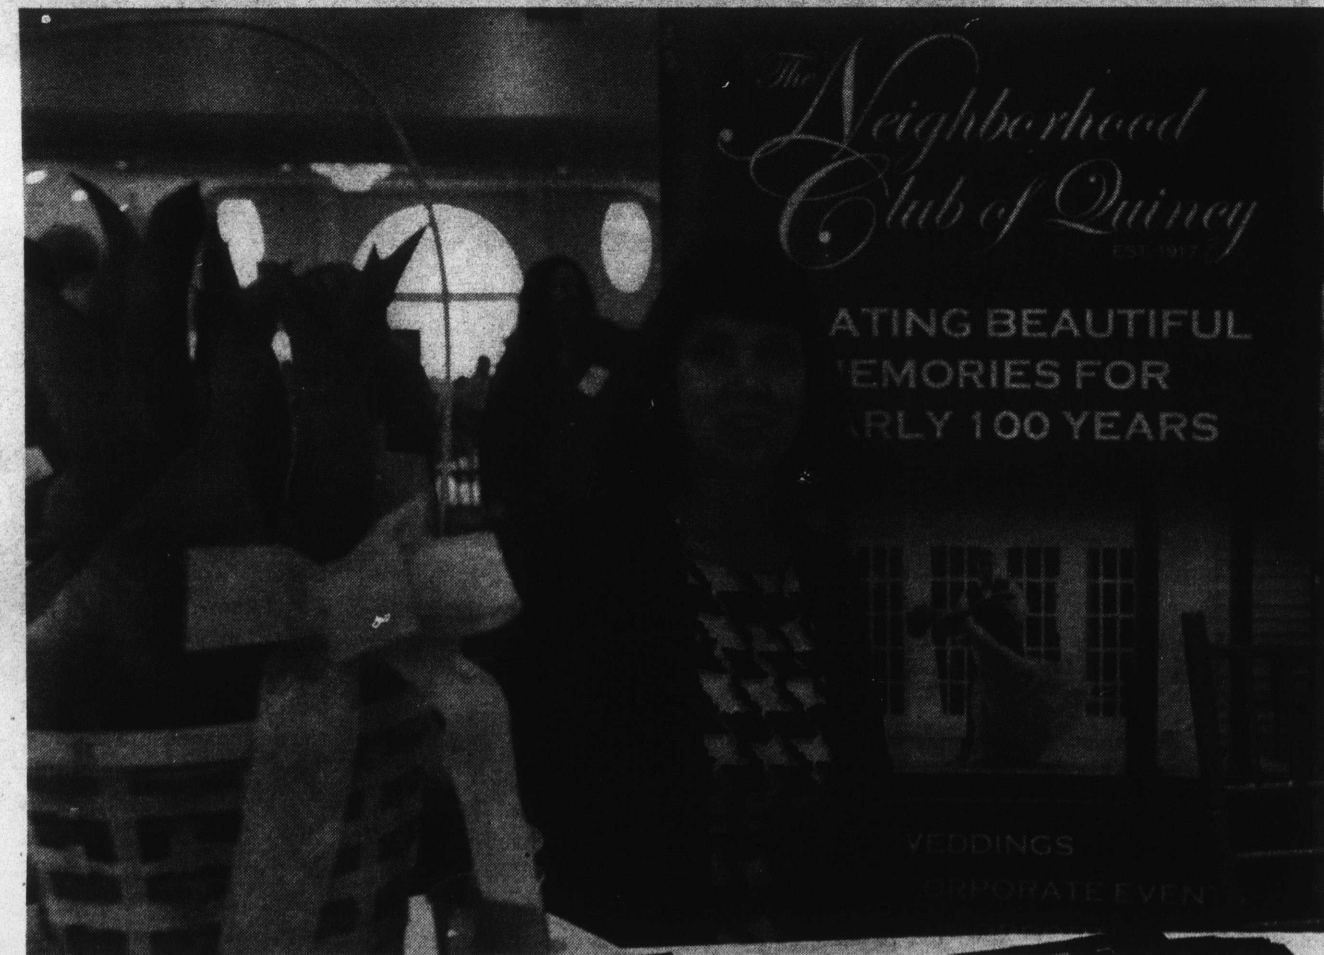

The mayor also asked support of business leaders for a "crucial vote" by the city council on April 23 for a redevelopment project in Quincy Center that would provide 1 million square foot of commercial space.

Katherine M. Hunt

A memorial service for Katherine M. (Sacco) Hunt was held Tuesday in Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Hunt died March 30.

Not many people can say they've been married for 50-plus years, and fewer can say they were happily married that length of time. But Mrs. Hunt could.

She was born Katherine Marie Sacco, daughter of Peter and Gilda Sacco, 80 years ago in Boston. The family moved to Milton, where she went to school and graduated from Milton High School in 1955.

While still in high school, she met a young man named Robert Hunt, a Quincy guy who worked for her uncle. "I liked her from the moment I met her," said Bob. But it would be 13 years before the two would tie the knot. Bob wanted to make sure they saved enough money to buy a home. They married in September of 1965.

Mrs. Hunt worked for ten years as a secretary at Hunneman & Company Real Estate, followed by 37 years as a legal secretary for Attorney Walter S. Robbins.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt did not have children, but lavished love on their four Yorkies, Pepper, Scooter, Geronimo and Geronimo 2. Their other love was sailing. They were longtime members of the Town River Yacht Club in Quincy. When they first started going out, she had no idea how to sail, but Bob taught her. "She took to boats like ducks to water," he said.

That was the key to their long, happy life together — they enjoyed each other's company, plain and simple. Bob loves to tell people they never had a fight, they just always got along. "I really couldn't have picked a better mate."

Besides her loving husband, Mrs. Hunt leaves behind a brother-in-law, Harvey, in Florida and nieces and a nephew here in the Boston area. She was especially close to her niece Patty Ann Leahy and her husband Bob, who lovingly helped Mrs. Hunt's husband care for her during her final years.

Agnes L. Kenney, 88

A funeral Mass for Agnes L. Kenney, 88, of Houghs Neck was celebrated Tuesday in Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Kenney died peacefully March 28.

She was born in Springfield then moved to Houghs Neck at an early age. After graduating high school, she worked for American Airlines in New York before returning to Quincy to raise her family. Mrs. Kenney always enjoyed making connections with children as was evident through the many paths she chose throughout her life. While raising her family in Houghs Neck, she worked at the Sterling Middle School in Quincy as a cafeteria employee before transferring to Quincy High School as an attendance officer.

Mrs. Kenney was an active member of the Holy Trinity Parish, Most Blessed Sacrament Church, where she was a Eucharist minister, CCD teacher, Cub Scout den mother and past prefect of the Ladies' Sodality. In her spare time, she enjoyed baking, sewing, knitting hats and blankets for children, doing ceramics with friends, delivering meals for Meals On Wheels, and volunteering at the former Quincy City Hospital.

The beloved wife of the late James P. Kenney, Jr., she was the loving mother of Robert Kenney and wife Cheryl of Pembroke, Daniel

AGNES L. KENNEY

Kenney and his wife Karen of Quincy and the late James P. Kenney III; dear grandmother of Shaun Kenney and wife Patricia of Arlington, VA, Jacqueline Kenney of Pembroke, Caroline and Kathleen Kenney, both of Quincy; sweet great-grandmother of Eamon Kenney of Arlington, VA; beloved sister of the late Mary Hagerty and late husband Jack of Pleasanton, CA, the late Eleanor Pimental of Quincy and the late John Pimental of Fort Lauderdale, FL; and is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment at Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to the James P. Kenney III Scholarship Fund, c/o Quincy Credit Union, 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

Fred J. Antoon, 90

A celebration of the life of Fred J. Antoon, 90, of Quincy was held March 31 in the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Mr. Antoon died March 29 surrounded by his loving family.

A lifelong Quincy resident, he lived for many years on Baxter Ave in the Point. A WWII Navy veteran of the Pacific Theater, he worked as a refrigeration engineer at the company he co-founded, Refrigeration Engineering and Contracting Co. in Medford.

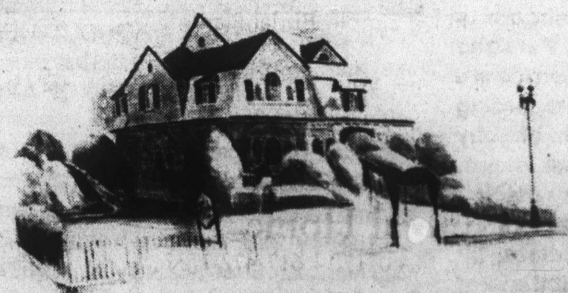

The beloved husband of the late Shirley M. (King) Antoon for 58 years, Mr. Antoon was the loving father of Cindy O'Connell and her husband David of So. Portland, ME, Edmund M. Antoon and his wife Angela of Weymouth and Fred Anthony Antoon of Hudson, OH; and dear grandfather of Ryan, Jeff and Edmund, Jr.

Memorial donations may be made to the Pat Roche Hospice Home, 86 Turkey Hill Rd., Hingham, MA 02043.

Commander Shea Boulevard Extension Planned

By SCOTT JACKSON

Commander Shea Boulevard will be extended to Squantum Point Park and the road, now privately owned, will become a public thoroughfare.

Two items related to the extension of the roadway were proposed at Monday's

City Council meeting. Mayor Thomas Koch has asked the council to accept Boston Scientific's conveyance of the road itself to the city as well as the conveyance now owned by Scannell Properties. The items were referred to committee for further review.

Chris Walker, a spokesman for the mayor, said the conveyances are the formal paperwork needed before the road can be extended.

MBTA officials in 2017

announced the transit agency had set aside $2.1 million to extend the roadway as a mitigation measure for the planned redevelopment at the North Quincy station and the closure of the Wollaston station for renovations.

Walker on Monday said work on the roadway extension could begin this spring.

Squantum Point Park is currently only accessible via Marina Bay. A ferry service connecting Squantum Point Park with Boston and Winthrop launched two years ago, and the city is eyeing a permanent ferry service on site.

The MBTA has also said

Squantum Point Park could be used as a parking area for displaced commuters who currently use the lot at the North Quincy station once a mixed-use development gets underway there this summer. Shuttle service would be provided between Squantum Point Park and the station under that scenario.

The first part of the private development at the North Quincy station will be the construction of a new garage with room for 852 vehicles, which is the total number of vehicles that can now park on site. The garage will take about a year to build.

Woodward School Eyes Renovation, Expansion

there is an existing cafeteria and we would probably redo that too, and some library space," Hubley said.

"We're kind of taking what they did early 1900s and kind of redoing that and expanding it a bit."

Expanding the gym could lead to a greater participating in the school's athletic programs and a greater sense of community, Hubley said.

"I think it's going to give such a lift to our sense of community to actually be able to host our home games," he said. "I think we can get far greater attendance in terms of participation because, you know, we'll be right there instead of having to take a bus somewhere."

The Woodward School has a current enrollment of just under 100 students from Quincy, Boston and the South Shore in grades 6 through 12. The expansion project will allow the enrollment to grow by up to 70 students in the future.

"I was hired in July of 2016 and the board brought me onboard to really think about what is the next 125 years for Woodward, so I'm kind of like the new guy asking all new questions and looking at things from a fresh perspective," Hubley said.

"I would like to see the student population grow. It would be nice to see it into the 160 to 170 range. I think with that we could do a lot more athletic options and expand the course offerings. You don't want to get too big though because you start to lose the small-community feel."

Hubley said there is no current plan to add more grades to the school, but that could be revisited in the future.

"We will consider other grades but we see that staying the same in the immediate future," he said.

There is no estimate for how much the renovation and expansion will cost. Hubley said the school has raised funds for the project, though it will launch a capital campaign to cover potential cost overruns.

"We've done a great job of fundraising and the expansion is going to be paid for by the funds that we've raised, and we're going to run a capital campaign because if you've ever done a home remodel it always turns out to be more expensive than you thought it was," he said.

AARP Massachusetts Helps Taxpayers Avoid Identity Theft And IRS Imposter Scams

As tax time approaches, AARP's Fraud Watch Network and AARP Massachusetts are joining in efforts to help Commonwealth taxpayers avoid criminal imposters who aim to defraud them.

The problem is serious, with the Federal Trade Commission reporting that tax fraud ranked second in 2017 in types of identity theft reported, as over 82,000 reports were made last year. But a new poll from AARP, which surveyed 1,005 Americans by phone, reveals that people may have a false sense of security, as three-fifths (62 percent) report they're either extremely confident or very confident in their ability to detect fraud.

AARP Massachusetts is participating in the organization's robust antifraud efforts, which currently include a free fraud helpline (877-908-3360). New information and resources include the survey, training webinars, a "Tax ID Theft" tip sheet, and a new podcast series, called "The Perfect Scam." The series features tips from Frank Abagnale, whose personal story inspired the Spielberg film, "Catch Me if You Can," who now advises the FBI on how to outsmart con artists. Also, the April issue of AARP Bulletin will more broadly examine fraud and scams.

"We see repeatedly that scammers who impersonate the Internal Revenue Service work year round at trying to swindle Americans, and they're particularly relentless in April," said Mike Festa, state director of AARP Massachusetts.

"While there's no simple solution, you can outsmart cons: file your taxes early, before they beat you to it, shred financial documents you no longer need and beware of high pressure tactics. The IRS will not call and threaten arrest for taxes owed, and they certainly won't ask for a gift card as a form of payment, but imposters will."

AARP Massachusetts is working hard on the state legislative level to protect our 800,000 members from identity theft. That's why AARP is advocating for passage of H.B. 4232 and S.B. 130: An Act Removing Fees for Security Freezes and Disclosures of Consumer Credit Reports. One of the key provisions of these bills will prevent a consumer reporting agency from charging a fee when consumers elect to place, suspend or remove a security freeze from their credit report, giving the residents of Massachusetts the power to control access to their credit report without cost.

Older adults are increasingly the target for identity theft, and one of the most effective ways to protect consumers is through a security freeze, which safeguards a person's credit report. Without access to this information, identity thieves would be unable to obtain credit in that person's name, minimizing potential for fraud. These bills will go a long way in reducing the threat of identity theft for consumers.

In its new poll, AARP found that many consumers are woefully at risk for the onslaught of Internal Revenue Service (IRS) scammers. Key findings include:

- IRS scammers keep calling until they land victims, with one in four respondents (25 percent) receiving a phony call from someone impersonating an IRS agent over the last year.
- Nearly four out of five respondents (79 percent) haven't ordered a free copy of their credit report in the past 12 months.
- The IRS does not email or text for your information, but more than a quarter of respondents (26 percent) incorrectly believe or are uncertain about whether the IRS can text or email requests for personal or financial information.

Criminals impersonating the IRS often make aggressive threats – of arrest, court action, confiscation of property, or even deportation unless they make immediate payment. The AARP campaign advises consumers that legitimate IRS representatives DO NOT:

- Call you to demand immediate payment.
- Call you about taxes owed without first having contacted you by mail.
- Require you to use a specific payment method for your taxes, such as a gift card, prepaid debit card, or ask for credit or debit card numbers over the phone.
- Threaten to bring in local police or other law-enforcement groups to have you arrested for not paying.

For more information about the IRS scam and other tax-related frauds, visit www.aarp.org/Fraud-WatchNetwork. Consumers who think that they are being targeted by a scammer may call the AARP Fraud Helpline at 877-908-3360 and speak with a volunteer trained in fraud counseling.

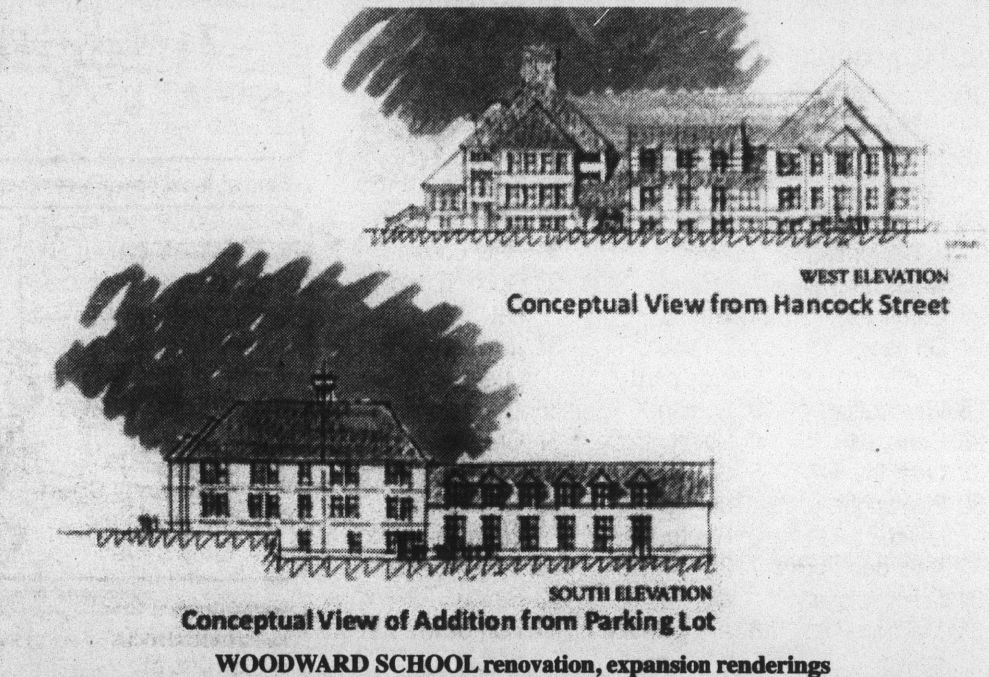

"The Perfect Scam" podcast will launch on April 6 and will be available AARP's website and on popular podcasting platforms. About our survey methodology: AARP conducted a national telephone research study among U.S. adults ages 18 and older on the issues of identity theft, security of personal information, and experience with tax fraud and imposter scams via Alan Newman Research. 1,005 telephone interviews (300 via landline telephones and 705 via cell phone) took place between March 14 and March 17, 2018, with a maximum statistical error of ±3.1 percent at the 95 percent level of confidence.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A little woolgathering is OK. But don't let that dreamy state linger beyond midweek, when you'll want to be ready to take on new workplace responsibilities.
TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Love rules the week for single Bovines seeking romance. Attached pairs also find new joy in their relationships. Friday should bring news about a business opportunity.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Home becomes the center of a new social whirl, as you show your talent for hosting great parties. You can expect to impress a lot of people who've never seen this side of you.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Moon Child might have to raise those powers of persuasion a notch to get a still-wary colleague to agree to go along. Finding more facts to back up your position helps.
LEO (July 23 to August 22) Hold off trying to fix the blame for an apparent mishandling of a work situation. A full investigation could reveal surprising facts on how and why it really happened.
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your ability to find details others might overlook gives you an advantage in assessing a possibly too-good-to-be-true offer. A trusted colleague has advice.
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect to be called on once again to act as peacemaker in a long-simmering dispute that suddenly flares up. Offer advice, but be careful to stay out of the fray.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your organizational skills help you line up your priorities so that you get things done without added pressure. The weekend could hold a special surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) New ventures are favored. But don't launch yours before rechecking all facts and sources. Also, be sure you can rely on support from certain people.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don't be pushed into renegotiating an agreement, even though it might help avoid a potential impasse. Get legal advice before you sign or agree to anything.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Helping others is what Aquarians do so well. But this time, someone wants to help you. Expect to hear some news that will both surprise and delight you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things go so swimmingly that you're tempted to take on more tasks. Best advice: Finish what you have now, then enjoy a well-earned relaxing weekend.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your understanding of human nature helps you make wise decisions that are appreciated by all. You would make a fine judge.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- How could we know that when Netflix revived "Full House" (1987-95) as "Fuller House" and "The Gilmore Girls" (2000-07) as four seasonal movies, that it would unleash a flood of reboots the likes of which we've never seen? Already revived or rebooted are "Will & Grace," "MacGyver," "Hawaii Five-0," "Dynasty," "One Day at a Time," "Girl Meets World," "The X-Files," "Twin Peaks" and most recently, "Queer Eye (for the Straight Guy)" and "Roseanne."

But that's not the end of it. In the works are "Cagney & Lacey," with Sarah Drew ("Grey's Anatomy") and Michelle Hurd ("Blindspot") in the title roles; "Murphy Brown," with Candice Bergen; the CW's "Charmed," with Madeleine Mantock ("The Tomorrow People"), Melonie Diaz ("Fruitvale Station") and Sarah Jeffery ("Shades of Blue"). Still more reboots of "Roswell," with Nathan Parsons ("The Originals"); "Lost in Space," with Molly Parker ("House of Cards"); "Prison Break" with at least 10 episodes with original cast-member Wentworth Miller; "Sons of Anarchy," with Edward James Olmos; "Miami Vice," with Vin Diesel (as one of the producers); and "Jersey Shore," with most of the original cast.

In addition, pilots have been commissioned for a new "Twilight Zone"; "The Greatest American Hero," with a female in the title role; "Party of Five," with Latino siblings; "Hart to Hart," with a gay couple as the Harts; "Bewitched" and "The Office."

Why do these shows again? The studios that made these series can't make money unless they reboot them, which also is why film studios keep making the same movies over and over again. Also, they'd rather take a chance on a proven property than invest in a new show that they're not sure will get high ratings. If they're half as good as "Will & Grace," "MacGyver" and "Hawaii Five-0," it'll be better than what the networks have been dishing out lately.

In movie news, "The Black Panther" has sailed past the $1 billion mark and overtaken "Frozen" and "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2" to become the 14th top-grossing film of all time, while "Star Wars: The Last Jedi," is sitting at No. 8.

Casey Affleck, Oscar winner for "Manchester By the Sea" (2016), has written, directed and stars in "Light of My Life," with Anna Pniowsky, and currently is shooting "The Old Man and the Gun," with Robert Redford, Sissy Spacek, Danny Glover and Elisabeth Moss. Redford said his last two films would be Netflix's 2017 "Our Souls at Night," with Jane Fonda; and the newly released "The Discovery," with Rooney Mara. He has obviously reconsidered retiring, cause if he does, it will definitely make us re-evaluate "The Way We Were," and the way we are!

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Underdog Is Here -- Many comic book, movie and TV heroes are so popular that they inspire hundreds of different collectibles. Often, interest in the characters dies about 25 years after the last new episode of their shows are shown. Some have continued to be popular because of TV reruns and their rebirth in new movies, comics or even plays.

"Underdog" was one of the characters created in 1959 for television cartoons selling General Mills cereal. He formerly was Shoe-shine Boy, who went into a phone booth to take a pill that turned him into the superpowered Underdog. He always damaged the booth and spoke in rhymes. In 1969, the show lost its sponsor, but 62 shows continued in syndication. They can be seen on TV, and other syndicated shows with Underdog as the hero were edited, rewritten and re-bundled to remain on TV until the late 1990s. Many years on the air have helped "Underdog" collectibles remain popular ... and expensive. A 1974 child's metal "Underdog" lunchbox and thermos sold at a Hakes.com auction in fall 2015 for $2,296. Other undiscovered "Underdog" memorabilia still is waiting in garage sales and flea markets, usually without the history that gives it value.

Q: We've just been given a set of silverware that we were told is 100-plus years old. It belonged to a friend of my husband's grandmother who gave it to his mother about 1910. It's a service for eight and pieces are marked "Lake Betty Silver Plate" on the backs. All are in excellent condition in a leather, velvet-lined case. We are wondering if the set has any value, other than sentimental.

A: Your silver-plated flatware is not as old as you think it is. The pattern name is Lady Betty and was introduced by International Silver Co. of Meriden, Connecticut, in 1940. The company was formed when some independent silver makers merged in 1898. Silver plating by electricity began (in the U.S.) in 1847, earlier in England. By the 1880s, more than 40 firms, mostly centered near Meriden, made simple to elaborate silver-plated tableware until the 1980s. Silver-plated items generally have a modest value unless they are either very fancy or very rare. Your flatware is not worth much -- under $100 -- and places that buy silver to melt are looking for sterling silver, not silver plate.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Swedish poet Vilhelm Ekelund who made the following sage observation: "To read fast is as bad as to eat in a hurry."

* Bullies, take note: Director Wes Craven reportedly named the character Freddy Krueger, from the "Nightmare on Elm Street" horror films, after a kid who had bullied him in school.

* Though coffee has been around for about 700 years, instant coffee was invented just over 100 years ago, in 1906. By George Washington. Of course, it wasn't that George Washington. The man who made coffee more convenient -- and, many would say, less flavorful -- was from Belgium.

* Those who study such things claim that there are roughly 5 million bubbles in a single glass of champagne. That factoid begs the question: How do you count the bubbles in a glass of champagne?

* The next time you're planning a European vacation, make time to visit the coast of the Netherlands, where you can stay in one of the world's most unusual hotels. Along the banks of the Wadden Sea you'll find Harlingen Harbour Crane, an actual derrick that was once used to haul timber. These days it holds aloft luxurious sleeping quarters designed for only one party at a time. If you need a change of scenery, just head to the control room to swing the crane around until you find a view that strikes your fancy.

* Talk about a serious typo: In 2008, the Chilean mint issued thousands of copies of a coin with the country's name spelled "Chiie" instead of "Chile."

Thought for the Day: "It is fortunate to be of high birth, but it is no less so to be of such character that people do not care to know whether you are or are not." -- Jean de la Bruyere

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Can't finish your income tax return on time? Get IRS Form 4868 to file for a six-month extension. By filing for an extension and making an estimated payment (if that applies to you), you'll save yourself the hassle of penalties and interest on balances owed. If you are having trouble coming up with the payment, try applying for an installment payment plan. Get IRS Form 9465.

* Yes, you can add tea to your baked goods for a refined and interesting flavor. Try infusing melted butter with tea leaves and strain, or add fine tea directly to cookie recipes, particularly shortbread recipes. It looks and tastes wonderful, and what a complement to a steamy cuppa.

* "Get grease stains off a concrete driveway with kitty litter. Pour several cups of plain litter over the stain, and wait a couple of hours for it to soak up all the oil. Sweep up and remove the litter, then finish with a degreaser and the hose." -- P.R. in Tennessee

* The fleck test for diner creamers: "If you see little flecks of white in your coffee, ask for a new cup and new creamer; it's starting to turn." -- X.S. on the road

* If you have water stains on your car's upholstery, use a can of carpet cleaner. It's spray and wipe without rinsing.

* Here's fun for kids. Secure slivers of bar soap in a small mesh bag (we use a cut piece of the bag onions come in). Tie it to the bath tap, and when you draw a bath, let the water run over the soap. It's a bubble bath!

Mass. DAV Golf Tourney Kick-Off Social At Granite Links Golf Club

DISABLED AMERICAN VETERANS, Department of Massachusetts, recently held an appreciation social and kick-off for its annual Golf Tournament at the Veranda Room, Granite Links Golf Club, West Quincy. The evening was an opportunity for the DAV to thank some of the supporters and sponsors of the 10th annual Liberty Mutual & DAV Golf Invitational set for Monday, May 21 at Granite Links. Here Roger Berkowitz, CEO of Legal Seafoods, receives an appreciation plaque from DAV Department Commander Frank Whitty (left) and Dan Stack, DAV Department Adjutant and CEO. Berkowitz was recognized for his generous donation of food items for the participants at our DAV 5K, Veterans Day Nov. 11, 2017, Castle Island.

Steward Awards Ceremony May 22

In celebration of National Emergency Medical Service (EMS) week, Steward Health Care System will host the second annual "EMS Stewards of the Community" Awards Ceremony on May 22 at The Tirrell Room in Quincy.

Boston-based Steward, which operates 10 hospitals across Massachusetts, will recognize several Emergency Medical Services (EMS) providers for going "above and beyond" in their interactions with patients at each of Steward's community hospitals.

To nominate an EMS provider in your community for an "EMS Stewards of the Community" award, go to <http://info.steward.org/emsaward2018.html>. Nominations must be received by Friday, April 27.

The "EMS Stewards of the Community" awards show appreciation for emergency medical responders and dispatchers, emergency medical technicians, advanced emergency medical technicians, and paramedics who not only carry out the noble work of caring for others, but do so with a high degree of expertise, professionalism, and compassion.

An internal committee of physicians, nurses and EMS managers will review nominations and select recipients for each of the Steward hospitals.

Quincy Way Of The Cross

LEADING A PROCESSION to St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point, one of the seven Catholic churches the group visited on Good Friday, are Denzel Njuguna and Benjamin Machavia.

ABOUT 40 PEOPLE of all ages participated in the 8th annual Quincy Way of the Cross on Good Friday. The group processed to each of the city's seven Catholic churches. At each church, they prayed two Stations of the Cross. The Stations of the Cross are 14 images depicting events of Christ on his day of crucifixion. Quincy Sun Photos/Tom Gorman

Council Could OK Food Sales At Gas Stations

By SCOTT JACKSON

A proposal now pending before the City Council's ordinance committee would grant gas stations in Quincy the ability to sell food, and owners of gas stations spoke in favor of the proposal during a recent public hearing.

The city currently prohibits gas stations from selling food or dairy items, but does allow those stores to sell those products from vending machines. Council-

Parents Hear Presentation On School Security

By SCOTT JACKSON

Parents had the opportunity to learn first-hand about security procedures at Quincy Public Schools from school administrators and the city's police chief Monday night.

About 75 people attended the presentation, which was followed by a question-and-answer session. The Citywide PTO hosted the 90-minute event at Broad Meadows Middle School.

School Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, school security director Michael Draicchio, student support services director

Maura Papile and Police Chief Paul Keenan all spoke at Monday's event. DeCristofaro said everything else the school system does - from MCAS preparation to curriculum - pales in comparison to making sure students are safe.

Officials Discuss New Garage, Interim Parking

By TOM GORMAN

Quincy Center business owners and residents got their first look at the design plans of the new Hancock Parking Garage and adjoining civic area that will be built in the existing Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court.

About 20 people attended an informational meeting in city hall on April 4 where renderings and an animated video of the project were unveiled. Details of interim, alternative parking areas that are available were also discussed by city officials and members of the design team.

The 712-car, four-story, steel-framed garage will not look like a typical parking garage, according to the officials. The façade will have a brick red and off-white terracotta coating with large, glassless windows. Additionally, the area around the garage will be a civic area - a plaza and walkways comprised of granite and brick pavers with benches, trees, and landscaping.

Quincy DARE Officer Retires After 22 Years

John Grazioso Served 32 Years With Department

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy Police Officer John Grazioso recently retired from the Quincy Police Department after 32 years of service, including the last 22 as a DARE officer, during which time he taught more than 17,000 students.

Grazioso, age 60, retired from the department on March 30. He joined the Quincy Police Department in 1986 and had served as a DARE officer since 1996.

JOHN GRAZIOSO

"I will definitely miss it," Grazioso said in a recent interview. "I put 32 years of my life into the police department - 22 into DARE. I hope I made some impressions on people to help people."

"You can stay until you're 65, but I have grandkids that are young and I want to spend more time with them and my wife and the family."

Quincy DARE Officer John Grazioso Retires

OFFICER JOHN GRAZIOSO (right) retired from the Quincy Police Department on March 30 after 32 years of service, including 22 as a DARE officer. Pictured with him are his son Jay, who serves with the department's Special Operations Unit, and wife, Lenore.

Grazioso, who grew up in Quincy, said he decided to become a police officer while he was a student at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree.

"Probably from high school on, I just wanted to be a police officer," he said. "I went to Quincy College first then Northeastern University for criminal justice and took the test a few times. I ended up not getting on right away so I worked for State Street Bank for eight years in security and executive protection. Then I got a chance to get on the Quincy police in 1986, so I took it."

The Quincy Police Department started its DARE program in 1989, with Officer Bob Edgar serving as the instructor for fifth graders. Grazioso started as a DARE officer in 1996, when the department added a second officer to expand the program to seventh grade.

"Officer Bob was the original DARE officer and they wanted to expand it to seventh grade, so they needed another DARE officer and I put my name in for it. I thought it would be kind of cool. I think education is really important," Grazioso said.

"So I put my name in for it and there were interviews and I got picked. Then I went to school for a couple weeks out in Sturbridge — learned the DARE program and a little bit about teaching and how to deal with kids.

"After the school, I started teaching in fifth grade for a little while. Then I went back to DARE school again to learn the junior high program — or the middle school program — and then I started teaching in seventh grade in Quincy Public Schools."

Grazioso has spent the last 15 years working with Officer Don Sautter, who teaches fifth grade students. With Grazioso retiring, Officer Mellanie Reeves will now serve as the instructor for seventh graders.

"She just went to training and she is raring to go," Grazioso said.

During his time as a DARE officer with the department, Grazioso said he taught more than 800 students each year, a total of more than 17,000 all together. Some of Grazioso's early students are now in their 30s and they still remember him to this day.

"I'll be over at the Plaza and they'll go 'you were my DARE guy.' Now a lot of them have kids and they're married and it's cool seeing what they're doing," Grazioso said. "Most of the people are doing all right."

The DARE program changed over the past 22 years, Grazioso said, most recently to emphasize smart decision-making.

"Over my tenure they did about three curriculum changes over the years trying to make it better," he said. "The last one, it was more on making good choices. One of the big things we taught there was called the DARE Decision Making Model — it is define, assess, respond and evaluate."

"That was kind of the big push in the last curriculum."

Grazioso said the DARE program is in the midst of being updated to include information on opioids, though he already incorporated that subject into what he taught seventh graders.

"DARE is putting together a program for that — it's kind of coming out right now," Grazioso said of opioids. "But I would mention it, especially to the seventh-grade kids. Even the seventh-grade kids know about it — they see it and they hear about it on the news and everything."

"I try to make it simple — there is a thing called KISS, keep it simple...If you're putting stuff into your body that's going to hurt your body, whether it's drugs or whether it's Tide Pods, it's not a great idea. So just try to keep it simple and they understand it."

The curriculum also changed with recreational marijuana now legal in Massachusetts.

"It's kind of tricky," Grazioso said. "The people voted for it, so you've got to kind of explain to the kids it's like alcohol — it's over 21 and it's not in the public. Again, I try to say — keeping it simple — if you're putting something into your body that changes your body it might not be a great idea."

"But again, it is making decisions," he added. "Some people can drink and some people can't."

Leaders Attend Nat'l Prescription Drug Abuse Summit

Norfolk Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey recently traveled with a group of Norfolk County leaders to the National Prescription Drug Abuse and Heroin summit in Atlanta, Georgia for seminars on federal efforts and what other regions are doing to decrease opiate addiction and overdose.

Morrissey, whose office presented at the Summit in 2015 on his work training and equipping area police departments for the use of the opiate overdose reversal drug naloxone, said it is important to keep up with what is being done in other regions — in case it might work here.

"This area is ahead of much of the country in overdose prevention and drug collection strategies, but it is helpful to see how other areas are supplying education and collecting data on their work," District Attorney Morrissey said. "It is encouraging to see the rest of the country moving toward constructive intervention and prevention strategies."

The four day summit featured 250 presenters from across the country and around the world.

Other Norfolk County leaders present at the Summit included Quincy Detective Lt. Pat Glynn, who oversees the city's pioneering naloxone program, Braintree Prevention Coordinator Lyn Frano and Braintree Police Chief Paul Shastany, whose efforts when he was Stoughton Chief served as the model for the county-wide naloxone program. From Randolph were Police Chief William Pace, Commander David Avery, Public Health Nurse Jean McGinty and Firefighter Tom Binnall. Stoughton Prevention Coordinator Stephanie Patton presented at the conference.

"Our area sent an impressive slate of experienced professionals dedicated to stemming the crisis of addiction that is impacting our communities so seriously," Morrissey said. "There are many hands doing the work of preventing addiction, breaking addiction and saving people from death by overdose."

"It would be hard to overstate the importance of the work and dedication they represent," he added.

SQSC Collecting Toiletries For Homeless Teens

The South Quincy Social Club is again partnering up with the Homeless Teen Program for Quincy Public Schools to make baskets for those who will be in need for the summer.

The Club is seeking donations of full size items of 2 in 1 shampoo and conditioner, body wash, loofahs, brushes, combs, shaving cream, disposable razors, brushes, combs, wash cloths, socks, and feminine hygiene products.

Some 20 baskets were made last year, but there is a greater need this year. Anyone who would like to donate can drop off items at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center or Cagney's Restaurant, 214 Washington St.

Items can also be dropped off at the South Quincy Social Club on April 28th at a Basket Drive from 6-9 p.m. There will be music, raffles, and a cash bar.

For more info, email Lynne McKeever @ lil-pj4242@hotmail.com.

INSURE AGAINST LOSS

After purchasing a piece of fine jewelry, it is particularly important to make sure it is fully insured. According to a survey of 2,000 people by an insurance company, more people reported having lost an item of jewelry than any other irreplaceable item. Twenty-eight percent of those surveyed said they had lost an item of jewelry, followed by 23% who said they had lost a special photo or memento. Nearly a quarter (24%) of men and 14.3% of women admitted they had lost their wedding rings. The poll also showed that more than three-quarters (78%) of those surveyed had not insured the lost piece of jewelry. These items represent a connection to people we love and should be protected.

Periodically checking the settings and clasps of your fine jewelry is an important part of protecting your investment, as are cleanings and repairs. And if you need an appraisal for your fine jewelry for insurance purposes or an estate settlement, we suggest you trust this important matter to a professional jeweler with a reputation for fairness, knowledge, experience, and integrity. For all your jewelry needs, Rogers Jewelry stands ready to serve you at 1402 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, where we take pride in both the quality of our jewelry and the quality of our service. We've been offering a tradition of excellence since 1944. PH: 617-773-3636.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 25, 1859, at Port Said, Egypt, ground is broken for the Suez Canal, an artificial waterway intended to stretch 101 miles across the Isthmus of Suez. Labor disputes and a cholera epidemic slowed construction, and the Suez Canal was not completed until 1869 -- four years behind schedule.

- On April 27, 1865, boiler explosions on the Mississippi River steamboat Sultana kill an estimated 1,547 people, mostly Union soldiers returning home after the Civil War. The passengers were killed by flying metal, scalding water and collapsing decks.

- On April 28, 1897, the Chickasaw and Choctaw, two of the Five Civilized Tribes, agree to abolish tribal government and communal ownership of land, following the goals of the Dawes Severalty Act. The other tribes soon followed, throwing open all of Indian Territory to white settlement.

- On April 29, 1945, the U.S. Seventh Army's 45th Infantry Division liberates Dachau, the first concentration camp established by Germany's Nazi regime. In the course of Dachau's history, at least 160,000 prisoners passed through the camp.

- On April 23, 1969, Sirhan Sirhan, a Palestinian immigrant, is sentenced to death after being convicted in the assassination of politician Robert F. Kennedy. In 1972, Sirhan's sentence was commuted to life in prison after California abolished the death penalty.

- On April 26, 1977, the world-famous Studio 54, in New York City, opens its doors for the first time. Actors, models, musicians and athletes, as well as political figures came out to be seen during the disco club's brief heyday, which lasted less than three years.

- On April 24, 1980, an ill-fated military operation to rescue the 52 American hostages held in Tehran, Iran, ends with eight U.S. servicemen dead and no hostages rescued. The hostages would not be released for another 270 days.

Firemen's Memorial Makeover

It was on a June day a few years ago that firefighters first noticed that a memorial dedicated to their own was starting to show its age.

And decided it was time to do something about it.

The Firemen's Memorial statue -- six feet of chiseled concrete standing on a pedestal of Quincy granite -- has stood like a beacon at the firemen's lot in Mount Wollaston Cemetery since 1929. But over the past nearly nine decades the solemn figure has slowly but steadily discolored, chipped and spalled due to the harsh New England weather, acid rain and other environmental factors. Look close enough at his face and there is moss growing on one side below his helmet.

Three Quincy firefighters -- Lt. Michael Palaza, Lt. Ralph Blight and FF Tom Bowes -- are spearheading the effort by the firefighters' union, Local #792, to give the memorial a monumental makeover -- literally and figuratively. The group has begun a fundraising drive to not only repair the statue but to use it as a mold for a new handsome bronze statue.

An estimated $30,000 to $35,000 is needed to sculpt the bronze statue and for other improvements near the base of the pedestal it stands on including pavers and permanent exterior lighting so the memorial can be illuminated at night.

No city money will be spent on the refurbishing project. Firefighters hope to collect the necessary money through fundraisers, private donations and corporate sponsorships.

The firefighters hope the new statue can be unveiled in time for the firefighters' memorial ceremony in June, 2019 -- the 90th anniversary of the monument's first dedication.

"The plan is we want to make this statue bronze," said Blight. "We're going to take it down and mold it in bronze. We're going to keep the same statue except make it bronze."

"It's 89 years old -- it will be 90 next year. He's done a great job for us but he's taken a beating from the New England weather," Blight continued. "He's starting to chip, he's starting to spall, he's discolored so it's time to make our concrete Jake into a bronze Jake."

It was a group of Quincy firefighters who initiated the effort to create the memorial 90 years ago. In 1928, the Permanent Firemen's Association appointed a committee to

Scenes From Yesterday

HANCOCK STREET, LOOKING SOUTH TOWARDS QUINCY SQUARE, WOLLASTON, MASS.

THIS IS A late 1930s postcard view of Wollaston Center looking north on Hancock Street at the intersection of Beach and Beale Streets. On the left was the House of Lieberman cleansers in the Klein Building and Alouwil Pharmacy was in the now vacant store on the corner most recently the Grandasia Bridal & Fashion Shop. On the next corner was the Beale Street Pharmacy, now Papa Gino's in a newer building, and then there was Woolworth's Five & Ten cent store. On the right were Well's Cafe, now the Hancock Tavern, Guay's Bakery and the Old Corner Drug Store now Tony's House of Pizza. The Gardner Building on the next corner had rooms to let upstairs and then California Cleansers on the street level. That building burned and there is now a Bank of America ATM there. Further down were The Russell Funeral Home and Balcom's Texaco gas station. The three drug stores at this intersection were a small sample of the more than 40 drug stores and pharmacies in Quincy at the time. An artist at the postcard publisher removed all the overhead trolley and utility wires and poles which were in this view at the time but are gone today. An enlargement of this postcard and several other postcards of old Wollaston can be seen in The Hancock Tavern. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

77 Tons Of Paper Recycled In One Week

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence P. Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee, reported that recent developments in the city's curbside paper recycling program indicate that further progress is being made.

First, 77 tons of paper was recycled the week of March 26 through March 30. Chretien said the total is the most paper recycled during a "B" week, since the program began last May.

Secondly, a paper drop-off center has been established for residents behind the David S. McIntosh Public Works building at 55 Sea St.

Thirdly, recycling with city owned buildings has begun. Office and computer paper is being collected at the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

CHENEY PROPOSES BUILDING OFFICE OPEN ONE NIGHT

Councillor at-Large Michael Cheney has asked Mayor James Sheets to consider opening the Building Inspector's office one night a week during the spring and summer months in order to make the department more accessible to residents.

Cheney has proposed the department be opened Thursdays from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. for residents, to allow them to seek advice regarding property improvements and to obtain building permits.

Is It Spring Yet?

Did you take off those flannel sheets yet? Or put away those winter coats?

Are you sorry because a few days after that one warm day, we have to bring them back?

My daughter Susie said she put her gloves and scarves away, and then on one of the many cold days she was looking for them, and somehow forgot where she put them!

We all do the same thing every year, because the winter season seems to last forever, and we can't wait to start wearing summer clothes and opening all the windows.

I guess it's a natural way because we all pine for those carefree, sunny, beautiful days - just wait a little longer and guess way? We will be complaining about the humidity, right?

I guess you can't please us no matter what. But regardless of this, have a wonderful summer!

Burke Donates $2,000 To QHS Fitness Center

I recently donated $2,000 to the Quincy High School Fitness Center.

When I recently visited Quincy High School the principal brought me to the fitness center and noted there were several machines in need of repair and in need of updating.

My donation to the school is for the repair and updating of the fitness machines in the George G. Burke Fitness Center.

I donated $100,000 to build the fitness center in the new Quincy High School and it is tremendously used by the students of the school.

Quincy Asian Resources Community Banquet May 11

'Investing In Our Community' Celebration To Honor Jack Lydon, Tim Wismar, South Shore YMCA

The 11th Annual QARI Community Banquet will be on Friday, May 11th at 6:30 p.m. at the Quincy China Pearl Restaurant. The public is invited to attend the evening entitled "Investing In Our Community" celebrating a collaboration and community spirit.

This is an opportunity for area leaders, partners and stakeholders from Quincy, the South Shore, and Greater Boston to engage and promote synergy within the Asian community.

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. will honor two individuals and one organization for their contribution and investment in the Asian community. They are John "Jack" Lydon, Tim Wismar, and the South Shore YMCA.

JOHN 'JACK' LYDON

Lydon will receive the Visionary Award. A lifelong Quincy resident, John

TIM WISMAR

"Jack" Lydon is well respected as a community leader and businessman and is the funeral director of the Lydon Chapel.

Lydon served as Ward 3 city councillor for 14 years from 1974 to 1987. He served as the council's president in 1982 and 1983. Lydon has also been active on several boards whose mission is to better the community. Jack is also recognized for his work in facilitating the vision of the immigration of the Asian population to Quincy.

Tim Wismar will be honored with the Founders' Award. Wismar is president of the congregation at Wollaston Lutheran Church (WLC), now a majority Chinese congregation. WLC has sponsored three low-income housing projects: Fenno House, Town Brook House and Bauer House with a total of 375 units. The church also sponsors the Wollaston Child Care Center with approximately 100 students and the Asian American Service Association which operates the Wollaston Senior Center.

Tim served on the QARI board from 2008 until his mandatory term expiration in 2017. He continues to serve QARI as a close advisor to the board.

The South Shore YMCA - one of QARI's strongest supporters - will be recognized with the Community Partner Award for providing years of partnership and fostering community spirit. Their contribution includes hosting two of QARI's satellite sites which has increased QARI's ability to serve a broader audience, providing free space for our city-wide festivals, and collaborating on new initiatives to expand critical services.

The South Shore YMCA has made invaluable contributions to the community by opening its doors to the clients that QARI serves.

The Banquet will include a raffle in which proceeds will benefit QARI's programs. As part of our commitment to the community, 10 percent of proceeds will be donated to the Quincy Storm Relief Fund.

ENC Offers Family-Friendly Entertainment During School Vacation Week

Eastern Nazarene College's Theatre Department completes its 2017-18 season with a production sure to bring the whole family together this spring.

"Anne of Green Gables," an adaptation of the book by Lucy Maud Montgomery, features over 30 cast members made up of college theatre majors, ENC alumni, and current faculty and staff of the college.

"We hope the show not only brings our own community together, but brings the local south shore community together as well," said director/producer Tara Brooke Watkins.

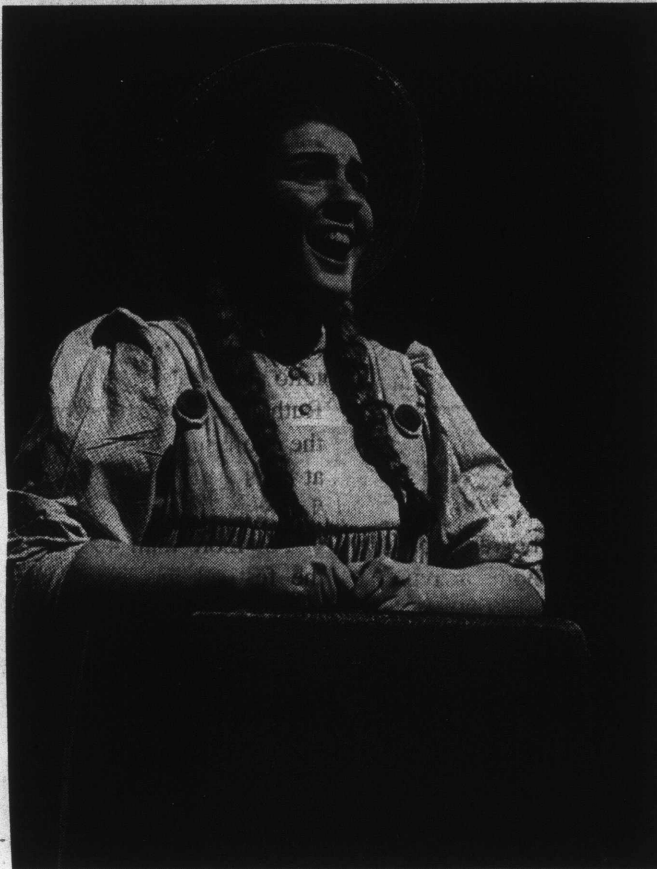

"This show is about rebirth, taking chances, faith, sacrifice, and discovering heroes in unlikely places," said Watkins. "It felt like the right time to do this show."

Watkins visited Prince Edward Island, re-read the novel, and read some of L.M. Montgomery's seven-volume diary for inspiration for the show. PEI is the setting for the story of the orphan girl, "who was supposed to be a boy," taken in by a bachelor brother and spinster sister.

Watkins describes what she felt when visiting PEI and reading Montgomery's work: "Nature is essential. Montgomery suffered from depression and from a difficult marriage, but she found solace in the trees whispering, the wind dancing, and the petals of cherry trees laughing."

"If you walk through the woods from where Lucy Maud lived, you'll come to a path covered in shade with tree branches and when you emerge, you see the Green Gables house." Watkins is trying to emphasize the healing and rejuvenating quality of nature with this production.

In addition to college students playing all the children's roles, adults on staff and faculty of ENC, or alumni of the college, are stepping in to the adult roles.

POLLY GOMES portrays Anne in Eastern Nazarene College's Theatre Department production of "Anne of Green Gables."

"It's so fun to act alongside your professor," said Polly Gomes who plays Anne. "Getting to know them on this level makes them more approachable and you really get to know them better, which has been so great!"

Gomes went to the extent of a three-hour salon appointment to achieve the infamous carrot-colored hair needed to play Anne. When asked what it's like to play such an iconic character, Gomes said "I love that I get to take a piece of Anne home with me every night. I think we need her optimism in this world and it's so great to have her with me always now."

The production runs April 17-21 and the college is hoping local families will see the show on April 17-18 when students are out of school for April Vacation. The performances begin at 10 a.m. those mornings and will end at noon. If people want to bring a sack lunch, audience members are welcome to enjoy a picnic outside with cast members after the show (weather permitting).

Additional performances run April 19-20, 7:30 p.m. and April 21, 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 for children 12 and under, $10 students/seniors, $15 adults. All seating is general admission. Doors will open one half hour prior to curtain.

For tickets call 617-745-3715 or visit brownpapertickets.com and enter "Anne of Green Gables" in the search box. ENC will produce "Beauty and the Beast" next fall.

Maria Droste 'Pretty In Pink' Spring Fashion Show April 26

The Maria Droste Counseling Agency's annual Spring fashion show, "Pretty In Pink" will be held Thursday, April 26th at Lantana's in Randolph.

Each year this event is held to benefit the efforts of the Maria Droste Counseling Services founded in Quincy in 1992 and located 1354 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The event committee is now in the process of planning what will be a full-fledge welcome to a very long awaited spring. As always this event will prove to be a very fashionable opportunity to socialize with friends and associates.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m. with a cocktail hour followed by dinner, music, live and silent auctions opportunities. The event will culminate with a sensational spring fashion show. This will be the 26th year for this always eagerly awaited gala presentation.

Several local celebrities and trend setters, both male and female, will take to the runway that evening to showcase important spring selections from Caryn's Corner of Quincy. The male side of the fashion story will feature a collection from Hajjar's apparel for men, also of Quincy.

Hair styles will again be under the direction of Susan Canavan from the award-winning Quincy salon, Aura.

Four basic values - acceptance, respect, compassion and healing - are the guiding credo for the staff of counseling professionals at the Maria Droste Services Agency. In order to bring "Hope to Life" to their clients, the staff provides quality services to all in need of a brighter future by offering affordable and timely mental health and holistic services that nurture body, mind and spirit.

Since the agency's beginning, the full-time staff and the many volunteers, all licensed professional social workers, have provided critical support to individuals, couples and family groups with clients of all ages. A negotiated sliding fee scale, based on financial ability to pay, makes it possible to offer support to all people in need of help in several South Shore communities.

The ability to offer this program relies on the work of the committee organizing this special evening, the gracious event sponsors, those offering their services on the runway and in addition those who annually attend that evening. This is the agency's major fund-raising effort and the success of the evening makes the most vital services the agency delivers available to those so in need of their compassionate care.

Check the agency's website for more information about the agency, their services and a peek at past events. www.mariadrostecounseling.com

Advanced ticket purchases are required. For tickets and reservation call Stacey Campbell at 617-471-5686.

Wollaston Garden Club Members Taking Part In 'Art In Bloom'

At Boston's Museum Of Fine Arts April 28-30

Two members of the Wollaston Garden Club will participate in the Museum of Fine Arts' "Art in Bloom" Saturday, April 28 through Monday, April 30.

Head Arranger Jo Costello and Assistant Arranger Ruth Griffin will represent the Wollaston Garden Club at this year's festival of flowers.

For more than 40 years, the festival has paired art from across the MFA's collection with floral interpretations created by 50 New England-area garden clubs.

In addition to enjoying colorful arrangements scattered throughout the Museum, visitors can stop by the new Art in Bloom Market, Pop-Up Flower Truck and expanded Garden Cart for unique gifts as well as take-home flower arrangements.

Throughout the weekend, festival-goers are encouraged to share their best floral photos on social media with #mfainBloom.

Art in Bloom launches with an Evening Preview of freshly installed arrangements on Friday, April 27 from 5 to 10 p.m. Daily events include tours of flower arrangements throughout the galleries; floral-arranging demonstrations, snacks and lunch in the Art in Bloom Cafe among European masterpieces; and outdoor walking tours of the Museum's campus and beyond.

A Community Day on Sunday, April 29 offers art-making activities for children and families, as well as performances by local community organizations, including Boston City Singers. Additionally, special group tours are available beginning Friday evening, and free ikebana demonstrators occur on Saturday.

Joseph Massie - regarded as one of Europe's top botanical artists - offers master classes Saturday, April 29 ($225 for members, $270 for nonmembers) as well as a lecture and demonstration of his innovative, contemporary couture process on Sunday, April 30 ($40 for members and $50 for nonmembers.)

Art in Bloom is included in Museum admission - $25 for adults and $23 for seniors and students age 18 and older. Admission is free for children 17 and under.

During Art in Bloom, the MFA is open daily, Saturday through Monday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., in addition to the evening preview on Friday, April 27, 5 to 10 p.m.

Red Cross Blood Drive April 23

The American Red Cross will hold a Blood Drive Monday, April 23 from 1 to 7 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

Volunteer donors are the only source of blood products for those in need of transfusions. Donors of all blood types are needed to help meet patient needs this spring.

Make an appointment to donate blood by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). All those who come to donate from April 9 to May 13, 2018, will be entered to win one of three $1,000 gift cards to a national home improvement retailer, courtesy of Suburban Propane.

Restrictions apply. More details are available at RedCrossBlood.org/Lets-Do-More.

WHAT'S COOKING

with
Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUSIE FALCO

Ann Marie's Minestrone Soup

By MARIE

Today's recipe is for a delicious, different and hardy minestrone soup that my daughter, Ann Marie, makes very frequently.

Every time she cooks this delightful soup, she always brings me a bowl and it is always a tasty treat. The difference in this minestrone soup recipe is that it does not contain pasta the way most traditional minestrone soups usually do.

RECIPE

1 small head of cabbage cut in small pieces

1 quart of either chicken stock or any other stock

1 large can of crushed tomatoes

2 carrots, sliced

2 stocks of celery cut into small pieces

1 can of white beans

1 can of kidney beans

Salt and pepper to taste

Grated cheese for sprinkling

In a soup pot add the stock, cabbage, carrots and the celery, cook and simmer until vegetables are tender. Add the tomatoes and the two cans of beans, and salt and pepper. Simmer for 15 to 20 minutes and serve hot.

Flourless Chocolate Chip Bread

By SUSIE

Lower carb diets are very popular among many health conscious people, since most have great success with weight loss, as well as reducing inflammation in the body.

It is very important to not feel deprived to be able to stick to any life style change. Breads are normally what is missed the most.

Here is a recipe for chocolate chip bread that is really good, and easy to make. Delicious warm for a quick breakfast or with a cup of tea or coffee. This recipe is a lower carb recipe, especially when Lily's chocolate chips are used, since they do not contain any sugar, and are delicious. You will not notice any difference.

In this recipe you get your dose of important healthy fats in the nut butter, as well as protein. No flour in this bread! Hope you like it as much as I do. You can mix this all in a blender or vitamix to make it easier.

Flourless Chocolate Chip Bread

1 cup almond batter

5 eggs

2 tbsp real maple syrup

1/2 teaspoon baking powder

1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1/4 cup coconut flour

1/2 cup chocolate chips (I use Lily's)

1 tablespoon vanilla extract

2 teaspoons apple cider vinegar

Simply place everything but the chips in a blender. Blend until smooth then stir in the chips by hand.

Pour batter into parchment paper lined loaf pan. Bake for 25-30 minutes.

Let cool 20 minutes.

Cabbage-Bacon Casserole

By MARIE

Usually when I cook cabbage I sauté it in oil and garlic cloves and it is always delicious.

Today's recipe is for a baked cabbage-bacon casserole and if you like cabbage and you like bacon then today's delicious recipe for a cabbage-bacon casserole will be a big hit with you and your family. I used a small Savoy cabbage but any cabbage will do.

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees, lightly grease a casserole dish

2 cups of shredded cabbage

12 slices of bacon, cooked

1 and 1/2 cup of fresh spinach leaves

1/4 cup of pickle juice for the sweet and sour sauce

2/3 cup of cracker crumbs

Butter (enough for casserole topping)

Steam the shredded cabbage in a covered sauce pan with a small amount of water but do not cook it fully. Drain and set aside.

Cook the bacon until crisp and then drain on paper towel. Crumble the bacon and place in a slightly greased casserole dish. Add cabbage and spinach and the pickle juice, sprinkle with the bread crumbs and dot with butter.

Bake covered in a 350 degree oven for 30 minutes, uncover and bake 15 minutes longer.

Quincy Students - Governor And Best Lobbyist At Massachusetts Youth In Government Conference

Colman Gillis and Matt Brandi of Quincy, juniors at Boston College High School, were two of the 18 B.C. High students who participated at the annual YMCA Youth in Government Conference from March 22 to 23 at the Massachusetts State House on Beacon Hill.

The young men were delighted that Governor Charlie Baker was the keynote speaker and that they were able to meet B.C. High graduates William Driscoll '01, state representative of the 7th Norfolk District, Milton and Randolph and Daniel Cullinane '03, state representative of Dorchester, Mattapan, Hyde Park and Milton.

The BC High team had a most successful year: they won the Premier Delegation award and Colman Gillis '19 of Quincy won the Best Lobbyist award, Alec Magill '20 of Walpole won the Best Bill in the House award, Kenny Dao '20 of Randolph won the Best Legal Brief award, and Salim Metri '19 of Hanover won the Outstanding Representative award.

B.C. High students were singled out for leadership roles at the conference: Matt Brandi '19 of Quincy, Justin Giffie '19 of Framingham and Tim Lynch '18 of South Boston and were Committee Chairs. Berenger Dufresne '20 of Dorchester was the House Clerk, William Donoso '19 of Weymouth was Assistant Attorney General and Stephen DeMatteo

'18 of Scituate and Ryan Golemme '19 of Norwell were members of the Governor's Cabinet.

Kenny Dao '20 of Randolph was selected to represent Massachusetts at the National Judicial Conference in Chicago in August and Matt Brandi, Ryan Golemme, and Tim Lynch were selected to represent Massachusetts at the Conference on National Affairs at the YMCA Blue Ridge Assembly in Black Mountain, North Carolina at the beginning of July 2018.

Two students won statewide elections. MA Youth Governor - Matt Brandi and MA Lt. Governor - Ryan Golemme. They will serve in these positions next year.

Quincy's Robert Slack Selected ISS Volunteer Of The Month

Quincy's Robert Slack has been named Interfaith's Social Services' Volunteer of the Month. Slack is a volunteer at Interfaith's food pantry, where he assists the Food Pantry Driver with food rescue runs and keeps the pantry stocked and clean.

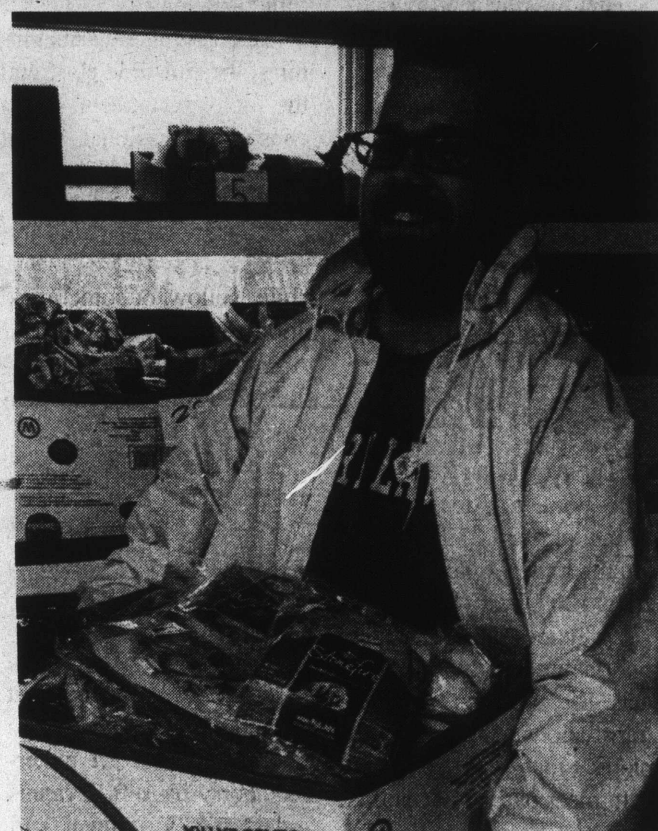

Food Pantry Manager Eileen Kelly nominated Slack as Volunteer of the Month because of his consistent willingness to go the extra mile.

"The food pantry can look like a storm hit after the morning shift is over and numerous food deliveries have been made," Kelly said. "But after Robert has been working, our shelves are clean, organized, rotated and restocked. Robert's great attention to detail gives me confidence that we are providing our neighbors with quality food from our pantry shelves."

Slack chose to serve at Interfaith because of his concerns for food insecurity and mental health care, two of the organization's biggest focuses. "Food insecurity is a huge problem in this country, even though the United States has the world's largest economy. I wanted to help with that," he said. "And as a cancer survivor, I know the importance of mental health in life and think it is an important part of recovery."

Alongside the food pantry, Interfaith operates the New Directions Counseling Center, which provides mental health counseling and addiction recovery treatment to hundreds of local individuals and families.

Slack is one of Interfaith's more than 100 volunteers who give their time each week to serve those on the South Shore that need food assistance. He works alongside other individuals, as well as civic, religious and corporate groups that volunteer with Interfaith.

Volunteers at Interfaith commit to a three-hour shift per week. Shifts are available Monday-Friday, between 7am and 3:30pm. Opportunities include assisting the Food Pantry Driver in food rescue operations, filling orders for clients in the food pantry, manning the front desk and stocking and inventorying the pantry.

Those interested in volunteering at Interfaith Social Services are encouraged to contact volunteer coordinator Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org.

LGBTQuincy Meeting April 23

LGBTQuincy Meetup will host a guest speaker event on Monday, April 23rd, at 6:30 p.m., at the Adams Shore Public Library, 519 Sea St.

A representative from GLAD (GLBTQ Legal Advocates and Defenders), a Boston-based legal non-profit, will provide an overview of their organization.

Open to all members of the South Shore LG-BTQ community. RSVP by emailing Frank Rubino at frank55887@gmail.com.

Kids And Ear Infections: Diagnosis, Types & Treatments

A Message From Ruth Jones, Director Of Nursing, Quincy Health Department

By RUTH JONES

BSN, RN, BC, CP-FS

Ear infections are extremely common in children. Children are at an increased risk for ear infections because their small ears do not drain fluid as well as adult ears, also kids' immune systems are immature, and this enhances the likelihood of particular infections.

The diagnosis of an ear infection is made by examining the inside of the ear with an instrument called an otoscope. A doctor may also perform a tympanometry, which measures how the eardrum responds to a variation of air pressure inside the ear. Hearing tests are also frequently utilized to diagnose an ear infection, especially in children who have fluid in both ears. Blood tests can also be taken if there are signs of immune problems.

There are three types of ear infections. Each type is identified according to where they occur in the ear canal. An ear infection may take place in the inner, middle or outer ear. Symptoms may vary depending on which type of infection the child has.

Swimmer's Ear

(Outer Ear Infection)

An infection of the ear canal, the outer ear, is occasionally referred to as swimmer's ear. Swimmer's ear can be caused by an excess of moisture in the ear canal or from inserting something too deep into the ear.

Swimming or showering causes the acidic environment of the ear canal to be altered, which allows bacteria or fungi to invade the ear. The lining of the ear canal can also be injured by scratching or from cotton swabs or other objects when inserted into the ear.

Additional causes of swimmer's ear include chemicals that irritate the ear canal and skin ailments that cause the skin to crack. Swimmer's ear is characteristically painful. The discomfort gradually begins over a day or two, and is especially intense when the ear is touched or pulled, or when chewing.

Symptoms of swimmer's ear may include the following:

- Ear pain or earache (almost always involves only one ear)
- Ear canal itching
- Outer ear redness
- Ear canal swollen shut
- Ear draining fluid or pus (drainage may be clear, white, yellow, or sometimes bloody and foul smelling)

- Fluid crusting at the opening of the ear canal
- Trouble hearing
- Ringing in the ear (tinnitus) and dizziness or spinning sensation (vertigo)
- Feeling of fullness in the ear
- Pain on the side of the face or neck
- Swollen lymph nodes

Treatment for swimmer's ear involves avoiding swimming, over-the-counter pain relievers, and possibly antibiotics.

Middle Ear Infection

Middle ear infections are triggered by bacteria and viruses. Swelling from an upper respiratory infection or allergy can block the Eustachian tubes (the canal that connects your middle ear to your throat), which would preclude air from reaching the middle ear. This creates a vacuum and suction that pulls fluid and germs from the nose and throat into the middle ear. Because the tubes are swollen, the fluid cannot drain. This provides a medium for the growth of bacteria or virus, which instigates a middle ear infection.

The otoscope can blow a tiny puff of air against the eardrum to see if it vibrates normally. When there is fluid present in the middle ear, the eardrum does not vibrate as it should. Symptoms are most likely to occur 2 to 7 days after the start of a cold or other respiratory infection.

Middle ear infection symptoms may include:

- Ear pain (mild to severe)
- Fever
- Drainage from the ear that is thick and yellow or bloody
- Loss of appetite, vomiting, and grumpy behavior
- Trouble sleeping

Treatment for middle ear infections normally focuses on relieving pain. A doctor may also prescribe antibiotics for a middle ear infection.

Inner Ear Infection

(Labyrinthitis)

Labyrinthitis is inflammation inside the inner ear. This condition occurs when the labyrinth, a part of the inner ear that assists in controlling your balance, gets inflamed. The swelling of the labyrinth can be caused by respiratory illnesses, viral and bacterial ear infections. Inner ear infection symptoms begin rapidly and can be quite intense for several days.

Inner ear infection symptoms include the following:

- Dizziness
- Nausea
- Loss of hearing
- Vertigo (dizziness with the sensation of moving)
- Tinnitus (ringing or buzzing in the ear)
- Difficulty focusing eyes

Treatment of an inner ear infection typically involves medication to control symptoms, such as prescription and over-the-counter antihistamines and corticosteroids. Antibiotics may be prescribed if there is an active infection.

Ruptured Eardrum

When the pressure from fluid buildup is too elevated inside the middle ear, the eardrum can rupture. When the eardrum bursts, brown, yellow, or whitish fluid can drain from the ear. Sometimes when the eardrum bursts, the pain abruptly stops because the pressure is relieved.

A ruptured eardrum can be the source of many symptoms. However, the most common symptoms of a ruptured eardrum are an uncomfortable feeling in the ear and the sound of air coming out of the ear when blowing your nose.

The following are other symptoms of a ruptured eardrum:

- Sudden sharp ear pain or a sudden decrease in ear pain
- Drainage from the ear that may be bloody, clear, or resemble pus
- Ear noise or buzzing
- Hearing loss that may be partial or complete in the affected ear
- Episodic ear infections
- Facial weakness or dizziness

The eardrum usually heals without medical treatment within a few weeks after a rupture, and hearing is typically not worsened unless it continues to occur frequently over a period of time. Antibiotics may be prescribed in order to prevent an ear infection.

Ear infections aren't always apparent in babies and children who are too young to describe their pain. They may signify ear pain by pulling on or fussing with their ear. They may just be irritable, or not eating or sleeping well. Babies sometimes refuse to drink from a bottle because swallowing hurts their ears. Ear infection symptoms in babies may include:

- Fever
- Ear drainage
- Trouble hearing
- Poor appetite
- Vomiting
- Diarrhea

If your doctor prescribes an antibiotic, it's important to make sure your child takes it exactly as prescribed and for the full amount of time. Even though your child may seem better in a few days, the infection still hasn't completely cleared from the ear. Stopping the medicine too soon could allow the infection to come back. It's also important to return for your child's follow-up visit, so that the doctor can check if the infection is gone.

Ruth Jones is the director of Nursing for the City of Quincy Health Department.

Study Shows Link Between Ticks And Kidney Disease

By MELISSA BEALL

DVM, PhD,

IDEXX Laboratories

Tick encounters are increasingly hard to avoid. These adaptable parasites are responsible for spreading a variety of diseases throughout the United States, and their range is increasing.

Unfortunately, due to issues, such as mice and deer overpopulation (they serve as hosts for ticks), reforestation, suburban sprawl, and patterns in bird migration, among others, ticks and other bugs are taking root in new regions. Add climate change on top of our boundary-less society, and it's clear that your dog—and your family—may be meeting more parasites.

A single tick can transmit multiple infectious agents that can cause serious illness. Because dogs can't tell you how they feel and may not always show clinical signs, it can be challenging to understand the true harm of any given infection to a pet's health. Therefore, it's so important for all dogs to be screened annually for exposure to tick-borne diseases.

An infection from a tick can lead to health issues, including chronic conditions affecting a variety of body systems—blood, joints, kidneys, and others. These complications can be hard to diagnose if we don't understand that a dog has been exposed to an infected tick.

A new study from IDEXX shows a connection between one of these conditions—chronic kidney disease (CKD)—and dogs exposed to infected ticks in areas where Borrelia burgdorferi (the agent that causes Lyme disease) and E. canis are endemic. This research shows that dogs exposed to Lyme disease are at a 43% higher risk of developing kidney disease. And for dogs exposed to Ehrlichia in E. canis-endemic areas, that number jumps to 300%. This research included both symptomatic and seemingly healthy dogs.

Why should I ask my veterinarian about screening for exposure to infected ticks?

All dogs should be screened annually because it's quite possible your pet could be fighting an infection and not showing any visible signs of illness. Your veterinarian can screen your dog using tests like the IDEXX SNAP® 4Dx® Plus Test, which is a comprehensive pet-side test for tick- and mosquito-transmitted infections. Running a comprehensive test once a year is important to monitor your pet's health, as recommended by the Companion Animal Parasite Council, an independent group of leading parasitologists.

What are the signs of Lyme disease or Ehrlichia?

For both Lyme disease and Ehrlichia, signs may include fever, fatigue, and enlarged lymph nodes. Lyme disease can also be accompanied by joint pain. However, many dogs with antibodies to Lyme disease or Ehrlichia may show no visible signs of their infection. This new data suggests that certain dogs, regardless of visible signs, may be at increased risk of ensuing diseases, making annual health monitoring even more important in tick-exposed pets.

What if my veterinarian determines that my dog has been exposed to an infected tick?

If your veterinarian is using the IDEXX SNAP 4Dx Plus Test, a blue dot indicating exposure to an infected tick can be quickly and easily followed up with routine blood work and urinalysis to determine if there is hidden or underlying tick-borne disease. And your veterinarian can also monitor kidney function with the IDEXX SDMA® Test to help catch early signs of kidney function loss in at-risk pets. With this information, your veterinarian can determine what treatments are appropriate.

What happens if my dog's results are negative?

The good news is that negative results are our goal. A negative test result for exposure to infected ticks indicates preventive measures are working, which should be great news for you and your pet.

To protect our pets and ourselves, it's critical to stay alert to the risks. That means regularly screening your pet—whether symptomatic or seemingly healthy—to identify exposure to infected ticks. Make an appointment today with your veterinarian to get your pet screened for exposure to tick-borne disease. And please visit www.idexx.com/ticks for more information.

Arthritis Topic April 30

Do you suffer from arthritis?

History, Visitor Program Opening At United First Parish Church

The Church of the Presidents announces the opening of the 2018 History and Visitors program season on Saturday, April 14th.

The History and Visitors Program offers guided tours of the historic United First Parish Church and the crypt of the Adams Presidents Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sundays noon to 4 p.m.

Located at 1306 Hancock St., United First Parish Church sits in the heart of historic Quincy Center, directly across from the old City Hall and the Hancock Cemetery.

Completed in 1828, this historic church is the fourth home to the first and longest continuously functioning congregation in the community. The building was designed by Alexander Parry, and is constructed with Quincy granite, much of it donated from the Adams family quarry. The building was designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1970, and is considered one of the finest examples a Greek Revival style church in New England.

The Church of the Presidents is the only building in the United States to house the final resting place of two Presidents. President John Adams, First Lady Abigail Adams, their son President John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams are

'Saving Sea Turtles' Film Screening

The Park Department and the Thomas Crane Library are screening a new documentary, Saving Sea Turtles: the Movie.

Shown at 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 14 as part of a Children's program at the library, the film will be screened for adults on Tuesday, April 17 at 7 p.m. in the Library's Community Room.

Late each autumn, hundreds of sea turtles strand on Cape Cod due to hypothermia. For more than 25 years, the New England Aquarium rehabilitation center in Quincy and the Mass Audubon Wellfleet Bay Wildlife Sanctuary have worked together to rescue, rehabilitate and release thousands of these sea turtles, mostly Kemp's Ridleys, the world's most endangered sea turtle.

Over the last decade, the number of stranded turtles has steadily increased, but the late autumn of 2014 saw an unprecedented event as more than 1,200 cold-stunned sea turtles washed ashore. This massive wildlife emergency marshaled an inspiring response within and beyond Massachusetts, that reached from individuals to the federal government, involving over 10 states and 21 institutions. The film documents this response.

Social Security Matters

Why The Big Deal About COLA Increases?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: Seems like everyone makes a big deal out of the annual Social Security increase. The way I see it, why bother? For the 2017 benefit year my wife's Social Security increased by .03% but her Medicare increased by 3% for a net gain of 0 dollars. My Social Security increased by the same .03% but my Medicare increased by 5% for a net gain of 0 dollars. For the 2018 benefit year my wife's Social Security increased by 2% but her Medicare increased by 17% for a net gain of 0 dollars. My Social Security increased by the same 2% but my Medicare increased by 22% for a net gain of only $8.10 (.005%). Why does the government even bother with all these changes since the end result is that you net out no increase or just a small fraction of the actual increase? Makes no sense to me. Thanks for your column. I enjoy it. Signed: Disillusioned Dear Disillusioned: I must say I fully appreciate your point; I too received none of the 2017 Cost of Living Adjustment (COLA) and only a small part of the 2018 increase. And although I know it's very little consolation, millions of others like us are in the same boat. What it boils down to is that healthcare costs (thus Medicare Part B premiums) are rising more than, and faster than, the inflation index used to compute Social Security COLA increases. Social Security and Medicare are two entirely different programs and, even though Medicare premiums are usually automatically deducted from Social Security payments, this is done as a convenience. The Medicare premium deducted from your Social Security benefit goes directly to Medicare, not to Social Security. Think of it this way: If you paid for your Medicare Part B premium separately rather than by a deduction from your Social Security benefit, for years you would have been paying Medicare the full Part B premium amount, which was more than you have been paying via deduction from your Social Security benefit. This is because there's a rule which states that your Social Security benefit can't go down because of a Medicare premium increase, and many of us (including me) were paying an artificially lower than normal Medicare premium.

But the same law which says that your Social Security benefit can't go down also says that any increase in your Social Security benefit can be used to bring your Medicare premium up to, or closer to, the standard Part B premium amount ($134 per month in 2018), and this is why so many of us have seen all or most of our COLA increases going to Medicare. Note too that the COLA increases we are seeing in recent years (or not seeing in the case of 2010, 2011 and 2016) have been much lower than in years past because inflation has been so low for so many years (at least as measured by the Consumer Price Index). So while I share your frustration, I hope that since we're both now paying the full Medicare Part B premium each month via Social Security, that perhaps next year we'll be able to get the full amount of any Cost of Living Adjustment that is made to Social Security. That is, of course, if there is a COLA increase and also if there is no increase in the Medicare Part B premium (and the latter is doubtful). In case you missed it, here's a link to an article I recently wrote about this whole situation: <http://socialsecurityreport.org/ask-rusty-cola-medicare-premiums-and-the-hold-harmless-provision/>.

Officials Discuss New Garage, Interim Parking

"The design goal we were attempting to achieve is not to have it look like a garage," said William Geary, Quincy Center Redevelopment Project special counsel. "We endeavored to make it look like a building. We want to enhance the downtown area for people and make them feel welcomed and accommodate their parking needs while they're going to restaurants and visiting various business establishments in Quincy Center."

Geary explained that the "nationally renowned" design team, Desman Associates, has been hired to design the garage. He said the company specializes in designing parking garages throughout the world including Boston.

According to Geary, design team member Wes Wilson surveyed local parking garages to determine what components worked and didn't work and incorporated that information into the design of the Hancock garage.

Wilson said the new garage will have two entrances - one off Cottage Avenue and the other off Dennis Ryan Parkway, across from Quincy District Court.

"This gives us ample queuing off street," he said. "This is very important so it doesn't impact traffic."

There will also be two other connector access points from Revere Road and Hancock Street. The latter will be an extension of

CIVIC SPACE will be constructed along three sides of the new Hancock Parking garage. This view is from the Cottage Avenue side of the site. The pergolas at right will be behind LBC Partners' Nova Suites development, and the tree-lined plaza will be in the space between the garage and The Fours Restaurant. The city will spend $46.6 million on the garage and civic space.

Cliveden Street.

Wilson said the 712-vehicle capacity of the new garage is 300 more than currently exists on the Hancock lot site.

The parking garage is four stories that actually has six levels including a top level and a below grade level. Wilson noted the below grade level has a larger footprint than the upper levels to maximize the number of total available parking spaces and minimize the height of the garage.

In surveying other local parking garages to gather ideas for the Hancock design, Wilson pointed to the 100-year-old garage in Boston near Legal Seafoods that continues to function.

Geary explained that Quincy's 40-year-old Ross garage had to be demolished because it was deteriorating and a safety hazard.

"We took it down so it wouldn't fall down," he
